Fabrizio, Kolson, Ayers Get Top Committee Posts

Ward 4 City Councillor Thomas Fabrizio is the new chairman of the City Council Finance Committee and Ward 1 Councillor Peter Kolson is chairman of the council's Ordinance Committee.

Councillor Michael Cheney, who was elected City Council president at Monday's inauguration ceremonies, announced his committee appointments Tuesday.

Cheney cited Fabrizio's conservative fiscal role on the City Council the past four years as the reason for his appointment.

"Tom Fabrizio is a fiscal conservative and has a realistic approach to the city's finances," he said. "I am confident Tom will lead the Finance Committee in a positive direction." Cheney added that Councillor Timothy Cahill, the previous Finance Committee chairman, will serve as the committee's vice chairman.

Cheney said Kolson "has taken a deep and sincere interest in the laws that govern the people of the City of Quincy. I feel confident that Peter will pay particular attention to details of the city ordinances." Ward 2 Councillor Ted DeCristofaro will be vice chairman, he added.

Other top appointments included that of Ward 6 Councillor Bruce Ayers to chairman of the Public Safety Committee and Ward 5 Councillor Charles Phelan to chairman of the Education Committee. Fabrizio, the previous Education Committee chairman, will serve as vice chairman of both committees, Cheney said.

Cheney said Ayers "has expressed his desire to work cooperatively" with the police and fire departments. He also said he is confident Phelan will

During his third inaugural address Monday, Mayor James Sheets unveiled plans to reorganize city government, strengthen Quincy's economic base, and expand the city's war against crime.

After taking the oath of office from City Clerk Joseph Shea at ceremonies held in the North Quincy High School auditorium, Sheets said during his 30-minute address that the mission of both his administration and all Quincy residents during his third term "to create in this city a quality of life for our citizens that is unequalled in this Commonwealth or anywhere else in this country."

Sheets said one of the ways to reach that goal is through the reorganization of city government. The mayor said he plans to submit home-rule petitions to the City Council for the following purposes:

"To create a division of inspection services which places the functions of building, plumbing and wiring inspection, as well as weights and measures and conservation enforcement under the administrative goal of a single person. "It is the ultimate objective to house all these inspection services in one location so that one-stop service will become a reality for all our citizens," said Sheets.

"To institute a single purchasing department to service both the municipal government and the school system. "It is my opinion that this unification will provide greater economy and more efficiency of government," the mayor said.

"To create a single division of building maintenance to service and maintain all city buildings—school and public.

"To continue to explore the possibility of creating a single personnel department for the city and school system."

Sheets said that in the reorganization plan, there will be no lay-offs of civil service personnel and reduction of the work force will occur by normal attrition.

"Change will not come easily, but government in the 21st century must be more efficient and people-friendly," he said.

The mayor also said the city must continue to strengthen its economic base. He said the work of Quincy 2000, the city's public-private planning corporation, will be vital to Quincy's future economic success.

Sheets said Quincy 2000 will begin a new "incubator program" this month and those who complete the program will be offered low interest loans as well as ongoing support and consolidation as they develop their own businesses. Also within the month, the group and Grossman's will make public both the design of a new Grossman's retail complex on Granite Street and the new retail stores which will locate there, according to the mayor.

Sheets added that Quincy 2000 helped pave the way for a $9 million nursing home and health care center on the Parkway in downtown Quincy for which ground is to be broken later this year. Sheets said the group will continue to try to bring a hotel and more retail stores to Quincy Center, will act as the lead marketing agency for the Quincy Center Concourse which will connect Burgin Parkway to the southern end of Hancock Street, will serve as a marketing agent for a

City Battles Second Snowstorm In Week

For the second time in a week, city emergency crews battled through a major snowstorm Monday night and Tuesday.

Quincy Emergency Management Deputy Director Tony Siciliano said Tuesday emergency management personnel were on the job until past midnight Tuesday and returned to work at 4 a.m. in order to deal with the storm which dumped at least a half-foot of snow on the ground.

Siciliano said his department was concentrating mostly on transportation.

"Our main concern is people who need a ride to the doctor's office or anywhere else," said Siciliano. "We're working with the police department and things have worked out well. We're open if people need us."

Local meteorologist Rob Gilman said at press time Quincy had received 6 1/2 inches of snow as of Tuesday morning and could expect "another inch or two" before the storm ended that evening.

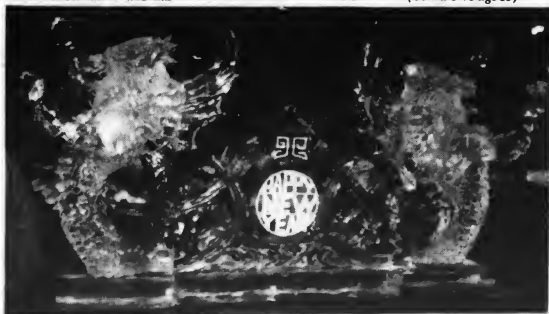

Gilman noted that the accumulation itself was not that impressive, saying such a storm "is a very typical event that happens every winter," but added that the winds and temperatures during the storm were both noteworthy.

"The city received what Gilman termed "blizzard winds" of 30 to 40 m.p.h. with gusts as high as 55 m.p.h. Gilman added that the temperatures ranged from 32 degrees Monday night to 19 degrees Tuesday at 1 a.m. and 25 degrees late Tuesday morning. Temperatures were expected to reach the mid-30s by Tuesday afternoon, he said.

"The temperatures have been fascinating," he said.

The storm arrived just days after last week's snowfall which dumped up to 10 inches of snow in Quincy and other surrounding communities.

Time May Run Out On Home-Rule Petition For Special Election

By MICHAEL WHALEN

Time may have run out on a home-rule petition for a special election in the city.

The petition, which was passed last month by the City Council in the hopes of holding a new election to break a tie between two School Committee candidates, faced a deadline of yesterday (Wednesday) at midnight to be passed by the state legislature.

If the legislature did not pass it by then, the petition would have to be resubmitted for the legislature's new legislative session.

State Sen. Michael Morrissey said The Sun went to press Tuesday that the petition "took a reading in the House calendar" Monday, but added that while he felt there was a good chance of the petition reaching the Senate, it would probably not pass because the Senate had too many items before it on its agenda.

"Nothing is impossible, but I would say it's near impossible," he said. "It would be a monumental task at this point. But if they (the House) get it over to me, I'll do what I can."

Councillor Timothy Cahill, who introduced the petition, has said he felt a special election was the fairest way of breaking the deadlock between School Committee candidates Sean Barry and Christine Cedrone. He added, however, that he does not want the School Committee to be left one member short for a prolonged period of time and would not resubmit the petition this year if it did not pass the legislature by this week's deadline.

If no special election is held, the city would have to abide by Quincy's city charter and allow a Constitutional Convention of both the City Council and School Committee to fill the seat. Cahill has said he would agree to that if the petition did not pass.

Cedrone edged Barry in the Nov. 2 election by eight votes (5,716 to 5,708), but a subsequent four-day recount ended in a tie of 5,734 votes apiece. Cedrone has said a special election would be the fairest way to break the tie, but Barry has argued that a special election would open the field to more candidates and that the city charter should be followed.

Victim Of Drunk Driver

Quincy Point Bakery Keeps Memory Of Philip Fantasia Alive

By MICHAEL WHALEN

When 20-year-old Philip Fantasia of Quincy was killed six years ago by a drunk driver, his dream of becoming an engineer died with him.

His family, however, is keeping his memory alive in the form of a Quincy Point bakery which they recently opened.

Philip's Bakery, 48 Summer St., stands as a memorial to the Worcester Polytechnic Institute student whose promising future was taken from him in an August 1987 accident. It is owned and operated by The Fantasia Group Inc., which is comprised of his parents, Antonio and Jennie Fantasia, and his younger brothers, Anthony, 24, and Joseph, 22.

Antonio Fantasia said he and his family opened the bakery, which bears Philip's likeness on the front sign, because they did not want people to forget about Philip or the tragedy that claimed his life.

"We opened the store for Philip's honor," he said. "It's like a mausoleum for him, so he wouldn't be forgotten."

Philip's family has not forgotten. His father remembered him as a model son, an exemplary student, and a kind, sensitive human being.

He also remembered the date of Aug. 2, 1987, when Philip was killed in an accident in front of the MBTA bus depot station next to Veterans Memorial Stadium in Wollaston.

Philip, a part-time manager at McDonald's on Southern Artery, had finished working the late-night shift and was passing the depot when a van traveling in the opposite direction swerved in front of his car, causing the two vehicles to collide. Philip died instantly, while the other driver escaped serious injury.

Antonio Fantasia said his son, who was majoring in mechanical engineering and minoring in culinary arts at the time of his death—he had completed two years at Worcester Polytechnic—a gifted individual who would have made a real difference in the world had he lived.

It was obvious early in Philip's life that he blessed with a rare level of intelligence, he added. At age 15 he had scored in the top 5 percent of all those who had taken the California Achievement Test, an examination which is administered to students nationwide. At 16, Philip and a friend helped to design the "Warlord" video game which was marketed by Atari.

While at Worcester Polytech, he was one of a handful of students chosen to work on a space shuttle design for NASA, and also had a job offer from a local toy company that predicted he would become a vice president within five years.

"He loved toys, mechanical toys," his father said. "We knew with his mind, he could only hold a top job." Philip had been inspired to become an engineer by learning about Pasquale Fantasia, his grandfather's uncle who had previously entered that field.

Philip was more than just a top student, however, according to his father. He was also an extremely caring person who loved all people, particularly children and the elderly.

"He loved and respected everybody, but especially children and senior citizens," he said. "He was polite and respectful toward everyone he met."

Fantasia added that his son was special not only to his family and close friends, but also to those who did not know him as well. He remembered a time when he kidded Philip about driving with a carload of his female co-workers.

"I told him, 'You're getting very popular with the ladies,'" he said. "And one of the girls said to me, 'Seriously, Mr. Fantasia, it's always a pleasure to be with Philip. He's always such a gentleman.'"

Another couple who had known Philip from McDonald's spoke to his father after he died. Although they had frequented the restaurant for years, they had gotten into the habit of only going when Philip was there "because of the way he treated him," Fantasia said, and had clipped his photograph from the newspaper after the accident.

He added that over 600 people attended the wake for Philip at Bolea-Buonfiglio Funeral Home in South Quincy. A memorial Mass was also held at Archbishop Williams High School in Braintree, of which Philip was a graduate, and the school was closed for most of the day.

Antonio Fantasia said his family has always been a close one—constantly going on trips and spending time with one another—and they managed to survive the tragedy of Philip's death by pulling together.

"We didn't go to any psychiatrist," he said.

The Fantasia family moved to Canton two years after the accident, he noted, because the memories of the accident became too strong to bear. He added, however, that they still love the City of Quincy.

"Quincy is a good city," said Fantasia. "Our leaving had nothing to do with not liking the city. But after what happened, we had to."

A carpenter by trade, Fantasia said that the bakery in his son's memory could not have been opened without the advice and assistance of Mayor James Sheets, Ward 2 Councillor Ted DeCristofaro, and a number of other officials from various city departments.

"They were all very helpful while we were opening the store," he said. "We couldn't have done it without them."

Studds Disputes EPA Study On MWRA Rates

Congressman Gerry Studds said Tuesday many Greater Boston communities pay water and sewer bills that are "intolerable," despite a federal survey that ranked 1992 MWRA rates as 55th highest in the country.

Studds said he conducted a careful, page-by-page analysis of the study, which was released this past fall by the New England regional office of the Environmental Protection Agency. The study said the average MWRA 1992 water and sewer rate was $514.29 a year, ranking it 55th out of 668 cities surveyed.

That figure is technically correct, Studds said, but is misleading for two reasons. First, the study considered the MWRA region as one entity, which Studds said masked the fact that many of the individual MWRA cities and towns pay extremely high rates. The study also did not look at the rate of sewer charge increases, Studds said, so it did not take into account that MWRA rates have quadrupled since 1985 and are expected to double again by the year 2000.

"Considering the 61 MWRA communities individually, rather than in aggregate, paints an entirely different picture,"

Studds wrote Tuesday in a letter to Carol Browner, administrator of the EPA. "Using that approach...MWRA communities would occupy 12 of the top 20 spots on the list of highest combined water and sewer charges, including the dubious distinction of the community with the highest charges of any surveyed (Westwood: $954.64 a year)."

Studds also said that because the MWRA communities tend to be much larger than the other cities on the top 20 list, a full 87 percent of those paying the top 20 highest rates in the nation live in MWRA communities. Two of the top 20, Hingham and Weymouth, are in Studds' Congressional district, paying $690.36 and $675.60 respectively in water and sewer charges, he said.

Studds also said in his letter to Browner that the rate of the increase has had a dramatic effect on ratepayers.

"It is the rate of the increase—as much as the amount—that produces the social and economic dislocations that are occurring in the Boston area," Studds wrote. "Furthermore, steep increases in water and sewer charges hit poor households and seniors living on fixed incomes particularly hard. The EPA study does not address these issues at all, and implies inappropriately that MWRA customers have little to protest. This is simply not true."

Studds said he wrote the letter to re-emphasize to Browner the need for increased federal funding of water and sewer projects, so the federal government can work with state and local governments to provide relief to beleaguered ratepayers across the nation. To that end, the study served a useful purpose, Studds said.

"Unless we deal squarely with the issue of funding, we risk an unraveling of our nation's commitment to clean water," Studds wrote. "The EPA study documents the magnitude of this problem. It is even worse than we imagined."

Studds said he will host a meeting in Washington early next month with local ratepayers. A few weeks later, as chairman of the House Merchant Marine and Fisheries Committee, Studds will chair a hearing on funding for the Clean Water Act. He said he invited Browner to testify at the Feb. 22 hearing, which will examine his "polluter pays" bill, which he said would raise billions of dollars by charging taxes on three major pollution sources: industrial toxic discharges, commercial and industrial water users and pesticides, fertilizers and animal feed.

The Congressman also applauded the work of the MWRA Advisory Board, which released a study last week that said Boston's rates are higher than comparable size cities all over the United States.

New City Council President

Public Safety, Protecting Neighborhoods, Lowering Taxes Cheney's Priorities

By ROBERT BOSWORTH

As his first term unfolds, newly elected City Council President Michael Cheney said his top priorities will be public safety, protecting neighborhoods and reducing property taxes and water and sewer rates.

Cheney outlined his main concerns in a brief interview following the inauguration ceremonies of Mayor James Sheets, City Council and the Quincy School Committee Monday in the North Quincy High School auditorium.

Cheney was unanimously elected council president for 1994 and 1995 during the council's organizational meeting for 1994. Cheney, a councillor-at-large, succeeds Ward 5 Councillor Charles Phelan who served the maximum two consecutive one year terms.

Cheney was nominated by Ward 4 Councillor Tom Fabrizio who said his colleague exemplifies "hard work, the willingness to listen and the willingness to act."

After his election, Cheney introduced his family, including his wife Tish. "My family has been very supportive and I wouldn't be here without them," he said.

For Cheney, Monday's inauguration was a satisfying and gratifying moment. He had lobbied for the council presidency two years ago, only to be bypassed. This year, he was deadlocked with Councillor Tim Cahill until Councillor Bruce Ayers announced several weeks ago that he would side with Cheney.

Cahill, in a show of council unity, announced shortly thereafter that he would support Cheney as did his supporters. Cheney's election was unanimous Monday.

"While there can be no greater honor for an individual than to serve in public service, it is a personal honor to be able to demonstrate leadership to the governing body of the City Council," Cheney said.

During his brief address, Cheney said pledged cooperation and support to Mayor James Sheets and the mayor's new initiatives outlined earlier during his third inaugural address.

Specifically, Cheney said he supports Sheets' plans to consolidate the city and school purchasing departments, physically "retrofit" the Quincy park system with improvements, and establish a new commission which would promote family type public activities.

In addition, Cheney said he supports the mayor's call for a special police drug unit to deal with drug sale and use in rental property. A state law allows for the eviction of anyone arrested for either illegally using or selling drugs in rental property.

While Sheets has promised to provide funding for the unit, Cheney said he does not think the new unit goes far enough. "I want to see it (the effort) expanded. The street level task force is virtually non-existent," Cheney said.

The new council president said he intends to seek support for a proposed multi-million dollar golf course and recreational facility in West Quincy. Sheets said he plans to submit the proposal for the facility and complex, which would be built on the site of the closed West Quincy landfill, to the City Council this year.

Cheney also promised to work with all of his fellow councillors. "Each and every one of you will be heard. No one will be left out of the process."

During his address, Cheney did not offer specific priorities as his term begins. Instead, he said his priorities will come from the people of Quincy. "With their voices, they establish the priorities."

After the ceremony, Cheney said there are three areas which he intends to focus on.

The first is public safety. He noted that 85 to 90 percent of all crime is committed by individuals under the influence of drugs or alcohol. He wants to adopt measures which help policing efforts and cut down on crime.

Secondly, Cheney said he wants to promote economic development while protecting neighborhoods. As a member of Quincy 2000 as council president, Cheney said he expects "great things from Quincy 2000," including economic opportunity and the creation of new jobs.

His third priority is reducing the tax burden on Quincy residents by lowering property taxes and stopping escalating water and sewer rates.

"The general public really sees our agenda and our priorities. This is where the tire meets the road and we're expected to take action," Cheney said. Jeanne Reardon was also elected to her fifth term as clerk of Committees for the City Council at the organizational meeting. "It's an honor and a privilege," Reardon said after being sworn-in by City Clerk Joseph Shea.

CLEARING THE SMOKE SCREEN

With all the persuasive medical evidence and well-intentioned nagging by non-smokers, why is it that some smokers who try cannot seem to quit? A comparison of almost 5,000 sets of twins has concluded that the answer may be written in our genes. Such factors as whether the twins smoked and how heavily, and whether they had been able to succeed in efforts to quit, all appear to be linked to heredity. The study, conducted in part by the National Academy of Sciences and the National Heart, Lung, and Blood Institute, concluded that understanding these genetic traits may help predict who is at risk for tobacco dependence, and point the way toward preventing and treating tobacco abuse.

P.S. In an unrelated study from the one mentioned above, non-smoking women who live with smokers were found to more than double their lung cancer risk.

Although kicking the habit may be harder for some than for others, it is possible for all of us—and is a great way to help prevent heart disease. If you'd like information on quitting smoking, contact the American Lung Association, feel free to call any of the doctors—myself, Dr. Lisa Antonelli, or Dr. Ronald Dunlap, at COMPREHENSIVE CARDIAC CARE at 472-2550. Office hours are by appointment. Our office offers a pleasant surrounding for medical care, and is located in Crown Colony, 700 Congress St., Suite 2C, in Quincy. Mayoral Dreams

If Tim Cahill and Mike Cheney were mentally wandering or daydreaming a little during Monday's inaugural ceremonies, it would be understandable. Neither has made any bones about the fact he wants to be mayor someday. And someday soon.

So, as Mayor James Sheets took his third term oath of office from City Clerk Joseph Shea and delivered his inaugural address Cheney and Cahill no doubt were thinking little thoughts like:

SHEETS

"Someday, that will be me. I'll be taking there taking the oath and giving my inaugural address."

Will that day come for one of them? And if so, which one? And, when?

When? That's a good question.

Right now, with Sheets riding a tidal wave of popularity, for Cheney or Cahill to move into the coveted office overlooking Hancock St., it may have to be when Sheets decides to move out.

For either of them to have run against Sheets in 1993, would have been political suicide. No one knows what these next two years will bring but if Sheets is still riding that wave and decides to run for a fourth term in 1995, Cahill and Cheney may have to cool their heels until 1997.

Sheets sounds like a man with a lot of plans on his mind. Plans that cannot be completely carried out in two years. He may want four to wrap up his administration.

Meanwhile, speculation persists that he may yet wind up as permanent president of Quincy College and step down as mayor.

If things were to begin unravelling for him politically during his third term, he might finish the term and say, "That's it."

Okay, so both Cheney and Cahill decide to wait it out until Sheets decides to depart City Hall. Up against one another, who would win?

Cahill has been the bigger vote-getter. Last November he topped the city council at-large field for the third consecutive election.

Cheney in the first two of those elections (1989 and 1991) finished third and second respectively. Last year, he slipped back to third place behind Joseph LaRaia.

Cahill's performance at the polls appeared to position him for a strong run for mayor.

But then came the inside battle—the one for the City Council presidency. If Cahill could win that he would really be flying high and Cheney would have a hard time trying to get himself back up off the ground.

The pair lined up four votes each for the council presidency and madly wooed Ward 6 Councillor Bruce Ayers for the deciding fifth vote. Cheney got it and with it, a new lease on his political life.

AYERS

As council president, Cheney will be at the forefront the next two years with plenty of opportunity to position himself for a strong mayoral bid.

And if Jim Sheets were to get an offer he couldn't resist—like, say, the Quincy College presidency or another attractive appointment and didn't finish his term, Cheney would become acting mayor until the next election.

And that would be some advantage for Cheney. Just ask Tom Menino.

But, at Monday's inaugural ceremonies there may have been others doing a little political day dreaming about the mayor's offer. Like Dan Raymondi for example. And Paul Harold. And—maybe even—Joe LaRaia.

LaRaia said after last November's impressive finish he wasn't thinking about another mayoral run. But things can change over two years.

Anyway, it will be interesting to watch Cheney and Cahill in action the next two years. The next mayoral campaign may have already begun.

Seatbelt Use Yes, Mandatory Law No

Editor, The Quincy Sun:

The other day while flipping channels on my TV, I happened upon a Continental Cablevision news show. State Rep. Steve Tobin, D-Quincy, was being interviewed on a number of legislative issues pending in the current legislative session. When the subject of a mandatory seat belt law was brought up, Tobin said he was for it and quite frankly didn't see any real groundswell of opposition out there at the grassroots level. When reminded that the old 1985 mandatory was repealed by referendum the following year, Tobin is apparently of the belief that there is no longer a majority of citizenry opposed to mandatory seatbelts. I think he is incorrect as is apparently, a majority up on Beacon Hill in the state legislature.

Quite frankly, I wasn't a seatbelt wearer back in 1985-86. My opposition then was to the forced nature of the law. The cops were treating citizens as if we were a bunch of helpless preschoolers. Since then, I have begun wearing my seatbelt every time I get into my car. Last January on Super Bowl Sunday, I was nearly killed driving to work. I was unbuckled but luckily was thrown sideways in the front seat. My car was totalled and I sustained minor injuries. Apparently, my guardian angel must have stepped in that morning. But the point I realized was, had I been hurled into the windshield, there would have been more serious injuries. I chose from that day forward to wear my seatbelt. The government didn't force me, I forced me. I'm an adult. I'm old enough to make choices. I choose to wear my seatbelt but if a mandatory seatbelt law is passed again, I will again work for its defeat.

As I listen to the arguments of mandatory seatbelts, I wish all of these liberal Democrats working overtime to strap us in for our own good would attack real auto insurance reform with the same passion and commitment.

Some proponents of mandatory seatbelts say the Bill of Rights doesn't give us the right to be reckless and foolish. Others say that driving is a privilege and not a right. State Rep. Paul Caron, D-Springfield, a leading proponent up on Beacon Hill says, "I'm absolutely convinced a majority of people of the commonwealth would vote to keep seat belts. I think the sentiment has changed."

However, leaders of the 1986 repeal movement are ready to react to this latest paternalist intrusion by government into our lives. Says Chip Ford, head of No Means No, a group opposed to this legislation, "I think people are sick and tired of having to fight to defend their vote. The issue in 1986 was individual freedom versus the promise of safety. If another mandatory seatbelt law is passed this becomes an issue of whether or not our vote means anything."

If Reps. Caron and Tobin are correct, they have nothing to fear from a vote of the people. Damn it, put the question to the people again. If they vote it up, it becomes law. But if they say NO again, stop resurrecting this issue. The people know when cops are trying to war them down but won't tire in their commitment to keep government off our backs and out of our motor vehicles.

Seatbelt use is something I encourage all to do. It saves lives. It keeps serious injuries down. It isn't a perfect device but it's better than being unbuckled. However, these kinds of choices should be ours to make. Stop trying to save us from ourselves, will you up there on Beacon Hill.

Quincy's Yesterdays

Snow Costs Highest In State

Mayor Amelio Della Chiesa told the City Council that the cost of snow removal in Quincy is one of the highest in the state and if something is not done to cut the expense "we'll go broke over it."

Fellow City Councillors joined in criticism of what they called waste of the taxpayers money, particularly through inadequate supervision of hired truckers who were paid $17.50 and hour.

Councillor Charles L. Shea suggested that the city might get better response from hired equipment if councillors were empowered to fire on the spot any men on a hired truck who are seen to be idle.

Councillor James R. McIntyre requested City Manager Edward T. Lewis to analyze Quincy's snow removal costs and methods compared to other cities and see if buying equipment is cheaper than hiring it.

Meanwhile, it was disclosed that $223,800, more than two-thirds of the new equipment request by the Public Works Department, is earmarked for the purchase of 26 pieces of snow removal equipment.

It would include one bulldozer, $14,000; two salt spreaders, $1,000; 12 sidewalk plows, $57,600; two jeeps, $6,000; four Walters snow fighters, $120,000; and four plow blades, $4,800.

Also, one trench digger for the Sewer Division which could be used for snow removal.

Richard Lockhead Re-Elected Wollaston Park President

Richard Lockhead was recently re-elected president of the Wollaston Park Association at the civic group's annual dinner meeting at the Hollow Restaurant.

Also re-elected were Dominic Falcetta, vice president; and Dorothy C. Kelly, secretary-treasurer. Directors for the upcoming year are Richard C. Demers, Madeline Falcetta, Susan Gallagher, William M. Macdonald, Eleanor Sharkey and Edward J. Murphy.

Members discussed several issues, including the rusty water conduits in Wollaston Park and the necessity for the city to apply for more federal and state grants to replace the 100-or-more-year old water pipes.

Other issues included the condition of sidewalks in residential areas and the cleanliness of some business and residential neighborhoods. The members urged property owners to cooperate with the city's "Cleaner, Greener" effort.

The marsh drainage problem in the Franklin Ave., Sachem and Watkins St area was discussed. Association officers said they will involve city and MDC officials in solving the tide gate and marsh-water threats to the health of residents and property values.

The members voted unanimously to oppose any proposal to build a bathhouse on Wollaston Beach or commercialize Quincy Shore Dr. with retail shops.

Regarding security in the elderly housing buildings, association members said they are happy the city is providing around-the-clock security for the next year. Members said the association will contact the city's legislators and urge them to provide permanent security funds for senior housing in the future.

Fujima Chikuyoheki To Dance In Japan Society Celebration

Family and friends celebrating the 90th anniversary year (in the year of the dog) of the Japan Society of Boston will see classical Japanese performances danced by Fujima Chikuyoheki of Wollaston.

The Jan. 8 evening "Oshogatsu" celebration takes place at Boston's Children's Museum, home of the authentic two story house from Kyoto.

Nikki Tilroe, a non-Japanese American student of the Fujima Dance School, received her "natori" (professional dance name) from Osaka's Iemoto Fujima Chikuyu II, the head of Japan's Fujima School. Mrs. Tilroe has been teaching "Buyo" in Wollaston over the last seven years.

The three Buyo dances in the tradition of the Kubuki Theater are often performed at ceremonies. "The Green of the Pine", "The Willow in the Rain" (similar in story to Madame Butterfly) and "The Mountain Pass" are danced "su odor" in formal clothing rather than the costumes of the characters.

The origins of Buyo are in the ancient religion of farming people who honored the spirit of the ground in appreciation for the provision of food. Because of the tradition of masked dance (Noh, Bugaku) and puppetry (Bunraku) of Japan, facial expressions are much less important than in western classical dance.

Information about the Oshogatsu Celebration can be obtained from the Japan Society at (617) 451-0726.

Karl Briggs, Chairman YMCA Support Campaign

Karl Briggs, president of Quincy Mutual Fire Insurance Company, will serve as chairman of the South Shore YMCA's 1994 Annual Support Campaign.

The goal of this year's campaign is to raise $165,000, which is used to provide financial assistance to YMCA program and services, especially for youth.

Briggs is a past president of the YMCA Board of Directors, and is a member of the YMCA Hall of Fame. He has been active in the Y's Annual Support Campaign in the past, most recently serving as chairman of the Major Gifts Section.

Last year's campaign raised $145,000, and over $146,000 in financial assistance was awarded to families and children in need. These funds allowed children to participate in summer camp, fund programs for "at-risk" teens, families to afford full day and afterschool child care programs, and much more.

Charles Simpson President South Shore Chamber

CHARLES SIMPSON

Charles R. Simpson, Jr., the president and board chairman of the Quincy Savings Bank, has been elected the 1994 chairman of the board of directors of the South Shore Chamber of Commerce.

Simpson succeeds Arthur R. Connelly, president of South Weymouth Savings Bank.

The South Shore Chamber has 2,150 business members.

"I look forward to the coming year knowing what a tremendous opportunity it is to lead an organization as effective as this chamber," said Simpson. "And I am particularly optimistic because there is every indication that we are moving into a period of renewed prosperity."

Simpson has a strong commitment to both business and community. He was the first vice chairman of the South Shore Chamber this past year. Among many professional and civic affiliations, he serves on the boards of the American Association of Industrial Management, the Salvation Army, Quincy Neighborhood Housing Services and the Plymouth County Development Corporation.

Serving with Simpson on the chamber's executive committee are first vice chairman Franklin N. Meissner, president of Weymouth-based Electro Switch Corporation; second vice chairman, Phyllis P. Godwin, CEO of Quincy-based Granite City Electric Supply Co.; and Arthur R. Connelly, immediate past chairman.

Other executive committee members include the departmental vice chairmen: membership development, Brian P. Curtis of Curtis Realty Management Corp., Hingham; community chamber's success over the years has been its ability to attract the region's top business leadership."

Briggs, CPA, CPCU, vice president, secretary and treasurer of Quincy Mutual Fire Insurance Company, also serves as treasurer of the South Shore YMCA and is a member of the Quincy Kiwanis Club. A Quincy native, he lives in Braintree with his wife and two children.

Cataldo, senior vice president of State Street Bank & Trust Company, is originally from Quincy. He now lives with his wife and two children in Duxbury. He is a member of The Quincy 2000 Corporation.

Grealy, director of corporate affairs for The Stop & Shop Companies, Inc., is a member and former chair of the Massachusetts Food Association Legislative Committee. She also serves on the Food Marketing Institute Government Relations Committee and Benefits Council, and is a member of the Family and Youth Committee at Trinity Church, Boston. A native of Vermont, she lives in Milton with the husband and two children.

Guarnieri, CPA, president and CEO of Colonial Federal Savings Bank, Quincy, is a member of the Massachusetts Society of CPA's and the American Institute of CPA's. He is a director of Quincy's Rice Eventide Home, the South Shore YMCA and the New England League of Savings Institutions, Inc. Originally from Cambridge, Guarnieri lives in Quincy with his wife and two children.

Kenealy, is president and treasurer of Key Realty, Inc., Quincy, has been active with the chamber since 1976 and its affiliate, the South Shore Economic Development Corp. since 1987. Morrissey Announces Passage Of Housing Bond Bill State Sen. Michael Morrissey announces that the Senate has given initial approval to the $269 million housing bond bill.

Morrissey led the fight on the Senate floor to preserve the sections of the bill which will limit the number of non-elderly residents in senior housing to 10 percent.

"Senior citizens have a right to feel safe in their own homes," Morrissey said. "We cannot continue to mix elderly residents with non-elderly mentally ill and disabled individuals. The two groups have different needs and lifestyles and each should be able to live in a setting conducive to their particular condition."

As the federal government has expanded the definition of disabled individuals, more pressure has been put on local housing authorities to accept non-elderly residents in senior housing units.

"Many of the individuals were placed without adequate supervision or planning for their individual needs and concerns," said Morrissey. "The state has done a poor job of providing and offering our disabled citizens housing opportunities."

The cap will also grandfather existing tenants in elderly buildings. The Senate had initially earmarked $14 million for new housing initiatives for the disabled. During the debate Morrissey supported an amendment to add an additional $6 million to further expand housing opportunities for the physically and mentally handicapped.

"This is a great step forward," Morrissey remarked. "It's the first time in almost seven years that the state has approved and undertaken a new housing program for our disabled residents."

The bill also contains over $100 in spending for the renovation and maintenance of existing public housing stock. The money will be used by Housing Authorities to make needed repairs to their infrastructure, including $20 million in a separate account for lead paint removal.

The bill will now go to a House-Senate Conference Committee where the differences between the House and Senate versions of the bill will be ironed out. After a final vote in each branch, the bill will be sent to Governor Weld for his action.

Tardo Candidate For Secretary Of State

DENIS TARDO

Denis Tardo of Quincy announces he intends to seek the Republican nomination for secretary of state next year.

"If we are to effect legitimate and positive change in our state's government, we must field a candidate who is not tied to the Beacon Hill establishment," said Tardo, a longtime GOP activist who currently serves as a Registrar of Voters for the City of Quincy.

"I have been involved in the electoral process at the federal, state and municipal level for more than three decades, and I sense the need for a candidate who understands the role of the secretary of state, and who is not a member of the State House inner circle club."

Tardo said he has spoken to numerous party activists in the Commonwealth who are less than satisfied with the current crop of candidates for the secretary of state's post.

"We have two incumbent state legislators who have declared their intention to run for this seat," Tardo noted. "They are both men of great character, but their stature and performance in the legislature belies their the critical votes are taken, one is attending fund raisers and the other is on vacation," Tardo said. "This sounds like business as usual, typical Beacon Hill politics."

Tardo said he wants to be the voice "of these disenfranchised people who want open and honest government, but don't want a typical politician pontificating about change when the record dictates otherwise."

Tardo said his priorities as secretary of state would be "to change the election laws to reflect the will of the voters, to encourage more participation in the political process, to advocate tougher ethics laws, campaign finance laws, and to promote a constitutional amendment to implement term limits."

Tardo said he would implement the motor vehicle registration drive efforts across the Commonwealth, and make certain the provisions of the motor voter bill are carried out. He would also begin informational campaigns "for those large numbers of people who are frustrated by their government, but feel powerless to do anything about it."

"With such a public outcry for term limits that require a constitutional amendment, neither candidate is willing to file simple legislation that can confront the business as usual atmosphere on Beach Hill."

"The senator and representatives have both claimed to be agents of change, preaching for causes of importance to the Republican party and to the voters of the Commonwealth but when

"I want to run a populist campaign for the citizens of Massachusetts who feel left out. We must bring them in if we are to have not just change, but improvement in our government."

Sheets Unveils Goals For Third Term

renewal of shipbuilding at the Fore River Shipyard, and will continue to work with a developer to refine plans for a 200,000 square foot commercial development in the Hancock Parking Lot.

Sheets said to remain strong fiscally the city must also "intensify our war on higher sewer rates." He listed among his goals for FY95 securing $100 million and $45 million in relief from the federal and state governments respectively, as well as a continued press for the downsizing of MWRA facilities and the diminishing of its operational costs.

The mayor added that a continued push for boosting tourism in the city is vital to the economy.

"Nothing is more important to the future of our economic base than tourism," he said.

Other plans Sheets said he hoped would improve the city's "quality of life" during his third term include:

- Strengthening of law enforcement which will be highlighted by the creation of a special drug unit within the Quincy Police Department. In particular, Sheets said he hopes the unit will be able to prevent drug activity from finding its way into city apartment buildings.

The mayor also said that the murder of a young woman, rape of an elderly woman and beating attacks of two senior citizens in Quincy last year are other reasons the city should increase its efforts in the war against crime.

power in the Quincy Fire Department "to a level which keeps all apparatus in full service."

- A long-term "master plan" for education which the mayor said has already been set in motion. Sheets said the plan will provide for, among other things, a financial plan, curriculum at all levels, and the establishment of technology standards for all schools.

- Establishment of a commission which would "continually evaluate family needs and identify the resources to meet those needs and promote family-type public activities." During the address, Sheets termed 1994 "the Year of the Family" and said it will be a year "committed to creating those support institutions and mechanisms necessary to reinforce families as they struggle financially, (and) as they raise their children in a world of drugs and crime."

Sheets also said several family activities are planned for this year, adding that a disintegration of family values has added increased crime and "the uncivilizing of America."

- A master plan for the physical retrofitting of the city's entire park system.

- A joint Quincy

Hospital-South Shore Hospital radiation center at Crown Colony that Sheets said would be "the first of its kind."

Sheets said Quincy's currently strong financial position can be attributed in part to the city's efforts in health insurance reform, the renegotiation of the city's rubbish contract, and institution of quarterly property tax billing. He said the recent refinancing of Quincy Hospital's 1986 Federal Housing Authority bond issue will save the city an additional $3 million.

The mayor spoke proudly about his efforts to increase tourism in the city which helped bring a new National Park Service Visitors Center and a trolley service for the Adams National Historic Site. He also said he took great pride in taking part in last year's relief effort for the flood-ravaged area of Quincy, Ill., although he gave credit to Quincy Veterans Services Director Hank Bradley for starting that project.

Overall, Sheets said, the future of the city looks bright.

"Quincy is a special city," he said. "It was ordained to be so...(and) we will succeed because we drink at the well-spring of public life: caring about others."

Reaction To Sheets' Address Favorable

City officials generally reacted favorably to Mayor James Sheets' third inaugural address Monday.

Comments included:

"I'm thrilled that he's giving me my manpower back," said Fire Chief Thomas Gorman. "He's been very supportive of my department. I've given him my recommendations, and I see he's following through on them. That makes me happy."

Police Chief Francis Mullen said he, too, was pleased with what he heard.

"I'm very encouraged," said Mullen. "I've met with the mayor before this (inauguration), and we're going to work together on public safety. We'll make the streets as safe as possible with a combined effort."

New City Council President Michael Cheney said "I thought the mayor did an outstanding job summarizing what has been accomplished in the city and setting the tone for what needs to be accomplished."

Regarding the mayor's comments about preventing drug activity from finding its way into Quincy apartment buildings, Cheney said he hopes the new drug program Sheets proposed during the inauguration includes all residential dwellings because "it (drug activity) doesn't all take place in apartments."

"The address, from the School Committee point, was right on," said new School Committee Vice Chairman Daniel Raymond. "An awful lot of work has to be done to make all of the city's school buildings technologically accessible all. The time is right, I think, and we can accomplish a great deal this year."

JoAnn Bragg, who noted that she felt like

"the little engine that could when he reached the top of the mountain" after being sworn-in for her first ever School Committee term, said Sheets' address was "excellent" and brought out a lot of good ideas pertaining to the city's families and school system.

Ward 1 Councillor Peter Kolson said he was "very pleased and excited" by the address, noting he was particularly glad to hear of the mayor's plans for consolidation of city services as well as those pertaining to the continuing battle against MWRA water and sewer rates.

Kolson added that he and Ward 3 Councillor Lawrence Chretien have worked toward the concept of consolidation in the past.

"We thought it would be a wise thing," he said. "I'm glad he's (Sheets) doing it."

AMONG THE INVITED guests at the inauguration of Mayor James Sheets, City Council and School Committee were, from left, the Rev. Russell F. Metcalfe of the Wollaston Church of the Nazarene, Fr. Cornelius Heery, pastor of Sacred Heart Church; Rabbi Jacob Mann, Beth Israel Synagogue; and Joann Sheets, wife of the mayor.

New School Committee Vice Chairman Raymondi: 'We Have A Significant Opportunity To Improve Education'

Stating the needs of the Quincy public school system are "great," newly elected School Committee Vice Chairman Daniel Raymondi listed 10 top issues and concerns at the city's inauguration ceremonies Monday at North Quincy High School auditorium.

Among them:

•A new gymnasium at the Parker School.

•Restoration of the Quincy High School auditorium.

•Addition of six to eight classrooms to the Beechwood Community School.

In addition, Raymondi said the school system must satisfy the American Disabilities Act (ADA) requirement for all schools, form a technology task force, and make all schools "technologically accessible."

"We need to resolve overcrowding at our middle schools, especially Sterling and Atlantic, we need to continue to improve our curriculum, and we need to return foreign languages and athletics to our middle schools," Raymondi said, adding the system should improve its "professional development initiatives."

Through hard work, unity and determination, Raymondi said the city's school system can make great strides.

"We have found that by working together we have made a difference, but much more needs to be done. Today is important. This coming together is a beginning, staying together will ensure progress and only by working together as we did in 1992 and 1993, will guarantee success."

Raymondi was unanimously elected vice chairman at the school committee's organizational meeting held as part of the inauguration ceremonies of Mayor James Sheets, City Council and School Committee. He was nominated by Steve Durkin whom he succeeded.

Durkin said Raymondi, who was elected in 1991, has been "a very hardworker on critical issues."

After his election, Raymondi introduced members of his family, including his wife Sharon. He also welcomed and congratulated new School Committee member JoAnn Bragg.

Noting Bragg has been an education and community activist for more than a decade, Raymondi said to Bragg, "I congratulate you and wish you well on your four-year term."

Raymondi also praised other city officials for strongly advocating public education in Quincy, notably Mayor James Sheets, Supt. Gene Creedon, and two city councilors, Ward 4 Councilor Tom Fabrizio who chaired the council's Education Committee, and Ward 5 Councilor Charles Phelan who recently concluded two years as council president.

With fiscal stability restored in Quincy, Raymondi said the city has a unique opportunity to do more for its schools.

"We have before us an historic opportunity to significantly improve and quality of public education in Quincy but we must act or this opportunity shall pass. In the field of opportunity it is better to pick the fruit than to wait for it to fall," he said.

After Raymondi's address, Eugene Creedon was re-elected secretary of the School Committee and Tefta Burrelli was re-elected clerk by the School Committee members.

Bragg stood alone for his swearing in. Ron Mariano, who also serves Quincy as a state representative, left the ceremony to attend to the last session of the legislative season on Beacon Hill. Mariano was also elected to a four-year term to the School Committee in November.

The final seat on the committee remains empty. Christine Cedrone and Sean Barry tied for the seat in a recount election. The matter will either be decided by a special election provided a home-rule petition is passed this week, or by a joint convention of the City Council and School Committee.

Sheets, who also serves as School Committee chairman, presented Durkin with a gavel for his leadership as vice chairman over the past year. "You led us through a very fascinating, interesting and productive year and we thank you," the mayor said.

Combined QHS, NQHS Bands Perform

Monday's inaugural ceremonies were highlighted by a couple of special musical performances.

The combined North Quincy High School and Quincy High School bands played "The Star-Spangled Banner" and "God Bless America," while the schools' combined concert choirs sang "America the Beautiful."

The music delighted the capacity crowd in the NQHS auditorium, including Assistant City Clerk Patricia Toland.

"They are really wonderful," she said. "They do an excellent job."

JOANN BRAGG is sworn in to a four-year term on the School Committee by Mayor James Sheets, who also acts as the committee's chairman. Bragg, a school and community activist for more than a decade, was the only new city official to take the oath of office at Monday's inauguration ceremonies.

Crowds Welcome 1994 At City's First Night

By LISA CONNELL

First Night festivities were enjoyed by about 20,000 people Friday evening throughout downtown Quincy.

Highlights of the celebration included a parade, mask making and hat decorating activities, face painting, ice sculptures, musical entertainment and an international food festival.

Seasonally cold temperatures drew 50% of the crowd, larger than at last year's first city-wide New Year's Eve celebration, into indoor events, said First Night Chairman and Councillor At Large Michael Cheney.

Events went off as planned with two exceptions: a crack in the floor of one room at President's Place forced a temporary evacuation of the building and technical difficulties caused an abbreviated fireworks display.

The nearly 100 foot long crack in the cement floor forced the evacuation of several hundred people. No one was hurt, but the noise made by the crack itself made for some nervous moments.

Cheney said the evacuation was handled well by the Quincy Police Department and President's Place Building Security personnel.

All activities in President's Place ceased for about 30 to 45 minutes as Building Inspector Matthias Mulvey and Fire Chief Thomas Gorman visually inspected the floor crack.

Entertainment in the building resumed but the puppet workshop and show scheduled to take place in the floor-cracked room was cancelled.

Discussion continued Monday afternoon at City Hall as to the exact cause of the crack and its long-range effects on future First Night celebration planning.

Cheney said President's Place, one of the newest buildings in downtown Quincy, is zone or used for retail use, not entertainment use. Last year's use of the site for events resulted in no problems of any kind, but colder temperatures this year may have resulted in more people being inside the building than originally anticipated.

"The floor crack had nothing to do with the weight of the people," said Cheney. "It just happened at an inopportune time."

Cheney plans to make adjustments in terms of crowd control for next year's celebration.

He also observed that most people attended activities in the immediate downtown area, overlooking some events at the YMCA, the Woodward School for Girls and Quincy High School.

Encouraging revelers to attend events outside Quincy Center will also be studied.

An international food festival at the Center of Technical Education was well attended with plenty of food to serve all present.

A midnight fireworks display capped the evening. Technical difficulties reduced the scheduled seven and a half minute program to less than 4 minutes, Cheney said.

Overall, he declared Quincy First Night—the low cost, non-alcoholic family celebration of the arts on New Year's Eve—a success.

PISTOL PETE KOLSON, also known as Councillor Peter Kolson, wowed them with a country-western performance with The Twisters at City Hall.

A DAZZLING FIREWORKS display climaxed the First Night celebration.

Building Declared Safe After Floor Crack

The fact a cement floor cracked during New Year's Eve First Night festivities at President's Place is no reason for concern about the building's safety says City Building Inspector Matthias Mulvey.

Mulvey said the floor of the area into which some 250 to 400 people had entered to watch a performance of "The Nutcracker" was designed for mercantile and business use and not for assembly.

He said the approximately 2,000 square foot storefront area is on the Coddington St.

side of the building.

"They might have to replace the topping on the floor," he said. "We will probably have the President's Place engineer check it out."

"There is no problem as far as the safety of the building is concerned," he said.

Mulvey said the atrium was especially built for assembly and would have accommodated the crowd without an incident.

He said he did not give approval last year or this year for use of the other room for assembly.

If the First Night

Committee had asked for an inspection of the site, he would not have allowed the room to be used, he said.

The crack occurred just before the start of "The Nutcracker." After about a 30-minute delay, the show was moved into the central atrium of the building.

Mulvey said this year, he will request that all locations for such events and projected number of occupants be first cleared for use by the building department so alternative sites may be found if necessary.

WHAT WOULD A First Night parade be without clowns and friends?

SUN SPORTS

Quincy, North Back In Action

Winter sports will be back in action this week following a slow holiday stretch.

In boys' basketball, both Quincy and North Quincy will go back to their regular schedule after competing in holiday tournaments.

The Presidents found themselves clumps of the Marshfield Rams Holiday Classic with wins over host Marshfield and Scituate.

Quincy was scheduled to travel to Plymouth on Tuesday (Jan. 4). Friday night the 3-2 Presidents will host Falmouth at 7 p.m.

North Quincy had a tougher go of it, losing both their holiday games in the Scholastic Holiday Tournament held at Boston Latin. The Red Raiders fell just short against a tough St. Johns team, 45-42. North was able to keep St. Johns' top player Chris Ford (yes, the son of that Chris Ford) in check throughout the game. In the consolation game North lost to Stoughton, 62-52.

The Red Raiders (3-3) hope to rebound Friday when they travel to Taunton.

In girls' hoop, North Quincy topped Quincy in the first winter sports competition between the cross-town rivals. The win was the first of the year for the Red Raiders while Quincy fell to 0-4.

The Quincy girls have had some trouble this season but look for great things in the future from a squad that features six freshmen and sophomores out of eleven players.

Quincy's next game is scheduled for Tuesday (Jan. 4) when they will host Plymouth. Friday the girls will travel to Falmouth.

The North girls will try for their second win in a row when they host Taunton Friday night.

In hockey, the Red Raiders will entertain Barnstable tonight (Wednesday), then travel to Kingston to take on Silver Lake Saturday.

The Quincy icemen will head south to battle with Bridgewater-Raynham tonight. On Saturday the Presidents will host Plymouth.

The Quincy High wrestlers have a busy week ahead. Tonight they will participate in a dual meet at Plymouth. Friday and Saturday the Presidents hit the road for a tournament being held in Sanford, Maine.

The North matmen have a bit less traveling to do. Tonight they will grapple with the Lakers of Silver Lake at home and on Saturday they will do battle with Whitman-Hanson.

Keep your ears open for news of Quincy's own Karen Cashman, as she vies for a chance to go to the Olympics at the U.S. short-track speedskating trials in Lake Placid, N.Y.

The trials began on Jan. 1 and 2 and will conclude on Jan. 8 and 9. The top two finishers will find themselves representing the red, white and blue at the Olympics in Lillehammer, Norway in February.

After the first weekend of trials Cashman was in fourth place overall, including a third place finish in the 500 meter event.

In the 1000 meter Cashman skated to a personal best time of 1:40.67. Her time was a mere one second off the trial mark of 1:39.68 set by 1992 Olympic gold medalist Cathy Turner.

The 22-year old graduate of North Quincy High has had a distinguished athletic career. As a teenager she was a two-time New England figure skating champ and a five time visitor to the national track and field championships as a runner. She was also the all-scholastic captain of the North Quincy girls' track squad.

After watching Bonnie Blair skate to a gold medal in the 1988

KAREN CASHMAN

Olympics, Cashman decided to combine her figure skating and track skills. Speedskating was the perfect mix. In less than six years she has gone from new kid on the block to world-class performer.

As a member of the five-woman U.S. world track speedskating team, Cashman has already traveled extensively. She competed in the 1992 World Championships in Denver. In 1993 she competed in events held in Norway, Belgium, the Netherlands and Poland and in the World Championships in Beijing, China. The five members of the 1994 U.S. world track speedskating team will also be determined this weekend.

Cashman has taken time off from her studies at Northern Michigan University in order to train for competition. She is majoring in clinical and administrative dietetics.

YMCA Basketball Classic Saturday

The South Shore YMCA, 79 Coddington St., Quincy, will participate in the third annual YMCA Basketball Classic Saturday from 9 to 11 a.m.

Quincy boys and girls ages 7 to 14 will be able to test their basketball skills against other participants from across the country. The event is sponsored by U.S. Air, Spaulding, Reebok, the YMCA of Springfield, the National YMCA and the Basketball Hall of Fame.

The event is limited to 100 participants who will be able to participate in three events: All Around Shoot Out, Vertical Leap and Foul Shooting. Cost is $3 per player or $6 per family.

Participants could qualify for an all-expense paid trip for two to the NBA All-Star Game or win a trip for four to Universal Studios in Orlando, Fla. All flights will be provided by U.S. Air.

For more information, call Andrew Levin at 479-8500 ext. 143.

Pee Wee Cs 1-1-1 In Tourney

The Quincy Pee Wee C team posted a 1-1-1 record in a Christmas tournament played in Westboro. The Quincy Cs entered the tournament as a B team, meaning that they would be playing against stiffer competition.

In their first game Quincy registered a 6-2 victory over the hometown Starhawks.

T.J. Wilson led all scorers with two goals. Joe Vallatini, Josh Silverman, Mike C. Sullivan and John Bertucci had one each. Both Bertucci and Vallatini assisted twice. Shawn Cheney, Mike Hastings, Ryan Murray, Wilson and Sullivan notched one assist each.

Outstanding goaltending by Nick Pizziferri and strong defense by Jamie Parisi and Mike Carloni helped limit the Starhawks attack.

In the second game Quincy fell to Greater Providence, 4-2.

In the second period Vallatini scored on an assist from Dave Noonan. Later in the period Noonan put one in himself on a feed from Silverman.

In a 3-3 tie against Triboro, Quincy was held scoreless until the third period when goals by Vallatini, Silverman and Chris Lumaghini put Quincy on the board. Assists were dished out by Vallatini (2), Noonan, Silverman, Parisi and Sean Fitzgerald. Chris Cullen and Mike D. Sullivan had excellent games.

After the tournament the Quincy Pee Wee ice men came home for two games, posting one win and one tie.

The C squad looked tough as they knocked off the Pembroke B team, 3-1. Noonan scored the first two Quincy goals.

Everyone was in on the action as Silverman, Parisi, Murray and Fitzgerald were credited with assists on the Noonan tallies. Bertucci scored the final goal on another Murray assist.

Pizziferri was again tough in goal as he made several spectacular saves. Cheney and Cullen were stalwarts on defense.

In a scrimmage against the Randolph Mohawks B team, the Quincy boys skated to a 2-2 tie.

Quincy trailed 2-1 in the third period when a late Hastings goal tied the game. Mike C. Sullivan registered the first goal. Carloni, Noonan and Silverman notched the assists.

Mite A's Move Into Top Spot

The Quincy Youth Hockey Mite A travel team is in first place in their division in the Greater Boston Youth Hockey League. In the four games played in December the team had a 3-0-1 record, beating Somerville twice, Pembroke once and tying South Boston.

In their opening game the Quincy squad bested Somerville, 9-3.

Two players, Ryan Donahue and Billy McKee, recorded hat tricks. Also scoring were Brian O'Hanley, Andy Ross and Billy Ryan. Collecting assists were Matt Germain (3), McKee (3), Jamie Chiochio, Ross and Ryan. Quincy's second game was a crushing 11-2 victory over Pembroke.

Recording a hat trick was Matt Germain, while Jeremiah Hassan scored two goals. Also scoring for Quincy were Bryan Cooper, Donahue, McKee, O'Hanley, Ross and Ryan.

The lone blemish on the Quincy record was a 3-3 tie against Somerville.

Scoring the goals were McKee, Ross and Stephen Kelly. Sean Moriarity assisted on the Kelly goal.

Billy McKee registered his second hat trick as Quincy edged past Somerville, 5-4.

O'Hanley scored the other two Quincy goals. Collecting assists were Donahue (2), Chiochio, Kelly and Kevin Richardson.

Bruce Maggio was solid in net in all four games, while Matt Lavery, Tim Duggan and Jon Chevalier have been strong on defense.

Quincy Golfer In Tucker Anthony Classic

North Quincy resident Georgia Peirce can be seen on television this weekend when Ch. 38 airs footage of the Tucker Anthony Golf Classic Sunday at noon.

Every year Tucker Anthony invites the top 16 women golfers in Massachusetts to participate in the Classic with local sports stars. Peirce was among this year's invitees and was paired with former Bruins great Rick Middleton.

The 3-handicap golfer has been playing the game for 20 years. She hits the links at Eastward Ho! Golf Course in Chatham and Wollaston Golf Course in Milton on a regular basis.

The Tucker Anthony was taped in June from the Round Hill Country Club in Sandwich.

Peirce is co-owner of P.R. Et Cetera, a public relations firm in North Quincy.

Sports Spotlight

By KERRY BYRNE

Left wing Jimmy Spiezna, right wing A.J. Carthas and center Brendan O'Brien have rolled over the opposition for the North Quincy hockey team. After six games the Red Raiders are 4-2, with ten of the teams' nineteen goals coming from the Spiezna-O'Brien-Carthas line. The left winger has been the top gun with 7 goals and 4 assists for 11 points. O'Brien has put up numbers of 1-5-6 and Carthas has 2-6-8.

Spiezna has scored two goals in three different games, against Acton-Boxboro, BC High and Hingham. How about a hat trick, Jimmy?

NQ has been strong in their own zone, too. Senior goalie Tim Wassige has been a stalwart between the pipes, with two shutouts on 21 and 23 save performances. Both were 3-0 victories over Taunton.

Coach Tom Benson says blueliners Andrew Vermette, David Pacino, Dennis Pateras and Dan Stone have played "exceptionally well."

The Quincy High wrestling team has gone 4-0-1 in their last five dual meets.

Junior heavyweight Mike Feeley is 7-1 with 7 pins. Not to be outdone is junior Matt Miller (130) who has also gone 7-1. Miller has 3 pins.

Several other athletes are doing a great job for the "Men At Work." Senior tri-captain Ashley Davis (152) is 5-2 with the two losses coming on injury defaults. Senior Jon Bonsignore (119) is 6-2 with 4 pins. Junior tri-captain Bryan Gallahue (145) is 5-2.

Quincy also has two standout sophomores. Rich Testa (103) is 5-3 and Mark Froehlich (125) is 3-1. Senior Jerry Booker remains undefeated at 6-0.

Congratulations are in order for North Quincy volleyball stars Maureen McCarthy and Linda Jellison.

McCarthy has been named to the first ever Boston Globe All-Scholastic girls' volleyball Super Team. She was one of only six players chosen for the Super Team from a pool of over 130 teams.

Jellison, only a sophomore, was named to the Globe All-Scholastic girls' volleyball team. This team only has sixteen members. With two years left to play, look for her name on the Super Team in the future.

The final meeting of the season for the Quincy High School-North Quincy High School Football Hall Of Fame will take place Monday, Jan. 10 at 7 pm. This will be a "wrap-up" meeting for the 1993 season and a preliminary planning meeting for 1994.

Hey, when are you guys gonna get on the ball and retire Quincy's #60, worn back in the mid-80s by the much feared and Hannah-like Kerry Byrne?

Jim McPhillips, of North Quincy, has been named the wrestling coach at Don Bosco Technical High School in Boston.

Caitlin Doughty Places 10th In NASTAR Ski Program

Caitlin Doughty of Quincy recently ranked as one of the state's top ski racers.

She placed 10th in the Coca-Cola Jr. NASTAR (National Standard Race) rankings program among all of Massachusetts' 7 to 9-year-old racers for the 1992-93 ski season.

Caitlin earned a season best handicap of 31 while skiing at Wildcat Mountain, N.H. She was only 31 percent behind National Pacesetter and U.S. Ski Team member Erik Schlopy.

Handicaps are given to all racers who take part in the public NASTAR races, and skiers can earn gold, silver or bronze medals every day they race. Last season nearly 300,000 participants raced at NASTAR courses cross the country.

CAITLIN DOUGHTY

At the end of the season, Cola-Cola Jr. NASTAR ranks the top recreational racers nationally and in all 50 states. Winners are listed on special rankings posters distributed nationwide, and first place state winners receive a pair of 1 Ski sunglasses.

Cheerleaders Honored At QYFL Game

Kara Bagen and Kathie Ford, both of Quincy Point, were recently honored at halftime during a Quincy Youth Football League game.

The two varsity cheerleaders at Archbishop Williams High School in Braintree have been selected as All-American Cheerleaders by the National Cheerleaders Association of Dallas, Texas. They are currently fund-raising for their appearance in the Aloha Bowl in Honolulu, Hawaii in December.

Both Kara, a senior at Archbishop Williams and Kathie, a junior, are graduates of the QYFL cheerleading program for which they cheered for the Quincy Point Panthers.

Kara is also an instructor for the Quincy Recreation Department Summer Cheerleading Camp.

Bay Girls Basketball

By LESLIE SATKEVICH

The Quincy Bay Girls Basketball teams recorded two wins and one loss in Yankee Girls Basketball League action this weekend.

The 8th grade team beat Stoughton, 38-29.

Leading the team was Erin Barry with 16 points followed by Sarah Satkevich with 13. Leela Shankar scored 6 and Dominique Good scored 3. Jocelyn West guided the offense with several assists from the point.

The 7th graders crushed North Attleboro, 41-17.

Kim Heurth dominated the game with 21 points. Alison Haddad scored 10 points while Catherine Giordano had 6 points. Sarah Kiley and Jilliane Foley chipped in with 2 points each. Katie Gaughan was a force defensively.

The 6th grade team lost to Northbridge, 51-39.

Shining for Quincy was Caitlin Powers with 18 points. Amy Satkevich chalked up 7 while Meghan Ginty and Aubrey Guastallino scored 6 points each. Ashley Rowerdink notched 2 points.

St. Moritz Devils Tie

Mike Aylward of Milton scored with only one minute left to play as the St. Moritz Devils tied the visiting Springfield Jr. Olympics, 1-1.

The game was fast paced and, as the score would indicate, defense was the rule. Richie Howe and Mark Mulhern (both of Milton) were the standout defenders for the Devils.

Kevin Regan of South Boston was impressive in the net as he stopped all but one Springfield shot.

Over 50 Family Members At Mary Lewis Golf Tourney

More than 50 family members and friends turned out for the sixth annual Mary F. Lewis golf tournament held recently at the Holly Ridge Golf Club in Sandwich.

The tournament is held each year by a committee of family members, most of whom live in Quincy, to honor the 89-year-old matriarch of the Lewis family. She has lived on Waterston Ave., Wollaston, for almost 30 years. She has five children, 30 grandchildren and 22 great-grandchildren.

She is still active in community events such as fairs and flea markets held at St. Ann's Church.

This year's winning team was made up of Tiny Coleman, Joan Lewis, Joe Marks and Frank Seluk with a combined score of 315.

The committee included president Kellie Medeiros, vice president

Maureen Lewis, junior vice president Brian Nevins, treasurer Joan Lewis and secretary Linda Golden. The committee thanks Bobby Lewis, Mary Nevins, Dolores Golden, Bob Lewis and Paul Lewis, who assisted.

The tournament was sponsored by Finian's Restaurant, Imperial Terrace Restaurant, Pat Flanagan's Restaurant, 4-River Eatery Restaurant, Quincy Cinemas, Nails by Safety Skills For Children

What is a stranger?

Explain to your children that a stranger is someone they don't know very well. A stranger can be a man or a woman, well-dressed or shabby, kind or threatening, pretty or ugly. If a stranger tries to follow them or grab them, scream, and makes lots of noises. Tell your children to run to the nearest place where there are people and to shout "This person is trying to hurt me!" or "Stay away from me," instead of yelling "Help."

Safety skills at school and play.

- Make sure your children are taking the safest route to school and friends houses, one that avoids danger spots like alleys, new construction, and wooded areas. Test walk it together.
- Encourage your children to walk and play with friends, not alone, and to stay in well-lighted, open areas where others can see them.
- Don't hand a house key around your child's neck. It's a tell-tale sign that you won't be home when they return from school. Put the key inside a pocket or sock.
- Teach children to walk confidently and stay alert to what's going on around them.
- Encourage your children to look out for other kids' safety and report anything they see that doesn't seem right.
- Tell your children to stay away from strangers who hang around playgrounds, public restrooms, and empty buildings.
- Teach your children to write down and report to you the license numbers of people who offer rides, loiter around playgrounds or appear to follow them.

Safety skills at home.

- Make sure you kids can reach you at work by phone. Post your work number, along with numbers for a neighbor, the police and fire departments, and poison control center near all your home phones.
- Have your children check in with you at work or with a neighbor when they get home. Agree on rules for having friends over and going to someone else's house when no adult is present.
- Work out an escape plan in case of fire.
- Tell your children never to open the door to a stranger when they are alone in the house or apartment. Caution them about answering the phone and accidentally letting a stranger know they are alone. Kids can always say their parents are busy and take a message.
- Make sure your children know how to work the door and window locks and that they keep them locked when home alone.

Seven Quincy Residents In St. Anselm Freshmen Class

Seven Quincy residents are enrolled in the freshmen class at St. Anselm College in Manchester, N.H. They are:

A THOUGHT FOR THE WEEK

Pre-arranged/pre-financed funerals make economic sense and are increasing every year...

There are many reasons for pre-arranging a funeral...

More than anything else, one makes pre-arrangements because of those they love. It removes from the family the burden of making important decisions at one of the most difficult times in their lives. It makes one's wishes known. The family knows what to do... It eases the concern as to "Is this what he or she would want?"

At Deware Funeral Home, we have an inflation-proof pre-financing plan that guarantees the funeral of your choice at the price you select today.

If you would like information on this exceptional plan, please give us a call or stop by at any time. We will be pleased to answer any questions. This is without cost or obligation, naturally...

Dr. Steven A. Nielsen Joins Medical Staff At Quincy Hospital

Steven A. Nielsen, M.D., a new ophthalmologist with Lambert Eye Center of 100 congress St., Quincy and Hingham, has joined the active medical staff of Quincy Hospital.

An ophthalmologist is a physician with expertise in the diagnosis and treatment of diseases related to the eyes.

In addition to general eye care, Dr. Nielsen has specialized skills. He deals with pediatric ophthalmology, eye trauma, plastic surgery and does a surgical procedure known as Radial Keratotomy. It is a procedure that involves incisions being made across the cornea in order to reshape it. The reshaping of the cornea improves the patient's eyesight.

Dr. Nielsen graduated from the University of Southern California School of Medicine in June of 1989. He completed his internship in the Department of Ophthalmology at the University of Southern California School of Medicine in June 1990. Dr. Nielsen completed his residency at the Doheny Eye Institute at the University of Southern California in June, 1993.

Nielsen has authored a number of articles that have been published in various scientific journals and magazines.

Brent Lambert, M.D., commented, "The addition of Dr. Nielsen to the Lambert eye Center will be a great asset. His numerous clinical interests will only enhance the service available to our current and prospective patients."

Dr. Nielsen is accepting new patients and can be reached in Quincy at 471-5665 and in Hingham at 749-5666. Dr. Nielsen has evening and Saturday hours for patient convenience.

Dr. Nielsen lives in Cohasset with his wife, Diane and their four children Tyler, Stephanie, Jennifer and Julianne.

Merrymount School, The Co-operative Bank Enter Into Partnership

In an effort to enhance the elementary school learning environment, the Merrymount School and The Co-operative Bank, with branches in Quincy, have signed a partnership agreement.

Merrymount's idea is to bring the world of work into the classroom experience. The Co-operative Bank is sharing on a personal level what banking has to offer students as a potential career, and at the same time, supplying financial support for the program.

Participating in the partnership program were Anthony Caruso, Vice President & Director of Business Development and Leo Sheehan, Senior Vice President, representing The Co-operative Bank and School Superintendent Eugene Creedon and Principal Kathleen Morris, representing the Merrymount School.

Caruso said the bank was pleased to be part of Merrymount's plans and that he looked forward to helping them make the program a success. The Co-operative Bank is a state chartered co-operative bank with assets of $653 million. It is headquartered in Acton with thirteen retail banking offices. Three of the full service locations are in Quincy at 1259 Hancock St., 85 Quincy Ave. and 300 Newport Ave.

Chamber Takes Stand On Harassment Education And Gun Control

The Board of Directors of the South Shore Chamber has voted to oppose legislation mandating sexual harassment education and training by employers and to favor legislation enforcing stricter gun control.

"This chamber realizes issues of sexual harassment in the workplace must be addressed," said Chamber President Ronald Zooleck, following a unanimous vote by the board of directors. "The key word here is mandatory, and this is what we oppose, business does not need another piece of government-mandated legislation that can add to the cost of doing business."

When this happens, businesses become less competitive."

Zooleck noted that most companies already have procedures set forth in employee manuals, that the Department of Employment and Training has information available to be posted in workplaces and that the chamber has conducted seminars addressing this issue.

The proposed legislation would mandate that companies with more than 15 employees conduct three hours of sexual harassment education and training for each employee within six months of the effective date of the legislation or date of employment.

By a wide margin, the chamber voted to support gun control legislation proposed by Governor Weld which strikes directly at cutting the number of guns on the street and increases the legal age of possessing a gun from 18 to 21.

"Everyone agrees that crime and safety are important issues not only for the residential but also for the business community," Zooleck said, following a heated debate among board members. "In keeping with this chamber's philosophy of making the South Shore community a better place to live and work, we favor legislation that would enforce stricter control of guns."

Exercise Classes Underway At Lincoln-Hancock School

The Quincy Recreation Department is conducting two separate exercise classes on Monday and Wednesday evenings at the Lincoln-Hancock Community School gymnasium.

Both classes, which began on Monday, will be at 6 p.m. or 7 p.m.

The 6 p.m. class will be aerobic exercise with elements of both high and low impact. The 7 p.m.

class will feature strength and stretching exercises designed to improve tone, flexibility and endurance of specific body areas. Both classes will be taught by Debbie Vacca.

Registration for the classes can be done at the program and participants can elect two options for payment. A $30.00 one time fee for all classes through April 27 or $3 for each individual class, payable at the time of the class. Participants in the 7 p.m. class may also participate in the adult swim at 8 p.m. in the pool located in the same building.

A towel or exercise mat is recommended and proper gym attire is also recommended.

Additional information can be obtained by calling the Quincy Recreation Department at 376-1394.

Three employees of Jack Conway & Company's Wollaston office have been awarded a six-day, all expenses paid, "Seminar in the Sun" at the Sheraton

Grand Hotel on Paradise Island, Nassau.

They are: Peter Bravo, manager and Carol Cahill and Dianne Demarkles, sales associates.

The three are among the more than 100 Conway Sales Champions who have qualified for the 15th annual Conway trip. Activities include island tours, deep sea fishing, golfing, tennis dinner cruises, and down to business sales seminars and planning sessions for 1994. Trip winners are determined by individual sales volume, by profitability for a particular office or by special contribution to the well being of the company.

Since the first annual Conway Country "Seminar in the Sun" was offered in 1980, nearly 2,000 Jack Conway and Company sales associates have traveled to scenic ports of call in recognition of jobs well done.

A Quincy man won $50,000 on New Year's Eve during a routine stop for a gallon of milk.

Paul Bates, 44, received the prize after picking five of six numbers in last Friday night's Mass Millions drawing. Bates, the owner of Paul's Auto Body at 384 Center St., bought a "quik-pick" at Joe's Place, a Center Street convenience store while picking up milk on his way home from work.

Lottery officials said the sole winner of last Friday's $33.6 million jackpot, who bought the ticket in a Newton liquor store, has yet to come forward.

Bates, meanwhile, said he had no trouble making plans on how to spend his own winnings. He said would take his wife Nancy to Disney World, put away some money for his four children, and pay some bills.

ON THE SIDE OF SAFETY

Some car manufacturers have already begun to meet new federal requirements for sturdier car doors and side structures. The new side-impact protection measures must be phased in between 1993 and 1996. They are intended to enable an automobile to withstand a broadside collision by another vehicle traveling 30 miles per hour.

By adding stronger steel beams beneath body panels and extra padding to interiors, car makers can increase the chances that passengers will survive a side-impact crash in one of their automobiles. Side-impact crashes are second only to head-on crashes as the most serious type of traffic accident. With the new side-impact measures in place, drivers and passengers will enjoy better protection of their chest and pelvic areas during collisions.

HINT: Air bags only deploy in head-on crashes and are of little value in side-impact collisions.

Convention To Decide School Seat Jan. 20

Barry, Cedrone Vote Again Seen Close

By MICHAEL WHALEN

Sean Barry and Christine Cedrone could be facing another close election Jan. 20.

A special Constitutional Convention consisting of eight city councilors and five School Committee members will be held that evening at 7 p.m. in the City Council Chamber at Quincy City Hall to fill the lone School Committee seat left open since the Nov. 2 election.

Quincy's city charter requires the matter to be decided by such a convention, although officials had to wait until the new members of both elected bodies were sworn in at last week's inauguration ceremonies.

Although Barry already has four committed votes, with seven needed to win the seat, sources have told The Sun that the remaining votes could make the final tally a close victory for either candidate.

Cedrone, an office manager, edged Barry, director of public affairs at Quincy College, by eight votes (5,716 to 5,708) for the third and final seat available in the election. A subsequent four-day recount, however, resulted in a tie of 5,734 votes apiece.

City Council President Michael Cheney said he has requested information through the city clerk's office regarding the possibility of using a secret ballot at the Constitutional Convention to fill the seat. Cheney said he favors a secret ballot so that those voting would be afforded the opportunity to make their choices "in private, the way all voters do."

"And since we're all elected officials, I definitely feel if the ballot were a secret ballot we'd have a truer feeling (reflected in the vote)," he said.

Councillor Timothy Cahill, however, who last month introduced a home-rule petition to the City Council in the hopes of holding a special citywide election to fill the School Committee seat, disagreed.

"I'm not crazy about the thought of having to vote, but I definitely feel the vote should be open," he said. "I think if it's not, the public will feel even more nervous about the process."

City Clerk Joseph Shea said he has turned to City Solicitor Stephen McGrath for advice regarding the secret ballot issue. McGrath said he is looking into the matter and will have a legal opinion ready before the Jan. 20 convention.

$200,000 Spent Last Week Alone Storms Deplete Snow Budget

By ROBERT DOSWORTH

Less than two weeks into the new year, the city has spent all of its snow and ice removal budget but officials say further costs will be covered by cash reserves or budget transfers.

Last week's major storm, along with two other storms before the end of the year, have depleted the city's $300,000 snow and ice removal budget. Public Works Commissioner David Colton said Tuesday.

"We're out of money, that's for sure. We've spent the $300,000 allocated to us," Colton said.

Although the budget is spent, officials say the city will continue to allocate funds for snow and ice removal during future storms.

"The mayor has instructed me to deliver the services and to do the best we can and not to worry about the budget. The snow budget can run into a deficit and allow me to overspend. "The mayor has said he'll appropriate more money (for snow and ice removal)," Colton said.

Thomas Koch, executive secretary for Mayor James Sheets, said the city will continue to provide funds for storm-related expenses. "We'll either transfer funds from cash reserves or from other areas of the budget at the end of the year," Koch said.

According to Colton, last week's storm cost Quincy approximately $200,000.

Another $100,000 was spent on snow and ice removal, as well as salt and other related expenses, before the end of the year.

To date, the city has received approximately 41 inches of snow, including a whopping 31 inches last week alone. Colton said eight inches fell Monday, another eight Thursday and 15 Friday and Saturday.

Colton said last week's storm was a real "budget buster." Approximately 125 workers, both public and private, were used to combat the storm.

Privately, 70 pieces of equipment were hired to bolster the city's snow removal effort. The cost of the private contractors alone totalled $100,000 as each worker logged about 36 hours over the Thursday, Friday and Saturday period, Colton said.

About 50 city employees fought the storm, including 25 who

No Business Like 'Snow' Business For Hardware Stores

While last week's storm forced some stores to close early and lose business, local hardware stores experienced a boom in sales of winter-related items including shovels, snowblowers, sand and sleds.

Curry Hardware, with stores in North Quincy, West Quincy and Braintree, and Ashmont Discount on the Quincy-Braintree line reported brisk sales from winter-weary customers.

According to Assistant Salesman John Wisnes, Curry Hardware's three stores sold 3800 shovels in 10 days.

"We're selling shovels as if people just threw away their old shovels from last winter," Wisnes said.

Another 100 shovels were shipped to Curry on Monday. Of that amount, at least 50 were sold that day. With more inclement weather expected later this week, Wisnes said the stores are expected to receive another shipment from the nearest vendor, Hartford, Conn., by today (Thursday).

Another sought-after item, snowblowers, are

Police Dept. Begins New Crime Fighters Hot Line

The Quincy Police Department has begun a new Crime Fighters Hot Line to allow residents to report any suspected criminal activity in the city.

Police Chief Francis Mullen said the hot line is an expansion of the Drug Hot Line started by the department several years ago.

"We all have to work together to keep neighborhoods safe," said Mullen. "People (who live there) are going to see things we're not going to see."

Crime Fighters
Hot Line Number

Mullen said the hot line will allow residents to report any suspicious activities in their neighborhoods that seem to have any kind of criminal nature, not just those that are drug-related. Residents who call the hot line will not be required to identify themselves, he added.

The chief noted that while he could not get into specifics, the department has received "a lot of information" in the past through its Drug Hot Line that has led to "numerous" arrests.

The number of the Quincy Police Department Crime Fighters Hot Line is 328-4527.

SNOWBOUND—This car sits in a snowbank on Martineau St. Vehicles parked illegally on side streets were a major problem during the storm as the city towed approximately 400 cars which ignored the snow emergency which allows parking on only the even side of side streets.

City Store Opening Postponed Until Saturday

Snowy and icy weather conditions have forced the postponement of the opening of the Quincy City Store at the Fore River shipyard.

The store, originally scheduled to open Jan. 8, will open Saturday from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. at the shipyard's main administration building on East Howard Street.

Mayor James Sheets has said he is hopeful the store, through the sale of surplus items from city departments, will raise $25,000 to $75,000 annually for the city. It will only be open Saturdays.

License Board Brigs

The Licensing Board took the following actions at its meeting on Tuesday:

- Granted a request from the Wollaston Wine & Liquor Co., Inc., 58 Beale St., for a change of managers from the late Richard Heap to Kenneth Slate.

- Granted approval for the change of ownership of the gasoline repair license from Performance Unlimited, Inc., 10 Independence Ave., to Robert Dunphy.

- Granted a request for the transfer of management of Newport Liquors, Inc., d/b/a L & G Liquors, 66 Newbury Ave., from the Hanley family to Steven Rackett.

- Granted a request from Sea Street Pizza & Deli, 524 Sea St. (Mr. and Mrs. George Eleftherakis) for a common victualer license.

Midnight Closing For Varsity Club

By LISA CONNELL
Officials affirmed a midnight closing for Independence Avenue's Varsity Club at Tuesday's Licensing Board meeting in order for the lounge to peacefully co-exist with neighborhood property owners and area residents.

License Board member Police Chief Francis Mullen and Ward IV Councillor Thomas Fabrizio and Quincy Attorney Dennis Harrington, counsel for Varsity Club manager Adam Kessler and Quincy Police Detective Sergeant Richard Laracy agreed that the club would stop serving drinks at midnight, have the bar counter area clean by 12:15 a.m. and all patrons out of the building by 12:30 a.m.

License Board Chairperson and City Clerk Joseph Shea stated that this agreement, at this time, would be considered an informal agreement.

Mullen said that this matter was being discussed in an informal manner for agreement and understanding and "to be sure that as we go into a new year that everyone [involved] is on the same page of music."

Shea and other board members were more interested in bringing to light problems caused when a midnight closing is not maintained regularly.

The Varsity Club's liquor license states an official closing time of 1 a.m. but officials believe the earlier closing time will avoid any problems to building fixtures in the parking lot and keep the area free of any illegally parked vehicles.

Neighborhood grievances focused on illegally parked vehicles along Independence Ave. and a broken fence which had become an eyesore.

Members of a neighborhood task force had hoped that the club's former owner, John Perrette, would have repaired the fence before selling the establishment to Kessler several months ago.

Noting that his client is showing good faith to the needs of the community, Harrington said that Kessler is in the process of repairing the fence near the club and "No Parking" signs have recently been installed.

Harrington said that Kessler has met with the Neighborhood Task Force and that future meetings are planned to smooth out any wrinkles. Kessler will meet with Fabrizio and the task force in February.

Fabrizio wants the closing time to remain at midnight.

Mullen has received no negative reports about the Varsity Club's operations since Kessler took over but said that "we [the] License Board] and [myself] have a commitment to the neighbors to make every effort to appease everyone."

"It is not our position as a board to destroy anyone as the restaurant and liquor business are difficult to run as it is," said Mullen to Kessler.

The Varsity Club is located at 33 Independence Ave., the site of the former Alpine Restaurant.

Quincy 2000 Backs Blockbuster Video Store At Colman's Site

The Quincy 2000 Corporation has expressed support of the Blockbuster Video store planned for the site of the former Colman's Sporting Goods in Quincy Center.

"Blockbuster Video is a highly profitable national chain," said Quincy 2000 Executive Director Charles D'Aprix in a prepared statement dated Tuesday. "Their commitment to Quincy Center is heartening. Blockbuster is a well-managed retail chain that is consistently rated as one of the best in the business—they do not commit to an area unless they have done their homework."

However, D'Aprix expressed some concern that a video store may not be the type of store that would generate additional foot traffic in Quincy Center.

"It will be our job to create additional shopping opportunities for customers coming to Blockbuster," said D'Aprix. "My concern is that traditionally video renters park, run in, rent a video and leave. We must find every possible way to keep a percentage of Blockbuster's customers in Quincy Center."

D'Aprix said that negotiations are continuing with a nationally-known clothing store and with a toy store. He added that he will soon be meeting with national representatives of Blockbuster to enlist their support in Quincy Center's revitalization.

He also had high praise for building owner Robert Colman.

"Mr. Colman has done a great deal for Quincy Center over the years," said D'Aprix. "Rather than renting to a first store that came along, he entered into an agreement with a highly respected organization."

Police Believe Church Break-Ins Unrelated

Quincy Police believe that there is no connection between vandalism committed at two Quincy churches last week.

Detective Lt. Thomas Casey said St. John's Catholic Church at 44 School St. suffered "extensive damage" during a break-in reported Jan. 4 at 6:56 a.m. Casey said the vandal or vandals apparently entered the church through an open window and "ransacked" the left side of the church sacristy, broke into the poor box, and also damaged doors and other property inside the church.

a.m., according to Casey. He said the vandal or vandals "smashed out" a piece of glass on the left side of the church office door in order to gain entrance, entered the church nursery, and caused no further damage after apparently deciding there was nothing they could steal.

Casey said because St.

John's received so much damage and First Presbyterian did not, it appears the two crimes are unrelated.

"But anything is possible," he said.

Casey said he did not have any available estimates on damages, adding only that both cases are still under investigation.

City Census Forms Mailed

The Quincy city clerk's office was expected to mail out approximately 40,000 annual census forms to all Quincy households late Tuesday afternoon.

City Clerk Joseph Shea said residents should receive the forms by today (Thursday) and should complete and return them to his office within 10 days.

The city will use information from the census forms to compile street listings for 1994. The school and planning departments will also use information from the census for federal grant applications.

If residents fail to return the forms, they risk being dropped from the city's voter registration rolls.

Shea said last year's census showed that Quincy had a population of 86,343 residents which, broken down, was 85.91 percent white, 1.25 percent black, .72 percent Hispanic and 12.12 "other" for a total minority population of 14.09 percent. The clerk added that the "other" category "almost entirely" consisted of Asian residents.

*May your New Year be bright.
Warmest thoughts of thanks to you for your loyalty and support.
We look forward to serving you in 1994.*

WHEN BAD BREATH IS A WARNING SIGN

Bad breath is usually no big deal. It's typically caused by mouth bacteria doing their dirty work at night, and proper oral hygiene gets rid of it for the most part. When offensive mouth odors persist no matter how aggressively you brush and floss, however, the cause could be something more serious. Some of the conditions often marked by bad breath include ulcers, arthritis of the liver, lung infections, and tonsillitis. People with chronic breath odor should first try a rigorous schedule of brushing, flossing, and rinsing with antibacterial mouthwashes. If the problem persists, particularly if the smell is as bad when breathing through the nose as through the mouth, a doctor should be consulted. P.S. Hormones can also have an effect on breath odor. For example, women tend to have more problems with bad breath during ovulation.

Persistent bad breath can also be a sign of undiagnosed dental problems. If you would like to learn more about this topic, or about how you can help prevent heart disease, call COMPREHENSIVE CARDIAC CARE at 472-2550. We specialize in the treatment of heart problems, hypertension and cholesterol. We place strong emphasis on caring for the patient, rather than simply treating the disease. Speculation, Anyone?

It's that time again at City Hall. Mayor James Sheets will be making his annual department heads appointments—his so-called Official Family—next month.

Which is always good for some speculation and the inevitable questions: Who's going? Who's coming? And, this year, you might add: Who's switching? Whether the speculation is on target or off, won't be known for sure until Sheets officially announces his appointments.

For what it's worth, here's some of the buzz making the City Hall rounds this week:

Mike McFarland, owner of Barry's Deli in Wollaston and a former auditor with the Howard Johnson company will be named city treasurer-tax collector succeeding Dana Childs. Childs, according to the speculation, will take a finance post at Quincy Hospital.

Reliable sources think of all the speculation circulating the hall, the Childs-McFarland combination has the most credence.

Sheets, in his third term inaugural address last week, said he will create a Division of Inspectional Services encompassing building, plumbing, wiring inspection, weights and measures and conservation enforcement.

The name being mentioned to head up that new division is Paul Kennedy of Squantum, a plumbing contractor and Conservation Commission member.

CHILDS

Rhonda Merrill, Quincy businesswoman and long-time Sheets supporter going back to his campaign for Ward 4 City Council, has been mentioned for the purchasing agent post Robert Denvir is retiring from. The latest word is that she might not take it.

And, if you like your speculation a little on the wild side, here's one:

Tom Koch, the mayor's executive secretary, being named Park-Forestry-Cemetery Departments executive director, a post long held by his father, the late Richard Koch, Sr.

Under this scenario, Ray Cattaneo, who now heads the department, would move on to supervise the new recreation area and golf course planned in the West Quincy quarry area.

This may not be as wild as it first sounds. But it could be a little premature. Koch reportedly would like the Park Department post, but right now there is no West Quincy recreation area-golf course for Cattaneo to supervise.

By the way, the rest of that speculation is that if Koch were to move to the Park Department next month or shortly after, he would be succeeded in the mayor's office by Rick Iacobucci, brother of political activist and often candidate, Ron Iacobucci.

Anything to any of the speculation? You'll have to wait and see.

KOCH

Barry, Cedrone Vote Seen Close

appointed by the convention method in the past, none were chosen by secret ballot.

Ward 3 Councillor Lawrence Chretien, Ward 5 Councillor Charles Phelan, Ward 6 Councillor Bruce Ayers and School Committee member Stephen Durkin have already said they would vote for Barry. Phelan said his reason is that more people in his ward voted for Barry, and Durkin said he simply has known Barry longer.

Chretien said he will vote for Barry because he received a greater number of votes in Ward 3 and has a "longer commitment" to education. Ayers also cited Barry's commitment to education, especially his work at Quincy College, as being the main reason for his decision.

Ward 1 Councillor Peter Kolson, Ward 4 Councillor Thomas Fabrizio and Cahill said they have made decisions but will not reveal their votes publicly until the convention. Councillor Joseph LaRaia and School Committee members JoAnn Bragg, Ronald Mariano and Linda Stice said they were undecided. School Committee Vice Chairman Daniel Raymond could not be reached for comment.

Sources have told The Sun that several of the remaining nine votes will go to Cedrone.

Two officials will abstain from the vote because of conflict of interest reasons: Mayor James Sheets, who serves as chairman of the School Committee, will abstain because he is on leave from a teaching position at Quincy College, which is under the committee's jurisdiction, and Ward 2 Councillor Ted DeCristofaro will not vote because his son, Richard DeCristofaro, is Quincy's assistant superintendent of schools.

The City Council passed Cahill's home-rule petition for a special citywide election last month. The state legislature, however, was unable to take any action on the matter before the start of its new legislative session Jan. 5.

Cahill said he feels a special election would be the fairest way to decide the matter. He also said, however, that he does not want the School Committee seat left vacant for a prolonged period of time and will not resubmit the home-rule

Sheets has also expressed a desire for another election, but has subsequently agreed that the seat should be filled as soon as possible.

Although the seat is for a four-year term, the person chosen by the Constitutional Convention would have to run for reelection in the 1995 city election. In 1997, the position would again become a four-year term.

If a special election were held, the person elected would serve the regular four-year term.

According to the city charter, the Constitutional Convention does not have to choose between Barry and Cedrone and could opt for someone else if it were deemed necessary.

Two options might be parent Toni Kabilian or Middleborough High School Vice Principal Ronald McCarthy, who placed fifth and sixth respectively in the six-candidate race for three School Committee seats in the Nov. 2 election.

McCarthy has sent a letter to all members of the City Council and School Committee requesting that he be considered for the seat. The letter states that while "Christine and Sean deserve that seat more than I do based on the vote of the people," the Constitutional Convention might also consider supporting McCarthy since he "has been trained in and presently participates in the administering of public schools."

In a phone interview, McCarthy said he sent the letter only to make it known he is still interested in the seat and merely intended to present himself as an alternative to Barry and Cedrone.

Kabilian said she, also, is still interested in the seat, but stressed that since both Barry and Cedrone received more votes in the election, she would have no problem with either of those candidates being appointed to the seat.

"Either one of us (Kabilian or McCarthy) is an option," said Kabilian. "I will be there (at the Jan. 20 convention), and I will be glad to offer my services if they run into a problem (filling the seat)."

The other two School Committee seats available in November were won easily by incumbent Mariano and tax accountant Bragg who placed first and second respectively in the election.

Time Has Come To Honor Mayor Amelio Della Chiesa

(Former Mayor and present City Councillor Joseph LaRia was elected Ward 2 councillor in 1959 when Amelio Della Chiesa was mayor. Della Chiesa served 12 years as mayor.)

By JOSEPH LaRAIA

The name of the early childhood center to be opened in Ward 4 (the site of the former Lincoln School) will be the decision of the new School Committee.

One name that has been placed in nomination for the center is that of the late Amelio Della Chiesa, former city councillor, state representative and mayor of Quincy. I voiced my support for this nomination at a City Council meeting when the resolve was introduced by Ward 4 Councillor Thomas Fabrizio.

I feel that the nomination is certainly appropriate in view of Mr. Della Chiesa's contribution in public service and his personal qualities which were a model for public officials. My support for Mayor Della Chiesa is rooted in my first six years on the City Council while he presided as mayor of the City of Quincy. My two years as Council President brought me closer to the workings of his office and his penchant for local politics.

Mayor Della Chiesa assumed his duties as the first Plan A (strong) mayor, in 1958. He held that office through 1965. He is considered the last frugal mayor, overseeing a community that remained a suburb... no trains running through it, no residential high rise, except for the Executive House, minimal commercial development, tax increases that were negligible, a downtown which flourished, the shipyard as a big taxpayer and rubbish pickup that was privatized during his term in office.

Mayor Della Chiesa was known by his colleagues and the public he served as "Mel." He was a personal and friendly individual, always seeking you out and offering his hand while voicing encouraging comments to those who met him. He possessed admirable qualities in his undaunted effort to win your friendship, regardless of your feelings on an issue or to him personally. His approach was the same with all who came to know him.

Mel Della Chiesa carried those qualities wherever he went. His demeanor was admired by the public and envied by other elected officials. His style was a model for many and aptly falls under the category of a "people's mayor."

He was constantly on the move in between his duties at City Hall and the State House. He had a compelling drive to be in touch with his constituency on a one-on-one basis. He attended ceremonies, installations, wake and family functions. He was everywhere, "touching" the people he represented.

Mayor Della Chiesa had his share of accomplishments while in office, notably among them were the construction of the Quincy Vocational-Technical School, a major addition to Quincy Hospital, a major contribution to Quincy's title of "Shoppertown USA", the creation of a bustling downtown area involving government supporting business, which was a concept not readily accepted in the 1950's and 1960's, as we know it today. This concept was pursued by Mayor Della Chiesa and led to the acquisition of several private properties surrounding the downtown district which were used as illuminated and metered municipal parking lots that complimented the thriving businesses on Hancock Street. This was a period we cannot expect to recapture. Quincy was a model during that time on a national scale for its innovative aggressiveness with its downtown district drawing officials in government and business from all sections of the country.

Several years ago, I was approached while on the City Council to honor the memory of the late James R. McIntyre, former councillor, state senator and mayor of Quincy and a number of things were done to comply with that request. Certainly, the time has come to honor the memory of the late Amelio Della Chiesa, councillor, state representative and mayor of Quincy.

Quincy's Yesterdays

Funds OK'd For Sewer Projects

The City Council's Finance Committee reported favorably on an order authorizing Mayor Charles A. Ross to borrow $275,000 and accept a federal grant of $64,000 for sewer projects at Squantum, Houghs Neck and Adams Shore.

The projects would provide much-needed work for 300 men over a period of nine months.

Mayor Ross said he felt the city should have some hand in hiring the men but Joseph W. Bartlett, chairman of the State Emergency Finance Board, told him that all of the workers would have to be hired from the Federal Reemployment Office.

Supt. Walter S. McKestrie of the Sewer Department and John G. Whitman of the Water Department, the mayor said, "are both high types of public officials. They should be allowed to hire men whom they know are qualified to perform certain duties."

DRAW BRIDGE TO MOVE

Engineers in charge of building the new Fore River Bridge announced that the draw of the bridge will be floated up the river and connected to the new span during one incoming tide on Jan. 30.

Barges were to be placed under each end of the draw at dead low tide and lift it with the rising water. Then tugs will tow the 300-foot draw up river and hold it so that it can be dropped in place on the outgoing tide.

FREE BEDS OPPOSED

The annual report of the City Hospital Board of Managers, which disclosed a $5,000 deficit, expressed opposition to City Councillor William M. Edmonston's proposal to establish free beds at the hospital.

"It would seem as though the Quincy taxpayer was doing his share now," said the report.

A Tribute To Tom Sullivan

Editor, The Quincy Sun:

I want to thank Tom Sullivan for his many years of covering the sports scene for all the youth of Quincy.

He has done an excellent job also for our high school in North Quincy. We always looked forward to his articles on "The Game" on Thanksgiving. He always gave his stories such depth.

As he retires after over fifty years as a reporter, I want to wish him and his good wife many long happy years, blessed with good health.

True, we can all be replaced; there is always a person who will step into our shoes but as someone steps into Tom's position at The Sun, the shoes will not quite fit.

Dealt A Lemon

By Mass. Legislature

Editor, The Quincy Sun: Taxpayers and those in need of social assistance were dealt a lemon by the Massachusetts Legislature during the final weeks of 1993.

The recently passed Pacheco anti-privatization law makes it almost impossible for the state government to contract-out for services even when those services could be provided at lower costs and with equal or better quality. The legislation guarantees the continuance of an inefficient, bureaucratic monopoly.

Stopping competitive bidding between the public and private sector eliminates the most cost effective mechanism--competition. Bay Staters will now pay more for government, leaving less money for local aid, educational reform and job stimulation incentives.

While President Clinton tries to "reinvent" the federal bureaucracy, mediocrity emanates from the Massachusetts Legislature. But voters do have the power to turn the lemon dealt them into lemonade. They have the power to call their legislators and demand repeal of the Pacheco anti-privatization law. And even more importantly, voters can repeal their individual legislators in November.

Three Spargo Siblings And Spouses Celebrate Wedding Milestones

In a rare occurrence for this day and age, three members of a longstanding Quincy family, and their spouses, celebrated their 58th wedding anniversary in the past year.

The couples are: Esther (Spargo) Walp and husband Russell Lee Walp; Ed and Kae (Sheridan) Spargo and Gerald and Frances (Spargo) Gherardi.

Children of the late William G. Spargo and wife Mabel, the three Spargos were born and brought up in South Quincy, as were four siblings: the late Richard Spargo, Ruth (Spargo) Warren, the late Ann (Spargo) DeLucia and John Alden, a retired doctor. Until his death in 1925, William Spargo owned and operated The Spargo Print and a small daily newspaper, The Quincy Telegram, which was absorbed by then The Quincy Patriot Ledger in 1927.

The Ed Spargos and Gerald Gherardis live in Wollaston while the Walps have made their home in Marietta, Ohio, since their marriage, and summer at Brewster where they owned and operated Sea Pines Camp for many years.

Gherardi is a retired guidance counselor at Quincy Vo-Tech, while both Walps are retired professors at Marietta College in Ohio where they first met. Esther, an accomplished distance swimmer, won the national women's collegiate javelin championship at Forbes Field, Pittsburgh in 1925.

Ed Spargo, a lifelong newspaperman who started as a "printer's devil" in dad's printing plant, was editor of the long-defunct Quincy News and worked in the composing room makeup departments at the Patriot Ledger and Boston Globe. He inherited a love for writing from his dad and has had articles published in the Boston Globe and Herald, The Patriot Ledger, The Quincy Sun and both "Yankee" and "Good Old Days" magazines.

Ed has a fondness for recalling the so-called "good old days."

"My stuff's dull-as-dishwater," says Ed, "but I try."

Five generations of Spargos have made the greater Quincy area their home since stone-cutter William Spargo first landed on these shores in 1880 to work in the then-booming granite industry. His wife Annie and four-year-old son Will joined him two years later. Son Will sired the aforementioned seven Spargo siblings.

Ed Spargo says his parents and grandparents instilled in the family "a love for Historic Quincy and its rich heritage that still endures today." Upon retiring 21 years ago, Ed Spargo embarked on a one-man crusade to try to enhance the health of others, via a self-formulated and self-financed health plan that received the endorsement of a host of doctors and nutritionists, to the complete surprise of Ed who dubs himself "an unscholarly layman and an obsolescent octogenarian" at 85.

CP Of South Shore Honors Lottery Employees At Party

More than 300 children and adults with disabilities and their families associated with Cerebral Palsy of the South Shore enjoyed the festivities of the fifth annual Christmas Party sponsored by the Massachusetts State Lottery employees at the George F. Bryan VFW Post in Quincy.

The South Shore Joys, an independent volunteer association, and Bingo the Clown, sent by The Ground Round, all dressed in full clown regalia and mingled among the guests.

A special feature of this year's party was a performance by the Sacred Heart Church Children's Choir of North Quincy, with Director Zoa Ahern and Pianist James Connors.

The Mass State Lottery employees held several fundraisers for Santa to give gifts to all the children with disabilities who attended, and Cerebral Palsy of the South Shore provided gifts for adult guests with disabilities.

As part of the ceremonies, Thomas Zukauskas, executive director of CPSS, presented a plaque composed of photographs of children and adults who are served by CPSS to Tom McTigue and Mary Woods of the Lottery employees in recognition of that organization's dedication to people with disabilities.

CPSS runs the Children's Developmental Disabilities Center located at 105 Adams St., Quincy. The center serves children up to age seven with developmental and physical disabilities.

CPSS also offers personal care throughout Southeastern Massachusetts. For information on CPSS general services call 479-7443. For options programs call 1-800-924-7570.

Fisher College Offering Two New Programs

Fisher College is now offering two new programs: an associate in science degree in medical records technology and a certificate in criminal justice/security administration.

The two-year associate degree in medical records technology will allow students to keep up with the ever changing face of the medical profession. Emphasis will be placed on the skills necessary to maintain, compile and report a patient's health information and thereby participate in the evaluation of patient care.

Graduates will be eligible to take the national exam for the accredited record technician designation.

The one-year certificate in criminal justice/security administration is designed for those persons already in the criminal justice/security administration field or for those who aspire to careers in these fields.

Students will take courses in psychology, sociology, criminology,

English, American legal systems, criminal law, criminal justice and algebra.

All credits earned may be applied to Fisher's associate in science in criminal justice. Credits may also be transferred to baccalaureate criminal justice programs.

For more information, call 536-4647. Fisher College/Boston campus is located at 108 Beacon St., Boston, MA 02116.

Financial Aid Forum At Quincy College Tonight

Congressman Gerry Studds was scheduled to hold two financial aid forums this week for South Shore residents, including one tonight (Thursday) at Quincy College.

The events were scheduled for yesterday (Wednesday) from 7:30 to 9 p.m. at Weymouth High School and tonight from 7:30 to 8:30 p.m. in Room 101 of Saville Hall at the college.

Studds said the forums are being held as follow-up sessions to his financial aid conference held last weekend at Buzzards Bay which drew nearly 1,000 residents.

Attendees at the two South Shore forums will receive a detailed information packet containing financial aid guides from the federal government, brochures for students attending Massachusetts colleges and universities, workbooks, sample financial aid forms and information on scholarships and private aid available from other sources.

To obtain a packet or for more information call Studds' Quincy office at 1-800-794-9911.

SAVE YOUR BACK WHILE SHOVELING SNOW

The storm that blew several inches of snow in our direction recently provides an appropriate time to offer a few suggestions on proper shoveling techniques. At the risk of sounding "like a wiseguy" the best way to prevent problems shoveling snow is to avoid doing it altogether by using a snowblower or paying someone to do it for you. Most importantly, any person with a history of heart problems or any person at risk of heart problems should ask their doctor for approval. If you absolutely must shovel snow, the following guidelines may be helpful:

1. Pace yourself depending on the conditions. Shoveling heavy, wet snow takes a heck of a lot more energy than shoveling fluffy, white snow.
2. Use the proper shovel. Using a short, wide, flat bladed shovel may be perfect for pushing light snow, but could be disastrous in trying to shovel the heavier, wet snow.

Generally speaking, a long handled shovel, or better yet, a "back saver" shovel with a bent shaft, reduces the strain on your back.

4. Keep your back straight, bend with your knees and turn your feet and legs when "throwing the snow." This is crucial because it is usually the quick, twist of your back while you are bent over slightly that causes most injuries.
5. Switch sides when shoveling so that you're not always throwing the snow in the same direction.

If you have any questions or would like to make an appointment please call Dr. Mark Jaehning, a lifelong Quincy resident, at Quincy Chiropractic Office, 110 Billings Road, N. Quincy, 773-4400.

Storms Deplete Snow Budget

manned Quincy's 14 snow plows and sanders. Other DPW employees or "chasers" checked on the private contractors to make sure they were doing their job, while others answered telephones and performed other jobs like hauling snow from city streets.

Colton noted about 10 cemetery employees helped cleaned sidewalks.

Although the city received some complaints from residents for various snow removal problems, Colton said he was very pleased with the team effort.

"The workers did a helluva job. We got our share of complaints but when you've had 41 inches of snow... there isn't any place to put the snow," the commissioner said.

"I'm very proud of the staff and they deserve a lot of credit."

One particular problem was cars which ignored the city's snow emergency. The emergency mandates no cars be parked on main streets. Cars are allowed to park on only the even side of side streets because this is an "even" year. (In 1995, parking will be allowed on the odd side of side streets).

Colton estimated 400 cars were towed last week during the storm. Ignoring the snow emergency creates "a big problem" for several reasons, the commissioner said.

First, cars which are parked on both sides of the street do not allow the plows to clear a straight path. "They have to zig zag. With cars on one side, you can at least get a good path."

"Clearing a straight path for vehicles, especially for police cars, fire trucks and ambulances, is our primary purpose," Colton said.

Secondly, if the car is towed, a pile of snow is left behind. If the plows are done making their rounds and the temperature remains below freezing, the snow turns into ice, making conditions worse.

Colton said the city is making an effort to declare snow emergencies 24 hours before a storm is forecast to start. The notification is aired by several news mediums, including WJDA and Channels 4, 5 and 7 during the stations' 6 and 11 p.m. newscasts.

Residents with questions about snow emergencies, plowing or complaints can also call the DPW snow-line at 376-1943 which is manned 24 hours a day during a storm.

For public works-related emergencies, residents are instructed to call 376-1910.

Impact Quincy, S.S. Mental Health Co-Hosts 'Meeting The Needs Of A Changing City' Conference

Impact Quincy and South Shore Mental Health will co-host a conference entitled "Quincy: Meeting The Needs of a Changing City, Understanding Asian Culture and Developing Multicultural Services," at Eastern Nazarene College Wednesday, Feb. 2 from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m.

The conference will bring community leaders and service providers to gain a better understanding of Asian culture and learn more about other Quincy community services. The leaders and providers will also share experiences and difficulties in developing multicultural services as well as expand their knowledge of effective program models.

The morning session will begin at 9 a.m. with registration and coffee followed by a welcome from Janet Powell, co-chair of Impact Quincy, and coordinator of guidance and psychology for Quincy public schools; and Harry Shulman, M.S.W., CEO, South Shore Mental Health. Mayor James Sheets will then give the opening remarks.

From 9:45 to 10:30 a.m., Regina Lee, J.D., director, Massachusetts Office of Refugees and Immigrants, will deliver the keynote address.

After a 15-minute break, three workshops will be held from 10:45 a.m. to noon. They are:

•Mental Health in the Asian Community: Issues and Challenges Facing Service Providers.

•Health Care and Substance Abuse in the Asian Community: Issues and Challenges Facing Service Providers.

•Leadership and Empowerment in the Asian Community: Community Organizers' Response.

Following a one-hour lunch break, four more workshops will be held from 1 to 2:15 p.m. They are:

•Families in Transition: Developing Services to Support Asian Youth and Families.

•Building a New Life: Challenges Facing Asian Adults.

•Asian Senior Citizens: Coping with Aging and a New Culture.

•Understanding Domestic Violence in the Asian Community.

The conference will conclude with a wrap-up discussion called "Next Steps: Where Do We Go From Here?"

The conference fee is $10 and includes lunch. For more information, contact Betty Yau at 472-6027.

Women's Services Provider Networking Jan. 27

Women's service provider networking of Impact Quincy will meet Thursday, Jan. 27 from noon to 2 p.m. at the Social Security Administration, 191 Parkingway, Quincy.

This is a "brown bag" lunch meeting. Beverages will be available.

Marie Nee, community coordinator for Impact Quincy, will introduce the presenters. Carol Boyle and Susan Mulhern of the Social Security Administration.

The meeting will be facilitated by Jane McGrath, R.N., M.S.N., C.S., of South Shore Mental Health Women's Issues Task Force.

Participants may bring business cards, brochures, and any other information about themselves or their agency that they would like to share.

Reservations should be made by Jan. 21 by calling Impact Quincy at 472-6027. R.S.V.P. is not mandatory for attendance but would help with the planning.

A provider is defined as any agency that provides assistance to women whether it is educational, financial, spiritual, psychological, substance abuse treatment, and/or medical.

gone from Curry's inventory. In all, 60 snowblowers of all sizes have been purchased by fast-acting and fortunate consumers.

Wisnes said he does not expect another shipment until July or August because all of the vendors in the Northeast are sold out. More snowblowers are not expected at local stores because the manufacturers are making lawn mowers.

"We probably won't get any more snowblowers until July or August," Wisnes said.

Halite or rock salt, sand and ice melt have also been selling as fast as the snow's been falling.

Twenty-thousand pounds of the deicing chemical, from 100-pound drums to 25 pound bags, was sold Monday at Curry's three locations. Like the snow shovels, more rock salt is due Friday.

Sleds have also been a cool commodity at Curry, with 50 sold over the past two weeks.

Another local hardware store, Ashmont Discount on Quincy Ave., reported customers snatching up shovels, snowblowers, rock salt, ice melt and sleds as soon as they're shelved. As with Curry, Ashmont expects to be fully stocked, aside from snowblowers, for the next major snowstorm.

"We'll be ready. We're just waiting for the trucks to come in," Manager Barry Fienberg said Monday. He noted one shipment was due to arrive Saturday but the truck got stuck in the storm in Delaware.

The demand for shovels at Ashmont got so intense last Friday and Saturday that customers asked if they could purchase defective shovels.

"People were asking me to fix defective shovels because they were so desperate," Fienberg said.

Before the storms hit, Ashmont sold 300 metal and plastic shovels in a day and a half, the manager said. "They just came, ask for a shovel, and left."

The store sold its supply of 30 snowblowers before last week's storm. Fienberg doubts he'll receive more snowblowers but there's a chance.

"If I had a snowblower manufacturing company and the demand was high for them, I'd find a way to make them and ship them before the winter's over," Fienberg said.

Fienberg said ice melt, sand and rock salt are selling quite quickly. About a truckload of ice melt, in 10, 20 and 50 pound bags have been sold and another two pallets of sand packaged in 60-pound bags have been snatched up in a short period of time.

Sleds have also been popular. Fienberg said he sold 24 snowtubes, 48 saucers, and 72 rollop toboggans within four or five days.

Other cautious consumers have been stocking up on batteries and flashlights, just in case the next storm causes power outages.

Host Families Sought

American host families are being sought for high school students from Western and Eastern Europe, Asia, South America and Australia for the 1994-95 school year in a program sponsored by the American Intercultural Student Exchange (AISE).

The students, ages 15-18, will arrive in the United States in August, attend a local high school, and return to their home countries next June. Students, all fluent in English, have been carefully screened by local representatives in their home countries, and have their own medical insurance and spending money.

BLOWING BLUE SMOKE

When a car begins to consume abnormally high amounts of oil and emits blue smoke from its tail pipe, the cause is likely to be worn piston rings. Worn valve stem seals may also be the cause of the problem. A closer inspection of the symptoms enables the auto technician to distinguish between the two disorders. With worn rings, the emission of blue smoke from the exhaust tends to be constant. Bad valve stem seals are likely to cause blue tail-pipe smoke only upon deceleration. The presence of worn rings can also be confirmed by a "wet" compression test. This involves taking a compression test of the cylinder, then repeating the test after squirting some oil into the cylinder. If the "wet" compression is significantly higher, worn rings are indicated.

HINT: Hard starting in cold weather and lack of power up hills are also symptomatic of worn piston rings.

It's very important to keep your car properly maintained. Talk With Your Kids About Drugs

Listen and Talk with Your Children

Some children as young as the fourth grade feel pressured to try drugs—especially gateway drugs like alcohol, nicotine and marijuana. Research shows that each of these can increase the chance that the user will turn to even more dangerous drugs like crack and other forms of cocaine, and stimulant or depressant pills. Nationally, the average age of first use of illicit drugs (including alcohol) is 12 years.

Constructive communication is one of the most effective tools you can use in helping your child avoid drug use. The very act of regular two-way communication shows your child that he or she means a great deal to you.

What to Communicate

The facts about how drugs harm people, especially young people. Physical harm—slowed growth, impaired coordination, etc. Social harm—being disconnected from society, loss of friendships, loss of interest. Educational harm—impaired memory and attention levels, and reduced motivation.

The fact that you do not find drug use acceptable. Many children say their parents never stated this simple principle. Don't forget to point out that these drugs are against the law.

The fact that there are lots of positive, drug-free alternatives, and you will help your children explore them.

The fact that you place high value on your child's good, special qualities—qualities that drugs can and will destroy or diminish.

The power to say no—A clear message about the behavior you expect; the belief that your child, knowing right from wrong, is smart enough to say no to drugs.

Cardinal's Letter On Sexual Abuse Read At Masses

A letter from Bernard Cardinal Law on sexual abuse by priests and other adults was read and distributed at Masses at Quincy and other Catholic churches throughout the Archdiocese of Boston Saturday and Sunday.

The text of the letter: For several years with a new intensity we have been facing as a society and as a Church the matter of sexual abuse. The reports of such misconduct are disheartening, particularly when they involve priests. Most priests serve the Church well and live exemplary priestly lives. It is a sad and tragic fact, however, that there are some priests who have committed acts which contradict all that priestly life is about.

The revelations of sexual misconduct by priests involving minors has disturbed everyone profoundly. Such misconduct affects not only the personal lives of children, but also their relationships with family, friends and Church.

As recipients of the healing and reconciling love of Christ, we have much to offer each other. It is the love of God which heals our souls, makes us whole and enables us to love others. What we have received as a gift we are to give as a gift, especially to those who have been affected by sexual abuse.

All the Church suffers from the incidents of sexual abuse. In my own name and in the name of the Archdiocese, I express not only our sorrow, but also our desire to be of support to those most directly affected by these acts. The Church's ongoing concern finds expression in a desire and commitment to do all that we can to prevent anyone else from being harmed by such abuse.

To anyone who has been sexually abused by a priest or a deacon, I offer the solace and help of the Church. If it seems difficult to speak about this matter directly with a priest or staff member, then I encourage the person to seek the assistance of a family member, friend or counselor. Silence and denial do not help the one hurt nor the one who has offended. The personnel I have delegated to deal with these matters are ready and willing to be of whatever help possible. Their primary efforts are to express the pastoral concern of the Church to those affected and to do all we can to prevent anyone else from suffering such abuse. They will respect the rights of each individual.

I ask pastors and members of parish staffs to encourage persons with knowledge of such incidents to report them to the Archdiocese. It is only with such knowledge that we can fulfill our responsibilities. I encourage local parish leaders to gather with parishioners for prayer. Let our prayers be shaped by our mutual need to ask for mercy and forgiveness, by our need to express repentance for deeds committed or interventions not made, and especially, by our need to overcome all forms of abuse be it in the family, the Church or society.

"After all is said and done, what we do best as a Church is to provide genuine assistance for a hurting person to be healed, a family to be strengthened, a parish to be comforted, a cleric to be helped and, if need be, restrained, and the morale of his brother priests, parish ministers and parishioners to be strengthened and restored."

Devotedly yours in Christ,
Bernard Cardinal Law
Archdiocese of Boston

Two Quincy Officials Serving As Presidents Of Professional Groups

Two Quincy appointed officials are serving separate professional associations as their respective presidents, a unique first for the "City of Presidents."

Tax Collector-Treasurer Dana Childs is serving as president of the Massachusetts Tax Collector-Treasurer Association. Childs has been Quincy's tax collector-treasurer for seven years. During this period, he has achieved the designations of certified Massachusetts tax collector and certified Massachusetts treasurer.

Childs' knowledge is well-known throughout the state. For several years, he has taught courses at the annual Collector-Treasurer's School at the University of Massachusetts at Amherst.

Another Quincy appointed official, Assessor Henry J. Bertolon, was recently elected president of the Massachusetts Association of Assessing Officers. Bertolon began his career as an assessor in Quincy 22 years ago. He subsequently went on to work in other communities and in 1991 was again appointed a Quincy assessor by Mayor James Sheets.

Bertolon is a certified Massachusetts assessor, the highest designation awarded by the M.A.A.O. He is also a certified instructor for various appraisal courses. As chairman of the M.A.A.O.

Candidates Club, he has assisted many assessors in achieving their residential Massachusetts assessor or certified Massachusetts assessor designation.

The Massachusetts Tax Collector-Treasurers Association is 81 years old and the Massachusetts Association of Assessing Officers is 103 years old. This is the first time that the presidents of both organizations are from Quincy.

3 North Girls Remain Undefeated

Several North Quincy girls' and boys' track & field members continued their winning ways last week.

The girls' squad lost 59-32 to Silver Lake but three athletes remained undefeated.

Erin Duggan won the mile with a time of 5:52.8. Laura Blaikie took the two-mile in 12:52.2. Also staying undefeated in her event was shot-putter Jen Pineo who tossed the rock 308".

Other top performers in the Silver Lake meet were Mel Gaziano, Aja Jackson, Phyllis Poon, Suk Ng, Erica Doherty and Meg Barry.

Gaziano won the 1000-yard event in 3:10.2. Jackson shined in two different events. She finished second in the 300-yard event with a time of 44.1 and third in the high jump with a leap of 4'2". Poon raced to a second place finish in the 50, finishing in 7 seconds. Ng took third in the 50-yard hurdles, crossing the finish line in 8.7 seconds. Doherty finished third in the two mile event with a time of 14:10.5. Barry finished second to Pineo in the shot put with a heave of 302".

The boys' team competed in two meets last week, losing to Silver Lake, 63-28, and downing Archbishop Williams, 45-40.

Jeremy Gott has not lost in the 600-yard event all season. He won the Silver Lake meet in 1:24.2 and also took first in the Archies match.

Other top finishers include Sean Nee, who finished second and first in the 50, against the Lakers and the Bishops respectively. Tom Burke took a first and second in the shot put. Eric Torvi had a great day against Archbishop Williams, winning in the 1000 and the mile.

The 4x1-lap relay team of Glenn Peterson, Chris Geary, Nee and Gott won in the Silver Lake meet. The mile relay squad of Peterson, Geary, Gott and Warren Fong came in first against A.W.H.S. The mile relay team is undefeated with Gott in the lineup.

The North girls and boys were scheduled to take on Bridgewater-Raynham this past Tuesday (Jan. 11) and will face Falmouth Thursday, Jan. 20.

Bellot Receives NU Letter After Outstanding Season

Desmond Bellot of Quincy received his first varsity letter after an outstanding freshman season of football at Northeastern University.

Bellot is a 1992 graduate of North Quincy High School where he was a three-year starter as a receiver and defensive back.

The speedy wide out was red-shirted last season but this year proved to be one of the most dangerous receivers in the Division I-AA Yankee Conference. Bellot snagged 31 passes for 417 yards and three touchdowns.

Bellot's personal highlight was a stellar 73-yard touchdown reception and run against the University of Rhode Island.

The former Red Raider looms as a key to the Huskies resurgence in one of the division's most competitive leagues. Two of NU's Yankee Conference opponents, Boston University and

DESMOND BELLOT

Delaware, went to the 16-team division I-AA playoffs. Northeastern was nipped, 17-14, by BU in the Canine Classic and lost 28-23 to the Blue Hens.

Bellot is a Communications major and will graduate from the University's Cooperative Education curriculum in 1998.

Youth Hockey

Mite A's Win Hingham Tourney Title

The Quincy Youth Hockey Mite A team won the Santa Claus Tournament in Hingham. Quincy posted four straight wins to take the title.

Ryan Donahue's hat trick and assist led Quincy as they walloped Weymouth, 10-1, in the opening game.

The other Quincy goal scorers were Matt Germain (2), Miah Hasson, Billy McKeon, Kevin Richardson, Brain O'Hanley and Andy Ross.

There were assists apenty as Billy Ryan dished out three and Stephen Kelley, Germain, Hasson, McKeon and Richardson had one each.

A late third period Quincy goal was the difference as they knocked off South Boston in dramatic fashion, 3-2.

Donahue, Kelley and Ross knocked home goals for Quincy. Assists were made by McKeon (2) and Hasson.

Donahue continued to lead the Quincy attack with a goal in a 3-2 win over Woburn.

The other goals came off the sticks of Hasson and Ryan. Assists were dished out by Germain, Kelley and Richardson.

The Tournament championship game was "The Billy McKeon Show," as the Quincy captain scored all five goals en route to a 5-4 victory over Milton.

Ryan Donahue was also impressive as he collected four assists. Sean Moriarity chipped in with one assist.

Goalie Bruce Maggio was terrific all week as he backstopped the Tournament sweep.

Coach Bill Richardson credited the victories to good team work and hard skating by the entire squad.

The final totals for the champions: Donahue, 5 goals-5 assists-10 points; McKeon, 6-3-9; Germain, 2-2-4; Hasson, 2-2-4; Ryan, 1-3-4; Kelley, 1-2-3; Richardson, 1-2-3; Ross, 2-0-2; O'Hanley, 1-0-1; Moriarity 0-1-1.

Squirt A's Take Third Spot In Tourney

The Quincy Squirt A's, sponsored by South Boston Savings Bank, finished in third place in the Santa Claus Tournament in Hingham.

In the opening game the Squirts pummeled Weymouth, 6-1.

Tom Gaeta led the charge with two goals. Charlie Sorrento, Frank Currier, David Germain and Mark Giese scored one goal each. Germain and Giese dished out two assists each. Also with assists were Steve McGonagle, Dan Kennedy, Andy Nestor, Dom Papile and Sorrento.

In the second game Quincy dumped Milton, 4-2.

McGonagle, Kennedy, Nestor and Giese were Quincy goal scorers.

Assists were credited to Germain, Nestor and Shane Kabilian.

Quincy doubled a very tough Medford squad, 6-3.

Currier led the Squirt A's with two goals, including a late game empty-netter. He also dished out two assists. Gaeta, Germain, Kennedy and Ryan Doyle notched one goal each. The other Quincy playmakers were Sorrento, Kennedy, Doyle and Mark Gibbons.

Other top players for the hometown team were Brian Stock, who played a strong offensive game throughout the tournament, and goalie Matt Gregory, who was a brick wall between the pipes.

Quincy's only loss was to a powerful South Boston squad.

January Ice Skating Classes At Shea Rink

Ice skating classes for children age 5 and up and adults will be held this month at the Quincy Shea MDC Rink, Willard St., West Quincy.

Group classes will be held Sundays at 11 a.m. beginning this Sunday. An adult Sunday class held at 7 p.m. will also begin Sunday. Friday classes will begin Jan. 21 at 4 p.m.

Students will be grouped according to their skill levels. There are beginner, intermediate and advanced groups with approximately seven to 10 students in each class. Classes are taught by experienced professional instructors specializing in group lessons.

Skaters can wear either figure or hockey skates and helmets are required for ages 5 and 6. Fee for the seven-week semester is $65 per child and $75 per adult and includes a lesson and practice.

To register or for more information, call the Bay State Ice Skating School at 965-4460.

The Quincy Mite B team, sponsored by the Quincy Firefighters, advanced to the finals of the North Quincy Knights of Columbus Christmas Tournament.

Quincy won their first two games of the tournament. In the opening round Quincy beat the South Shore Seahawks, 5-1.

Quincy played a great all-around game with five different players scoring. Chris Sheehan, Pat Caspar, Andrew McDonough, Ryan Tobin and Matt Alleva each had one goal. Lindsey Langille (2), Timmy McMahon, Robert Donovan and McDonough had the assists. Defensively, Joe Norris and Alleva were outstanding.

In the semi-final round, Quincy knocked off previously undefeated Braintree, 2-1. The spectacular goaltending of Andrew Patten was the story of the day.

The goals were scored by Ryan Tobin and McMahon. Assists went to Norris and Langille. The solid back checking of the Steven Price-Richard Stone-Pat Maloney line

The St. Moritz Devils Squirt Minor hockey team battled the snow as they traveled west and beat the Worcester Crusaders, 4-1.

The Devils dominated from the start as all four goals were scored in the first period.

Nick Sarno of Milton opened the scoring on a breakaway from his defensive position. South Boston's Joe Carr assisted.

Steve Segalla of Quincy quickly scored the next goal on an assist from brother John and Corey Rosenfield of Sharon. The third goal was a Southie connection as Sean Sullivan passed to Pat

Pee Wee House

Fitzpatrick, Shaw Spark Marina, 6-5

Chad Fitzpatrick's overtime tally and Kevin Shaw's hat trick were the difference for Marina Bay Taxi as they edged Skinner's Winners, 6-5, to advance to the Pee Wee House League Jamboree semi-finals.

Fitzpatrick also netted a regulation goal, as did Tom Gaeta, for the victors. Assists were made by Mike D. Sullivan, Shaw and Fitzpatrick.

Graham McShane put forth a titanic effort for Skinner's, scoring three of the team's five goals and adding one assist. Sean Fitzgerald and Bobby Harvey scored the other two goals. T.J. Wilson and Mike Dempsey added assists.

Neponset Valley Survey lit up the scoreboard in a 10-4 victory over Colonial Federal. Neponset will take on the Marina Bay squad in the semi-finals.

Mike Powers led the Neponset onslaught with a hat trick. Steve Ford and Sean LeFebvre were close behind with two goals each. Adding one goal apiece were Brian Nolan, Matt O'Connell and Billy Griffin. Nolan also had two assists. Josh Silverman, Kevin Lynch, Griffin and Powers each had one assist.

Ski Trip Jan. 23 To Henniker, N.H.

Recreation Director Barry J. Welch announces the Quincy Recreation Department will sponsor a one-day ski trip to Pat's Peak Ski Area in Henniker, N.H., Sunday, Jan. 23.

The trip is open to all Quincy residents age 10 through adult. Those under 10 may attend if accompanied by an adult. Family groups are encouraged to attend.

The fee for the round-trip coach bus and all-day lift ticket is $40.50 for adults and $34.50 for those age 6 through 14. Reduced rates for rental equipment and optional lessons can also be arranged. The trip will be supervised by the Recreation Department staff.

Registration will be held in the Recreation Office at 100 Southern Rick Tatem had a great game with two goals for Colonial Federal. Pat Kenney and Jon Healy added one tally each. With assists were Healy (2), Tatem, Billy Connolly and Kiva Tupe.

Mike Morrissey Club edged Keohane's, 5-4, to earn a spot in the semi-finals. Their opponent will be Keohane's who earned the wild-card berth in the semis based on leading the Jamboree in fewest goals against.

Billy Walker was the leader for Morrissey Club with two goals. The other goals were scored by Jamie Parisi, Mike Viles and Chris Griffin. With assists were Mike Webber (2), John Katsarikas, Betsy Stone, Parisi, Walker and Griffin.

Spike Bertucci was the top gun for Keohane's with two goals. Jeff Langille and Didier Alther notched the other tallies. Sean McCusker and Mike Hastings each had two assists and Chris Carthas had one.

The Pee Wee Jamboree title game will feature the winner of the Morrissey Club-Keohane's rematch versus the victor of the Marina Bay-Neponset battle. The final will be played Friday evening at 6:40.

Squirt House

Granite Sinks Sun In Overtime, 5-4

Granite Auto earned a trip to the Squirt House League Jamboree semi-finals by virtue of a dramatic 5-4 overtime shoot-out victory against The Quincy Sun. The other semi-finalists are Burgin Platner, Johnson Motor Parts and Doran & Horrigan.

Joe Thorley was the hero for Granite Auto, scoring two goals, including the decisive overtime tally. Jon Paquette also scored two and Kevin Patten netted one. Assists were chalked up by Paul Flynn, Kris Farr and Mike Doyle.

The Sun's goals were scored by Dom Papile, Brett Keys, Shawn Richardson and David Germain as they did everything possible to keep the game close. Assists were made by Matt Conso and Colin Maxey.

Johnson Motor Parts and Doran & Horrigan also battled down to the wire. Frank Curreri's overtime goal was the difference as Johnson topped Doran, 2-1.

Matt Kenney scored in regulation for the winning squad with the assist coming from Joe Cronin.

lone goal for Doran. Assists were given to Tom Maloney and Mark Fitzpatrick on the Piazza tally.

Despite the heartbreaking loss, Doran will advance to the semi-finals as a wild-card team, having given up the fewest goals against during the Jamboree.

The other semi-finalist, Burgin Platner, knocked off Green Environmental, 4-2.

Burgin scores were netted by Matt Glynn, Sean Fennelly, Scott Markarian and Mark Gibbons.

Matt Reggiannini dished out two assists for the winning squad. Assists were also made by Dan Kennedy, Tom Gaeta, Glynn and Fennelly.

Pat O'Donnell and Steve McGonagle registered the Green goals. The assists were made by Pat Lahar, Shane Kabilian and McGonagle.

In the semis Burgin will do battle with Doran and Johnson will take on Granite Auto. The winners will clash Saturday morning at 11:40 in the Squirt House League title game.

Pee Wee A's Win 2, Tie

The Quincy Pee Wee A's, sponsored by the Quincy Elks, beat Pembroke twice and tied Waltham in Greater Boston Hockey League action.

In their first meeting with Pembroke, Michael Sullivan lit the lamp four times as Quincy cruised to a 6-1 victory. Jesse Winter and Billy Connolly scored the other two Quincy goals. John Katsarikas and Chad Fitzpatrick dished out two assists each and Paul Markarian and Connolly had one each.

The defensive pairing of Steven Ford and Billy Griffin played outstanding along the blue line. They were also an integral part of the offense helping to lead the Quincy break out.

In their second meeting Quincy shutout Pembroke, 3-0.

Connolly, Markarian and Michael Powers were the goal scorers. Assists went to Connolly, Markarian, Winter and Betsy Stone. Goalies Chris Carthas and Ryan Krueger came up with some outstanding saves. Stone and defensive partner Pat Kenney played tough to help preserve the shutout.

The Quincy win was a rough and tumble affair with over 28 minutes of penalties.

Quincy and Waltham battled to a 2-2 tie.

The Quincy line of Bob Harvey-Sullivan-Fitzpatrick provided just enough scoring against a team that had beat Quincy earlier in the season.

Solid back checking and body checking from the Jesse Winter-Shawn Manning-Sean Garvey line helped keep Waltham out of the offensive zone. Timely saves by Krueger and Carthas helped preserve the win.

Left Wing Ryan Barret has been lost to the team since mid-November with a knee injury but hopes to return in time for the state playdown games next month.

A THOUGHT FOR THE WEEK

SCOTT DEWARE

It has been said that worry, like a rocking chair, will give you something to do, but it won't get you anywhere ...

Psychologists tell us that 80% of the things worried about never happen. It is said a good way to reduce worry is to write down the worst that could happen and see if the thing or things you worry about actually happen. It is claimed that facing the fact in this way can help you reduce worry. Maybe so. But, sadly, some people simply cannot face facts.

Yet, there is a way for everyone to overcome most worrying. Worrying is negative thinking ... Replace such thoughts with positive thinking. The best positive thinking the world has ever heard of is the 23rd Psalm ... "I will fear no evil, for Thou art with me." ... Believe it. Keep on believing it ... Millions of people have proved it true ...

For those times when the darkness lingers

With the loss of a loved one through death, it is helpful to be able to share the feelings and emotions which we all experience.

For most of us, there are family members, clergy, and friends who are ready to listen in a caring way.

Yet, there are those who find it helpful to share their grief with someone outside their immediate circle of support.

Because of our continuing commitment to the families we serve, Keohane Funeral Service is pleased to announce that Dr.

Sherry Johnson has joined our staff as a Grief Counselor. Her educational background, professional experience and understanding manner can be particularly helpful.

We are the first funeral home in New England to offer the service of a Grief Counselor.

Home Quarters Will Resubmit Quincy Plan

Developers of a Home Quarters home improvement store on the Braintree-West Quincy line have withdrawn their plan from the city, but plan to resubmit it in the future.

The City Council allowed the withdrawal at a special meeting Monday night. Home Quarters, however, has continued to hold public hearings on its proposal in Braintree, and Atty. Robert Fleming said the company hopes the plan is accepted if again presented to Quincy officials and residents.

"The community had real concerns, but we feel we've met them," said Fleming. "The plan has been withdrawn because of the reluctance and opposition we've seen in the City of Quincy, but we will regroup and meet again with residents and officials of the city." Fleming said he could not specify a timetable for when the company plans to resubmit.

Ward 4 Councillor Thomas Fabrizio, however, said he was skeptical the company could do anything to make the plan acceptable to the residents of his ward.

"The neighborhood is very much against this," said Fabrizio. "I don't know what they could do to put aside people's fears."

Fabrizio added that the council allowed the company to withdraw the plan as a courtesy, as it has done with other companies in the past. Most recently, the council allowed the withdrawal late last year of plans for a new Shaw's Supermarket on the North Quincy-Wollaston line.

The Home Quarters proposal calls for a 104,000 square foot store that would be built on 10 acres off Granite Street near Route 128 in Braintree, but the store's access road and a retention pond would be built on an adjoining five-acre parcel in Quincy.

Developers have said the store would create about 150 retail jobs, and that part of the project's estimated $10 million cost would pay for traffic improvements along the Granite-Willard Street corridor.

Fabrizio has also said he opposes the project because he feels it would increase traffic while offering few benefits to Quincy residents. Local businesses and residents have also voiced opposition to the plan, which requires approval from both Quincy and Braintree.

Fabrizio has also said he is especially concerned because of extra traffic from a proposed expansion of South Shore Plaza in Braintree and other nearby developments.

For Outstanding Community Service

Mary Vallier Sun 'Citizen Of The Year'

Mary Vallier, a 79-year-old great-grandmother who has devoted the past 15 years to aiding battered women and abused children, and helping others, is The Quincy Sun's 1993 Citizen of the Year.

Mrs. Vallier, wife of the late Quincy Police Capt. Frank Vallier and who has 23 grandchildren and 17 great-grandchildren, was selected for the honor from among 42 nominees submitted by Quincy Sun readers.

A panel of judges made the final selection from the 42 nominees.

Mrs. Vallier is the ninth recipient of the award which was established in 1985 to annually honor an individual for outstanding community service or for a special achievement.

"I am so excited," Mrs. Vallier said when informed of her selection. "This is a great honor."

Mrs. Vallier will be honored at a reception in March at the Quincy Sons of Italy Social Center.

Mrs. Vallier was one of the founders of DOVE (Domestic

Cheney Appoints Snow Fighting Task Force

By MICHAEL WHALEN

City Council President Michael Cheney is forming a special task force in the hopes of increasing both the efficiency of the city's snow plowing operations and public safety during the winter months.

Cheney, who said he would announce his plans at Tuesday night's City Council meeting, said as The Sun went to press Tuesday that the task force will include Ward 1 Councillor Peter Kolson, chairman of the council's Ordinance Committee; Ward 6 Councillor Bruce Ayers, chairman of the council's Public Safety Committee and representatives from the mayor's office and the city's police, fire, planning and public works departments.

While Cheney said that increasing the efficiency of snow plowing operations could save the city as much as one-third on what it now spends for snow removal, he noted that the number one priority of the task force will be to try to increase public safety.

"We want to make the streets safer," he said. "My worst fear is that there could be a fire or a heart attack in someone's home and a piece of equipment (such as an ambulance or fire truck) would not be able to get through the snow."

He added that ambulances and other emergency vehicles have had problems in Quincy "getting up streets and negotiating a turn" because of snow in the past.

Cheney said to improve snow removal procedures in the city, a number of ordinance changes that will require the assistance of the planning department and input from the other departments involved are necessary. A number of other initiatives will also be part of the plan, he said.

Responsibilities of the task force will include making recommendations on how to best accomplish the following:

• A city ordinance change that will allow residents' existing driveways to be expanded to make room for more cars to be pulled off city streets during snow removal operations. Cheney said he wants the planning department to provide "low-interest loans" to have such work done.

He added that if a plow could clear an entire street from curb to curb with one sweep, it would not have to repeatedly plow the street and "block off driveways that have been shoveled out by residents. He said too many cars on the street is a key reason for this problem.

• Assistance of residents with no driveways to have curbing cut at their property to help clear the street. Cheney said he would ask that for a limited time, any fees for curb-cutting be waived so that residents would have an incentive to have the changes made.

• Creation of a "statistical log of (residents') complaints" which Cheney said would

Quincy 2000 Announces 60,000 Square-Foot Retail Center Planned At Grossman's Site

By ROBERT BOSWORTH

A 60,000-square foot retail shopping center is planned for the site of the now vacant Grossman's store on Granite St., Quincy Center, the Quincy 2000 public-private economic development partnership announced Wednesday.

The plans call for converting the existing shopping plaza including the large vacant structure once occupied by the Grossman's building supply company into 60,000 square feet of "first class retail space."

In making the announcement, Quincy 2000 Executive Director Chuck D'Aprix said, "This is the next step in the revitalization of our retail base in Quincy Center. The quality of the this design will serve to make this a superb retail property."

The developers of the property, The Grossman Companies, Inc., drew praise from D'Aprix. "As they have moved through the design process, the Grossman Companies have taken great care to design a retail center that is aesthetically pleasing and one that will complement our long term plans for Quincy Center."

D'Aprix also noted this is very much a Quincy Center project. "There are some who believe that this project is not a Quincy Center project when indeed it is.

"Our studies clearly indicate that this site shares a market with Quincy Center. Moreover, our long term plans call for including the Grossman's site in the Quincy Center retail picture," he said.

The design of the new retail building calls for a one-story retail building complemented by two turrets which can be viewed from Granite St. and from Burgin Parkway. The turrets will give the new center a distinctive appearance and provide increased visibility as well as a unique design.

The new shopping center will have a new facade, a new parking lot and upgraded electrical and HVAC systems.

The coordinator of the development project for Grossman's is Kathy Lavin. "This location is the gateway to downtown Quincy and the roads carry

Less Fuel Assistance Means Deep Freeze For 2,500 Residents

By MICHAEL WHALEN

The winter season is putting an especially deep freeze on the lives of about 2,500 Quincy residents.

Requests for fuel assistance in the city, and in other communities south of Boston, are at an all-time high while state and federal heat subsidies are at an all-time low.

Jane Reikard, executive director of Quincy's rent grievance board, said some families have been forced to go beyond the usual methods of wearing extra layers of clothing and using electric blankets in order to deal with lack of heat. Some, she said, have to send their children to relatives' homes and take other drastic measures until they can find a way to deal with the cold.

Still, Reikard said there are various avenues people can take when they need help. A number of local church and service organizations will offer what assistance they can in times of extreme need, and the Quincy Emergency Management Agency has a number of electric heaters it will deliver free of charge, she said.

Quincy Emergency Management Deputy Director Tony Scialiano said electric heaters can be obtained by calling 376-1210.

Reikard added that a number of utility companies offer discounts or work out payment plans that spread winter

METERS FOR SALE—Mayor James Sheets, Ward 1 City Councillor Peter Kolson and Ward 2 Councillor Ted DeCristofaro were among the city officials who attended last Saturday's opening of the Quincy City Store at the Fore River Shipyard which raised almost $1,300 for the city. Sheets bought a single parking meter (not the one shown in photo) for $25 as a "going away" present for his daughter, Kim Sheets Woodward, who is moving to Atlanta, Ga.

City Store Opening 'Very Successful'

By MICHAEL WHALEN
Between $1,250 and $1,300 was raised for the city at last Saturday's opening of the Quincy City Store at the Fore River shipyard, according to Mayor James Sheets.

The mayor called the day "very successful" and said around 150 to 200 people attended the opening of the store, which is open Saturdays from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. at the shipyard's main administration building on East Howard Street in Quincy Point.

Sheets has said proceeds from the store, which will be put into a "special activities-celebration" account for the city, could raise as much as $75,000 annually for the city.

The store's variety of goods ranges from pencils and pens to much larger items such as old parking meters, traffic lights, adding machines and furniture. Prices vary depending on the item, Sheets said.

Sheets himself spent $25 on a parking meter for his daughter, Kim Sheets Woodward, who is moving to Atlanta, Ga. in a week and a half.

"She said she wanted to take a piece of Quincy with her, so I bought it," said Sheets.

The idea for the store originally came from Ward 1 City Councillor Peter Kolson, who was inspired by an acquaintance from San Diego, Calif. A similar operation in that city reportedly brings in about $500,000 annually.

Sheets has noted that Massachusetts Water Resources Authority, which owns the shipyard, may open its own surplus store at the site if the city's venture is a success.

SIGN OF THE TIMES—Mayor James Sheets holds street sign available for sale at the Quincy City Store at the Fore River Shipyard.

No Secret Ballot For School Vote Tonight

By MICHAEL WHALEN
The long-awaited vote on who will get the city's open School Committee seat will be taken tonight, and it will not be done by secret ballot.

The seat will be awarded to either Sean Barry or Christine Cedrone by a Constitutional Convention consisting of eight city councilors and five School Committee members at a special meeting at 7 p.m. in the City Council Chamber at Quincy City Hall.

City Council President Michael Cheney, in the hopes of holding a secret ballot, had asked for a legal ruling on whether that method could be used for the vote. City Solicitor Stephen McGrath, however, has said that each person voting must do so openly.

Four of the 13 people voting—Ward 3 Councillor Lawrence Chretien, Ward 5 Councillor Charles Phelan, Ward 6 Councillor Bruce Ayers and School Committee member Stephen Durkin—have said they will vote for Barry. Seven votes are needed to win the seat.

Sources, however, have told The Quincy Sun that several of the remaining votes will go to Cedrone and the final tally could result in a close victory for either candidate.

Cedrone, an office manager, topped Barry, director of public affairs at Quincy College, by eight votes (5,716 to 5,708) for the third and final School Committee seat available in the Nov. 2 election. A subsequent four-day recount, however, resulted in a tie of 5,734 votes apiece.

Under Quincy's city charter, a tie must be decided by a Constitutional Convention of all City Council and School Committee members.

Two city officials will abstain from the vote because of conflict-of-interest reasons. Mayor James Sheets, who serves as chairman of the School Committee, will not vote because he is on leave from a teaching position at Quincy College, which is under the School Committee's jurisdiction. Ward 2 Councillor Ted DeCristofaro said he will also abstain because his son, Richard DeCristofaro, is assistant superintendent of schools.

Cafe Sees New Hours, Concept As Means Of Survival

By LISA CONNELL

The executive chef and operations manager of Massimo's Caffe appeared before the Licensing Board Tuesday to ask for a change of business hours and to outline plans for a redesign of the restaurant to improve and, hopefully, save their business.

Executive chef and manager Graham Riedy wants to be open seven days a week, Sunday through Saturday, from 11 a.m. to 11 p.m., instead of keeping the 7 a.m. to 10 p.m. weekday hours the restaurant currently maintains at their 12 Blanchard Road site. Massimo's is open on the weekend, Saturday's only, from 7 a.m. to 6 p.m.

Due to slow customer traffic attributed to the weather and the present state of the economy, Massimo's has been closing at 6 p.m. for the past month.

Riedy also spoke to Licensing Board members on the restaurant's new menu and service concept: pizza cooked in brick ovens over fires fueled by wood with a full service waitress staff to serve seated patrons. Take-out service would also be available.

Massimo's menu currently features a light luncheon of soups, salads, sandwiches, desserts, non-alcoholic beverages, breakfast pastries and juices.

"We are changing the concept of the restaurant due to sales that are not [currently] there [in order] to survive," said Riedy.

"Business traffic will dictate how late we stay open on any particular night," said Riedy.

"I have 15 employees, including myself, that I am trying to keep employment for."

"We've had no complaints from our neighbors [concerning how we run our business]; I am appealing to the Board to help me make a last ditch effort to stay open," said Riedy.

Riedy expects construction and installation of the brick ovens and other physical changes associated with the new menu to be completed in two weeks.

more than 30,000 vehicles each day," she said.

D'Aprix said the leasing process is well underway for the new center.

"There is significant interest in this retail location. There has been interest from nationally-known retail chains," D'Aprix said while praising the Grossman Companies.

"They have listened to the city and Quincy 2000 and are working to lease this project to quality tenants. They deserve a great deal of gratitude." He said there will be announcement on the tenant mix sometime soon, adding there will likely be between two and six tenants.

"There is already great enthusiasm from both regional and national prospective tenants due to the site's visibility and demographics," said Grossman Leasing consultant Gerri Rachins.

The new project will serve to anchor the west side of Quincy Center and will make it easier to attract additional retailers to Quincy Center, D'Aprix said. Quincy 2000 is currently working to attract a clothing store, a toy store and a sporting goods store. D'Aprix noted several chains are doing well in Quincy Center. "Quincy has the best retail mix of any mid-sized city in the commonwealth. We have a T.J. Maxx, a Dress Barn, a Pier One, a multi-screen movie theater, a Rite Aid and a Woolworths--not to mention numerous successful independent retailers.

"Sometimes we are so busy looking bath on the old Quincy Center that we forget that we have a solid base to work from."

The retail development efforts in Quincy are being attacked on several fronts, D'Aprix said. For instance, the Quincy 2000 retail incubation program will soon be underway. The program will train would-be entrepreneurs in the basics of retailing with financing available for retail start-up.

In addition, Quincy 2000 may soon be hiring a retail leasing professional to sell Quincy to independent retailers from around New England.

D'Aprix, however, said the change will not happen overnight. "Any solid and effective downtown revitalization program takes time and must be done in increments. We will have successes, but they all can't happen right away.

City Searches For P&G Buyer

City officials are searching for a new owner for Procter & Gamble's Quincy Point soap plant.

Company officials announced last week that the 330-employee factory, which opened in 1940, will be phased out over a period of four to six months as P&G consolidates its manufacturing operations around the world.

The Quincy plant

makes Ivory, Safeguard and Camay and other brand soaps and packages, as well as chemicals used in thousands of products. It generates an estimated $33 million annually in wages, business activity and taxes.

City officials have said that four manufacturing companies have already been identified as prospective buyers of the site. Although not all have been identified, officials said one of the four is Pneumatic Scale Co. of North Quincy, which has contracted to sell its manufacturing building on Newport Avenue and may need another location.

Mayor James Sheets and Quincy 2000 Executive Director Charles D'Aprix have also urged P&G officials to pay for retraining and job placement programs for laid-off workers.

Low Vision Devices Available At Library

The Thomas Crane Public Library has implemented new low vision devices in its branches and its main facility at 40 Washington St., Quincy Center.

The services, which were dedicated by Mayor James Sheets in a ceremony Tuesday at the library, are being offered by the library in conjunction with Better Sight: The Low Vision Specialists.

The devices include magnifier screens for reference computers, hand-held lighted magnifiers (with tabletop clamps for hand-free use), and an electronic system consisting of a closed-circuit screen with a hand-held camera that magnifies the print and pictures in a book, magazine or newspaper up to 40 times.

The electronic system allows members of the public to read any item in the library, or to bring their own materials to read. It was acquired with the assistance of the Friends of the Thomas Crane Public Library.

Library Director Ann McLaughlin and Jerrol Quillin of Better Sight said all of the devices, in addition to the large-print books already at Thomas Crane, should enable people with visual limitations and impairment to read most of the newspapers and books in the library.

GED Tutorial Program At South Shore YMCA

A new tutorial program for adults who wish to prepare for the GED test is being conducted at the South Shore YMCA, 79 Codding St., Quincy.

Group tutoring sessions are held on Tuesdays and Thursdays from 6:30 to 9 p.m. Students should have a minimum eighth grade level education and a basic fluency in English.

Enrollment is limited and will be filled on a first come, first serve basis. For more information, call Paul Linehan at 848-8480.

COMBATING THE COMMON COLD

You know the signs: sneezing, coughing, runny nose, achiness, and fever. There's no way around it, you've got a cold. Despite all the ads you see on TV, the best way to control the nasty symptoms until your cold has run its course is simply to rest and drink plenty of liquids. A hot mug of tea with lemon can break up phlegm and relieve congestion. A spoonful of chicken soup may counteract the dizziness that sometimes occurs. If desired, take a pain-reliever or decongestant, but avoid those fancy combination medicines that may contain more drugs than you want. If cold symptoms keep hanging on, call your doctor. Other cues to prompt a call include a sore throat accompanied by fever, chest pains, earache, or a dry, hacking cough.

P.S. Three out of four people in the U.S. catch at least one cold a year, and one out of four comes down with four or more.

Drink plenty of fluids to get rid of a cold, but stay away from hot toddies containing alcohol, which serve only to dehydrate you and slow recovery. If you'd like more information on this or any other column topic, feel free to call any of the doctors—myself, Dr. Lisa Antonelli, or Dr. Ronald Dunlap, at COMPREHENSIVE CARDIAC CARE at 472-2550. If necessary, we will refer you to another medical professional. Office hours are by appointment. We have parking at our office, located in Crown Colony, 700 Congress St., Suite 2C, in Quincy. I am affiliated with Quincy Hospital and South Shore Hospitals.

And The Winner Is . . .

Sean Barry apparently needs just one more vote to win what perhaps has been the most hotly contested School Committee seat in the city's history.

Barry now has five publicly pledged votes going into tonight's (Thursday) joint convention of the City Council and School Committee which will decide whether Barry or Christine Cedrone gets to occupy the seat.

What appeared to be an eight-vote victory for Cedrone in the Nov. 2 city election turned into an historic 5,734 vote tie after a four-day recount.

City Council President Michael Cheney became the fifth Barry committed vote this week, joining Councillors Bruce Ayers, Lawrence Chretien, Charles Phelan and School Committeeman Steve Durkin in Barry's corner.

School Committee Vice Chairman Daniel Raymondi so far has not indicated where he stands but observers are willing to bet he will cast his vote for Barry.

This would give Barry six votes—one vote shy of the seven needed to win the seat. Seven are needed with 13 councillors and school committee members voting.

Mayor James Sheets, who is also chairman of the School Committee and Ward 2 Councillor Ted DeCristofaro will not vote.

Sheets is abstaining because he is on leave as a Quincy College teacher and DeCristofaro because his son, Richard, is a Quincy assistant school superintendent.

Cedrone, however is not out of the ball game.

Penny Drive Launched To Restore Hancock Bust

A penny drive has been launched to raise the necessary funding to refurbish the nearly 100-year-old bronze bust of John Hancock that sits atop a granite base at the Adams Academy, 8 Adams St., Quincy Center.

According to Henry Bradley, director of Veterans' Services and organizer of the penny drive, the five-foot bust of Hancock, who served as president of the Continental Congress and the first signer of the Declaration of Independence, was cast in the late 1890s by the Gorham Co. of Providence, R.I. Hancock was born where the Quincy Historical Society now stands, on Jan. 23, 1737 (old calendar Jan. 12).

The bust of Hancock was designed originally to stand over the entrance of a John Hancock Life Insurance Co. building on Federal St., Boston, early this century. When the company moved, the bust was placed in storage to be replaced by a full-length portrait in 1949, when the first Boston skyscraper was built.

In 1951 John Hancock Life Insurance Company offered the bust to the City of Quincy (Hancock's City of birth). The insurance company funded the base of Quincy granite on which the bust presently stands.

Over the past four decades, the statue has turned green from both weather conditions and various elements that effect the bronze casting.

Due to the weathering and discoloration of the bust, a "penny drive" will take place in Quincy schools from kindergarten through grade 12 to raise the necessary $2,400 to have the Hancock bust, as well as the information plaque on the rear of the granite base and the Hancock signature, cleaned down to the original finish.

After the cleaning, preservatives will be applied to assist with the weather and elements in the years to come.

The public may also contribute to the drive by donating pennies in a collection bottle at Quincy Veterans' Services, located in the John F. Kennedy Health Building, 1170 Hancock St., Quincy Center, and at the City Clerk's Office, City Hall.

Mayor James Sheets and School Supt. Eugene Creedon support this drive to refurbish the Hancock statue.

For further information, contact Henry Bradley, director of Veterans' Services, the organizer of the drive, at 376-1192.

Residents Asked To Clear

The managers of the Quincy, Wollaston and North Quincy post offices request residents clear snow and ice from walkways and steps leading to mailboxes to help letter carriers deliver mail safely and efficiently.

Last year, thousands of letter carriers across the nation suffered sprains, fractures or broken bones because they slipped on icy and snow-covered driveways, sidewalks, steps or porches. Postal officials try to deliver the mail regardless of how bad the weather becomes. Members of the Quincy Postal Customer Advisory Council realize it's not always easy to remove ice and snow, keeping in mind that postal employees are not required to risk personal injury or slippery surfaces to deliver the mail.

Snow From Mailbox Paths

Postal customers are asked to cooperate by reducing walking hazards.

Paul Harold Finds:

Familiar Names And Faces In Ireland

By PAUL HAROLD

The most striking aspects of a visit to Ireland are the names and faces—they're the same as back home—only re-assigned.

It took me two days to repress the urge to say hello to people along Patrick St. in Cork because they looked like someone I knew from Quincy or Boston. I would have bet money that the driver of the bus to Galway was former Chief Justice of the Supreme Judicial Court, Edward Hennessey.

Actually on the third day I did run into someone I knew—Brian Donovan from WGBH radio—and I didn't say hello. He corrected the situation with a slap on the back and a pint of stout.

Some names and occupations, however, are similarly matched. The O'Briens are into baking and the Roches into supermarkets. But the Phelans are into pharmacies not politics and the Walshes into the travel business, not fire fighting.

The Murphys are into everything—probably because there are so many of them. (They even have their own brewery, though it was recently merged with Heineken). It is the most popular surname in Cork County and probably the second or third most popular in the country.

At the University College where I taught in the law faculty—out of eight law professors, two were named Murphy.

In the Cork phone book alone there are 12 pages devoted to Murphys, with one whole page of John Murphys. To help distinguish among the Johns, they've listed their occupations—pig buyer, candy wholesaler, turf accountant (bookie), etc.

In Donegal County, at the northern tip of the country, they've solved the problem of too many McLaughlins, Dohertys and McDonoughs by assigning those families nicknames. If you don't know they person's nickname, you'll never find them. One McLaughlin I met had the nickname "the new man" despite the fact his family had been there for 130 years.

Irish family names can be divided into three basic groups, based upon their derivation: Celtic, Norman (French) and Norse (Viking).

Identifiable Celtic names would include O'Donnell, Fahy (Foy), Sullivan, Kenney, Hannon and O'Leannon (Linnane). Popular Norman names include Burke, Fitzgerald, Nugent, Barry and Marshall. Examples of Norse names are Joyce, Brett, Condon and Harold.

Prominent English names in Ireland are from English settlers and Irish families who adopted English surnames. Included in this group are Hughes, Morris, Kinn, Evans and White.

Scottish "plantation" families in Ireland are McDonald, Ross, Murray and Henderson. Jewish names have been identified in Ireland since the 1800's. The most famous Jewish family, the Briscoes, gave a father and son as Lord Mayor of Dublin.

The prefix on Irish names gives some indication of their antiquity. Mc and Mac denote son while O means descendant of, and thus more classic.

The two most famous Irish American names in Ireland are Kennedy and Donnelly. The Kennedy name and family still work their magic in the old country; the latest being Jean Kennedy Smith, the U.S. ambassador. The name of Brian Donnelly is so well known for the Donnelly Visa program for Irish citizens, that Donnelly has actually become a word in the English-Irish vernacular.

As regards to former President Ronald Reagan, his popularity was somewhat fleeting, perhaps because of the fact that some wags claim his ancestors were really from Scotland.

[Former State Senator Paul Harold is the visiting professor of American Studies at University College, Cork County, Ireland.]

A Thank You From Red Cross

Editor, The Quincy Sun:
An open letter to the good people of the South Area of Massachusetts:

Christmas 1993 has come and gone and as we now enter 1994, the American Red Cross would like to express its thanks to the South Area community.

"Wow!" is our first thought. What a wonderful response we received from you during our holiday stocking program! Thank you all for reaching down deep into your pockets and with gracious hearts, giving of your time and money to those children in need throughout your community.

Because of your participation, we were able to make the holidays a little brighter for many, many, less fortunate youngsters. Some of these children are from families who seek our help with food vouchers throughout the year, others are in Head Start, homeless shelters and crisis centers as well as abused women with families trying to make a new start.

This being an especially difficult year for many, we are very hopeful that not a single child was left out. Only through you, the good and generous American people, is the American Red Cross able to serve the community.

We wish you all a happy, healthy and peaceful 1994.

Muir Hits 'Meddling' In Schools

School Supt. James N. Muir, in his annual report for 1943, lashed out at what he called "political meddling" in the Quincy Public Schools.

"The schools are strengthened or weakened in proportion to your permitting meddlers to interfere with the job the citizens of Quincy have entrusted to you," he told the School Committee.

"They are strengthened or weakened in proportion to your views or lack of views on school problems, in proportion to your adherence or lack of adherence to every political wind that blows.

"Parents are not fully aware of the seriousness of the constant meddling in the work of the schools, which interferes with their children's programs. It is an endless chain."

The report was accepted by the School Committee without comment, except for this question posed by member Carter Lee:

"Was that a report or a lecture?"

Over 200 Guests Attend Celebration '93

Awards Highlight YMCA Volunteer Recognition

More than 200 guests attended the South Shore YMCA's annual volunteer recognition event, Celebration '93, held recently at Thayer Academy in Braintree.

Master of Ceremonies was John Sheskey of Hingham, vice president of the South Shore YMCA Board of Directors.

Celebration '93 recognized people for their support of the South Shore YMCA throughout the past year.

"We all have different roles at the Y--board members, volunteers, members and participants, staff, donors, friends, and every one is important," Sheskey said.

Alex Clark, president of the Board of Directors, and Ralph Yohe, YMCA general executive director, presented the following awards to YMCA volunteers.

Timothy Johnson and Lisa Bossey were presented the Youth of the Year awards.

Johnson, a YMCA volunteer the past three years, has been active with the Community Services Division. He has been a Leader-in Training at Camp Sky-Y in Weymouth, has assisted in summer travel camps, and helps with YMCA youth swim lessons offered at the Weymouth MDC pool.

According to the staff he works with, Johnson is dependable, sincere and caring, and truly enjoys working with children. A sophomore at Braintree High School, he is a high honors student and is also active in his church.

Bossey, of Hull, a volunteer in the YMCA's day care center, has been active at the Y for more than a year, volunteering more than 250 hours as an aid in the center. At 16, she is considered an excellent role model for her peers, and approaches every task with enthusiasm.

This summer, Bossey told her family she could not go to Florida on vacation because she had already committed herself to work in the day care center. She helps out in countless ways, and is a valuable asset to the program.

Tom Vinson of Quincy was presented the Benjamin F. Hodgkinson Award given annually to an outstanding adult program volunteer who commits a significant amount of time and effort in direct service to members and participants.

Vinson was selected for his work and dedication to the YMCA Mountain Movers program. He has been a volunteer for the last 13 months, and has devoted over 20 Saturdays to work with the teens in this program.

"Tom is a model volunteer, working in program planning, design and implementation," said Jon Simons, the program's director. "he shows great skill and dedication in working with teens, and he believes strongly in the YMCA and the organization's positive effects on youth."

Besides volunteering himself, he has recruited four additional volunteers to help with the program.

The South Shore YMCA also inducted two individuals into its Hall of Fame: Mr. Preston Grassick (posthumously) and Mrs. Mary Wentworth.

The Hall of Fame recognizes those people who have made a contribution above and beyond the call of duty, and who have significantly impacted the shape of the South Shore YMCA.

The late Mr. Grassick first became involved in the YMCA in 1946, and remained active in the YMCA until his death in 1992.

When he first came to the Y in the late 1940's, he saw the need for a new facility in Quincy, and joined the effort to build the current site on Coddington St.

Mr. Grassick was a loyal and dedicated member of the board of directors, where he served until 1980. In 1980, he became a member of the Advisory Board. While on the board, he served as clerk and assistant treasurer, from 1957 to 1962, and was chairman of the Camp Committee for 11 years. He was also a member of the House & Grounds Committee, and devoted some time to the Girls Committee.

Mr. Grassick is remembered for his dedication to the YMCA's resident camping programs. During the 1960's and 1970's, he was a strong influence in the rapid development of the camps. He was always generous, in his quiet way, and made sure that children who couldn't afford it could still attend camp.

Both he and his wife Helen always responded to the needs of others, especially children, in a way that called no attention to themselves. Helen Grassick accepted the award on behalf of her husband.

Mary Wentworth has had a long and remarkably history with the South Shore YMCA, beginning in 1964 when her daughter became a member of the swim team. Her involvement escalated from a participant in synchronized swimming, to a program volunteer in the Y's handicapped swim program. She was asked to lead that program, and served as volunteer coach for the swim team.

Wentworth joined the Y's Board of Directors in 1970's, and served as president from 1984-85. She continues to be a leader on the board.

Admired and respected for her sincerity, thoughtfulness and sound judgement, Mary has been involved in virtually every major undertaking at the Y over the last 20 years. She was the first chairman of the annual Support Campaign, and has spearheaded the Board Division and also been a team captain.

She has served on the Human Resources, Quincy

Division, Camping Division, and Executive Committees of the Board. She also represented the South Shore YMCA on a national YMCA committee for the eastern region of the United States.

During her term as president, both the Nautilus Center and Day Care Center were added to the Quincy Division facility. Mary competes in national YMCA swim meets, and has won many gold medals.

Siciliano To Attend MCSC Forum Feb. 9

Quincy Emergency Management Deputy Director Tony Siciliano will attend the Boston Public Information Session/Community Forum Wednesday, Feb. 9 from 8 a.m. to 3 p.m. at Northeastern University in Boston.

The event is being presented by the Massachusetts Community Service Commission (MCSC).

Siciliano said he will attend to obtain information and discuss how $360 million in federal money will be distributed throughout the country through the National Community Service Trust Act.

Siciliano encourages representatives from Quincy non-profit, school and civic organizations to attend. For more information, call the MCSC at 542-2544.

Talk With Your Kids About Drugs

Methods of Communication

Calmly and openly - Discuss frankly and without anger the facts about drugs. Don't exaggerate. The facts are chilling enough.

In terms of subject matter, not personalities - Challenging the choice of current friends might lead to defensive or defiant behavior.

Face to face, exchanging information and understanding - Be an active listener and let your child tell you what he or she knows about drugs, what his or her own experiences have been, what fears or concerns already exist.

Through "teachable moments" - In contrast to a formal sit-down lecture, use a variety of situations - television news, TV dramas, books, newspapers, local situations. Capitalize on one point. You'll have opportunities to make other points. Ask the child how he or she would have reacted, what else might have been done or might have happened.

As an ongoing dialogue - Communication won't be as effective if the subject is brought up in one massive lecture. Anti-drug use messages should be an ongoing theme when you talk with your child. The content and intent should be repeated as an accepted family value. But be sure you encourage and allow for a two-way communication.

Remember that you set the example - Your child will compare your actions with your words and be guided accordingly. If you choose to drink, never mix drinking and driving or any other activity requiring skill and coordination. If you smoke, it would help you and your child if you could quit. And don't use illegal drugs, period.

How Can I Tell If Someone Is Using Drugs?
Identifying possible signs of drug use may help prevent further use. Some possible signs are:

- Change of moods (more irritable, secretive, withdrawn, overly sensitive, inappropriately angry)
- Less responsible (late coming home, late for school or class, involved in more accidents than usual, dishonest)
- Changing friends or changing lifestyles (new interests, unexplained increases in cash)
- Difficult to communicate with (refuses to discuss changes in behavior, becomes defensive if asked about drug use)
- Shows physical deterioration (memory losses, difficulty in concentration, loss of weight, unhealthy appearance)

Quincy Hospital Receives Chamber Of Commerce Award

Quincy Hospital was recently presented a South Shore Chamber of Commerce Success Profile Award in recognition of its positive economic development on the South Shore.

The award was presented by Lt. Gov. Paul Cellucci as part of the South Shore Business Expo.

Quincy Hospital was chosen to receive the award, sponsored by the South Shore Chamber's Real Estate Committee, from among a select group of successful companies from the South Shore. The hospital was commended for its tremendous growth and expansion and positive economic impact it has had on the region, especially at a time when many companies are downsizing.

Awards were given to companies in three employee size groupings: 0-49, 50-250; and over 250. The hospital receive the award for the latter category.

MONEY
UNLESS
TO BUY A HOUSE.

The problem isn't paying the mortgage. It's coming up with the down payment and closing costs in the first place.

Our Affordable Mortgage Program can get you over the hurdle. If you qualify, we'll give you a no-points mortgage at a hard-to-beat rate. And all other fees are kept to a minimum.

There are just three basic requirements for applying. First, your income can't exceed $50,000 (or $58,880 for two or more earners). Second, the house you buy must be within our service area, which includes everything within 22 miles of downtown Boston. And third, it must be your first home.

Maybe you can afford to buy a home after all. Call us today at (617) 722-7475 to learn more about the Affordable Mortgage Program.

Violence Ended) in 1978 and helped establish a Quincy shelter for battered women and their children.

She spoke to groups in the community, and was instrumental in training the DOVE staff and volunteers, raising and setting policies which led to the establishment of a permanent shelter.

She is now chairwoman of the Volunteer Committee of the DOVE board and conducts orientation meetings for new volunteers and supports their activities.

One of the main and successful goals of Mrs. Vallier's involvement is to help battered women develop self-esteem and to show them and their children how to settle disagreements without turning to the violence they had suffered in their homes.

"We try to give them a new life," she says.

Mrs. Vallier, who was nominated for The Sun award by Bernardine Ledbetter of Terme Road, Adams Shore, has long been and is still active in many other community endeavors.

She is a member of the Quincy Council on Aging board and the Quincy Human Relations Commission. She is now an honorary board member of the Metropolitan Boston Great Books Council with which she had been active for 20 years and served as president for three.

For several years she has helped served senior citizens at the Mayor's Thanksgiving Dinner and Christmas dinner to the homeless at Fr. Bill's Place.

She is an active member of United First Parish Church and serves as a board member of the Women's Alliance there.

As Remembrance Chairwoman she sends cards and bakes and distributes cookies to shut-ins.

She is honorary chairwoman of Religious Education at First Parish Church. She knits an moved to South Bend, Ind. when she was 14 and where she graduated from high school.

She is a loyal Notre Dame football fan but recalls with a smile:

"My mother wouldn't let us date any of the Notre Dame football players. She said, 'All they do is come over here and eat and when it comes time for the prom, they take someone from the school.'"

The Judges Panel

The panel of judges comprised:

Phebe Black, senior account representative at the Fleet Bank.

Stephen Cantelli, fifth grade teacher at the Lincoln-Hancock School and recipient of the 1992 Citizen of the Award Award.

John DeCarli, chairman, Quincy Sons of Italy afghan for each baby born in the family of a student attending Church School. So far, she has knitted something like 17 afghans in 12 years, each of which takes about 30 hours.

Mrs. Vallier was a board member of the Quincy Symphony Orchestra for 17 years and served as its ticket chairwoman.

She is a member of the South Shore Coalition for Human Rights, Quincy Historical Society, the Eventide Auxiliary, Beechwood Community Life Center, 1000 Southern Artery and the Quincy Neighborhood Club.

Mrs. Vallier was born in Detroit and the family

Board of Trustees.

Paul Harold, former state senator.

Fr. Cornelius Heery, pastor Sacred Heart Church, North Quincy.

Ann McLaughlin, director Thomas Crane Public Library.

Henry Bosworth, publisher and Robert Bosworth, editor, The Quincy Sun, assisting.

One of her sisters, however, did marry a Notre Dame graduate--but he wasn't a football player.

Mrs. Vallier is a graduate of Simmons College and received her master's degree at Boston University as a psychiatric nurse.

Mrs. Vallier came to Quincy in 1954 as the wife of the late Rev. Robert Lawson who became minister of the Wollaston Unitarian Church. They had met in 1937 while taking summer courses at the University of Michigan and married in 1938.

She married Captain Vallier in 1968 and they lived on Glendale Road where they shared their swimming pool with neighborhood youngsters and visitors.

Captain Vallier, who was also active in community causes, died in 1987. Mrs. Vallier now lives in an apartment on Palmer Street.

She will be 80 in May and plans to continue her activities "to help as much as I can."

Mary Vallier's Nomination

Mary Vallier was nominated for The Quincy Sun Citizen of the Year Award by Bernardine Ledbetter of Terme Road, Adams Shore who said in her nomination:

"The reason I am nominating Mary Vallier for the 'Citizen of the Year' is multi-faceted.

"Mary was one of the founders of DOVE (Domestic Violence Ended), a shelter for battered women and their children in 1978. She has been a member of the board and an active volunteer from the start.

"She is also a member of the Coalition of Human Rights, appointed by the mayor to the Council on Aging Board and the Quincy Human Rights Commission, as well as being active in the Metropolitan Great Books Council and was president for three years. She is now an honorary board member of this council. She was also formerly on the Quincy Symphony Orchestra Board for 17 years.

"I believe Mary is most deserving of this award because of her outstanding advocacy for community service and commitment to empowering women and children in guiding the course of their lives and subsequently all the generations to come.

"One only has to talk to Mary to get a sense of her strong commitment to supporting survivors of domestic violence and the dedication that is so important in changing lives for the better. It is, therefore, with enthusiasm that I highly recommend Mary Vallier to you for 'Citizen of the Year.' If there were more people as committed as Mary Vallier is to stopping violence, there would be less women dying on our streets today.

"Although Mary is in her 80th year, at a time when most of her contemporaries are taking it easy, Mary is still as dedicated as ever to community causes and she is a wonderful example to all of us that some people are accepting the challenge of trying to create a better tomorrow."

payments throughout the year, and she works as hard as she can to assist in the process, although she admitted it sometimes can be difficult.

"Basically, what I'm doing is begging," she said. "It's a monumental task to get these some of these companies to go these places."

Most companies she deals with are genuinely concerned about customers' fuel situations and as helpful as possible, Reikard said. Unfortunately, she added, some are forced to turn down people who are either unable or unwilling to pay for fuel.

Reikard also noted that because overall occupancy has declined—the result of a number of people having either "gone home to Mama" or "doubling up" in apartments and other dwellings, oil companies have also experienced financial woes in recent years and have actually dropped their prices slightly in an attempt to keep their customers.

Reikard added that she feels another reason the government is cutting back on assistance is that it is trying to make people more self-sufficient and less dependent on social services.

Asked why requests are at a high and assistance at a low at a time when unemployment is slowly declining and the economy supposedly on the upswing, Reikard said reports on the economy have been misleading.

"People keep telling me that the economy is getting better," said Reikard. "Well, my office is a barometer of that, and I haven't seen any indication of it."

Pat MacNeil, fuel assistance program director at Quincy Community Action Programs Inc., agreed.

"Have I seen the economy turn around in this office? No, definitely not," said MacNeil, who added that some families' situations are so serious that they are regularly forced to choose between paying utility bills and buying food.

MacNeil said the maximum amount in federal funding a family can receive for fuel assistance has dropped from a peak of $750 in 1985-88 to $420 this year. State funding, which peaked at $325 during the same time period, is down to $225 this year, she added.

Quincy Community Action expects to process nearly 4,000 subsidies for residents of Quincy, Braintree, Milton in Weymouth this winter, MacNeil said. As many as 90 to 100 new customers come in daily to ask for assistance, she added.

MacNeil noted that as many as 2,500 of those serviced this winter will be from Quincy alone. Last year, 2,166 households in Quincy were serviced, she said.

MacNeil added that Quincy Community Action also offers other services for those eligible for fuel assistance, such as its weatherization program. The service, which includes home weatherization and burner repair, is headed by Ward 3 City Councilor Lawrence Chretien.

Fuel assistance, which is funded primarily through the U.S. Department of Health and Human Services and partially through the state Executive Office of Communities and Development (EOCD), first began in 1976. The funding was intended to assist low-income people cost the cost of heat during the winter months.

Approximately 150,000 Massachusetts households will receive federal or state fuel assistance this year, according to EOCD spokesperson Christina Cassotis. The EOCD distributes all funding and oversees regional programs.

Eligibility for fuel assistance is based on the number of people per household and total household income. As examples, MacNeil said a family of two must earn less than $16,503 and a family of four less than $21,525 annually in order to receive assistance. Not everyone, she added, receives the maximum amount, which is determined by a household's exact level of poverty.

Recipients include both renters and homeowners who use oil, natural gas, propane, kerosene, electricity or wood to heat their homes. Many are elderly residents on fixed incomes, unemployed, or the working poor.

EOCD figures show that of 143,511 households that received federal assistance last year, 78,344 received the maximum benefit. And of 6,872 households receiving state fuel assistance in 1993, 6519 received the maximum.

Deadline to apply for fuel assistance is March 31. To apply or for more information, call Quincy Community Action at 479-8181. For additional details about fuel assistance, call Reikard at 376-1070.

Bartlett Comes Through In Clutch For Quincy

By KERRY BYRNE

In sports, team leaders come through in the clutch. Mike Bartlett, captain of the Quincy High basketball team, did just that as the Presidents handed Silver Lake their second loss of the season Friday night, 46-43.

In the final :49 seconds of play the gritty senior battled the Silver Lake big men for two huge rebounds and hit four free throws to preserve the Quincy victory. Bartlett also scored 13 of Quincy's 21 second half points and ended with a game high 19 to go with his 10 assists and 9 rebounds.

Quincy also had excellent leadership from the other tri-captains, Joe Kelly and Tom Malvesti. The three accounted for all but two of Quincy's second half points. Malvesti's drive to the hoop with 1:55 remaining broke a 39-39 tie and his two free throws with :12 seconds remaining capped the three point win.

The Presidents jumped to an early 8-2 lead and held the powerful Silver Lake inside game in check due to a well executed Coach John Franceschini game plan. Quincy played tough man to man defense and dropped an extra player into the paint in order to keep the ball away from Mike Flynn, the huge Laker center. Silver Lake was forced to try to beat the speedy Quincy team from outside, a task they could not accomplish.

Jon Gangi (4 points) and sixth-man Brian McPartlin (also with 4) were impressive as they helped deny the Laker attack and battled inside against the larger Silver Lake players. McPartlin, a force off the glass all season, combined with Kelly for 16 rebounds.

The entire defense was outstanding as they shutdown a squad that had only lost once (in the amazing quadruple overtime game against North Quincy) all season. Dave Gunther came in to relieve Bartlett and added 2 points to go with his great ball handling. Harold Mortel was also a key to handling the Quincy attack as he and Bartlett skillfully managed the Quincy half-court game.

Coach Franceschini credited the victory to hard teamwork.

"We put in the sag defense to take away the Silver Lake inside game and all our players did a great job to execute it," said the Quincy coach after the game as jubilant fans patted him on the back.

Quincy hero Bartlett overcame a shaky first half to dominate the game and said the reversal was due in part to a change in attitude.

"They were all over me in the first half and I made some bad decisions but we knew if we played tough in the second half we'd come out on top," said the captain, whose second half heroics included a long three-pointer and a three-point play after being fouled on a drive to the hoop.

Indeed, toughness has been a key for the Quincy team all season. Outsize in several matches this year, Quincy has been able to out-muscle several opponents on their way to a 5-4 record.

The big win over Silver Lake was followed by a disappointing loss Saturday to Falmouth in a make-up game originally scheduled for Friday, Jan. 7.

Quincy fell just short, 39-36, in a game marred by fouls. All three Quincy captains fouled out.

Three late Falmouth free throws broke a 36-36 tie. Quincy's offense was able to muster only two points (both were Gangi free throws) in the final two minutes of play. Mortel led Quincy with 11 points. McPartlin hauled in 9 rebounds and Gangi grabbed 8.

The North Quincy boys' basketball team knocked off Bridgewater-Raynham in dramatic fashion Friday night, overcoming a 16-point second half deficit to post a 76-75 victory. The win, coupled with Silver Lake's loss to Quincy, moved the Red Raiders into sole possession of second place in the Old Colony League at 6-1 (6-3 overall).

Jason McLeod was again the story for NQ as he recorded a triple-double with 25 points, 21 rebounds and a school record 10 blocked shots.

North Quincy found themselves down by 16 with 10 minutes left to play when they turned it over to a notched and shut down the powerful B-R attack. With just :13 seconds remaining, McLeod was in by several Red Raiders. After scoring 18 points in the first half, B-R star Joe Rich was smothered by the awesome defense of Jerry Fernandez and Adam DeBoer. Between the two they were able to limit Rich to only 2 second half points.

Mike Santoro lit up the scoreboard in the second half with 13 points, including three 3-pointers. Bobby Johnson scored 7, all in the furious second half North Quincy rush.

With a minute left to play Santoro nailed a three-point play to put the Red Raiders up, 75-72. The call was quickly answered by Bridgewater-Raynham's Dan Burstein play when they tied it up with a three-point play of his own. With just :13 seconds remaining, McLeod was sent to the line where his free throw was the difference for NQ.

Earlier in the week the Red Raiders staged another dramatic come back as they topped the Taunton Tigers, 46-43.

Down 41-31 with just 3:21 left to play, NQ again turned on the defensive pressure.

North fought back and was down 43-42 in the final seconds of the game when a Brian Rafferty lay-up made the score 44-43 with :06 seconds left to play. The defense came to the rescue when Matt Boston came up with a steal of the ensuing in bounds pass and was immediately fouled. His two clutch free throws sealed the three point victory.

Quincy Freshmen Hot

The Quincy High freshman hoop team is on fire, winning five of their last six games. Their record now stands at 6-3.

In their most recent game, the young Presidents were tremendous as they overcame a 16-point first half deficit to crush Silver Lake, 54-36.

Greg McGrath paced Quincy with 15 points. Scott Pyer was close behind with 14 and Brad Smith scored 12.

The Quincy defense was nothing less than awesome as they limited the Lakers to 6 (yes, six!) second half points. Bobby Walsh, Mike Russo, Joe Mariano and Jeff King led the smothering Presidents defense.

In earlier games: Scott Pyer led Quincy with 10 points in a 48-25 romp over Scituate. Also having great games were Walsh with 8 points and Brian Snow and Saeed Sadaat, both with 5 points.

Quincy beat Stoughton

52-42. Smith was huge with 18 points. McGrath scored 11 and Mariane nailed 7.

The young Presidents knocked off Archbishop Williams, 48-38.

Smith again led the Quincy scoring attack with 12 points. McGrath was close behind with 10 points. King had a great day rebounding to go with his 8 points.

Quincy punished Marshfield, 59-44.

McGrath had another big game with 18 points. Walsh pitched in with 15 and King again scored 8. Jason Little ("one of the teams' true leaders," according to Coach Mike Dracchio) did a tremendous job defensively. Jeirik Samborski was also solid in the defensive zone.

The lone blemish during this streak came as the Presidents fell to a powerful Plymouth squad, 66-42.

Notable efforts were made by Samborski who scored 7 points and Joe Cucera who played tough defense and scored 4 points.

Coach Dracchio singled out Mike Travis, Mike Russo and Tom McIntyre as solid defensive performers throughout the season.

Hockey

Daly Shines at AIC

Quincy resident and former Boston College High hockey star Kevin Daly is in the middle of his senior season at American International College in Springfield. Daly is a forward and tri-captain for the Yellow Jackets.

The former scoring leader at BC High has tallied 3 goals and 4 assists as his team has jumped out to a 7-3 record. Daly has played in nine of the ten games. He missed a game at U Mass-Boston due to a slight knee injury.

Daly scored the game winner as AIC beat Amherst 5-2 earlier this season. His power-play goal and assist were the difference as AIC edged Trinity, 5-4.

As a junior, Daly was the teams' third leading scorer with 12 goals and 20 assists. Among his tallies were two game winners. He was also the Curran Award winner for sportsmanship and competitiveness in last year's Codfish Tourney. Daly is a history major and Dean's List student.

Youth Hockey

Doran Wins Squirt Jamboree

Doran & Horrigan topped Granite Auto Electric, 3-1, to capture the Squirt House League Jamboree championship.

Jimmy Cashins was the difference as he scored two goals for the champs. Alex Booker netted the other goal. With assists were Kyle Piazza, Mark Fitzpatrick, "Skateless" Joe Jackson and Ryan Doyle.

The Granite goal was scored by Jon Paquette, unassisted.

To advance to the final game Doran & Horrigan bested Burgin Platner, 8-3, and Granite Auto nipped Johnson Motor Parts, 1-0.

Cashins scored a hat trick for Doran & Horrigan while Fitzpatrick, Doyle, Brian Stock, Conrad Leger and Jill McInnis all had single tallies. With assists were McInnis (2), Doyle, Joe Cox and Pam Sullivan. Burgin Platner's goals were scored by Brian Keefe, Frank Guest and Matt Reggiani. Assists were dishd out by Paul Zenga, Joe Cunningham, Mark Gibbons, Sean Fennelly and Scott Markarian.

The lone goal in the Granite Auto victory was scored by Rene Lumaghini in the first period. Paquette assisted. Goalie John Mooney posted the shutout for Granite Auto.

Neponset Takes Pee Wee Jamboree

Six different players scored as Neponset Valley Survey edged Mike Morrissey Club, 6-4, in the Pee Wee House League Jamboree title game.

Goals were netted by Josh Silverman, Mike Powers, Billy Griffin, Stephanie Allen, Jeff Glynn and Sean Lefebvre for the champions. Assists went to Steve Ford, Matt Gibbons, Powers, Griffin and Silverman.

Billy Walker was the game's leading scorer with two goals for Morrissey Club. Also scoring were Mike P. Sullivan and Jamie Parisi. Assisting were Mike Webber (2), Chris Griffin, Brian Sylvester and Mike Viles.

In the semi-finals

Neponset bested Marina Bay Taxi, 9-4.

For Neponset, Gibbons posted a hat trick while Matt O'Connell scored twice. Also scoring were Brian Nolan, Powers, Ford and Lefebvre. Assists were handed out by Gibbons (2), Allen, Glynn, Lefebvre, O'Connell, Powers, Nick Pizziferr, Tim O'Connor and Kevin Lynch.

Marina Bay's goals were netted by Kevin Mason, Chad Fitzpatrick, Mike D. Sullivan and Jesse Winter. Assisting were Joe Watson (3), Sean Slattery, Fitzpatrick and Sullivan.

In the other semi-final match, Morrissey Club

Games.

To qualify for the State Tournament Quincy beat Canton, 6-0, and crushed Milton, 16-1.

Members of the team are goalie Greg Burke, John Barron, Chris

Carthas Sparks North In Weymouth Tie

A.J. Carthas came up big for the North Quincy hockey team with two assists and a late third period goal which gave the Red Raiders a 3-3 tie against a powerful Weymouth squad.

The Wildcats entered the game ranked #13 in eastern Massachusetts. North Quincy's record stands at 6-2-1.

Brendan O'Brien opened up things early with a goal :26 seconds into the contest. The assists were made by line mates Carthas and Jimmy Sapienza.

Weymouth scored twice to answer the O'Brien tally and led 2-1 in the second period when Sapienza, NQ's leading scorer, scored an unassisted goal to tie the game. Another Weymouth score gave the Wildcats a 3-2 lead which they carried late into the third period.

Despite the deficit, the Red Raiders carried the play in the final period. North Quincy punished Weymouth along the boards and out-hustled their opponents.

Their efforts finally paid off with less than two minutes left to play when all three members of the Sapienza-O'Brien-Carthas line crashed over the Weymouth blue line in a desperate rush at the net. Sapienza and O'Brien fell by the wayside and Carthas took hold of the puck just feet from the Weymouth goaltender. The right-winger made a terrific backhand move and stuffed the disc under the legs of the sprawling netminder with just 1:51 remaining. Both Sapienza and O'Brien were awarded assists on the equalizer.

Red Raiders coach Tom Benson pointed to the exceptional defensive work of Andrew Vermette and Dave Pacino as the reason why North Quincy was able to stifle the potent Wildcat attack. Goalie Mike Manganaro came up with several impressive series of saves when Weymouth found the opportunity to pepper the North Quincy net.

Kiwanis Tourney To Have International Flavor

The 21st Annual Quincy Kiwanis Youth Hockey Tournament will have an international flavor this year with teams from London, Ontario and Riga, Latvia.

Teams from all over New England, New York and Pennsylvania will also participate. The event will be held at the Quincy Youth Arena from Monday, Feb. 21 to Sunday, Feb. 27.

The Division I AHA sanctioned event will feature Bantams, PeeWees, Mites and Squirts.

The Tournament is designed to encourage youths who are interested in hockey and to raise funds to continue the Quincy Kiwanis Club's many charitable events on behalf of children in need.

Teams interested in participating can contact Beverly Reinhardt at the Quincy Youth Arena at 479-8371.

Four Teams Advance To Mite Jamboree Semi-Finals

Lydon Russell advanced to the Mite House League Jamboree semi-finals with an 11-1 explosion over Paul Harold Club.

Miah Hasson led the charge with a hat trick. John Chevalier and Justin Thorley were close behind with two goals each. With single tallies were Tim Gleason, Tom Walsh, Corey Piazza and Ryan Lynch. Chevalier was the leading playmaker with three assists. Thorley assisted twice and Lynch, Gleason, Hasson and Tony Benigni each assisted once.

Anthony Connolly scored the lone goal for Harold Club on an assist from Mike Tetreault.

Skatesmith will advance as they sailed past Purdy's Ice Cream, 7-4, on the legs of another strong performance by the Segalla twins.

Steve Segalla scored four goals while brother John netted the other three. Steve set up all three of John's goals while John assisted Steve twice.

For Purdy's, Ken Young, Paul McLean, Mike Brewster and Ryan Donahue were the goal scorers. Playmakers were Donahue, Young and Rob Richards.

In the Jamboree's closest game, Granite Rail Pizza nipped Samoset Pharmacy, 2-1.

Billy McKeon and Andy Patten scored the goals for the winners. The only assist went to Gene Nazzaro.

The single tally for Samoset was an unassisted effort by Billy Ryan.

The fourth team to advance to the semi-finals is Barry's Deli. They topped Campbell's Auto Service, 5-1.

Brendan Linnane, Justin Swierk, Jeff Hunt, Ryan McFarland and Andy Ross were the goal scorers for Barry's Deli. With assists were Justin Swierk, Jarrod Swierk, Mike Lind, John Clark, Matt Germain, McFarland and Hunt.

Campbell's goal was scored by Brian O'Hanley with Shane Newell assisting.

Pee Wee Cs Roar Back For Tie

The Quincy Pee Wee Cs overcame a large third period deficit to tie the Needham Cs, 5-5.

Quincy exploded for four third period goals. They were sparked by Dave Noonan who scored a hat trick and notched an assist. Other goals were scored by Joe Vallatini and Josh Silverman. Each also had an assist. Other assists were made by Ryan Murray, Sean Fitzgerald and Mike C. Sullivan.

Strong defense from Mike D. Sullivan and Shawn Cheney helped slow the Needham attack.

Quincy's next game will be a state playoff game against Wellesley. A win is necessary to keep the team in contention for a position in the state tournament.

Bantam II Blank Virginia All-Stars

The Quincy B-II hockey team was awesome as they shutout the Virginia All-Star Team, 5-0, in an exhibition game.

The Bantams are 10-1. They will represent their division in the State Games. To qualify for the State Tournament Quincy beat Canton, 6-0, and crushed Milton, 16-1.

Quincy goals were scored by Joe Fitzpatrick and John Paquette in the hard fought and exciting affair. Assists were made by Shawn Richardson, Dan Sheehan and Paquette.

Pat O'Donnell had a great game in goal, making several spectacular saves to keep the game close.

Frank Guest, Tom Maloney, Kevin Patten and Jill McInnis also had excellent games. Sheehan was named player of the game.

The B team will participate in the Coca-Cola Tournament on Cape Cod, Jan. 22-24.

First Quincy Girl Wrestles In Meet

By KERRY BYRNE

Local history was made on Saturday when Laureate Summer became the first girl ever at Quincy High to compete in a varsity wrestling meet. The senior wrestled at 112-pounds in Quincy's 47-20 win over Duxbury. Summer lost but that hardly takes away from the significance of the event.

Summer's coach, Lou Venturini, describes her as "quite an amazing girl." She is also a great student who hopes to go on to Harvard next year.

Karen Cashman, a 1989 graduate of North Quincy High, will represent the Stars and Stripes as a member of the U.S. short-track speedskating team in the World Championships to be held in Guilford, England in March.

Cashman made the team by virtue of finishing third at the U.S. trials, held in Lake Placid, N.Y., during the first two weekends of this month. The top five finishers were chosen for the short-track team. A second place finish would have sent her on to the Olympics in Lillehammer, Norway in February.

Cashman's performances were awesome. In the 1000 meters Cashman flew to a personal best time 1:39.90 but was edged by, among you believe, less than half a second by defending Olympic gold medalist Cathy Turner who had a time of 1:39.41.

Look for Cashman to be a favorite to represent the USA in the 1998 Olympics.

Congratulations to Karen, a world class athlete and the girl next door!

All in a day's work: North Quincy hoop star Jason McLeod set an all time Red Raiders record with 10 (yes, ten) blocked shots in NQ's 76-75 win over Bridgewater-Raynham last Friday. The 6'8" center also racked up 25 points and an incredible 21 rebounds. Oh yeah, he also scored the game winning point on a free throw with :13 seconds left to play.

A mere two weeks ago, in these very pages, your humble sports servant asked Jimmy Spazienza, the red-hot left wing on NQ's hockey team, to come up with a hat trick. You see, Sir James had three two goal games but not one three goal effort after six games. Obviously not one to disappoint, Mr. Spazienza obliged with a three goal burst as the Red Raiders buried Plymouth, 7-3.

Would it be too much to ask for four, preferably after the Quincy game Saturday night?

Speaking of Quincy/North Quincy, it's about time for the annual mid-winter battles between the arch-rivals. The two schools have already met once this year, as the North girls' basketball team edged the Quincy girls. The girls are scheduled to meet again on Wednesday, Jan. 19.

The boys' hoop teams will play on Wednesday, Jan. 26. The game was originally scheduled for Tuesday, Jan. 18.

If you like tough, well played hockey, don't miss the first on ice Quincy/North Quincy battle of the season. It will take place this Saturday, Jan. 22 at 7:50 before a full house at the Quincy Youth Arena. Always a grudge match, this game promises to be a rock 'em, sock 'em affair.

The Quincy/North Quincy wrestlers will square off at North Quincy next Wednesday, Jan. 26, at 7 pm. If all you've ever seen is the WWF, come out and see some real athletes wrestle.

If you miss them this time around, the intra-city battles will take place again next month.

There are a few Old Colony League athletes who I'm sure are less than thrilled at the prospect of playing in Quincy, namely the Silver Lake boys' hoop team. The Lakers are 6-2 overall, 6-0 against schools not from Quincy. This includes a huge win over a 6-1 Milton team that is ranked #13 in eastern Mass.

But put them in a bus and send them on a short trip up Route 3 and they're a different team. Their only two losses are the infamous 61-57 loss in quadruple overtime to North Quincy back in December and the 46-43 nail-biter they dropped to Quincy this weekend. Maybe the farm boys can't handle the city air.

Jen Pineo, a North Quincy High sophomore and an undefeated shot-putter, was impressive as she took first place at the meet with a throw of 30'10 1/4".

Peter Kolson, a sophomore shot-putter from Quincy High, came in fourth at the invitational.

Basketball

North Girls Dominated By B-R

By DAVE SOUTHWICK

The North Quincy girls basketball team took their 2-6 record into battle last night (Wednesday) at Quincy.

In their most recent game this past Friday the Raiderettes found B-R too much to handle as they were beat, 65-24.

The Raiderettes' next action will be this Friday at Plymouth followed by their next home game Tuesday, Jan. 25 vs. Falmouth. Tip-off is scheduled for 7 p.m.

North took the court against a powerful Bridgewater-Raynham team last Friday in a game totally dominated by the visiting Trojans.

B-R took a commanding 27-0 lead before junior guard Kim Healy scored a 3-pointer with 7:30 to go in the half. The Trojans continued their dominance and took a huge 46-11 lead at the half. Sophomore forward Sara Stanton, North's leading scorer, was held scoreless in the half.

The second half was not much nicer for North Quincy. B-R continued domination throughout the half, but North held on with strong performances by Kristin Proude, Kelly Keegan, Heather Simmons, Stanton and Healy.

"This team was too tough for us," said head coach Ken Panaro. "Our younger kids came in and never gave up."

Bridgewater-Raynham went on to win, 65-24. Scoring for North were Healy with 7 points, Stanton with 6, Simmons with 4, Kerry Ginty with 3, and Amey Riley and Ann Russo with 2 points each.

North earned their second win of the season just 2 days earlier, a 56-5 decision over Taunton. Taunton led all the way until a Sara Stanton bucket with 3:00 to play gave North their first lead. Leading scorers were Stanton with 25 points, Simmons with 8, Healy with 7, and Proude, also with 7.

Quincy Wrestlers Sparkle

Several Quincy wrestlers continue to sparkle for the Presidents. Their 7-3-1 team record is good enough for a #5 ranking among Division I South schools.

Matt Miller (130) and Mike Feeley (HVV) both stand at 9-1.

In their two most recent meets, against Weymouth last Wednesday and Duxbury this past weekend, both were impressive. Feeley handled his Weymouth opponent easily with a pin. Against Duxbury he recorded a 14-13 win against a very tough opponent, Mike Rogers, considered one of the premier heavyweights in the region.

Miller won by pin against Weymouth. Against Duxbury he moved up a weight class, to 135, and won by points, 6-3.

Also performing extremely well is Ashley Davis (152) who improved to 8-2 last week. Davis's Weymouth opponent was Matt Gill who had won the prestigious Marshfield Tournament earlier in the season. Davis handled him easily, 7-1. He also won against Duxbury.

Quincy has several important meets ahead.

Thursday, Jan. 20, the Presidents host Bridgewater-Raynham who enters the meet at 9-1 and ranked #1 in Division I South. Quincy battles North Quincy next Wednesday, Jan. 26 at NQ.

The Red Raiders are undefeated and ranked #2 in Division II South. On Saturday, Feb. 12, Quincy will be hosting the South Sectional Tournament.

Swimming

North Boys Run Streak To 5-0

The North Quincy boys' swimming team, led by second-year head coach Brad Martin, opened the season with an impressive 5-0 mark. Several athletes have gone undefeated.

The Red Raiders beat Blue Hills, 101-77, in their first meet of the season. Westwood fell, 91-75. Stoughton was handled easily, 91-86, as North Quincy raced unofficial in the last three events. In a 113-67 win over Milford and a 98-82 beating of Cambridge, the Red Raiders raced unofficial in the last event.

Michael Ploof was unbeaten in four different events, the 50, 100, 200 and 500-yard freestyles. The senior had gone 2-0, 3-0, 3-0 and 1-0 respectively as his versatility allowed him to compete in the sprint and long distance events.

Diver Alan Morse was also undefeated and set a personal best with a score of 167.2 against Milford.

James Keys, only a freshman, was unbeaten in the 100-yard butterfly and 100-yard breaststroke in the first five meets.

Other impressive performers include Jacky Li, a junior, who has won three times in the 50-yard freestyle and once in the 100-yard freestyle. The

Volleyball Classes At South Shore 'Y'

The South Shore YMCA will offer two coed volleyball programs next month.

Volleyball I for beginners will be Wednesday nights and Volleyball II for advanced players Monday nights from 8 to 10 p.m.

Classes begin Feb. 7. Registration begins today (Thursday).

only thing between Li and an even more impressive list is Ploof.

Coach Martin also pointed to the yeoman efforts of Dan Birmingham (backstroke, 200 individual medley), Terrence Roach (breaststroke, sprint freestyle), John Marinilli (backstroke, mid-distance freestyle), Erik Oster (sprint and mid-distance freestyle) and Shawn Burke (50 freestyle, 100 butterfly) as the main reason why the team has been so successful.

"Without the second and third place performances by these swimmers we would not be in the position we are in this point in the season," said Martin.

North Quincy fell in their last meet to a New Bedford team regarded as one of the best in the state. The Red Raiders are sure to rebound when they open Pilgrim Conference competition against Taunton on Thursday, Jan. 20.

HITCHING ON A NEW BELT

In the past, drive belts within the engine compartment were produced with rubberized fabric covers. Wear on V-belts of this type was easy to spot - as abrasion from the accessory drive pulleys gradually wore through the sides of the belt, the belt cover became obviously frayed. Now, however, virtually all automotive V-belts are manufactured without fabric covers. These so-called "bandless" belts are made to last longer, but they give little indication of wear. To complicate the situation, bandless V-belts tend to wear from the inside out. This makes it difficult to determine when a belt is about to break. As a precaution, then, most manufacturers recommend that V-belts be replaced every four

HINT: Improper tension is a major cause of V-belt failure.

The safety of our customers is very important to us here at LEO & WALT'S. SUNOCO and we want them to be informed. Whether your present vehicle needs drive belts replaced or other repair done, plan to come in and talk it over with one of our experienced technicians. Our friendly, professional staff will gladly answer all your questions here at 258 Quincy Ave., E. Braintree (843-1550). "Place Where Your Car Can Live Longer." Sunoco and most major credit cards honored. Open: Mon.-Fri. 8am-6pm, Sat. 7am-9pm, Sun. 8am-5pm.

SCOTT DEWARE

A THOUGHT FOR THE WEEK

Anger is a human trait. It has been a part of man since the beginning of time and since it is a natural emotion, anyone can get angry at times. Many references to anger and wrath are seen in the Bible.

It is a mental agitation, however, that should be controlled because it can be harmful. Any doctor will tell you anger causes blood pressure to go up. Release of uncontrolled anger can only give temporary satisfaction and that is certainly a high price to pay for probable shame and regret.

No one can completely extinguish anger. It is as natural as tenderness, sorrow, fear or joy. Because anger takes a heavy toll in mind and body, moderation is needed as a matter of self concern. Jefferson once said, "When angry, count to ten before you speak; if very angry, count a hundred."

It was a good rule to live by in his time ... it still is!

Track

North Girls Win, Boys Bow To B-R

The North Quincy track & field boys' and girls' teams split last week against Bridgewater-Raynham. The girls won 48-43 with several number one performances. The boys fell 59-32.

Erin Duggan, Melanie Gaziano, Aja Jackson, Laura Blaikie, Phyllis Poon, Linda Jellison and Meg Barry all had first place finishes.

In the long distances Blaikie took the two mile in 13:09.0, Duggan won the mile in 5:52.8 and Gaziano was tops in the 1000 with a time of 3:11.1. Jackson was impressive in winning the 300 in 43.3 seconds and taking second to Jellison in the high jump. Jellison's winning leap was 4'6". Poon captured the 50-yard hurdles in 8.5 seconds. Barry was the meet's top shotputter with a throw of 30'8 1/2".

Other notable performances: Kelly Duggan, second in the two mile; Erica Doherty, third in the mile; Ursula Feurtado, third in the 600; Suk-Ting Ng, third in the 50-yard hurdles; and Jen Pineo and Wingsze Yeun who completed a North Quincy sweep of the shotput.

Several of the Red Raider boys were impressive against B-R.

Eric Torvi won the mile while Jeremy Gott and Glenn Peterson were both number ones, in the 600 and 300 respectively. NQ has been excellent all year in the relay events and this meet was no exception. The 4x400 relay team of Peterson, Torvi, Gott (the anchor man) and Warren Fong finished first once again.

Other solid performances were turned in by: Brian O'Donnell, third in the two mile; Fong, third in the 1000; Sean Neer, second in the 50; Jerick Warrick, third in the 50-yard hurdles; Tom Burke, second in the shotput; and Gott, second in the high jump.

North Quincy will meet at Falmouth on Thursday, Jan. 20.

FAA To Rule On Tower

The Federal Aviation Administration will release a decision on the safety of a 700-foot radio-communications tower in West Quincy by the end of January, according to FAA officials.

The FAA has been reviewing evidence since September when residents and pilots at a public meeting urged officials to declare the tower a hazard to air traffic.

Mayor James Sheets

said if the FAA declares the tower a hazard he will order it torn down. If the FAA rules that it is not a hazard, Sheets said he would look into appealing the decision.

The FAA's regional Air Traffic Division in Burlington approved the tower, which began operating in August, without notifying local aeronautics agencies. The FAA agreed to hold the September meeting after it received complaints from pilots, neighbors, helicopter ambulance services, and U.S. Reps. Gerry Studds of Cohasset and Joseph Moakley of Boston.

The Town of Milton and people who live near the tower have filed separate suits challenging a 1991 decision by the Quincy Zoning Board to permit the tower's owner, Francis DiRico, to build it, but trial dates have not yet been set.

allow the task force to analyze data and help improve Quincy's snow plowing operations on an annual basis.

Monitoring of the performance of contractors hired by the city for snow removal purposes.

Establishment of an "orientation program" for those involved in city snow plowing operations.

Readjustment of the city's system of allowing parking on odd or even-numbered sides of a street depending on the year. Presently, the system confuses some people, Cheney said. For example, this winter began in December 1993, which means parking is allowed on the odd-numbered side of a street. Despite the fact that the season has carried into 1994, the rule for the beginning date of the winter still applies.

Cheney said he will propose making November the official start of the snow plowing season and will have the task force mail notification to residents of winter parking regulations with either their property tax bills or water and sewer bills.

The city's present system of simply making residents pay fines or towing their vehicles does not work, Cheney said, because "people complain that they didn't get any advance notice (of snow plowing activities)."

"The public deserves to have proper notification," he said.

He added, however, that once the city's new winter parking procedures begin this November, he will push for "stricter enforcements" of those procedures because residents will be informed in advance.

Cheney said the new task force will not only benefit public safety but may also be able to reduce snow removal costs by as much as one-third of their current total. He called current snow plowing costs "really unfair to the taxpayers."

Cheney added that implementation of the new snow plowing procedures will be achieved at no cost to the city, since any renovations made to driveways will be done at the expense of the property owners. Although curbing-cutting fees for those without driveways will be temporarily waived, Cheney noted, those fees are "minimal," although he did not know the exact cost.

Cheney said he hopes to have the task force's recommendations "within the month" and added that he encourages input from residents, city department heads and his fellow councilors.

"Everyone has to work together," he said.

Mike McFarland Named City Purchasing Agent

Mike McFarland, owner and operator of Barry's Deli in Wollaston, has been named to the post of purchasing agent for the City of Quincy.

Mayor James Sheets, who announced the appointment Tuesday, said he has full confidence McFarland will be effective in his new position.

"I think he'll do an outstanding job," said Sheets. "We're looking to combine the purchasing departments of the school department and the city, and I think he'll do a great job working on that. He's an experienced businessman and a sound business accountant."

McFarland will replace Robert Denvir Jr., who is retiring Feb. 4.

According to Personnel Director Kathleen Yaeger, the position pays $44,340 a year—$36,825 for the purchasing agent post, and an additional $7,515 for the parking clerk job that comes with it.

McFarland, who has owned Barry's Deli for 15 years, received a B.S. degree in business administration in 1977 from Suffolk University in Boston. Active in the business community, he is vice president of the Quincy Rotary Club, a director of the South Shore Chamber of Commerce, a director of the Quincy Partnership, and past president of the Wollaston Business Association.

He is also involved in other community activities in the city, serving as co-chairman of the Wollaston School Council, a director of the Quincy 2000 Corporation, a trustee of the Quincy Historical Society, and an active member of both the Quincy Christmas Festival and Flag Day Celebration Committees.

McFarland lives in Wollaston with his wife Marty and their three children, Erin, Ryan and Tara.

Public Meeting Saturday

Progress Made In Moon Island Talks

Progress is being made in negotiations between Quincy and Boston regarding the future of the Moon Island gun range in Squantum, Mayor James Sheets said Tuesday.

A public informational meeting regarding the site will be held Saturday at 10 a.m. at the Robert I. Nickerson Post, Moon Island Rd., Squantum.

Bernice Mader, administrative assistant to Sheets, and Ward 6 City Councillor Bruce Ayers will provide updated facts on the gun range situation. All interested residents are welcome to attend.

Ayers deferred all questions to Mader, who was unavailable for comment Tuesday. Sheets, however, said he believes an agreement has been reached regarding "remediation for damages" at the site.

The mayor added that it is also his understanding Quincy may have won a victory regarding future detonation of explosives there.

"In my opinion, it looks like we'll be able to resolve that (detonation) issue," said Sheets.

Negotiations between Quincy and Boston regarding the city's differences over the use of Moon Island began last month. Sheets met with Menino and a combined Quincy-Boston team headed by Mader and Mary Nee of the Boston Public Facilities Department was formed.

Sheets said at the time that officials also agreed to form a joint commission to study the future uses of Moon Island and nearby Long Island.

Four-Lane Road Would Connect Burgin Pkwy, Hancock St., Mechanic St. Plan For East-West Quincy Center Roadway Unveiled

By ROBERT BOSWORTH

A plan to construct a multi-million dollar roadway in Quincy Center to improve vehicular and pedestrian access to the downtown and strengthen the development potential on Hancock St. was unveiled by city leaders Tuesday.

As presently proposed, the roadway, called the Quincy Center Concourse by city officials, would establish a four-way road in an east and west direction from the Burgin Parkway to Hancock St. and further from Hancock St. to Mechanic St., an overall distance of approximately 1500 linear feet.

Specifically, the concourse would begin at the Burgin Parkway opposite the Granite St. connection near Osco Drug and Star Market. It would continue over the MBTA Red Line/Old Colony corridor and proceed into the Parkingway and connect to Hancock St. "all at grade," according to Public Works Commissioner David Colton.

Officials said the "main thrust" of the roadway is to move traffic from Burgin Parkway to Hancock St., thus eliminating congestion at Granite and Hancock Sts. The project seeks to improve vehicular access to Quincy Center and points east and west as well as enhance pedestrian access to Hancock St. from the Grossman property.

Officials call the Burgin Parkway to Hancock St. portion of the roadway the "west side link." Linkage between Hancock St. and McGrath Highway, the "east side link," would be accomplished by one of three options:

•Use existing Revere Rd. from Hancock St. to QUINCY CENTER CONCOURSE

Mechanic St. and points beyond.

•Widen Revere Rd. along the present alignment from Hancock St. to Mechanic St., a distance of about 300 feet.

•Construct extension of concourse from Hancock St. to Mechanic St. and connect it to Revere Rd. This additional new segment would have an approximate length of 400 feet.

In addition, officials said Revere Rd. from Mechanic St. to Washington St., an approximate distance of 500 feet, may be widened "at a future date."

The "west side link" is the first phase of the project and officials are confident this can be accomplished. "It's doable," Mayor James Sheets said.

The "east side link" would be the second phase of the project. Sheets said this phase has a number of "intangibles" which will likely dictate which route this link takes. The mayor said one important factor is the future use of the Hancock municipal parking lot which Sheets hinted may be used for commercial use.

In any event, officials plan to proceed with the project which will cost an estimated $5.9 million to construct. The city is seeking state and federal funding to finance the project. Sheets said he plans to discuss the project with Gov. Weld in two or three weeks.

Sheets, who stressed the concourse is not the same as the cross-town connector proposed in the 1970s, said he is confident the project will happen because of the support from government officials, labor and downtown merchants.

To Report Pot Holes

Heavy precipitation and freezing temperatures this winter means a season nemesis to automobile drivers is back: the pot hole.

To help the Quincy Public Works Department find and fill these street obstacles, residents are encouraged to call the city's "Pot Hole Hotline" at 376-1914.

The hot line is manned by a DPW employee Monday through Friday from 7 a.m. to 3:30 p.m. During all other times, the line will be hooked up to a voice mail system and residents can leave a message with the specific location of pot holes.

"We want people to let us know so we can catch up to them (the pot holes)," Public Works Commissioner David Colton said.

Police Officers Promoted

Capt. Terence Kelly, Sgt. Thomas Tierney Achieve New Ranks

By ROBERT BOSWORTH

Before 100 family, friends and colleagues, recently promoted Police Capt. Terence Kelly and Sgt. Thomas Tierney were sworn into their new positions by City Clerk Joseph Shea during a ceremony last week in the second floor conference room of City Hall.

Both officers expressed joy and excitement over their promotions.

"I'm very happy. I'm ecstatic. I've been a police officer for 23 years," Kelly said after the ceremony. "I just wish my dad could have been here with me. Thank God my mother and the rest of my family is here with me."

"I'm glad to share it with my family and friends."

Tierney also expressed happiness.

"I'm happy. I've been a police officer for 27 years, eight years as a detective and I feel I've accomplished something in my career."

Capt. Kelly, 44, of Weymouth, joined the Quincy Police Department as a patrolman in December, 1971. He was promoted to sergeant in July, 1985 and to lieutenant in April, 1991. As a captain, Kelly will earn $59,674 per year.

Sgt. Tierney, 51, of Norwood, joined the Braintree Police Department as a patrolman in March, 1976. He transferred to the Norwood Police Department and back to the Braintree Police Department before joining the Quincy Police Department in August, 1981. As a sergeant, Tierney will receive $38,161 annually.

City officials said the officers are very deserving of their new ranks.

"Terry has achieved and has always done what's expected of him. He's always accepted the role of leadership and I'll depend upon him an awful lot," Police Chief Francis Mullen said.

Mullen called Sgt. Tierney an "excellent detective who will bring this quality into a supervisory capacity. I'm looking for an awful lot from Tommy Tierney," the chief added.

Mayor James Sheets also congratulated Kelly and Tierney. "There certainly deserve it."

Sheets said the promotions are essential in protecting city residents against what he described as the "de-civilizing of America."

"We can make it uncomfortable for criminals here in Quincy as much as possible. We must insure that the people of this city are protected."

"When we're ready to promote people and take them to the next leadership level, we'll do so," the mayor added.

To boost policing efforts, Sheets said more prisons and longer mandatory sentences for criminals are needed as well as a reformed court system. "The police officer on the street has to have a chance."

"That's the problem. A police officer does his job but those who follow him don't. You arrest someone today and they're back on the street tomorrow," Sheets said, adding "there isn't a more important department in the City of Quincy than the police department."

As Kelly and Tierney began their new assignments, the mayor said, "We know you'll do a good job and we look forward to working with you."

With the new promotions, there are 27 sergeants, 13 lieutenants and five captains staffing the Quincy Police Department, according to Personnel Director Kathleen Yaeger. There are 140 patrol officers but the department is budgeted for 150, Yaeger said, noting more officers will likely be hired this fiscal year.

New Independent Learning Program At Quincy College

Quincy College announces it will offer an innovative program for students with developmental disabilities in the Quincy area.

The Quincy Independent Living and Learning (QUILL) Program offers living skills for individuals who, although they have passed Chapter 766 eligibility and high school age, need additional supported learning services. Most of the students in the program would be over the age of 22.

Enrollment in the program has been steady, and the team responsible for development of the Quincy College QUILL Program anticipates an initial class size of 15. The program begins Feb. 28. Classes will meet Monday and Wednesday evenings from 6 to 8 p.m. and continue for 10 weeks.

The QUILL Program will be sited at No. 4 Quincy High School, a accessible location adjacent to the MBTA Red Line and bus routes.

The program is tuition-funded. Participants pay $60 for tuition which covers the costs of the program. Potential skills training for participants can include: money management, reading, use of a calculator and typing. In addition, QUILL provides time management, health and nutrition, safety and first aid and interviewing skills training.

Quincy College hopes the program will demonstrate a commitment to a special population on the South Shore, while also addressing a need for education and skills training beyond Chapter 766 and high school, according to Quincy College President Donald Young. He added that he is confident the advisory committee and instructors will develop a quality program.

Beechwood School Could Reopen For Grades K-5

The Beechwood Knoll Elementary School in Wollaston could reopen for Grades K-5 in 1995.

The School Committee voted last week to rescind its decision of three months ago to reopen the school as a kindergarten center in the fall of this year. The committee then voted to proceed with plans to use the building for Grades K-5 if possible.

School Supt. Eugene Creedon and Mayor James Sheets have said the new proposal will be a better long-term solution to relieve overcrowding at the Montclair, Parker and Wollaston Elementary Schools.

Creedon said the Beechwood building, which now has nine classrooms, will need at least seven or eight other classrooms as well as renovations before it can be reopened. The construction work will include any other necessary capital improvements and will make the building handicapped accessible in cooperation with the American-Disabilities Act.

The superintendent, who said he did not have a cost estimate for the project, noted that before the School Committee votes on whether to include the proposal in a bond issue that Sheets plans to submit to the City Council in the spring, the Quincy Conservation Commission must approve allowance of a school facility on the property because of wetlands. The School Committee must also review and approve projected enrollment figures and which streets would be affected by redistricting, he said.

Creedon said the School Committee would then have to seek requests for proposals of a design for the project, and ultimately Sheets would have to ask the City Council to approve a bond to pay for the renovations.

School Committee member Stephen Durkin said the addition of a gymnasium to the Parker Elementary School will be included in Sheets' bond issue. Creedon said groundbreaking on the construction of the Parker gym, which will also serve as a cafeteria, should happen in April.

Currently, Parker students eat in a storage area in the basement and some are bussed to the Squantum Elementary School for physical education classes, Creedon said. He added that space shortages at the Montclair and Wollaston schools are not as serious as the situation at the Parker school and can wait until the Beechwood School is ready to reopen.

About 270 students in Grades K-5 would attend the Beechwood School if it were reopened, Creedon said.

The Beechwood building, if it reopens as an elementary school, would be the second Quincy school to be reopened to ease overcrowding. In 1987, the Wollaston Elementary School was reopened for that purpose. Both buildings were among 12 schools closed in the early 1980s because of budget cuts and declining enrollment.

Meanwhile, the Beechwood Community Life Center, which has rented the Beechwood School for $1 a year since 1981, is still searching for a new home. Officials have suggested moving the center to the Myles Standish Elementary School in Squantum, currently rented by the Quincy Lodge of Elks, when the Elks move into their new West Quincy headquarters later this year.

License Board Briefs

- Granted permission from the American Legion Auxiliary, Quincy Unit #95 (Ms. Phyllis Stanton) for a permit to conduct a Poppy drive May 27 - 29.

- Voted to continue a hearing regarding Tino's Gulf Service, Inc., 1284 Furnace Brook Parkway (Mr. Santino Vitali) to answer complaints received that Tino's Gulf Service, Inc. is storing vehicles at 61 Copeland St. without a license for that site. Building Inspector and Vice Chairman of the Licensing Board, Matthias Mulvey, instructed Vitali to apply through the Building Inspection Department for a variance to allow nonpermitted use at the Copeland St. site. This will allow Vitali to park tow trucks at Copeland St. while he also applies through the Licensing Board for an above ground storage unit, also at his Copeland St. business.

Honor The Memory Of Abigail Adams

Editor, The Quincy Sun:

I was very interested in the article, written by Councillor (Joe) LaRaia, in The Quincy Sun of Jan. 13, 1994, about the late Mayor Amelio Della Chiesa. Mayor Della Chiesa was mayor of Quincy when I was growing up in Moulclair and I know how highly regarded he was by mother and father. From everything that I have heard, Della Chiesa was a man whose personal qualities were superior and whose way with people was legendary.

However, I would like to request that the School Committee name the Early Childhood Center for Abigail Adams as suggested by Superintendent (Eugene) Creedon. As the mother of two sons and one daughter, I can easily identify with Abigail as a mother of three sons and one daughter. Many single parents in Quincy raising children by themselves would appreciate and admire the life of Abigail Adams. For seven years while her husband, John Adams, was writing the U.S. Constitution in Philadelphia, she raised her four children alone and inculcated the strong values that brought one of her sons to the White House.

She spent her time working a farm, aiding patriots and writing those wonderful letters to John about her life, her country and her dreams. In those letters she wrote eloquently about the importance of an excellent education for all young children.

An Early Childhood Center which educates four, five and six year old children would certainly have pleased Abigail. As a parent she understood, as I do, that the parent is the child's first teacher and the one who instills the values which allow education to take root and help a child to follow a life of honor and truthfulness.

Yes, we do have a postage stamp park at the corner of Water Street and Pleasant Street and the cairn at the top of Penn's Hill named for Abigail Adams. But how fitting it would be to name an Early Childhood Center for a mother who understood the value of education for all children and encouraged her husband to "remember the ladies" and include men and women in the Constitution he was writing.

How proud we in Quincy should be to honor this wife of one president and the mother of another in this lasting way! My choice of Abigail Adams is in no way to disparage the name of the late Mayor Amelio Della Chiesa. Former School Committeewoman Margaret King proposed a wonderful solution: name the Early Childhood Center for Abigail Adams and the community room for Mayor Della Chiesa. I hope the Quincy School Committee will vote to name the Early Childhood Center for a most amazing and inspiring woman: Abigail Adams.

U.S. SAVINGS BONDS

The Dam Water

City Councillor Peter Kolson appears to be battling 500 in the Good Ideas Dept.

He hit a homerun when he came up with the suggestion for a City Store to sell old city goodies such as street signs, parking meters, traffic lights, office equipment, etc., etc. Sales to souvenir and memorabilia hunters could bring in an estimated $75,000 or more a year.

But Kolson could fan on his other recent suggestion to sell the water from Braintree Dam to neighboring communities.

The 64.5 acre dam which is near the South Shore Plaza and owned by Quincy originally was Quincy's water reservoir, years ago.

When it was Quincy's water supply, the water was clean and good for drinking. Today, even the fish can't stomach it.

Maybe Kolson should check with a City Council predecessor, John Koegler, who represented Ward 3 during the 1960's.

Koegler came up with the idea of stocking the dam with fish so that Quincy and other fishermen could go over and enjoy catching them.

Well, they didn't get to catch any of them. All the fish quickly died.

Salt used in plowing streets and other gunk ingredients from modern times found their way into the dam and polluted the water.

If the water was that bad some 30 or more years ago, you can imagine what it is like today.

Tests in recent years found the quality of the water good for industrial use only and it was so used by General Dynamics.

Kolson sees the dam as a possible solution to recent water shortages in Braintree, Randolph, Holbrook and other local areas.

"Water is an increasingly valuable commodity," he says. "Rates from the MWRA are skyrocketing while water from the dam runs powhere."

Better it goes nowhere than into someone's faucet. At least, the way it is now.

Kolson has asked the DPW to test the water and if it is again found to be undrinkable, he would like to check into building a water treatment plant.

That might prove quite costly and leave a marketing problem.

I live near the dam and I wouldn't drink that water if someone paid me, even if it was filtered through the finest water treatment plant in the world.

I can still see all those dead fish floating on top of the water.

KOLSON

SPEAKING OF THE City Store, a handsome Wurlitzer organ donated by Bob Curry of Curry Hardware, was quickly snapped up for $400 Saturday.

"It was there one minute and gone the next," reports Helen Murphy, secretary to Mayor James Sheets who has been doubling as storekeeper on Saturdays.

CURRY

FORMER CONGRESSMAN Brian Donnelly has thought it over and decided not to run for governor this year.

Observers think he must have really given it some long serious thought. They note he opened an office in Neponset with the telephone number "9494" as in Election Campaign '94.

And coincidentally, Mark Roosevelt who is running, also has a telephone number with "9494" in it.

FRANK ANSELMO wants you to know that he is alive and well. And that he is the last surviving World War I veteran in Quincy.

The former School Committeeman who suffered a hip fracture and two separate fractures of the left arm in a fall last November is on the mend.

Now back at his 1000 Southern Artery apartment, after hospital and nursing home stays, he is getting around with a cane.

Last week's Sun listed the 41 nominees for its Citizen of the Year Award, among them, the late Peter E. Dunn who was 99 when he died. The nomination submitted said he was Quincy's last World War I surviving veteran.

Not so, corrects Anselmo.

Anselmo, who is 95, and was born in 1898, the year of the Spanish-American War, is a veteran of both World War I and World War II. He says that with Dunn's death, he is now the lone surviving Quincy veteran of the first world war.

Anselmo was elected to the School Committee in 1961 at 63—an age at which most men are thinking of retirement.

He served 29 years on the School Committee and in those last few years, was believed to be the oldest elected official in the state—and probably the country.

Although retired, he keeps his eye on Quincy happenings and remains an active benefactor of Quincy College.

He has also donated $65,000 in scholarships to the college and is planning to make that $100,000.

Donations Sought For 9-Year-Old Burn Victim

Quincy officials are seeking donations for a 9-year-old boy who recently received third-degree burns over half of his body.

Claudius Burrows of the Bahamas was burned Dec. 11 during an accident at a traditional Christmas festival in Freeport, Grand Bahama Island. Bahamian hospitals are not equipped to handle such burns and the boy's mother could not afford to send him elsewhere for treatment.

Quincy Housing Authority Director John "Jake" Comer and his wife, Eileen were vacationing nearby when they heard of the accident.

Knowing of the free care available at the Shriners Burn Institute in Boston, the Comers put the boy's mother in contract with Quincy Veterans Services Director Hank Bradley, whose daughter works at the burn center. Transportation was arranged, and the boy was flown to Massachusetts.

Dr. Robert Sheridan, a North Quincy High School graduate, operated on the boy and expects a full recovery. Sheridan said the boy almost certainly would have died if he had stayed in the Bahamas.

Although the treatment at the burn center is free, the boy's family needs money for transportation and hotel accommodations for visits during his expected three-month stay, and for continued treatment once the boy is released from the center.

Donations to The Claudius Burrows Fund may be brought to the QHA or Quincy Veterans Services or mailed to: The Claudius Burrows Fund, P.O. Box 38, North Quincy, MA 02171.

IN 1923 W.G. SHAW'S furniture store on the left was on the site of today's Presidents Place. This postcard view from down Washington Street was taken from in front of the newly-opened Foy's Market at 1259 Hancock St. which today is the location of the Cooperative Bank. Trolley service from the Old Colony's Quincy depot to the Fore River shipyard down Washington Street was under contract with the U.S. Government.

Nostalgic Pictorial Feature In Debut

A new pictorial feature, "Quincy Scenes From Yesterday" begins with this week's issue of The Quincy Sun.

Postcards from the collection of Tom Galvin showing city and neighborhood landmarks—some of which have changed and some now gone—will be presented on a regular basis.

The postcards, which date between 1898 and the 1930's, make a nostalgic tie-in with the popular Quincy's Yesterdays column. There are over 600 of them in the collection.

Galvin, a life-long resident of Quincy, is vice president of Boston Gear Works, president of Quincy 2000, former president of the South Shore Chamber of Commerce, a member of Quincy Historical Society Board of Trust and a community activist.

"The postcards could be mailed for a penny each," Galvin notes. "And in those days there were two mail deliveries a day. You could mail one in Quincy in the morning and it would be delivered by afternoon."

Some of the cards—though scenes of Quincy—were printed in Germany from 1900 up to the start of World War I.

"Postcards were at their popularity peak from the turn of the century to the 1930's," Galvin says. "But then came the affordable camera and the automobile and people could then take their own photos wherever they wanted to go."

We think you will enjoy this feature. For older, grass-roots residents it will be like a trip down memory lane. For new and younger residents it will give them an idea of what Quincy was like in "the good old days."

Snow Removal Neglects The Pedestrian

(The writer of the following letter submitted a copy to The Quincy Sun for publication.)

Dear Mayor Sheets,

The problem: your car is buried in an extraordinary mound of new snow, the streets are narrowed between white piles coated with ice, and parking spaces are rare. The obvious solution? Walk to the store and to church, and take the MBTA to work.

Sadly, the obvious solution to the car-cramping snowstorms of late is not so easy to execute, because many sidewalks and crosswalks on the streets of Quincy are still not adequately clear of snow and ice. That walk to the store, church, or the T is now either an exceptionally dangerous stroll in the street, or an impossible struggle through the snow.

The streets are doubly dangerous if you are disabled, elderly, a child, or someone else who cannot deftly dodge traffic and jump over snow banks. To add insult to injury, these are often the very people who do not own a car and have no choice but to walk or stay home.

There is no question that the snow we have received in the last two weeks has been well above average. The city has been forced to spend many thousands of dollars plowing and removing the mess. Public employees have exhausted themselves in a desperate effort to clear the streets.

But there is also no question that the city's snow removal system neglects the pedestrian. During my daily struggle to the T, I've seen snow plowed from the streets onto sidewalks, intersection islands with piles blocking crosswalks, and sidewalks still untouched by shovel or plow. In fact, the sidewalk on Newport Avenue up to the Quincy Center MBTA station itself is not even adequately cleared—within a hundred yards of the T!

I have read that under normal conditions, one out of every six people who die in traffic accidents are pedestrians. Forcing walkers into the streets after snowfall is certainly no way to improve that statistic. The danger also sets in motion a vicious circle in which people will choose driving over walking in the snow, leading to further congestion, parking problems, and car accidents (not to mention pollution). This leads to more and more auto-centric policies to keep cars running smoothly, making it even more difficult for pedestrians.

Ultimately, I applaud the city employees who worked to clear the street that I used to drive to my supermarket. I only lament the fact that because the sidewalks on that same street are still not clear of snow, my mother-in-law—who doesn't drive—cannot safely get to the store.

Specific examples of pedestrian ways in need of attention: Newport Avenue up to the T station, the crosswalk at the dangerous intersection of Franklin and School Streets, the sidewalks on the Parkway, and the sidewalks on Water Street.

Over 10,000 Apply For Jobs At GD Shipyard

More than 10,500 men applied for work at the soon-to-be reopened Fore River Shipyard during a four-day application period at the State Division of Employment Security office at 160 Parkway.

The Electric Boat Division of General Dynamics, the new owner of the shipyard, announced that it would be hiring several hundred workers initially for the reopening of the yard which was expected in two weeks.

The Bethlehem Steel Co. ceased operating the shipyard on Dec. 31 and sold it to General Dynamics. Many of those in the employment line had worked at the yard before and expected in two weeks.

The Bethlehem Steel Co. ceased operating the shipyard on Dec. 31 and sold it to General Dynamics. Many of those in the employment line had worked at the yard before and expected improved conditions under the new owner.

"I hear it's a progressive company," said James Moses of Hyde Park, who had worked as a welder at the yard for 11 years before being laid off in December.

Meanwhile, the Fore River Metal Trades Council opened an office at 23 Chestnut St. in a drive to organize the workers, who had been represented by the Industrial Union of Marine and Shipbuilding Workers under Bethlehem.

WORLDS FAIR EXHIBIT

City Historian William C. Edwards was making a cost study of a proposal to sponsor a Quincy historical exhibit at the New York World's Fair which was scheduled to open in April.

The proposal was made by Rep. Joseph E. Brett and would include a replica of one of the cars that was used on the first commercial railroad in West Quincy.

RAPID TRANSIT OPPOSED

Felix C. Favorite, executive secretary of the Quincy Home and Property Owners Association, said his board of directors had voted to oppose an extension of the Boston rapid transit system to Quincy.

Reasonable estimates were that the MTA deficit would add at least $6 to the Quincy tax rate, he said, "an unjustified amount for homeowners to pay for the transportation of less than 3 per cent of the population of Quincy."

A BANANA A DAY

Apples are great, but bananas may be the fruit of choice when it comes to helping control high blood pressure. Recent studies have shown that potassium, present in abundance in bananas and some other fruits and vegetables, can reduce the dosages of anti-hypertensive medication needed by some patients with high blood pressure. In one study, high blood pressure patients who ate three to six daily servings of high potassium foods for a year were able to cut their initial drug dosage in half. The study reinforces the advice that doctors have long been giving patients with high blood pressure: Eat a diet high in vegetables, legumes, and fruits, and reduce intake of salt, alcohol, and saturated fats.

P.S. People taking medication for high blood pressure should never adjust their drug dosages without their doctor's advice.

This is a diet it would benefit all of us to follow, whether or not we have high blood pressure. For more information on this, or on any aspect of heart disease, call the doctors—myself, Dr. Ronald Dunlap, or Dr. Lisa Antonelli, at COMPREHENSIVE CARDIAC CARE at 472-2550. Office hours are by appointment, and our office is located in Crown Colony, 700 Congress St., Suite 2C, in Quincy. I am affiliated with Quincy Hospital and South Shore Hospitals. This column is presented in the interest of better health for all our readers.

"It's now going to come to a reality," the mayor said. "What we're proposing makes real sense because there's consensus for it."

"There's now a working consensus for this project—something which I feel has not been available in years past. It is the reason why it had not moved forward (in the past)," Sheets added.

As proposed, the Burgin Parkway to Hancock St. link would impact only one business, Tan Line in the Parkway, which officials say would have to be demolished and relocated if preferred by the owner. Also, the city would acquire, possibly through state eminent domain, a portion of the Paperama parking lot and the former Kincaide building site where the "west link" would connect with Hancock St.

The Hancock St. to Mechanic St. "east link" may require additional razing depending on which option and design is selected, Colton explained.

Widening Revere Rd could lead to very little or no demolition at all while constructing a concourse extension from Hancock St. to Mechanic St. could raze businesses on the eastern side of Hancock St. from Bernie's Tuxedo Shop up to, but not including, Blockbuster Video, scheduled to open on the site of the former Colman's Sporting Goods, the commissioner said.

The four-lane roadway would provide two-way traffic, on-street parking and sidewalks. Officials envision a "pedestrian friendly roadway which would add to the downtown retail area rather than provide a highway through it."

For instance, Sheets said the road would provide a long-needed walkway for seniors who wish to cross Burgin Parkway and the MBTA tracks, either crossing over to the Parkway or going in the other direction to Grossman's where a 60,000-square-foot shopping center is planned.

In turn, this access would give businesses downtown a boost, Sheets said.

The roadway would meet Hancock St. at grade not as an underpass as previously proposed, Colton pointed out.

In addition, the roadway would be "street-scaped" with landscaping similar Hancock St. The landscaping will be designed by Mary Smith, a landscape architect who has designed various projects including green spaces at Marina Bay and the Walk of Names project currently underway.

Optimistically, if the project is approved with the necessary funding, officials said construction would begin in three years and take about two years to complete. A request for project acceptance, the first step in securing state and federal funding, has been submitted by Sheets to the Massachusetts Highway Department.

Colton said the project is listed as a long-term project in the Transportation Plan for the Boston region, provided by the Central Transportation Planning staff which represents all state transportation agencies.

"This gives us a leg up on other projects being submitted," the commissioner said.

The proposed Quincy Center concourse is a major initiative of Quincy 2000, the public-private partnership charged with revitalizing the city's business districts, said Chairman Thomas Galvin.

"Quincy 2000 was very much concerned that the concourse be an integral part of its plan of action. A year ago we included it in our action plan and have advanced it ever since," Galvin said.

According to Galvin, Quincy 2000 formed a committee to advance the project. The committee represented Quincy 2000's public and private sector composition.

The committee is chaired by Quincy DPW Commissioner David Colton. Other members are:

"Quincy 2000 developed a log and will take the lead on marketing the project to the public at large," Galvin said. "As a public-private partnership, Quincy 2000 can tap into the creativity not just of the public sector, but of the business and labor communities as well."

D'Aprix said Quincy 2000 will host meetings in Boston with appropriate state officials and if necessary will host a Washington meeting. In addition, the partnership will help market the project to the public.

"We will develop concourse newsletters and promotional materials in order to accurately portray the benefits of the project," D'Aprix said. Quincy 2000 will be helpful in maintaining the visibility of the project, he added.

A citizen's advisory committee has also been formed to address community concerns about the concourse. Members are:

Charles Ryder, member of the QCBPA and downtown merchant; David Ezickson, a teacher at the Point-Webster Elementary School and resident near the proposed project area; Mary Smith, landscape architect and Quincy Center merchant; John Noonan, chairman of the Quincy Council on Aging; John Keenan, local attorney and vice president of the Quincy Citizens Association; Arlene Goodman, a resident of Revere Rd.; Kevin Cotter, vice president of the South Shore Building and Trades Council; and James Hession, owner of Finian's Restaurant.

CNN's Peter Arnett Chamber Speaker Feb. 1

CNN International Correspondent Peter Arnett will discuss "How American Journalism Affects Public Policy and Politics" Tuesday, Feb. 1 at the South Shore Chamber of Commerce 7:44 a.m. breakfast at Lombardo's in Randolph.

Arnett is on tour promoting his recently published book, Live from the Battlefield, which chronicles his more than 35 years as a journalist, covering the world's war zones from Vietnam to Baghdad.

"For all its human frailties, journalism does the free world an invaluable service. We rely heavily on journalism to help shape our business, political and social policies," said chamber President Ron Zooleck. "The chamber feels it is important to take the opportunity to host this generation's premier journalist to discuss first hand the vital role journalism plays in shaping public policies and politics."

Chamber Chairman, Charles R. Simpson, Jr., president of Quincy Savings Bank, will introduce Arnett. A question and answer period will follow the address.

Quincy High School Stars Of The Month

Quincy High School announces the winners of its Stars of the Month for December.

They are: Sophomore Kristen Fluhr; junior Michelle Kotsikonas; seniors Ashley Davis and Tom Malvesti; and Assistant Principal Lou Ioanilli.

Fluhr, a distinction honor roll student, is a member of the Student Council, school band and the Quincy High swim team.

Kristen has volunteered her time for many school improvement projects such as painting the school gym and cafeteria. She is also a student advisory member to re-design the school cafeteria.

Kotsikonas was nominated because she has made great strides this past year. Michelle has become a positive force in the classroom, making good grades and showing leadership to younger students.

Additionally, she has become involved in extra-curricular school activities serving as an effective member of the School Mediation Program. In the community, Michelle volunteers her time in a local nursing home and with victims of cerebral palsy.

Davis, a two-year captain of the wrestling team and a two-year starter in football, was nominated by his coaches for displaying outstanding qualities of leadership and being a solid role model for younger members of his team.

He is the first to reach out a helping hand to a fellow student or athlete, and displays a genuine and sincere quality of caring.

Malvesti is an honor roll-high honor roll student. He has been a starter on the basketball and baseball teams for the past two years.

Tom played football as a senior, was the team leader in receptions, and made the Patriot Ledger Honorable Mention team. He is considering Brandeis, Stonehill, Boston College and the University of North Carolina to continue his education and baseball careers.

Ioanilli was selected for the responsibilities and duties he performs to keep Quincy High running smoothly as well as for all the extra things he does.

Convention Choice For School Committee Seat

Third Time Proves Lucky For Barry

By MICHAEL WHALEN

It was third time luck for Sean Barry, who began his second quest for a seat on the Quincy School Committee with a loss and a tie but finally ended up with a victory.

A Constitutional Convention of the School Committee and City Council chose Barry, director of public affairs at Quincy College over office manager Christine Cedrone by a 9-4 vote to fill the lone School Committee seat left vacant since the city's November election. The convention lasted only 22 minutes.

Barry, 29, said he was thrilled with the win.

"There's an awful lot of people who supported me that I owe this to, people who gave until it hurt," said Barry. "I owe everything to those folks, and we'll all be getting together soon to celebrate. We thought we'd be doing it in November, but it'll be a little bit nicer now."

"There's an old quote I carry around with me from Franklin Roosevelt: 'never quit; never, ever quit.' And it's true. You can never quit."

City Council President Michael Cheney, Ward 1 Councillor Peter Kolson, Ward 3 Councillor Lawrence Chretien, Ward 5 Councillor Charles Phelan, Ward 6 Councillor Bruce Ayers, School Committee Vice Chairman Daniel Raymond and School Committee members Stephen Durkin, Ronald Mariano and Linda Stice voted for Barry. Councillors Timothy Cahill and Joseph LaRaia, Ward 4 Councillor Thomas Fabrizio and School Committee member JoAnn Bragg supported Cedrone.

Two city officials abstained from the vote because of conflict-of-interest reasons. Mayor James Sheets, who serves as chairman of the School Committee, abstained because he is on leave from a teaching position at Quincy College, which is under the School Committee's jurisdiction. Ward 2 Councillor Ted DeCristofaro did not vote because his son, Richard DeCristofaro, is assistant superintendent of schools.

Each person voting had a reason for his or her choice. Chretien, for instance, cited Barry's "longer commitment" to education, including his work at Quincy College. Bragg, however, said she supported Cedrone because Barry's occupation, under the rules of the state Ethics Commission, will prevent him from voting on matters pertaining to the college.

Barry, however, said after taking his oath of office from City Clerk Joseph Shea that there are plenty of other matters facing the School Committee that he will turn his attentions to. He listed among them planned improvements to the Parker Elementary School in North Quincy and a proposal to reopen the Beechwood Elementary School in Wollaston for Grades K-5.

Barry, who lost a bid for School Committee in 1991, shook hands with Cedrone after he was named to the seat.

"I told her I knew exactly what she was going through," he said. "This was her first time running for office, and these elections can be a wonderful learning experience. I wish her well."

Cedrone, 23, said she was disappointed a special citywide election could not be held to fill the seat but offered Barry her congratulations.

"I just hope he remembers that every decision he makes will impact every student in the city," said Cedrone, who added that she will not contest the Convention's decision and plans to run for School Committee again in the city's 1995 election.

Cedrone edged Barry by eight votes (5,716 to 5,708) for the third and final seat available in the Nov. 2 election. A subsequent four-day recount asked for by both candidates, however, resulted in a deadlock of 5,734 votes apiece.

Barry Wins School Committee Seat

Quincy's city charter, such a tie must be broken by a Constitutional Convention of School Committee and City Council members. The City Council, however, last month passed a home-rule petition in the hopes of holding a special election to resolve the issue. Sheets signed the petition and it was sent to the state Legislature.

Cedrone had expressed hopes that a special election would be held, saying that the residents of the city should be allowed to choose who won the School Committee seat. Barry, however, said he favored following the city charter, mainly because a special election would have opened the field to other candidates.

When the petition was not passed by the Legislature before the beginning of its new session Jan. 5, city officials opted not to resubmit the petition because they did not want the School Committee seat left open for a prolonged period of time.

Had a special election been held, the winner would have held the seat for its full four-year term. Under the terms of city charter, however, the Constitutional Convention victory means Barry will have to run for re-election in 1995. The seat Barry currently holds will be available for another two-year term in 1995, and will revert back to its four-year term status in 1997.

Shea said in 1995, Barry can either run for the two-year term or run for one of the three four-year seats currently held by Durkin, Raymondi and Stice.

Incumbent Mariano and tax accountant Bragg easily placed first and second respectively in the November election. Two seats had been left open by School Committee members Margaret "Peggy" King and Frank Santoro who both decided not to run for re-election.

Controversy over Moon Island began heating up last September when Boston began plans to expand a gun range there that is used by Boston and Quincy police as well as officials from the federal Drug Enforcement Agency.

The City of Boston owns Moon Island and Long Island, but Moon Island lies within Quincy city limits.

Quantum residents and Quincy officials became concerned about the gun range expansion after Boston police began clearing land on the island without notifying Quincy officials or obtaining the necessary environmental permits.

A Norfolk Superior Court judge ordered the expansion to be halted last October, but also gave Boston permission to rebuild the original range, which has been razed.

Sheets has also expressed concerns about Boston's detonation of bombs on the island.

Sheets has said he was pleased that Menino agreed at their meeting last month to have the gun range close at 5 p.m. Quantum residents have complained that in the past, gunshots at the range could sometimes be heard as late as 9 p.m.

Menino, however, would not agree to the idea of having the gun range moved to a site other than Moon Island, according to Sheets. The mayor also said last month that Menino also said he would have to consult with the Boston Fire Department before deciding on the bomb issue.

Sheets has also indicated that the joint commission to be formed will examine ways to utilize Long Island as a recreational and historic site, and noted that he and Menino agreed that the site should not be utilized for commercial development in the future.

Quincy Girls Defeat North For First Win

By KERRY BYRNE

The smiles on the faces of the Quincy High girls' basketball team said it all as they defeated arch-rival North Quincy, 51-39, at the Quincy High gym for their first win of the year. The season series now stands at one win apiece.

Kerri Connolly and Julie Dorsey led the Presidents attack with 19 and 16 points respectively. The two sophomores scored early and often, posting 21 of Quincy's 27 first half points. Dorsey also recorded a game-high 9 rebounds and 2 steals.

The Red Raiders jumped to a quick 6-0 lead and it looked like the Presidents were on their way to another loss when an 18 to 1 Quincy run changed the momentum of the game. Quincy took a 27-17 lead into half-time.

In the second half North Quincy fought back to within 7 on the heels of strong performances from Kerri Ginty and Kristen Masciulli, who each scored 6 second period points (both had 8 overall). Kristen Proude was put in the game to provide North with some long range shooting ability, which she produced with a late 3-point.

These efforts were not enough as Quincy maintained a comfortable margin throughout the half. After scoring 7 points in the first half, North Quincy's Sara Stanton, arguably the best player in the Old Colony League and only a sophomore, was shut down by the smothering defense of senior Laura Marsden and freshman Angela Hogrell. Stanton notched only 3 second half points.

Perhaps the game's biggest hero was senior Quincy captain Jaime Graham who overcame a 103 degree temperature to record five huge late game points after the Red Raiders had closed the gap. Graham also grabbed 5 rebounds and 3 steals.

Other top performers for the Presidents included Sandi Buonopane and Kelly Howard. Each came off the bench to record 2 points. Sabrina Marotto played excellent defense while scoring 2 points and grabbing 5 boards. Mairead Faherty also played tough defense for Quincy.

A smiling Bob Keuther, Quincy head coach, was overjoyed following his team's impressive victory.

"I really felt we could run against this team," said Keuther. "And that's what we did. Every girl on the team did a great job in this one."

North Quincy coach Ken Panaro agreed with Keuther as to the difference in the game.

"The just beat us running tonight," said Panaro. "Hopefully we'll be able to beat them on our own court the next time we play."

It was obvious that Keuther, as well as assistants Nicole LaRocco and Bob Noble, did a superb job to prepare their very young Presidents squad. The nine-member varsity team features four sophomores and one freshman.

North Quincy also fields a young squad and Stanton looks to be one of the dominant players in the league in the next two years. Both Quincy and North Quincy should be forces to be reckoned with in the future.

North Rocks Plymouth, Climbs To First Place

By DAVE SOUTHWICK

The North Quincy boys basketball team has set two goals for themselves this season: a berth in the Div. 1 state tournament and an Old Colony League title, the school's first league crown since 1972.

The Raiders took another step towards these goals last Friday with another impressive victory, this time over Plymouth, 61-33. The win put North into sole possession of first place with a 7-1 record (7-3 overall).

North was scheduled to play at Falmouth Tuesday and at home against Quincy last night (Wednesday). Upcoming action has North at home against Barnstable this Friday and at Silver Lake next Tuesday.

In the win against Plymouth, North was led once again by Jason McLeod. The senior center collected 28 points (21 in the first half) and nine rebounds in a performance that caught the eyes of scouts from UMass-Boston and Southern Maine among others.

North raced off to 13-0 and the 17-2 leads early in the first half and dominated the game from this point. Sophomore Matt Beston led the Raider attack with seven points in the run. Brad Gray and McLeod each pitched in with four. The excellent defensive play of Matt Ngutler and Beston gave North a 36-20 lead at the half.

The second half continued to go in North Quincy's favor. A Brian Raftery layup gave the home team their biggest lead to that point, a 20-point margin at 44-24 midway through the half. Excellent defense off the bench by Mike Koski, Adam DeBoer and Mike Santoro helped give North their fourth consecutive victory.

"I thought we played very, very well, our defense was awesome," said coach Ted Stevenson. "We made them play in our tempo and that hurt them."

Stevenson also pointed out the extreme pressure put on his team in their first meeting, a 37-35 Plymouth win. That pressure reversed itself this time around, thus resulting in a different type of score, a score the coach and team can feel good about.

Rounding out the scoring for North were Beston with nine points, Raftery with eight, Gray with four, Ngutler and Santoro with three apiece, and Kevin Ross and Jerry Fernandez with two points each. Bob Johnston also played well off the bench in the second half.

During the game, coach Stevenson took a second to point to the 1972 Greater Boston League championship banner in the gymnasium rafters. He then told his team that this group is in first place. A place they hope to stay.

Joseph Gildea To Receive Baseball Writers Award

Joseph Gildea, a 52-year resident of Quincy, will receive the "Good Guy Award" from the Boston Chapter of the Baseball Writers' Association of America tonight (Thursday) at the Sheraton-Boston.

The association's 55th annual awards dinner at the hotel will begin with a cocktail hour from 6 to 7 p.m. Dinner will be served at 7:30 p.m.

Gildea, 85, whose sports credits include serving as press steward for the New England Patriots and Boston Red Sox spring training in Florida and earlier work for the Boston Bruins and at the former Braves Field in Boston, said he did not expect to win the award.

"It was a great surprise to me, and I still can't believe it," said Gildea, who said he only learned of the award a couple of weeks ago. "Some great names have gotten it."

Among the past recipients of the award, which was established in

JOSEPH GILDEA

1966, are former Red Sox General Manager Haywood Sullivan, former Red Sox players Johnny Pesky (who also coached for the team) and Rico Petrelli, and former Red Sox broadcaster Ken Coleman. Gildea said last year's recipient was Red Sox legal counsel John Donovan, who has since passed away.

Gildea said he ushered and did other broadcast work at Braves Field before becoming an assistant to the legendary Bruins broadcaster Frank Ryan from 1940 to 1960. Since then, he has been press steward for the Patriots. In addition, he has served as press steward for Red Sox spring training for the last "15 or 16" years.

Gildea, who once served as chairman of an annual sports dinner held by the Montclair Men's Club, has been similarly honored by that organization as well as the Jewish War Veterans of Quincy and the Quincy Citizens Association.

"I've been pretty lucky," he said.

A resident of 45 Division St. in the Montclair section of North Quincy, Gildea has lived in the city since 1942. Husband of the late Hilda (Baker) Gildea, he has five children: Joseph Jr. of Dorchester, Dennis of Hingham, William of Bridgewater, Kevin of Orleans and Kathleen Johnson of Hull.

Johnston Hits At Buzzer For North Freshmen Win

A last second buzzer beat by Mike Johnston lifted the North Quincy freshmen hoop team to a dramatic 49-48 win over Plymouth. The win avenged an earlier loss to Plymouth for the 7-3 Red Raiders.

Trailing by one point with a mere six seconds remaining, scoring guard Mike Doyle brought the ball out of his own end of the court. He eluded a Plymouth double team with a behind the back dribble and a pass to point guard Chris Erler. Erler penetrated the Plymouth defense and made a perfect pass to Johnston who shot the ball with only one tick remaining.

"Johnston scored 19 points but that last shot was something special," said coach Jim Johnston.

Tom Coughlin scored 12 points for North Quincy and controlled the boards.

Doyle added 12 points and Jim Finn made two critical rebounds at the end of the game. Erler ran the NQ offense and made a number of important assists. John Heim and Mike Barry played timely defense for the young Red Raiders.

The North Quincy freshmen hoopers can be seen this Saturday at 11 a.m. when they play at Archbishop Williams.

Junior Red Raiders In Win, Loss Split

The North Quincy Junior Red Raiders split their opening two games in the Masters of Basketball Association League in Weymouth.

The Red Raiders opened with an exciting 27-18 comeback victory over the Needham Dragons.

Eric Stanton kept the game close with 4 points for the Red Raiders. They trailed 13-9 in the first half when a full-court press turned the tide. Brandon Sleeth, Danny Duggan and Charlie Acton came up with several steals.

A third quarter 3-point play by Patrick Bregoli brought the Red Raiders to within one. Bregoli then hit Joe Sudak with a pass under the hoop which he converted to give North Quincy the lead for good.

Bregoli led all scorers with 10 points. Acton and Sudak each scored 5, while Duggan had 3 and Sleeth notched 2.

The Raiders fell to a large Braintree squad, 37-

18. Sudak and Peter Turowski rebounded well against the taller Braintree players.

North Quincy trailed by only five entering the final quarter. The team played excellent defense with Sudak and Duggan coming up with several steals and loose balls.

Sudak led the Raiders with 6 points while Bregoli was close behind with 5. Sleeth posted 4, Duggan had 2 and Stanton scored 1.

North Hosts Quincy

North Quincy and Quincy are both coming off Monday afternoon Old Colony League victories as they prepare to play each other tonight (Wednesday) at 7 p.m. at North Quincy.

North Quincy traveled to Falmouth and came away 54-51 winners.

Jason McLeod, the Red Raiders' leader all season, ended the contest with 17 points, eight rebounds and nine blocked shots, one shy of his own North Quincy team record. Also playing large for North were Brian Raftery and Matt Beston. Raftery posted 11 points and 14 rebounds while Beston chipped in with nine points.

The win secured North Quincy's hold on first place in the Old Colony League at 8-1, 8-3 overall. The Presidents topped Weymouth, 60-55, in a game played at Eastern Nazarene College.

Senior captain Joe Kelly carried Quincy with 14 points and nine rebounds. Senior Brian McPartlin, Quincy's best inside player, chalked up nine points to go with his game high 11 rebounds. The Presidents playedout, leading 30-27 at the half, and doubling that by game's end.

The win moves Quincy up to 6-5.

Tonight's match will be interesting contrast of styles as the Red Raiders will try to power the ball down low with their big men, the 6'8" McLeod and the 6'4" Raftery.

Quincy will counter with speed and finesse, relying on high-pressure man-to-man defense while clogging the middle in an effort to keep the ball away from the big guys.

Both teams have done extremely well in tight games this season and this one should fall into that category. If it does we will all be in for a treat. The Red Raiders have won several recent games in which they've had to overcome large second half deficits. Coach Ted Stevenson's hair will attest to that. Quincy has been aided greatly by the ability of veterans such as Tom Malvesti and Mike Bartlett to handle late game pressure.

If Quincy can keep the ball out of the hands of McLeod and keep their leaders out of foul trouble they will have a good chance. The Presidents also need great games from McPartlin and Kelly who will be doing most of the grunt work against Raftery and McLeod.

North has to get the ball inside. If they do it could be a long night for Quincy. The North guards also have to be at the top of their game in order to handle the Quincy defense.

Pee Wee Cs Shell Wellesley, 11-2

In the second round of the state playoff games, the Quincy Pee Wee Cs pounded Wellesley, 11-2. One more win and the Pee Wees will advance to the state tournament.

When Quincy jumped out to an overwhelming 5-0 lead in the first period, coach Nee rotated players to positions they do not normally play. John Bertucci ended as the top Quincy goal scorer with a hat trick. Chris Mullen and Joe Vallatini notched two goals each. The other goals were netted by Chris Lumaghini, Josh Silverman, Mike D. Sullivan and Mike Hastings.

Two assists were credited to both Shaun Cheney and Mike C. Sullivan. Also with assists were Lumaghini, Bertucci, T.J. Wilson and Mike Hastings. Big playmakers were Vallatini and Mike Carloni.

Quincy was able to dominate Wellesley despite missing three key defensemen due to illness.

In another game the Quincy Pee Wee Cs were halted by the Pembroke B team, 3-1.

Quincy outplayed and outshot Pembroke but were denied by some superb goaltending. Vallatini scored the lone Quincy goal on an assist from Dave Noonan.

The Quincy Cs have played several games against the stiffer competition of B and A level opponents.

Sports Spotlight

By KERRY BRYNE

In North Quincy's 4-2 victory over Quincy, Steve Provost scored what may have been the most unusual goal this kid has seen in 20 years of watching hockey.

The Quincy High defenseman raced from his own end of the ice to about 35 feet from North Quincy goaltender Mike Manganaro, dead center. Provost cocked his stick to make an lafrate-like slapshot. (Being from the John Pierson school of hockey, I must emphasize the wristshot over the slapshot.) Anyway, Provost uncorked and the puck was blocked by a North Quincy defender. The puck went flying straight up in the air and hit the roof of the Quincy Youth Arena.

Or so I thought.

It seems I mistook the black-tape covered blade of Provost's broken hockey stick for the puck. As did the rest of the crowd. As did WJDA play-by-play man Mike Logan. And as did, so it seems, Manganaro. Manganaro was looking up in the air too, thinking that the black blade was the puck. While staring at the decapitated head of the stick the puck fluttered by him for a goal that nobody saw. Bizarre!

While we are on the subject of Quincy vs. North Quincy: Everyone knows that the intra-city rivalry, one of only a handful left in the state, means a great deal to a lot of people. Whether it's Thanksgiving football or teenage tiddlywinks, when the Presidents take on the Red Raiders the game has special meaning. Just ask Jaime Graham, captain of the Quincy High girls' basketball team. Graham woke up last Wednesday with a temperature of 103. Knowing that if she didn't go to school she couldn't play that night against North Quincy, she bravely did both. Not only that, she played great as the Presidents won their first game of the year, 51-39.

Talk about playing big in big games. Hockey player Billy McKeon has done it all for two teams, Granite Rail Pizza of the Mite House League, and the Quincy Mite A travel squad which he captains.

In the Mite House League Jamboree, McKeon led Granite Rail with SIX goals as they beat Barry's Deli, 9-6, in the semi-finals. In the Jamboree final he scored four goals for his team as they cruised past Skatesmith, 5-3.

In December, the Mite A's took part in the Santa Claus Tournament in Hingham. After three wins, in which several players did well, Quincy took on Milton for the tourney title. In this game it was all McKeon, as the captain scored every goal in a 5-4 win over Milton.

Hey, maybe if the Buffalo Bills had McKeon they could win a title or two.

Three different players from the City of Quincy will be taking part in the 16th Annual Shriners Football Classic, June 17 at BU's Nickerson Field at 7:30.

Quincy quarterback Mike Bartlett will direct the attack for the South team. Also on his side will be North Quincy's mammoth end Brian Raftery and lineman Dave Pacine.

Two Quincy residents, Ralph Mosher and David Spillane, are taking part in the 11th annual Red Sox Fantasy Camp, operated by the Sox Exchange of Waterbury, VT. The fantasy camp is being held in Fort Myers, FL, and allows 130 Sox fans from around the country to play with 23 former Red Sox greats. Featured Sox will range from Johnny Pesky and Bobby Doerr to Bill Lee, Denny Doyle and Bob Stanley.

A football fantasy camp will be hosted by Kerry J. Byrne (a.k.a. Rudy), as thousands congregate in the seaside resort of Adams Shore to re-live the many bonecrushing hits and head-stepping TDs which marked his legendary high school career.

Some notes of interest: The Quincy High Baseball Hall of Fame Committee is now accepting nominations for the Quincy High School Baseball Hall of Fame. Nominations can be sent to: Quincy High School Baseball Hall of Fame, c/o Joseph Brill, 87 Woodcliff Rd., Quincy, 02169.

The Hall of Fame banquet will be held on Tuesday, March 29 at the Sons of Italy. For more info, call Joe Brill at 770-4813.

Anyone interested in umpiring or playing softball, or sanctioning your own tournaments, or starting a league of your own, are asked to call Ginny Trainor at 328-0620, ASAP.

Hockey

THAT North Line Too Much For Quincy

The Jimmy Sapienza-Brendan O'Brien-A.J. Carthas line of North Quincy made it clear why they are the most devastating weapons in the Old Colony League as the Red Raiders topped Quincy, 4-2.

The linemates currently rank No. 1,2 and 3 in the OCL in scoring. In this contest they had a hand in all but one North goal. The opener, an O'Brien tally on a breakaway, came just 45 seconds into the contest.

When North's Bob Flannery scored just three minutes later it looked like the Raiders might run away with the game. The Quincy players, led by Steve Provost and Dave Cooper, felt differently.

Backbitten by the heavy checking of Provost, the Presidents defense stiffened and a much improved Quincy team, which had been outshot 12 to 3 in the first period, entered the second. Cooper scored the lone goal of the middle period as he slipped a backhander through the pads of North netminder Mike Manganaro at 5:04. Provost was credited with the assist.

Their was an obvious pick up in the intensity of the game in the second period as the teams battled evenly back and forth.

Both teams recorded 14 shots in the second. Cooper was brilliant for Quincy as he carried the play in the last minute of the period and rattled off five shots during that span. Manganaro stonewalled each of his attempts.

When Provost tied the game on a broken stick slapshot (see Sports Spotlight) at 3:32 of the third period, Quincy coach Bob Sylvia must have been happy.

"If we play perfect for two periods and keep it close into the third period we should have a good chance," said Sylvia before the game.

It was big guns of NQ however, frustrated for most of the game, that dominated the final period. At 8:41 Carthas reeled off a goal on an assist from Sapienza.

Less than two minutes later Carthas returned the favor as he took a pass from Andrew Vermette and fed the puck to Sapienza. The winger raced down the left side of the ice and beat goaltender Mark Smith stick side, waist-high.

Despite giving up the four goals, Smith kept Quincy in the game as he turned away 30 North Quincy shots.

"Their goalie played excellent," said North coach Tom Benson, who felt that his team should have put Quincy away earlier.

"We had several chances that we didn't capitalize on and some penalties really hurt us," he said. The Red Raiders spent six minutes of the third period with a man in the penalty box.

Sylvia was gracious in defeat.

"We had them where we wanted them and our kids gave everything they had. The team that won deserved to win," said Sylvia.

The two rivals have played extremely close hockey in recent years. Last year each team won one game. Two years ago NQ captured one game while the second was a tie. The year before that saw the schools deadlocked with two ties. Quincy and North Quincy will face off again Wednesday, Feb. 16.

Youth Hockey

McGrath's 4 Goals Spark Doran, 7-4

Martin McGrath was the week's high scorer with four goals as he led Doran & Horigan past Green Environmental, 7-4.

The other goal scorers for Doran were "Skateless" Joe Jackson, Mark Fitzpatrick and Conrad Leger. Skateless Joe was the game's leading playmaker with three assists. Leger had two assists and McGrath posted one.

The points for Green were notched by Jordan

Virtue, Joe Callahan, Pat O'Donnell and Mark Tetreault. Assisting were Matt Miller (2), Tetreault (2), Robert Rice and O'Donnell.

Quincy Sun topped Johnson Motor Parts, 4-2.

Peter Turowski scored twice for the Sun and Matt Gregory and Matt Conso each scored once. Turowski also posted two assists. Gregory and Shawn Richardson each had one assist.

Matt Kenney and Tom

Hughes scored the goals for Johnson Motor Parts. Assisting were Frank Curreri and Shaun Flaherty.

Burgin Platner breezed past Granite Auto Electric, 7-3.

Leading the charge for Burgin were Matt Petit and Joe Cunningham with two goals each. Terrence Doherty, Sean Fennelly and Mark Gibbons. Jim Devlin, Scott Markarian, Matt Glynn, Matt Reggiannini and Gibbons had the assists.

Paul Flynn scored all three goals for Granite Auto. Assists were dished out by Kevin Patten, Rene Lumaghini and Jon Paquette.

The standings as the second half of the season gets underway: Green Environmental, 7-4-1; Granite Auto Electric, 5-5-2; Johnson Motor Parts, 5-5-2; Quincy Sun, 5-5-2; Doran & Horigan, 4-5-3; Burgin Platner, 4-6-2.

Squirt Bs Advance To Tourney Finals

The Quincy Youth Hockey Squirt B team advanced to the finals of the Coca-Cola Tournament by winning three straight games.

In the first game Quincy bested Belmont, 4-3.

Scoring goals were Shawn Richardson, Shawn Flaherty, Jon Paquette and Joe Fitzpatrick. Assisting were Pat Lahar, Jordan Virtue and Frank Guest.

Quincy also topped the South Shore Seahawks, 5-2.

Leading the way was Paquette with two goals. Also with tallies were Joe Callahan, Kevin Patten and Martin McGrath. With assists were Fitzpatrick (2), Rene Lumaghini (2), Patten and Callahan.

In the third match Quincy edged Cape Cod Canal, 3-2.

Quincy's goal scorers were Joe Cunningham, Richardson and Paquette. Assisting were Fitzpatrick and Paquette.

Tom Maloney, Jill McLinnis and Dan Sheehan were outstanding defenders for Quincy in all three games. Pat O'Donnell played superb between the pipes.

The Coca-Cola Tournament is held on Cape Cod. The final will be played on Jan. 30.

Walker Scores 4 In Morrissey Win

Billy Walker scored four goals as Mike Morrissey Club outgunned Colonial Federal, 10-7.

Walker had plenty of help as Shaun Cheney notched a hat trick and John Katsarikas, Chris Griffin and Jamie Parisi scored one each. Brian Sylvester was the big playmaker for Morrissey Club with three assists. Also with assists were Mike Viles, Mike Cuniffi, Katsarikas, Parisi, Walker and Cheney.

The games third hat trick was recorded by Pat

Kenney as he paced Colonial Federal. Ryan Krueger added two goals. The other goal scorers were Rick Tatem and Billy Connolly. Assisting were Steve King, Sean Haidul, Connolly, Kenney and Tatem.

Neponset Valley Survey edged Marina Bay Taxi, 7-5, on the strength of two goals each by Sean LeFebvre and Josh Silverman. The other tallies were notched by Matt Gibbons, Mike Powers and Nick Pizziferri. Assists were made by LeFebvre (2), Gibbons (2), Pizziferri, Jeff Glynn and Mike C. Sullivan.

The games only hat trick was recorded by Kevin Mason for Marina Bay. Mason also logged one assist. Joe Vallatini added the other two goals along with two assists. Mike D. Sullivan also posted two assists.

Keohane's knocked off Skinner's Winners, 5-3.

Paul Markarian and Chris Carthas netted two goals each for Keohane's. Didier Alther added the fifth goal. Alther also made three assists. Markarian notched two assists and Jeff Langille and Spike Bertucci had one apiece.

The Skinner's tallies were made by Chris Lee, John Kisielius and Tim Connor. Lee and Sean Fitzgerald recorded assists.

The standings entering the second half of the season: Morrissey Club, 9-3-0; Marina Bay Taxi, 7-5-0; Colonial Federal, 6-4-2; Neponset Valley, 5-6-1; Skinner's Winners, 4-8-0; Keohane's, 3-8-1.

John M. Smith, 64 Owned Scottish Connection; Was Explosives Expert

A memorial service for John M. Smith, 64, of Quincy, will be held Sunday, Jan. 30 in the Ethel Walker Chapel, Simsbury, Conn.

Mr. Smith died Jan. 19 at home.

He was the owner of Scottish Connection at Marina Bay, which he opened 10 years ago. The family-run firm imports jewelry, clothing and other goods from Scotland and arranges travel between the United States and Scotland.

He had traveled frequently between Scotland and the United States since opening the store.

Previously he was a senior vice president of Ensign-Bickford Industries in Connecticut and president of its Darworth Co.

He was recruited in 1959 by Ensign-Bickford while working for the Nobel Explosives Division of Imperial Chemical Industries in Scotland. He started with the Connecticut company as a bench chemist and retired in 1984 as a top executive.

He held eight U.S. patents, all dealing with explosives. Born in Greensburg, Pa., he was the son of Scottish immigrants who sought a better life in America. Because the Great Depression limited their opportunities here, they returned to Scotland when he was 4.

He grew up in Largs, a small seaside town south of Glasgow, and was a graduate of Strath Clyde University. He held a master's degree in chemistry.

From 1952 to 1954 he served with the British Army in northern Germany.

Several years after moving back to the United States, he completed the Stanford University Executive Program.

He enjoyed tennis and was a member of the Quincy Tennis Club.

Skiing, golf and canoeing were among his other favorite pastimes.

He was a member of the board of directors of Applied Robotics in Albany, N.Y. for the past seven years. He served on the scholarship committee of the Scots Charitable Society and was a member emeritus of the American Chemical Society.

He is survived by his wife, Isabelle (Wilson) Smith; a son, John Ramsay Smith of Simsbury, Conn.; two daughters, Ann Smith Thomas of Scituate and Aileen Smith Eeley of Quincy; and three grandchildren.

Burial will be in Scotland.

SCOTT DEWARE

A THOUGHT FOR THE WEEK

"Dreams never hurt anybody if he keeps working right behind the dream to make as much of it come real as he can." - F.W. Woolworth.

How can you make your dreams come true? First, get rid of all your little ideas. Make your dreams and ideas big enough so that they become exciting. Make them large enough that they can draw real power out of you, really capture the whole of your motivated activity. Second, check your dreams first to be sure that they not only serve your interests, but those of your fellow men. Third, go forward with faith and enthusiasm...

Think big, pray big, act big - and your big dreams can come true...

It has been said that it is difficult to say what is impossible, for the dream of yesterday is the hope of today and the reality of tomorrow...

Mite House

McKeon Leads Granite To Mite House Jamboree Title

Billy McKeon led the way as Granite Rail Pizza knocked off Skatesmith, 5-3, to win the Mite House League Jamboree championship.

McKeon, the Granite Rail captain, scored four goals for the champs. Also scoring was Bobby Donovan. Assisting on the goals were Brendan Conley, Bruce Maggio and Andy Patten. Mike Donelin was outstanding in goal as he backboned the championship effort.

For Skatesmith, John Segalla scored twice and brother Steve added the third tally. Each also had an assist, as did C.J.

Stivaletta.

To advance to the finals Granite Rail outscored Barry's Deli, 9-6.

McKeon was enormous in this one, too, netting six. Josh Giordano, Bobby Donovan and Andy Patten scored the other goals. With assists were Mike Ogilvie, Ryan Conley, Paul Grazioso, McKeon, Giordano and Donovan.

Andy Ross notched a hat trick for Barry's Deli. The other three goals were scored by Brendan Linnane, Danny Sullivan and Ryan Tobin. Assisting were Mike Delaboyde, Justin Swierk, Steve Price, Matt Germain, Tobin and Ross.

Skatesmith advanced to the championship game by edging Lydon Russell, 6-5.

Billy Barter and John Segalla each scored twice for the eventual runners-up. Chris Sheehan and Steve Segalla added single tallies. Steve Segalla also posted three assists. Sheehan and John Segalla each assisted once.

For Lydon Russell, Steve O'Brien netted two goals. Brian Lynch, Justin Thorley and John Chevalier had single goals. Tom Gleason was the big playmaker with two assists. Tom Walsh, Miah Hasson and Lynch also recorded assists.

By LESLIE SATKEVICH
The Quincy Bay girls' basketball teams ran into very tough competition this weekend. The eighth grade girls suffered three defeats.

On Saturday they fell to Norwell, 26-15, in South Shore League play. Erin Barry scored 2 points and grabbed a whopping 10 rebounds. Sarah Satkevich scored 6 points and Dominique Good scored 3. With 2 points were Christie Myers and Leela Shankar.

Later in the day Quincy was topped by Hingham, 20-7. Satkevich scored 3 points and 2 were added by Kelly Shaw and Jocelyn West. West also added 3 assists.

On Sunday the eighth graders dropped a close decision to North Attleboro, 32-29. Good paced Quincy with 8 points, followed by Barry with 7. Myers netted 6 points while Satkevich and Shankar both scored 3. Kara McSweeney pitched in with 2 points.

On Saturday the Quincy seventh grade girls were bested by Norwell, 13-10. Catherine Giordano was outstanding as she scored 7 of Quincy's points and picked up an amazing 21 rebounds. Kim Heurth scored 4 points and was impressive in the defensive zone with 8 steals. Liz Boc notched 2 points.

The seventh graders fell to a powerful Newton squad, 46-23. Giordano and Heurth again led Quincy with 10 and 9 points, respectively. Liz Carlen chipped in 1 point.

The seventh grade team was hampered by the absence of a number of their players but sixth graders Aubrey Guastalli and Caitlin Powers filled in wonderfully. Powers was strong on the boards with 8 bounds while Guastalli scored 3 points.

In Saturday's sixth grade action, Quincy was nipped by Weymouth, 24-22. Guastalli was the leading scorer Quincy while Amy Satkevich was tops off the glass. Caitlyn O'Donnell and Lisa Vidali played exceptional defense.

On Sunday Quincy blew out St. Ann's CYO, 49-10. Kelly Raymer led the charge with 14 points. Other top scorers were Guastalli (9), Powers (6), Satkevich (5) and Ashley Rowderink (4). Also scoring were O'Donnell, Vidali, Tama Baker, Camilla Kidd and Aimee DuBois, each with two points.

team, sponsored by Northland Seaford, started off the second half of the Greater Boston Youth Hockey League schedule with a 7-0 victory of Canton.

Andy Ross, Brian O'Hanley and Billy McKeon each scored twice for Quincy. Bryan Cooper had the other tally. Miah Hasson had two assists while Kevin Richardson, Tim Duggan, Matt Lavery, Cooper and McKeon collected one each.

Bruce Maggio was strong in goal as he turned in his second shutout of the season. Matt Germain, Jamie Chiochio, Jon Chevalier and Sean Moriarity all played well for Quincy.

St. Moritz Devils Roll And Tie

The St. Moritz Devils played two excellent hockey games this weekend. On Saturday they punished the Lowell Chiefs, 12-3, and on Sunday they battled to a 0-0 tie with the Assabet Valley Patriots.

Two players, Pat Balaconis of South Boston and Mike Aylward of Milton, registered hat tricks against Lowell. Kevin Lynch of Milton was close behind as he scored two quick goals.

Also scoring were Corey Rosenfield of Sharon, Steve and John Segalla, both of Quincy, and Bobby Celucci of Marshfield. With assists were Balaconis, Aylward, Rosenfield and Steve Segalla. The defensemen for the Devils were excellent and they helped set up several goals.

Sundays game against Assabet Valley was an exciting and evenly contested match. Tom Hughes of Quincy, Mike Carr of Hyde Park and Joe Carr of South Boston made several assaults but were unable to penetrate the pads of the excellent Patriots' goalie. Brett Wood of Newton made a dramatic late game rush at the net but was unable to score what would have been the game winning goal.

The Devils were awesome on defense as they shut down the Assabet Valley attack. Tim Egan of Braintree and Mark Mulhern and Richie Howe, both of Milton, were top-notch defenders. Goalie Kevin Regan of South Boston was flawless between the pipes for St. Moritz.

In action the week before, the Devils fell to the North Shore Raiders, 3-0. They were also topped by the South Shore Kings, 7-3.

St. Moritz goals against the Kings were scored by Aylward, John Segalla and Steve Segalla. Assists were made by Balaconis and Nick Sarno of Milton.

St. John's

Bob Saluti and Mike Priscella are locked in a tight battle for the lead in St. John's Holy Name Society Bowling League. Saluti has a razor thin lead with an average of 102.83. Priscella is breathing down his neck with an average of 102.82.

Priscella has the best high triple with a score of 345. Saluti is second with 344. In third is Dave Gilliland with a high triple of 320.

Saluti has rolled the best high single, 144. The second highest score was posted by, you guessed it, Priscella. Gilliland has the third best single with 133.

The high team triple was rolled by Saluti's team, 1156.

in my necessity. Oh Star of the Sea, help me and show me
herein you are my mother. Oh,
Holy Mary, Mother of God,
Queen of Heaven and Earth! I humbly beseech you from the bottom of my heart to succor me in this necessity. There are none that can withstand your power. Oh, show me herein you are my mother. Oh Mary conceived without sin, pray for us who have recourse to thee (3x)
Holy Mother, I place this cause
in your hands (3x) Holy Spirit,
you who solve all problems,
light roads so that I can attain
my goal. You who gave me divine gift to forgive and forget all evil against me and that in all instances in my life you are with me. I want in this short prayer to thank you for all things
as you confirm once again that
I never want to be separated from you in eternal glory. Thank you for your mercy toward me

After making their second request in three months for an extension of their operating hours, Massimmo's Caffe received approval from the City Licensing Board on Tuesday, on a three month trial basis, to be open seven days a week, 12 hours a day.

Effective immediately, the cafe's new business hours will be 11 a.m. to 11 p.m., Sunday through Saturday. This timetable will replace the restaurant's current schedule of opening Monday through Saturday at 7 a.m. with a 9 p.m. closing except for Saturday when the restaurant closes at 6 p.m. The cafe has been closing at 6 p.m. on Saturday for the past month due to the cold weather's affect on evening patron traffic.

The change in operating hours marks the first time the cafe will be allowed to open on a Sunday.

On April 25, Massimmo's track record under their expanded hours will be reviewed by the Licensing Board to see if any adjustments to their schedule are necessary.

In making his request to the Board, Massimmo's executive chef and operations manager Graham Riedy said that the foot traffic in the area of Massimmo's during their current operating hours "was not enough to make a go of it."

"The hours we have right now are not successful and we're asking to have a chance to get a foothold and see if our new hours will be successful," Riedy said.

Riedy also reviewed Massimmo's Caffe business plans to become more of a restaurant and less of a cafe. Originally outlined at the Board's January 18 meeting, Massimmo's menu will feature pizza cooked in brick ovens and pasta dishes served by a full service wait staff.

"We are changing our concept to become more like a Bertucci's, except for having beer and wine. We don't plan on that and we don't want to get involved in that," said Riedy.

"We are looking to become a family orientated restaurant," he added.

Last week Riedy conducted canvassing of the immediate abutters to Massimmo's Caffe to explain the cafe's business plans and seek their approval. He collected 19 signatures in favor of the expanded hours.

Riedy said residents he spoke to on Hyde Street, Faxon Lane, Hardwick Road and Forum Road did not have any complaints regarding any of Massimmo's operations, be it parking, traffic flow or trash removal.

"We are performing a service to Quincy residents in by giving them a nice eating establishment in that area," Riedy said.

Ward 2 Councillor Ted DeCristofaro, who had asked for a continuance on Massimmo's operating hours issue from January 18 so that he could collect input from area residents, presented 6 signatures in opposition to the new schedule.

DeCristofaro cited concerns by the 6 residents that have more to do with the cafe's proposed new brick oven pizzeria concept and menu than they do with the specific hours Massimmo's is open for business.

"They are concerned with the fact that it's becoming a pizza place, that the restaurant has changed direction and that the next step might be a beer and wine license," said DeCristofaro.

"These residents are concerned that further menu changes will ultimately lead to decreased property values and an increase in traffic and parking congestion," DeCristofaro said.

Ward 2 Quincy resident Cam Cedrone of 5 Stanley Circle spoke before the Board in opposition and voiced concerns about cooking, Massimmo's new menu plans and the possibility of a future beer and wine license application.

Cedrone said that it was her impression after speaking last spring to Mrs. Ranalli, the wife of Massimmo's owner Massimo Ranalli, that no cooking would be done on the premises and that only cappuccino and sweets, in true cafe style, would be served.

"Now it's dinners and who knows what else," said Cedrone.

Riedy addressed Cedrone's concerns directly and also reassured her that they were not seeking a beer and wine license.

Riedy also noted that he held a common victualler's license only.

"If you grant a victualler's license, you can't limit what's on the menu. We don't have the right to do that," said Building Inspector and Licensing Board Vice Chairman Matthias Mulvey.

Speaking in favor of Massimmo's operating practices in general was Quincy resident Robert Pinato of 26 Pearl Street, a former mail carrier and patron of Massimmo's Caffe.

Addressing the Board, and Cedrone, Pinato asked if they really wanted to encourage business in Quincy.

"Give 'em a shot; give 'em a chance," said Pinato.

Reno Litterio of 25 Hynes Street, graphic design artist and advertising consultant for Massimmo's, questioned if those residents in opposition to the restaurant had ever been inside Massimmo's.

After a short period of discussion between Pinato, Cedrone and Litterio, Police Captain Frederick Laracy proposed the trial period for the extended operating hours.

Mulvey seconded this move.

DEPENDABILITY, PRICE, SAFETY

How much do price, dependability, and safety factor into the consideration to purchase a new car? Respondents to a recent nationwide survey of car buyers shows that 34 percent of consumers considered dependability to be a car's most important feature. In second place at 21 percent was the car's purchase price. Up from a fifth position showing a few years back is safety, which ten percent of the respondents considered to be of top importance. Related to this upgraded concern for safety is the fact that 73 percent of those answering the survey said that they always used their seat belts. Finally, 77 percent of those who planned to purchase a new car in the next year said that they would "likely" select a car with a driver's side air bag.

HINT: Fifty-five percent of survey respondents who would likely buy a car within a year said they would like a passenger's side air bag in addition to a driver's side air bag.

Police To Issue Warnings On New Seat Belt Law

Most Quincy motorists will likely receive warnings regarding defiance of the new state Seat Belt Law before it is strictly enforced.

Police Chief Francis Mullen said Tuesday that he will order members of his department to initially issue warnings to most motorists who are discovered to be in defiance of the law.

He stressed, however, that decisions will be made on a "case-by-case basis," adding that stricter enforcement of the law will be upheld in the city after an as-yet-undetermined amount of time.

The chief said he feels the law is an important one, adding that he thinks statistics will show that lives will be saved by its enforcement. Asked if he "buckles up" on a regular basis, Mullen said he has done so for years.

"I certainly do," he said. "I believe in it (wearing a seat belt), and I do it faithfully."

Mullen said he also feels it is the duty of the Quincy Police Department as well as the local media to educate citizens about the importance of the Seat Belt Law.

The law, which went into effect Tuesday, makes it mandatory for most Massachusetts motorists to wear seat belts every time they drive, although Mullen noted that there are some exceptions that were written into the law. Police, however, may not pull over a motorist solely for defiance of the Seat Belt Law and must have another reason, such as speeding or a similar driving infraction, to pull over a motorist before the law is enforced.

Quincy 2000 Topic For Wollaston-Montclair

The Montclair-Wollaston Neighborhood Association will meet tonight (Thursday) at 7:30

Quincy 2000 Executive Director Charles D'Aprix who will discuss his organization.

Special Meeting Tonight

Eight Councillors Voice Support Of Concourse Project

By MICHAEL WHALEN

Eight of nine members of the City Council this week expressed at least tentative support of the proposed Quincy Center Concourse project designed to improve access to, and boost the development potential of, the city's downtown area.

The City Council Downtown and Economic Development Committee will discuss the plans for the east-west roadway, which were revealed by Mayor James Sheets and other city officials last week, at a special meeting tonight at 7 p.m. in the City Council Chamber at Quincy City Hall, 1305 Hancock St., Quincy Center.

Councillor Joseph LaRaia, chairman of the committee, said Public Works Commissioner David Colton will attend the meeting and answer councillors' questions regarding the concourse. He added that he scheduled the meeting because the City Council has not the opportunity to discuss the project as a group.

"I want us to begin a working dialogue on the mechanics of it," said LaRaia.

LaRaia said he supports the concept of the Quincy Center Concourse but added that he feels "a little more scrutiny" is necessary before he and his fellow councillors can make a final decision.

"I'm concerned about the financing, mechanics, traffic and other aspects of it," he said. "We (councillors) need to kind of get a better handle on it."

LaRaia also noted that he felt the timing of tonight's meeting is appropriate since Colton was scheduled to discuss the project this morning with officials from the Massachusetts Highway Department. Colton is serving as chairman of a committee formed by Quincy 2000, the city's public-private planning corporation, to advance the project.

Some City Council members said they strongly favor construction of the roadway.

"I think the project is important, and it must go forward, there's no question about that," said

Council President Michael Cheney, who added that he looks forward to the findings of a citizens advisory committee formed to study the proposal.

"I'm totally in favor," said Ward 3 Councillor Lawrence Chretien. "I don't see the downtown being revitalized without it." He also noted that he feels the project will ultimately increase property values, which in turn would increase the city's tax base, and is a necessary endeavor even if it requires landtakings of other properties.

Ward 4 Councillor Thomas Fabrizio said it makes no sense to talk about bringing new businesses to Quincy without first making the city more accessible.

"Government should do what government does best, and that's building the road and doing the infrastructure work," said Fabrizio. "It's fine to talk

USNS Southern Cross

U.S. Naval & Shipbuilding Museum To Receive First Ship Next Week

The United States Naval & Shipbuilding Museum will receive its first vessel, the USNS Southern Cross, next week at its site at the Fore River Shipyard in Quincy, announces Museum Executive Director William MacMullen.

The vessel is a break-bulk carrier of the United States Ready Reserve Fleet based in Virginia. Owned by MARAD (the United States Maritime Administration), it will serve to train cadets and instructors from the Massachusetts Maritime Academy in a wide range of vessel systems and procedures.

The arrival of the Southern Cross will be officially commemorated in a ceremony aboard the ship which will feature the raising of the Academy and Museum flags. In addition to the Southern Cross, the USS Salem, a Quincy-built Navy cruiser, is expected to be brought to the Museum site this spring. A large public welcoming reception is planned for her arrival. The Salem is presently at the U.S. Naval Base at Philadelphia, Penn.

MARAD and Mass. Maritime Academy conceived and implemented the training program a year ago to train U.S. mariners as part of the Sealift Training Program. The program, which grew out of the experience of Operation Desert Shield/Storm, will prepare officers of the U.S. Merchant Marine for the specific demands and requirements of operating Ready Reserve Fleet vessels in the event of a

Webster's Granted Liquor License

By LISA CONNELL

Webster's Eatery, a restaurant specializing in Middle Eastern foods at 13 Scammell St., was granted a common victualer-all alcoholic beverage license by the City Licensing Board Tuesday.

Maroun Abouzeid, owner of Webster's, hopes to encourage more diners to patronize his ethnic restaurant. He is hopeful that with the addition of alcohol to his menu, that business will increase and additional employees will be hired.

"This request is only to have liquor served on the table, as in dining room services," said Abouzeid.

Because of this service plan and no plans for a separate bar area, Abouzeid's plans met with no opposition from the Board.

Abouzeid met at an earlier date with Ward 2 City Councillor Ted DeCristofaro to discuss his business plans for Webster's.

DeCristofaro's advice included circulating a petition among area neighbors to get their input on his plans for the restaurant. DeCristofaro was a bit surprised with the results.

"I can't recall having so many people sign in favor of a liquor license at a site," said DeCristofaro.

Nearly 130 area residents and business owners signed Abouzeid's petition in support of the restaurant's new license.

Remaining consistent in his opposition to any type of liquor licenses including Webster's because "there are enough liquor establishments in Quincy now and we don't need anymore," DeCristofaro could not dispute the number of favorable signatures.

"I feel very much alone today - no one is backing me," he said.

Webster's new license will formally be granted Feb. 8. As is the Board's custom with new licenses, an informal vote of approval precedes the formal vote which follows one week later or at the Board's next session.

Hours of operation at the restaurant will not change. Currently, Webster's is open Monday through Saturday, 6 a.m. to 9 p.m. and Sunday, 7 a.m. to 3 p.m.

Abouzeid has been a Quincy resident for the past 32 years.

Ward 4 Assn. Seeks $5,000 For Granite Statue

The Ward 4 Neighborhood Association is in need of another $5,000 for the construction of a granite statue in honor of Quincy's granite workers.

Association Treasurer Alba Tocci said the group hopes to have the statue installed in Shea Park on Copeland Street sometime in the spring and has already collected $15,000 in private donations. The approximate total cost of the project, however, will be $20,000.

"We've had a good response," she said, "but we've reached a standstill."

Tocci added that the association has received a number of pledges from people who have not yet sent in their donations, and once those are sent, the group "might be close" to its goal.

The 13-foot statue will depict a young granite worker holding a hammer in one hand and a chisel in the other. The base of the statue is being made from dark gray Quincy granite donated by Linda Montilio of Monti Granite on Centre Street, and the statue itself is being sculpted by Andre Iwanczyk of New Jersey.

Tocci said that a brick memorial "walk of names" will also be installed

Studds To Host MWRA Ratepayers In Washington

Congressman Gerry Studds will host a contingent of Massachusetts water and sewer ratepayers in Washington next week, and has arranged for the group's leaders to meet with Clinton administration officials to press their case for more federal money for the cleanup of Boston Harbor.

Residents from many of the 61 communities served by the Massachusetts Water Resources Authority, led by Michael DeLuca of Weymouth, will come to Washington Feb. 8 and 9 to discuss ways to reduce their relentlessly increasing water and sewer rates.

The first day, Tuesday, Feb. 8, leaders of the group will meet with top officials from the Environmental Protection Agency and Office of Management and Budget at meetings arranged by Studds.

At the group's request, Studds and Senators

Edward Kennedy and John Kerry will host a meeting the next day with members of the Massachusetts Congressional Delegation. That meeting will take place at 9:30 a.m. Wednesday Feb. 9 in Room 1334 Longworth House Office Building, the hearing room of the House Committee on Merchant Marine and Fisheries, which Studds chairs.

Studds and other members of the delegation have been pressing for increased federal funding for the $6 billion Boston Harbor cleanup. Studds said today he will seek the release of $100 million appropriated last year for the harbor clean up. A total of $500 million for "hardship cities," including Boston, is being held up until Congress authorizes its expenditure.

The Congressman is also pressing forward with his plan to find other sources of federal revenue for water and sewer projects; the federal government now pays less than 10 percent of the cost, leaving the rest to state and local governments.

Studds has proposed a "polluter pays" bill that would raise billions of dollars by charging taxes on three major pollution sources: industrial toxic discharges, commercial and industrial water users and pesticides, fertilizers and animal feed. He will chair a hearing on the bill, H.R. 2199, on Feb. 22.

"To prevent an unraveling of our national commitment to clean water, we must go to the source of the problem," Studds said. "Those whose actions contribute to the degradation of water quality should also contribute to the cost of cleaning up our waterways. This 'polluter pays' concept is the foundation of legislation I have introduced to generate significant new revenues sufficient to drive water quality renewal through the next decade."

national emergency. MacMullen credited U.S. Rep. Gerry Studds (D-Cohasset), chairman of the House Merchant Marine and Fisheries Committee, with enabling the Museum to acquire the Southern Cross.

"The Museum is in the process of designing U.S. Merchant Marine exhibits and has received a number of requests for a U.S. Flag Maritime vessel to complement the USS Salem," said MacMullen. "Congressman Studds suggested acquiring the Southern Cross. This is a much better vessel for our purposes, as we have already been developing an educational program with Mass. Maritime Academy. This physically gives us a common exhibit from which both institutions can benefit, and ties our Naval and Merchant Marine programs together."

MacMullen said he plans to utilize classroom and lecture hall spaces of the Museum and berthing spaces of the USS Salem for use by cadets and Academy staff in the future. Mayor James Sheets, chairman of the Museum Board of Directors, as well as Rep. Ronald Mariano and Ward 2 City Councilor Ted DeCristofaro all have been supportive of the Museum and its "positive impact" on the Quincy area, MacMullen said. The Southern Cross, he added, will represent the first physical step in moving the Museum forward.

City Store Raises Another $2,800

The Quincy City Store at the Fore River shipyard had its most successful day to date last Saturday, Mayor James Sheets said Tuesday.

Sheets said the store raised approximately $2,800 during its third week of operation. That doubled the numbers from the store's first two weeks, including approximate figures of $1,500 raised Jan. 22 and $1,300 during its opening day Jan. 15, he added.

"People having been coming from everywhere, from the North Shore and as far as Leominster," Sheets said.

The mayor added that the store, which is located at the shipyard's main administration building on East Howard Street in Quincy Point, is continuing to receive "a substantial amount of inventory" from city departments. A favorite item among customers seems to be old school desks, some of which are over 100 years old, he said.

Sheets has said that proceeds from the store, which sells surplus items from various city departments Saturdays from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m., will be put into a "special activities/celebration" account for the city. The mayor has estimated the venture could raise as much as $75,000 annually.

The store's variety of goods ranges from pencils and pens to much larger items such as old parking meters, traffic lights, adding machines and furniture.

Sheets has said that the Massachusetts Water Resources Authority, which owns the shipyard, may open its own surplus store at the site if the city's venture is a success.

She Can't Believe All The Media Coverage Of Kerrigan Case

Editor, The Quincy Sun:
Not that The Quincy Sun is guilty, but the Menendez brothers can now rest easy, for their crime of murdering their parents has not resulted in the coverage of the "heinous act" of bruising
Nancy Kerrigan's knee.

I cannot believe the local and national media coverage this has gotten.
The people who did this were greedy, stupid, mean, rotten, etc. But-for God's sake—they only bruised her knee.

Can you see the prison scene in the TV Movie of the Week (as we all know there is going to be one),
"The Menendez Brothers in the Prison Yard?" It will go something like this:

Convict #1: "See those two guys over there? They murdered their parents."

Convict #2: "Yeah, so what?"

Convict #1: "Okay, see those two guys over there?
They bruised Nancy's knee."

Convict #2: "THEY deserve the electric chair."

It is unbelievable, all the TV coverage this has gotten. Even after the California earthquake, the Nancy Kerrigan story took top billing.

I am simple agast that rapists and murderers are not shown being dragged into court in handcuffs—but these two guys are. Can you just see if every hockey player that got hit in the knee had the guys taken into court? Gee....

People, let's get some perspective here. We must look ludicrous to other countries. Earthquakes, Bosnia, starvation and murders, and TV USA's lead story is Nancy Kerrigan's knee.

First Night A Splendid City Celebration

Editor, The Quincy Sun:
This year's First Night
Quincy was absolutely wonderful and upon reflection has a value and significance which cannot be overstated!

At a time when we are all acutely aware of the devastating problems haunting our cities, First Night is a commitment to and declaration of what is best in us as individuals and as a community. It is a model of creativity and cooperation as individuals, families and neighbors of all ages and diverse backgrounds come together to safely and joyously share the year past and promised.

As two who totally enjoyed a night rich with music and merriment we offer our congratulations and thanks to "Mr. First Night" (Mike Cheney) and all the city officials, employees, businesses, religious and community groups, volunteers, artists and performers who

Ward 5 Democrats To Caucus Feb. 12

Ward 5 Democrats will meet Saturday, Feb. 12 at 2 p.m. in the Beechwood
Community Life Center, 225 Fenno St., Wollaston to elect 12 delegates to the state Democratic Convention to be held June 3-4 at the Worcester Convention Center.

There apparently won't be much in new faces around City Hall this year.

In fact, there may only be one, already introduced:
Mike McFarland, as purchasing agent, succeeding Robert Denvir who is retiring.

That did come as somewhat of a surprise as McFarland had been rumored in line for the treasurer-tax collector post to succeed Dana Childs with the latter going to a finance job at Quincy Hospital.

As it turns out, Childs will stay put. Sheets reportedly recently informed him he will be retained as treasurer-tax collector.

Rhonda Merrill, a long-time Sheets supporter who is in the private sector, reportedly could have had the purchasing job if she wanted it, but apparently turned it down. Denvir was asked to stay on a few weeks with the rumor mill guessing that was to give Sheets more time to find a new purchasing agent. But the mayor's office says Denvir was asked to stay on only to help McFarland get adjusted.

Tom Koch, the mayor's executive secretary, will stay in that post although somewhere down the line insiders wouldn't be surprised to see him head up the Park-Foresty-Cemetery Departments, where his father, the late Richard Koch, Sr. distinguished himself.
But Koch has done a good job as executive secretary and reports are Sheets at this stage is reluctant to let him move to another job.

One more new face is still possible, though. Sheets wants to create a Division of Inspectional Services encompassing the building, plumbing, wiring, weights and measures and conservation enforcement departments.

Paul Kennedy of Squantum, a well respected plumbing contractor and Conservation Commission member, reportedly could have the job but has declined it.

The demands of his growing business apparently makes it difficult-if not impossible-for him to accept the job.

The job when created may yet go to another outsider but one of the present department heads in the proposed new division could be tapped.

THE DEATH OF Sherm Feller, legendary public address announcer at Fenway Park, was a personal loss to Bill Fitzgerald

"I loved him," says Fitzgerald who worked with Feller and admired him.
"He was the most generous guy I ever knew and he was a fun guy."

Fitzgerald, who was Feller's assistant in the PA booth from 1966 to 1975, says:

"Sherm would have been a terrific color man for the games. He not only knew his baseball, but he could break up the monotonous moments of a game with his great sense of humor."

Feller was always doing something nice for people, Fitzgerald remembers.

He recalls in 1974 when his son, Liam, was born and Feller went down into the Red Sox dugout to take up a collection from the players for the new baby.

He also cut across to the visitors dugout where the Oakland A's and his old friend Dick Williams were.

Williams said he didn't have any money on him and asked Feller to toss in $5 for him and he would pay him back later.

"I don't think he ever got the $5 back from Williams," says Fitzgerald. "It sort of became a running gag whenever Williams came back to Fenway."

Feller had his serious side. He told Fitzgerald not to spend any of the money collected and keep it in the bank until Liam started high school.

Fitzgerald and his wife, Cathy, did and turned it over to Liam when he started at Boston College High School in 1988.

Fitzgerald also fondly remembers the 1975 World Series between the Red Sox and Cincinnati Reds.

"During one of the games, Sherm said he had to go to the bathroom.

"You tell them who's going to bat while I'm gone," he told Fitzgerald.

"I don't know whether he really had to go to the bathroom or not, I think what he really wanted to do was to let me take part in the World Series... to give me the chance to introduce batters in a World Series game."

"Sherm was a great guy. Ask anyone who really knew him."

Quincy Scenes From Yesterday

on Newport Ave. Ruth Gordon left for New York on a train from this station to begin her long career on stage and screen.

(From the collection of Tom Galvin)

Spotlight On Old Wollaston Depot

The Wollaston Depot is the second old Quincy landmark spotlighted in the new Quincy Sun pictorial feature, "Quincy Scenes From Yesterday."

Postcards from the extensive collection of Tom Galvin showing once familiar scenes, some of which have changed and some no longer here, are being presented on a regular basis.

The postcards, between 1898 and the 1930's make a nostalgic tie-in with the popular Quincy's Yesterdays column.

Galvin, a proud life-long resident of Quincy, is vice president of Boston Gear Works, president of Quincy 2000, former president of the South Shore YMCA, and a member of the Quincy Historical Society Board of Trust who has long been active in his beloved Quincy.

In the weeks ahead a number of Houghs Neck,

Quincy Point, Germantown, Adams Shore, Merrymount, North Quincy, Squantum, West Quincy and Quincy Center scenes as well as more from Wollaston will appear.

For older residents this new feature will be a fond trip down memory lane. For new and younger residents each scene will offer a footnote in Quincy's history and a look at what Quincy was like in the "good old days."

Takes Issue With Criticism Of Early Childhood Center Construction

I wish to take exception to a recent letter to the editor (in The Patriot Ledger) pertaining to the new school construction in South Quincy. The new South Quincy Early Childhood Education Center may or may not be an architectural masterpiece but the structure is rich in historical significance even prior to its grand opening.

The City of Quincy is a proud host to a number of municipally owned buildings of international stature and acclaim. However, both the reality of municipal budgets and the cornerstones of the historic buildings tell us that none of the more impressive structures were built in recent times. In reality, laws requiring government contracts to be awarded to the lowest qualified bidder, combined with a scarcity of city funds, dictate that in modern times, municipal buildings must be judged by what is inside their walls, rather than outside.

By agreeing to fund this project, the City of Quincy has become one of the first communities in the region to enter an emerging new conception early childhood education. The project is the result of countless hours of community meetings with neighbors who were frustrated by the fire ravaged, dilapidated former Lincoln School which had been abandoned years ago. Shortly after a portion of the building collapsed, concerned residents and city officials joined together and before long, an historic concept had risen from the ruins. While all involved were aware that the realities of the times meant that the new structure would not be the Parthenon, the project moved forward bolstered by the knowledge that the new structure would be historic in other ways. Already, city officials have entered into a kindly debate over which historic city figure the building should be named for. With names such as Amelio Della Chiesa and Abigail Adams already under consideration, it is clear that many are proud of the new center.

As Chairman of the City Council's Education Committee and as the Ward Councillor representing the area where the school is located, I am proud to have played a role in the entire process. More deserving of praise, however, are the neighbors who through hard work and involvement have helped build an historic building. As the first brand new Quincy school to be built in several decades, the building will shape the future of all who are educated there. Most importantly, as a product of citizens and officials working together, a dangerous relic has been turned into a productive municipal building that will serve the neighborhood well in the coming century.

Deegan Sees Tax Rate Cut From $53.80

City Manager William J. Deegan Jr. told a Lions Club luncheon at the Fox and Hounds Grill that he hopes to be able to reduce Quincy's tax rate from last year's $53.80 because of the city's current favorable financial position.

He said the city has more than $1 million in reserve in the Excess and Deficiency fund, including $300,000 from increased hospital receipts and $371,000 more in state aid than was expected.

The following day, Deegan submitted to the City Council a record high $13,220,716.59 budget for 1993, an increase of $573,414 over 1992 which was actually more than offset by a boost of $654,000 in expected receipts.

'WOLLASTON MAYOR' DIES

Chester H. Smith, whose behind-the-scenes political power earned him the title "Mayor of Wollaston," died at his retirement home in Orleans at the age of 66. His daughter, Marjorie, was the wife of Howard D. Johnson, the restaurateur.

SNUG HARBOR ADDITION

City Manager Deegan asked the City Council for authority to appoint an architect to design a 12-room, $430,000 addition to the Snug Harbor School, which opened in September and already was projected to be overcrowded by September and already was projected to be overcrowded by September, 1997.

'RACE OF ANEMICS'

Sen. Charles W. Hedges denounced the state meals tax for making the price of food in restaurants so prohibitive that people are not ordering red meat and thus producing a "race of anemics."

Marie's Kitchen

Shepherd's Pie

This seemingly unending winter thus far has been called many names. I'm calling it the winter from you know where, but one in which I'm in the kitchen an awful lot.

One night while making an ordinary shepherd's pie, I decided to place a crust over the big black cast iron pan with great results and it took me no time at all. The crust was already made in the refrigerator, so it was twice as easy. If you don't own a cast iron frying pan, any pan that can go into the oven will do.

Shepherd's Pie

1 1/4 ground meat (any kind will do)
1 large can of mixed vegetables (or frozen)
4 large potatoes (mashed) enough pie crust for a nine-inch pan

1 small onion (chopped)
1 large clove of garlic (minced)
2 tablespoons olive oil (I also use water in place of oil)
1/4 cup seasoned bread crumbs about 4 or 5 slices of a favorite cheese

In hot oil or water in a large pan, saute the garlic, onion and the meat. Add the bread crumbs and stir until blended, layer, place a couple of slices of cheese, then the mixed vegetables, some more sliced cheese and then top it with the mashed potatoes. Bake in a 425-degree preheated oven for 5 minutes and then 325 degree until the crust turns a light brown. Unlike a pot pie, this stays together and cuts like a pie. Great for a cold winter night.

NELLIE D'ALLESSANDRO recently celebrated her 100th birthday with family members at the Presidential Convalescent Home where she is a resident. With the guest of honor are great-grand nieces Jaime Wilkinson and Robyn Martinson.

MONEY ISN'T EVERYTHING. UNLESS YOU'RE TRYING TO BUY A HOUSE.

The problem isn't paying the mortgage. It's coming up with the down payment and closing costs in the first place.

Our Affordable Mortgage Program can get you over the hurdle. If you qualify, we'll give you a no-points mortgage at a hard-to-beat rate. And all other fees are kept to a minimum.

There are just three basic requirements for applying. First, your income can't exceed $50,000 (or $58,880 for two or more earners). Second, the house you buy must be within our service area, which includes everything within 22 miles of downtown Boston. And third, it must be your first home.

Maybe you can afford to buy a home after all. Call us today at (617) 722-7475 to learn more about the Affordable Mortgage Program.

USNSM To Celebrate Receipt Of Stewardship Of Military Research Center

The United States Naval & Shipbuilding Museum will celebrate the receipt of the stewardship of the Massachusetts Military research center of the Military Division of the Commonwealth of Massachusetts Thursday, Feb. 10 in the office of Mayor James Sheets.

The MMRC is a compilation of archival and military materials which range from medical and enlistment records to uniforms, medals, citations, tanks and artillery pieces. It is considered to be the largest single military collection of its kind outside of Washington and the Pentagon.

The USNSM has been working with the Adjutant General's office for a year in setting up the details for bringing the collection to Quincy. Museum Director William MacMullen and Military Archivist James Fahey have worked together to pull many more artifacts into the collection since an initial meeting one year ago.

The archives contain one of the largest Civil War records collections in the country. As a part of the Museum, it will occupy the second level with records and sensitive historic artifacts which will be conserved in a laboratory for that purpose. The first level of the Museum will house an interactive exhibit tracing Massachusetts contributions to the U.S. military in all wars. The exhibit will feature an orientation and general history film, and then visitors will walk through recreations of trenches in World War I, to Civil War batteries being unlimbered, to a Revolutionary War encampment. Uniformed guides will explain different aspects of the exhibits and answer questions.

MacMullen credited Sheets with moving swiftly on a call from Norfolk County Treasurer Robert Hall of the availability of archives for the Museum. Hall, who is a Civil War historian, was interested in keeping the collection in Norfolk County. MacMullen and Kathleen Devine, financial consultant for the Museum immediately moved to input line items into the Museum budget to make sure the museum could underwrite a program. After then Adjutant General Wayne Wagner committed the archive to the Museum at its kickoff celebration last November, the Museum was been working out the details.

Rep. Ronald Mariano and Sen. Michael Morrissey also pushed for the acquisition of the collection this past fall with the result that General Raymond Vezina will sign the documents in the ceremony at the mayor's office. Soldiers representing the Revolutionary War, Civil War, World War I, World War II and Korean War will be on hand to witness and salute General Vezina at the ceremony.

Drunk Driving: The Number One Killer Of Teenagers

The number one killer of teenagers is drunk driving. More than 4000 teens are killed and another 110,000 badly hurt each year in car crashes involving alcohol.

Not all have been drinking, but some are passengers or innocent targets of people who drink and drive. These statistics mean that from a high school class of 475 this year, two students are likely to be killed or injured in drunk driving accidents. One could be your best friend. One could be you.

Facts About Alcohol

A can of beer or a glass of wine is just as intoxicating as a shot of liquor. Most state laws define "drunk" as having a Blood Alcohol Concentration (BAC) of .10%. But people react to alcohol differently, depending on their metabolism, how tired they are, their emotional state, and their weight.

Because of these differences no one can predict a "safe" number of drinks. The bottom line is that alcohol is a depressant. Even small amounts slow your physical reactions and thought process.

Alcohol and Drugs

Combining alcohol and drugs, even over-the-counter drugs, multiplies the dangerous effects of both. Never mix alcohol with any drug, even cold tablets, cough syrups, or medicine prescribed by your doctor.

NEXT WEEK: How much do you know about drinking and driving?

Recreation Dept. Instructional Ceramic Classes

The Quincy Recreation Department is conducting registration for its winter series of instructional ceramic classes.

The program is open to boys and girls age 8 through middle school who are residents of Quincy. Basic and intermediate instructions in painting, glazing, staining and cleaning of ceramic greenware are included in this program.

The program will be conducted at the Dawes

Memorial Estate, located on the corner of Channing Street and Quincy Shore Drive. (Opposite Squantum Yacht Club).

Classes are held Mondays and Wednesdays from 3 to 4:30 p.m. and Saturdays from 9 to 10:30 a.m. and 10:30 a.m. to noon.

Registration is ongoing. The program runs for 10 weeks and the cost is $12. For more information, call the Quincy Recreation Department at 376-1394.

Ward 6 Democrats To Caucus Feb. 12

Ward 6 Democrats will caucus Saturday, Feb. 12 at 2 p.m. at the Atlantic Neighborhood Center, 10 Hunt St., North Quincy, to elect 12 delegates and two alternatives to attend the state Democratic Convention scheduled for June 3 and 4 at the Worcester Centrum.

The center is handicapped accessible.

Those elected will be equally divided between men and women. Ward 6 Caucus Chairperson Joanne Condon Walsh said the apportioned number of delegates has been allocated on the basis of a formula giving equal weight to the Democratic Party registration and the average vote for Democratic candidates in the last general elections for governor and president for which figures were available at the time delegate tabulations were prepared.

The caucus is open to all registered Democrats, persons ineligible to register and media representatives. The only persons eligible to participate in any portion of the caucus are those who are registered Democrats in the ward or city as of December 31, 1993. There will be no absentee or proxy voting.

Candidates for delegate and alternate must also be present, voting and give his or her written consent to be nominated and that nomination must be seconded by two persons present at the local caucus.

All ballots will be written and secret. Those candidates receiving the greatest number of votes on the first ballot will be elected.

Each candidate will be allowed to make a two-minute speech and to distribute on his or her behalf one sheet of paper listing qualifications and ideas.

SECONDARY LUNCH

Feb. 7-11

Mon: pizza, vegetable, apple crisp, milk.

Tues: Early release day, middle and high schools: Hamburger on a roll, cole slaw or salad, fruit juice, milk.

Wed: grilled hot dog on a roll, vegetarian beans, fruit cup, milk.

Thurs: breaded chicken, sweet or mashed potato, vegetable, fresh baked white roll, jello, milk.

Fri: baked lasagna with meat sauce, vegetable, fruit juice, milk.

Slate-making is allowed, but no special preference shall be given to slates. There is no quorum requirement for the caucus.

There will be no admission or expense charge at the caucus, although donations may be solicited.

Discrimination on the basis of race, sex, age, color, creed, national origin, religion, ethnic identity, philosophical persuasion or economic status in the conduct of the caucus is strictly prohibited.

Challenges to the delegate selection process can be filed in writing with the Compliance Review Commission, c/o The Massachusetts Democratic Party, 45 Bromfield St., Boston, MA 02108 no later than Feb. 14.

ELEMENTARY LUNCH

Feb. 7-11

Local Group Works To Restore The Fore River

By KATIE BARRETT

When was the last time you thought of taking a swim in the Fore River? Perhaps never. For many of us, the Fore River has lost its value as a recreational and economic resource.

This doesn't have to be the case. In fact, it shouldn't be. The planning directors of Braintree, Quincy and Weymouth, in conjunction with Boston-based Tellus Institute, are involved in a tri-community effort, the Fore River Mini-Bay Project, which is working to change current conditions of the river.

Acting as leaders of the project, the planners have set two goals: to measurably improve the environmental quality of the river, restoring its economic and recreational value, and to establish a framework to guide long-term management. Specific goals are to return swimming and shellfishing to the river on an unrestricted basis. What may be most exciting about this project is that it's built on the cooperative efforts of government, local businesses and citizens groups.

The Fore River Mini-Bay Project is a five-year undertaking, funded by a grant from the Massachusetts Bays Program, with in-kind contributions from the three communities.

Contrary to popular belief, the Fore River is alive and can be cured of what ails it. Now in its third year, the project's baseline studies have been completed, and the news is somewhat surprising. Long thought to be the major source of pollution, chemical contamination of the river is moderate, consistent with other urban rivers.

It is bacterial contamination that seems to be the greatest threat to the river's health. And, sampling results have shown that it is not the areas around Nut Island and the MWRA's Braintree-Weymouth Interceptor which have the highest readings.

Initial data show the highest contamination levels at points of freshwater inflows to the river—at the mouth of the Town River in Quincy, the Monaquot River in Braintree and a stream flowing into Mill Cove in Weymouth. This suggests that leaking local sewer systems, failing septic systems, roadway runoff, faulty storm drains, and other non-profit sources may be the primary cause of pollution to the river.

important living resource. It has beaches, marinas, clam beds, and the most important smelt run in the Commonwealth. Through identification of sources and joint strategies to implement infrastructural improvements, it's hoped the project will make significant gains in halting the deteriorating health of the river; restoring it to the point that each of us will think the river as an integral part of our lives—a place to go for a swim on a sultry summer evening or to rake a few clams for dinner.

There are things you can do to get involved. Keep an eye out for Fore River update listings on your local cable channel, contact your town planner to be put on the mailing list for the newsletter or to become involved with the formation of the Fore River Watershed Association, and, finally, attend the public workshops. Citizen participation is vital to the success of this project!

Project leaders are looking for input on the best way to manage and protect this important resource, and want to hear your ideas. A workshop to review background information, research findings and a draft management plan is scheduled for Wednesday, Feb. 9 from 7 to 9 p.m. at the Ward 2 Fore River Club House, 16 Nevada Rd., Quincy Point (Rte. 3A South, take left onto Shaw Street and at stop sign go through intersection onto Nevada Road; 3A North, take right onto Shaw).

For more information, call Peter LaPolla in Braintree at 848-1870, Jim Clarke in Weymouth at 335-2000 or Richard Meade in Quincy at 376-1368.

Healthier Days And A Good Night's Sleep

(NAPS)—If you're one of the 50 million Americans who have allergies, asthma or respiratory diseases such as chronic bronchitis or emphysema, a free brochure may help you breathe easier.

It may also help someone who regularly complains of fatigue, headache, cough, sore throat, itchy or watery eyes, a runny or stuffed up nose, wheezing or a tight chest.

Called Facts You Should Know About Indoor Air Pollution, Allergies And Your Health, it's based on a study sponsored by Honeywell, Inc. and reported in the medical journal Immunology & Allergy Practice. The study discovered distinct health improvements in allergy and asthma sufferers who got electronic air cleaners for their homes.

The findings included:

- More than 80 percent said the cleaner provided relief so they felt healthier during the day and slept better at night.

- Most respondents were able to reduce or even eliminate their allergy medication.

- Twenty-eight percent reported more energy.

- Twenty-eight percent felt more physically active.

- Twenty-three percent said they missed fewer days of work or school.

Even people with no

It's in the air—dust, mites, pollen, dander, smoke and other indoor pollutants. Fortunately, there are devices that clear the air and protect your health.

known allergies may benefit from an electronic air cleaner, doctors say, particularly infants, children, the elderly, women who are pregnant or breast-feeding and smokers and those on regular medication.

A whole-house electronic air cleaner from Honeywell uses the same amount of electricity as a 40-watt light bulb, but saves even more in energy costs because it keeps central heating and cooling equipment coils cleaner. That lowers operating costs and reduces wear and tear so furnaces, air conditioners and heat pumps last longer. What's more, because your indoor air is cleaner, you save time, money and effort on house cleaning. Your furnishings, walls and draperies are also protected.

Give Every Child A Healthy Start
New from the Health Resources & Services Administration's Maternal & Child Health Bureau

A Healthy Start for Healthy Babies

(NAPS)—Earn a life-time of hugs by giving your baby a healthy start even before you give birth.

Healthy Start, a federal initiative promoting healthy behaviors by mothers-to-be and quality health care for newborns, encourages expectant mothers to see a health care provider as soon as they know they are pregnant and then to keep all follow-up appointments.

Other "Do's" and "Don'ts" for mothers-to-be:

- Eat three healthy meals daily, plus healthy snacks.

- Drink six to eight glasses of water, fruit juice, or milk daily.

- Gain 25 to 35 pounds during pregnancy.

Don't smoke cigarettes, or drink liquor, beer, wine or coolers; don't use over-the-counter medicines, such as aspirin, cold remedies, antacids or other pain relievers; don't get an X-ray without checking with your health care providers, or use "street drugs" such as marijuana, PCP, cocaine, or crack. These substances can be harmful to expectant mothers and their babies. They can cause babies to have breathing problems, brain damage and birth defects.

The Healthy Start program encourages pregnant women and their partners to adopt healthy behaviors during pregnancy and to maintain them once their babies are born.

HAVE A POST-OP CURPUP JOE

Help for the headaches that sometimes strike after surgery may be as close as a post-operative cup of coffee. Doctors at the Mayo Clinic have found that people who are regular consumers of caffeinated beverages—coffee, tea, cola—are three times as likely as non-consumers to report headaches following surgery. The reason seems to be simple caffeine withdrawal. Since patients are advised to forgo eating or drinking for up to 12 hours prior to surgery, post-operative head pain may actually be the achiness of a body crying out for its usual "fix." Fortunately, these findings have an easy, practical application. Caffeine consumers should order a cup of their favorite brew as part of their post-surgery meal, as long as they have their doctor's approval.

P.S. DON'T try to avoid a headache by sneaking a cup of coffee before surgery. Surgery is safest on an empty stomach.

A steaming cup of java can go a long way towards easing those first post-operative aches and pains. If you'd like more information, feel free to call any of the doctors—myself, Dr. Lisa Antonelli, or Dr. Ronald Dunlap, at COMPREHENSIVE CARDIAC CARE at 472-2550. Office hours are by appointment. Our office offers a pleasant surrounding for medical care, and is located in Crown Colony, 700 Congress St., Suite 2C, in Quincy. I am affiliated with Quincy Hospital and South Shore Hospital. Using Acupuncture To Treat Sports-Related Problems Acupuncture is an effective treatment for many sports-related problems, according to Daniel S. Karp, a licensed acupuncturist in Quincy.

Acute injuries, including sprains, strains and torn muscles, respond quickly to acupuncture, electro-acupuncture, and moxibustion (Chinese acupuncturist). Chronic problems, such as bursitis, tendonitis and arthritis, improve dramatically with acupuncture therapy, even where rest, medication, physical therapy and surgery have failed, Karp says.

In the case of injury or debility, sports acupuncture therapy is administered in three stages, Karp explains. First, fast-acting therapy is applied to stop pain, reduce inflammation, and eliminate swelling. Secondly, treatment is administered to restore strength, flexibility, and stamina to the injured area, allowing the athlete to return to full potential as soon as possible. Finally, the sports acupuncturist applies treatment to prevent an injury or weakness for re-occurring.

How does acupuncture therapy accomplish these aims? To relieve pain, tiny stainless steel needles are inserted into strategic nerve centers or "acupuncture points" in and around the painful area. A mild electric current of a specified wave-length and frequency is applied to the needles, stimulating the release and transportation to the injured area of endorphins (the body's natural painkillers). Other needles are applied to reflex points that send a surge of circulation through the injured area, rapidly relieving post-traumatic swelling and inflammation. Acupuncture works so rapidly that many athletes report a significant decrease in pain and swelling by the end of the first treatment, Karp said.

When the acute injury is relieved, the rehabilitation phase begins. Acupuncture and heat therapy are applied in a precise pattern designed to relax the injured area, restore normal circulation, flush the joint of muscle with oxygen and nutrients, and hasten the healing process. In effect, acupuncture focuses the body's natural self-healing ability into a specific area, causing regeneration to occur much more rapidly than normal. Healing time for sprains and strains is often cut by as much as half.

The third stage of treatment involves using acupuncture and related therapies to strengthen the injured area and prevent re-injury. As the athlete returns to his or her regular routine, periodic follow-up treatments are given to strengthen muscle tone, boost circulation through the joints, and increase flexibility in and around the appropriate muscles and joints. Many patients, Karp said, report that they feel better, stronger, and more flexible after their course of acupuncture therapy than they did before their injury.

Currently, the use of sports acupuncture is in overall vitality and the area of acute and chronic injuries and their improve performance.

North Puts 7-Game Win Streak On Line

By DAVE SOUTHWICK

After posting two more tremendous victories last week, the North Quincy boys' basketball team took a seven-game win streak and a two-game lead in the Old Colony League standings into action this week.

The Raiders were scheduled to play at Silver Lake Tuesday and visit Boston English Friday before returning home next Tuesday, Feb. 8 for a game against Taunton. Tipoff is set for 7 p.m.

North obtained their seventh straight win last Friday, a 73-54 decision over Barnstable.

North held an edge for most of the first half before Matt Boston hit two of his five three-point baskets to help give North a health 38-24 lead at halftime. Jason McLeod, playing with an illness and sitting out most of the second half, contributed seven of his eight points in the first half. Brad Gray also played well of the bench for North.

North broke the game open in the second half by taking a commanding 21-point lead at 49-28 with 12 minutes to play. Boston continued to lead the team with two more three pointers, giving him a 17 points in the game. North kept the lead to no less than 20 points the rest of the way, thanks to great play off the bench by Kevin Ross, Adam DeBoer, Mike Koski and Eric Zimmerman.

Other leading scorers for the Raiders were Gray and DeBoer with 10 points, George Wirtz (6), Mike Santoro (5), Matt Nugtier and Zimmerman (4 apiece), Brian Rafferty (3) and Koski and Jerry Fernandez with two points each.

"It was a fun game for a change," said coach Ted Stevenson, referring to the series of close games his team has played recently. "We got to play a lot of kids with a lot of time."

North's other big win last week came with a thrilling double overtime 63-57 decision over cross-town rival Quincy. North's second multiple-overtime win of the season.

North trailed for most of the game until late in the second half when Boston hit a jump shot with 30 seconds left on the clock to send the game into overtime.

In the first overtime, North took the lead, 53-51 with a key Boston basket, but a Joe Gangi hoop with two seconds left tied the game again at 53-53.

The second extra session was the Jason McLeod show. The senior center pumped in eight of his game-high 31 points and gave North Quincy the thrilling victory.

Other scorers for North had Boston with 16, Rafferty and Gray with five apiece and Nugtier and DeBoer with two points each. Mike Bartlett led the Presidents with 16 points.

Quincy's next home game is Friday, Feb. 4 against Plymouth.

Quincy Looking For 4

The Quincy High basketball team suffered their second tough loss of the week Friday night as they fell, 68-61, at Bridgewater-Raynham.

Despite the loss Coach John Franceschini remains optimistic as the season enters the home stretch.

Quincy led B-R throughout most of the contest but the Trojans came back and nailed seven straight free throws towards the end of the game. The free throws proved to be the difference.

Joe Kelly, one of Quincy's several small but tough inside players, led the Presidents with 14 points on the night. Guards Mike Bartlett and Harold Mortel followed with 12 and 10 points, respectively. Mortel was also tremendous in the defensive end, coming up with seven steals.

The Bridgewater-Raynham game was only the second of two back-to-back standout defensive performances recorded by off guard Mortel. In the 63-57 double-overtime loss to North Quincy, Mortel dogged Red Raiders point guard Matt Boston up and down the court the entire evening as Quincy tried to force North out of their half-court game. Late in the game Mortel was visibly limping, but continued to keep the clamps on Boston. It is safe to say that, except for half-time, Mortel did not rest once the entire game.

"Defensively we're playing as good as anyone in the league right now," said Coach Franceschini.

The loss to B-R leaves Quincy at 4-7 in Old Colony League play and 6-7 overall. With five league games left to play, the Presidents still have hopes of making the end of the year tournament.

"We want to go 4-1 in the league the rest of the way," said Franceschini. "It's a tough but certainly a reachable goal."

Quincy's upcoming opponents are Plymouth, Falmouth, Barnstable, Silver Lake and North Quincy. Two more losses will eliminate the Presidents from the tournament but they can still make it with only eight losses.

Quincy's next game is Friday (Feb. 4) against Plymouth at Eastern Nazarene College at 7 p.m. The two teams have a similar style of play and will match up well.

North Tracksters Shine At Coaches Meet

Several North Quincy tracksters turned in top performances at the Boys State Coaches Invitational on Saturday and the Greater Boston Track Club Invitational on Sunday. Both events were held at Harvard.

Jeremy Gott ran to a personal best time of 1 minute 15.4 seconds, placing fourth in the 600-yard event on Saturday. Among those beaten by Gott was Lexington's Gregoire Landel, last year's state champion. Junior Glenn Peterson qualified for the upcoming state championship as he clocked a 35.73 in the 300. Eric Torvi also ran well with a time of 2:31.2 in the 1000.

At the GBTC Invitational several North girls had exceptional performances. Phyllis Poon raced to her fastest time of the year as she finished the 55-meter hurdles in 9.88 seconds. Suk Ng also posted her best time of the year in that event, finishing in 10.19 seconds. Aja Jackson turned in a personal best time of 28.7 seconds as she finished second in her heat in the 200-meter race. Another personal best was recorded by captain and miler Erin Duggan who clocked in at 5:38.3.

North Quincy was scheduled to meet Quincy this past Tuesday (Feb. 1) at Taunton. On Thursday (Feb. 3) the boys take on Xaverian at BU Armory and both squads will participate in the State Relays at Wheaton College. Several North Quincy athletes will be racing in the Alden Invitational at Brown University on Sunday, Feb. 6.

North Swims To Victory

The North Quincy swimming team moved to 6-1 as they beat Taunton, 96-75, in their first league meet of the year. The competition was not as close as the score indicated as the Red Raiders raced unofficial in the last two events.

Barry Canavan had an excellent day for North as he won the 200-yard individual medley in 2:29.25 and the 100-yard backstroke in 1:05.06. Dan Birmingham and Dan Shaykevich completed an NQ sweep of the 200 ind. medley. John Marinilli finished second to Canavan in the backstroke.

Mike Ploof had another great day for the Red Raiders as he took first place finishes in the 100 and 200 freestyles with times of 55.66 and 2:08.14.

Jacky Lei finished a close second to Ploof in the 100 and won the 50 freestyle in 25.9 seconds.

Freshman James Keys won the 100 butterfly in 1:04.35. Keys set a personal best earlier in the week when he swam a 1:02.78 against New Bedford. Long distance man Eric Oster captured the 500 freestyle with a time of 6:48.31.

Lauralee Summer

She's Quincy's Prettiest Wrestler And A Competitor

By KERRY BYRNE

Mention a female participating in the male-dominated world of wrestling and it may conjure up images of a brutish, almost masculine girl.

For Quincy High's Lauralee Summer, the first girl in city history to wrestle in a varsity meet, nothing could be further from the truth.

Summer is a pretty 112 pound wrestler (it sounds odd saying pretty wrestler). She's both intelligent and quite feminine, thank you, as evidenced by her apprehension as we took her photo before her recent meet against North Quincy.

Summer chose to challenge the wrestler stereotype last year as a junior. What would cause a girl to take on a sport dominated by males, more so, perhaps, than any other sport? For Summer the answer was simple.

"I needed something to do in the winter," she said matter-of-factly. Summer is a three-season athlete. She captains the cross-country team in the fall and the track team in the spring.

Summer moved to Quincy from Oregon in the eighth grade where she was exposed to wrestling through her uncle who coaches the sport. She is philosophical about the problems some may have with a female competing against males in a sport that is all but defined by close physical contact.

"Some people may not like it but it all depends on what your perspective is," she said.

Her opponents certainly have no questions about her as a competitor.

"When you wrestle her it's just like wrestling against anyone else, you don't think of her as a girl, she's just another competitor. She's as tough as many of the other kids I've wrestled," said North Quincy's Dong Yang, who beat Summer in a recent J.V. meet.

Her first varsity meet was on Jan. 15 at 112-pounds in Quincy's 47-20 win over Duxbury. She wrestled two other times at the varsity level in December when she represented Quincy in the Lowell Holiday Tournament.

Besides being an impressive and gutsy athlete, Summer is a superb student. Her course load includes Advanced Placement English and physics as well as classes in psychology and religion at Harvard Extension School. She also works with special needs students at Point/Webster once a week. Among the colleges she hopes to attend next year are Vanderbilt, Emory, Brown and Harvard.

Summer is following in the footsteps of Lisa Ross who wrestled at Quincy two years ago but did not see any varsity time. Quincy has now had a female on its "Men At Work" wrestling team for three straight years.

Feeley Comes Through For Quincy Win

Every Quincy/North Quincy contest should be like this one.

In a meet that featured two of the best wrestling teams in the region and affected the Old Colony League title picture, the Presidents and Red Raiders battled to the final man, with Quincy walking away 36-30 victors.

As half the crowd chanted "Feeley! Feeley! Joe Biagini by Robert Raguso, North took a 30-24 lead and the pressure fell on the shoulders of 189-pounders Andy Schwenderman of North and Matt Strauchon of Quincy.

The meet was close throughout, a result expected by both coaches.

"It will probably come down to six wins on one side and seven on the other," predicted Red Raiders coach Steve Joyce before the meet. This is in fact what happened, with Quincy getting the upper hand.

Two matches in particular, the 160 and 189, proved to be the decisive battles.

Leading 5-0 at the end of the first round, North Quincy 160-pounder John Gorham suffered an ankle injury which left him unable to continue. As a result, Quincy's Greg Santoro was awarded the victory and the six points. The win tied the meet at 24-24 with three matches remaining.

"Gorham had a five-point lead, there was no way he was not going to win. That's a nine-point swing," said Joyce.

Quincy coach Lou Venturelli acknowledged that the injury may have affected the outcome.

"A big swing occurred with the injury, it's unfortunate that it happened that way," said Venturelli.

After a pin of President Joe Biagini by Robert Raguso, North took a 30-24 lead and the pressure fell on the shoulders of 189-pounders Andy Schwenderman of North and Matt Strauchon of Quincy. A win by Schwenderman and the contest was out of reach for the Presidents.

After being down 4-0 and nearly getting pinned himself, Strauchon turned the tables and pinned the Red Raider in the second round to tie the meet the set up the decisive heavyweight showdown.

"The 189 pound meet was the clincher, though not technically, as far as I was concerned," said Venturelli.

Joyce concurred: "The 189 was pivotal. Either kid could of won it but the Quincy kid wanted it more."

North Quincy was on the verge of breaking the meet wide open when consecutive pins by Rafael Malheiros (140) and Fran Bellotti (145) gave the Red Raiders a 24-15 lead. Ashley Davis (152) stemmed the tide for Quincy as the outpointed Chris Hamill, 11-4.

The win moved Quincy to 10-5-1 (3-1, and in first place in the OCL) while North dropped to 10-2 (2-2 in the OCL).

BLOWN OPPORTUNITIES

Some drivers are "lucky" enough to receive warning signals of an impending blow-out. If a driver discerns a rhythmic thumping while driving, it may be caused by a bulge in the tire that is ready to pop.

A car that pulls to the side may indicate that a tire has sustained a puncture by a sharp object and is losing air rapidly. Drivers should be sufficiently warned by either symptom to pull off the road slowly and safely to inspect the questionable tire. In the event that the tire blows out unexpectedly, drivers should make every effort to resist the urge to slam on their brakes. Instead, they should ease up on the accelerator pedal and control their steering in an effort to get the car safely off the road.

HINT: Before jacking up the car, put the parking brake on to halt the transmission in "park" (automatic) or first gear (manual).

If you have questions about your tires, don't hesitate to ask when you come into LEO & WALT'S SUNOCO. Our highly trained technicians and availability of parts will make your experience quick and easy and will assure you of a job well done. We're proud of our staff and you can trust us to get you back on the road. Here at 258 Quincy Ave., E. Braintree (843-1550), we have both full and mini-serve gas islands and of course, we carry diesel fuel. "A Place Where Your Car Can Live Longer."

A SINCERE THANK YOU is expressed by George G. Burke, left, to UMass Chancellor David Scott after a banner with Burke's name and No. 32 was unveiled in the rafters of the Mullins Center, the home arena of UMass-Amherst. Burke wore No. 32 as a star student-athlete on the university's basketball team in the mid-1950s. Over the past 40 years, he has given generously to UMass. Joining in the half-court ceremony are UMass men's basketball coach John Calipari, and Donna Lauretta of the UMass athletics department.

Retirement Of No. 32 Highlights Recognitions, Tributes At Alma Mater A 'Banner' Weekend For George 'Trigger' Burke At UMass/Amherst

BY ROBERT BOSWORTH

Quincy attorney George G. Burke II, one of the greatest athletes in University of Massachusetts history, was honored for his innumerable contributions on and off the basketball court at his alma mater this weekend.

Burke, known as "Trigger" while setting many scoring records as a six-foot guard on the 1954-55 UMass basketball teams, was praised as a devoted and beloved alumnus whose athleticism has been exceeded only by his generosity, commitment and loyalty to his family, profession, community and the university. Approximately 100 family, friends, past and present professional associates and UMass administrators attended the two-day tribute.

The highlight of Burke's special weekend came Sunday when his number 32 was officially retired in his honor to the rafters at the Mullins Center before the UMass-University of Rhode Island basketball game. Standing at mid-court, Burke watched with excitement and then expressed sheer surprise as a maroon banner with "George 'Trigger' Burke, 32." spelled out in white was revealed.

University officials had led Burke to believe that a banner with his name but without the number 32 would be dedicated. The number, which was worn by former UMass star and NBA Hall-of-Famer Julius "Dr. J." Erving was retired in 1988 at a ceremony in which Burke attended.

In fact, at a dinner Saturday night, Burke was presented a banner with his name and nickname by UMass officials who said a similar banner would hang above the court. But when the black shroud covering the banner was removed Sunday revealing Burke's name and number, "Trigger's" eyes and mouth opened in amazement.

"Oh my God, they even put the number 32 on it," Burke said as he was congratulated by David Scott, the chancellor of the University of Massachusetts system. The sellout crowd of 9,400 fans applauded and cheered the dedication.

The moment was one that Burke will never forget.

"They had led me to believe that 32 wouldn't be part of the banner because Julius is number 32," Burke said later. "It was such a disappointment to me because I was 32."

"But they did a separate banner. When they released the black shroud and when I saw the number 32, I was the happiest man in the world. In terms of my athletic life, it was by far the number one moment. It meant so much to me."

Burke, coincidentally, held many of UMass's basketball scoring records until Erving surpassed them. They are also the only alumni to have their number(s) retired by the school. The Burke banner hangs at one end of the rafters, the Erving banner at the other.

Ironically, within minutes of the UMass ceremony, another 32 worn by Burke was retired at the Boston Garden. As a rookie with the Celtics in 1956-57, Burke wore 32. The number, of course, was later worn by Kevin McHale and 32 was hoisted to the Garden rafters in McHale's honor.

Over the years, Burke and McHale have become friends. Once while having dinner together, McHale gave Burke a Celtics jersey with their number on it and signed it, "To the original No. 32."

Burke's recognition weekend featured many other tributes and presentations, most of which occurred during a dinner held in his behalf at the Mullins Center. The function room, situated high above the basketball court and 9,400-seat arena, provided a picturesque setting.

The guest of honor was clearly moved by the tributes.

"It means a lot to me to celebrate this night with so many friends," he said. "This dinner is wonderful to me. I'm deeply touched."

"This night is perhaps the most important night in my life in terms of what we're celebrating."

Since graduating from UMass in 1956 with a degree in government, Burke has always held his alma mater in high esteem. Over the past 40 years, he has contributed thousands of dollars and countless hours to the university's athletic programs.

"This university means a lot to me. I love this university. The greatest bargain I ever got was $50 a semester," Burke said, referring to the cost of tuition when he was a student in the 1950s.

The tribute was also emotional for Burke. He said he wished he could have shared the occasion with two very dear people: former UMass teammate Jack Foley and his mother, Ruth, each of whom recently passed away.

He asked the gathering to observe a moment of silence in the memory of Foley who paired with Burke to form the "Swish Kids," perhaps the greatest one-two scoring punch in UMass history.

Burke then remembered his mother who passed away late last year.

"My mother was my best friend. I really would have loved to have her tonight," he said softly.

On the court, "Trigger" was described by his peers as a dedicated athlete whose hard work and leadership transpired into greatness.

"As an athlete, you were second to none," UMass President Michael Hooker told Burke at the dinner.

During his distinguished collegiate basketball career, Burke became the only player to record both "highest scorer" and "most assists" in one season at UMass. In a 1956 contest against Holy Cross, he scored 23 points, matching All-American and future Celtic great Tom Heinsohn's scoring output.

Burke's prolific scoring and team leadership brought him special recognition in '56 when he was named to the second team All America as well as All East, All New England, Yankee Conference and All Boston Garden first teams.

In the years since, Burke's name has been synonymous with UMass basketball. The university's Most Valuable Player Award for men's basketball is named for Burke.

In 1981, "Trigger" was named to the UMass Hall of Fame. The Hall, now being re-established, has been named in honor of Burke because his generosity has made its installation possible.

GUEST SPEAKERS at a recognition dinner for George Burke, center, at the University of Massachusetts at Amherst Saturday included Dr. John F. Burke, George's brother and a professor of economics at Cleveland State University; and David Bartley, former Massachusetts House speaker and present president of Holyoke Community College who played basketball with Burke at UMass and served with him in the state legislature.

was lauded as the consummate professional and family man who has done much for his fellow man without fanfare.

"George Burke has distinguished himself in every arena he's entered in life and you've entered all of them," Hooker said.

"You've carried the mantle of leadership superbly without faltering. Every university has a mythical figure that the student body and university community can look up to and you, George Burke, are that figure."

Besides being a successful and respected attorney, Burke is a former city councillor, state representative and Norfolk County district attorney. His election to the latter post in 1966 was historic as Burke became the youngest person every elected Norfolk County DA at age 34 and the first Democrat to hold that office.

David Bartley, president of Holyoke Community College who played with Burke at UMass and served with him in the state legislature, described "Trigger" as an honest man who has always exemplified integrity, decency and dignity.

Bartley pointed out Burke was an ardent supporter of UMass when he served as a legislator. "In the state legislature, George lobbied for state funding for UMass. This a great university because of people like George Burke."

Referring to Burke's law career, Bartley added, "If all attorneys were as good as George Burke, the law would rank as one of the noblest professions. George Burke has always done right."

Dr. John Burke, George's brother and a professor of economics at Cleveland State, was equally eloquent in his praise.

"(George) is by far the most generous man I've ever met. He has been generous to his wife, his brothers and sisters, his children, his university and his schools."

Dr. Burke noted George pays the electric bill so that lights at outdoor courts in Quincy can shine during the summer, providing recreation for many local youths. He also extends a helping hand to other civic causes and endeavors. Burke recently established six $1,000 scholarships for three Quincy High School and three North Quincy High School graduates who enroll at the University of Massachusetts.

"You are the greatest brother," Dr. Burke said. "You are the greatest friend. You are. I'm sure mother would say, the greatest son."

Hockey

Quincy's Quick Start Paces Win Over B-R

Quincy scored two goals in the first minute and two goals in the last minute to post a 8-5 victory over Bridgewater-Raynham Saturday night at the Quincy Youth Arena.

It looked like Quincy would run away with this contest when they burnt freshman goaltender Derek Bissonette three times just 4 minutes and 23 seconds into the game. Goals by Dave Cooper and Tim Messing opened up things for the Presidents with assists coming from Steve Provost and Dan Mann. Quincy took the three goal advantage when Provost beat Bissonette through the five-hole. Cooper assisted.

B-R coach Pat Grasso attributed the early goals to the inexperience of his freshman goaltender and some soft defense.

"Bissonette (22 saves) seemed very nervous. He gave up a couple of soft goals that he wouldn't normally give up. We also weren't in position on defense in the early part of game," said Grasso.

The game took a definite change when Trojans Mason Harris and David Garafolo beat Presidents' goalie Mark Smith to make it a one-point contest.

Quincy opened up yet another lead with first period goals by Joe McPhee and Steve Miller. A tally by Shawn McTomney gave the Presidents a seemingly comfortable 6-2 lead at 1:44 of the second period. Three Trojan goals in an eight minute span, though, would leave Quincy struggling to maintain a 6-5 lead going into the third period.

"We let down a little bit and Bridgewater-Raynham took advantage of that. We let them back in the game," said Quincy assistant coach Ted Walsh.

After a wild first two periods, both teams turned it up a notch on defense.

The contest also became a chippy affair in the third period with five penalties called, including one misconduct on each team.

Eleven seconds later, with Bissonette back between the pipes, Miller diked out the netminder on a breakaway for his second, and the Presidents' final, goal of the night.

"We dodged a bullet tonight," said Walsh. "We kept losing our lead but those late goals save us."

The win moved Quincy to 5-4-2 (2-3-2 in OCL play). The Presidents will face off at Plymouth tonight (Wednesday, Feb. 2) and again on Saturday at Falmouth at 7 p.m.

Squirt Bs Win Tourney Crown

The Quincy Youth Hockey Squirt B team captured the title game of the Coca-Cola Tournament in overtime as they beat Avon, Connecticut, 2-1.

After falling behind 1-0, Joe Cunningham scored for Quincy to tie the game at 1-1. The assist came from Jordan Virtue. 48 seconds into overtime Shaun Flaherty netted the decisive goal for Quincy. Rene Lamaghini assisted on the game winning tally.

Pat O'Donnell was superb in goal as he made several game saving stops. Other players with strong performances for the tournament champs included Joe Fitzpatrick, Frank Guest, Joe Callahan, Pat Lahar, Tom Maloney, Martin McGrath, Jill McInnis, Kevin Patten, Jon Paquette, Shawn Richardson and Dan Sheehan.

St. Moritz Devils Lose To Sharks

The St. Moritz Devils

played valiantly but lost to the formidable Bay State Sharks, 2-0. It was the Devils' second loss of the year to the Sharks.

The first period proved to be the difference as the Sharks scored both goals during this time.

Both defenses played solidly throughout the rest of the game. Sean Sullivan of South Boston was the top Devils defenseman as he stopped several Bay State scoring opportunities and cleared the puck out of the St. Moritz zone. Goalie Kevin Regan of South Boston made some excellent saves after giving up the two early goals.

Devil's wing Tom Hughes of Quincy had a number of break away scoring opportunities but the puck wouldn't bounce his way.

The Devil's play next week against the B.C. Eagles.

Flynn, Paquette Hat Tricks Spark Granite Auto

Paul Flynn and Jon Paquette notched hat tricks for Granite Auto Electric as they beat Johnson Motor Parts, 10-5, and moved into a tie for first in the Squirt House league.

Also scoring for Granite Auto were Merril Langille, Joe Thorley, Kevin Patten and Rene Lumaghini. Mike Doyle, Steve Goff, Patten, Lumaghini and Paquette recorded two assists each. Flynn and James Mateu each had one assist.

Shaun Flaherty scored three of the five goals for Johnson Motor Parts. The other goals were netted by Dan Jones and Mark Giese. Assists were dished out by Frank Sorrento, Dan Sheehan, Tom Hughes, John Walsh and Giese.

Five different players scored for Burgin Platner as they topped Doran & Horigan, 5-3.

Matt Reggiani, Scott Markarian, Matt Glynn, Paul Zenga and Dan Kennedy were the goal scorers for the victorious squad. Glynn also recorded two assists. Single assists were made by Markarian, Terrence Doherty, Stephen Ricciardi and Joe Cunningham.

Doran goals were scored by Brian Stock, "Skateless" Joe Jackson and Mark Fitzpatrick with Jimmy Cashins, Pam Sullivan and Eric Abdon assisting.

Quincy Sun and Green Environmental skated to a 5-5 tie.

Colin Maxey led all goal scorers with two tallies for the Sun. John Ryan, Dom Papile and David Germain added single goals. Assists were handed out by Germain, Papile, Ryan, Joe Fitzpatrick and Brett Keyes.

Derek Whitman, David Kusy, Pat O'Donnell, Steve McGonagle and Ryan Graeber were the goal scorers for Green. Assisting were Corey Place, Mike Maguire and Pat Lahar.

In last week's action: Granite Auto Electric blitzed Quincy Sun, 9-1. Two players, Paul Flynn and Joe Thorley, posted hat tricks for Granite Auto. Rene Lumaghini led the team in point total with two goals and three assists. Matt Conso scored the lone Sun goal with Matt Moriarty assisting.

Three different players, Mark Gibbons, Paul Zenga and Dan Kennedy, scored two goals as Burgin Platner topped Green Environmental, 8-3. Sean Fennelly and Jim Devlin scored the other two goals for the victors. Shane Kabilian scored twice and Steve McGonagle scored once in the losing effort.

Doran & Horigan won by the same margin, 8-3, over Johnson Motor Parts. Jimmy Cashins cashed in three times for Doran while Charlie Sorrento paced Johnson with two goals.

The Squirt House League standings are: Granite Auto, 7-5-2; Green Environmental, 7-5-2; Burgin Platner, 6-6-2; Doran, 5-6-3; Quincy Sun, 5-6-3; Johnson, 5-7-2.

O'Hanley's 4 Goals Powers Campbell

Brian O'Hanley was the week's leading scorer with four goals as he led Campbell's Auto Service past Granite Rail Pizza, 10-6.

Jake O'Donnell, Matt Allea, Taylor Reinhardt, Tim Watson, Steve Summering and Rich Cullen were the other goal scorers for Campbell's. Billy Jones and Kevin Richardson were the big playmakers with three assists each. Summering and Reinhardt each assisted on two goals. Single assists were dished out by O'Hanley, Allea and Steve Crispo.

Bobby Donovan and Andy Patten recorded two goals each as Granite Rail fell short. Billy McKeon and Josh Giordani had the other two goals. Donovan also handed out two assists. McKeon, Giordani, Brendan Clifford and Paul Grazioso had single assists.

John Segalla tallied five times as Skatesmith topped Lydon Russell, 7-5. Miah Hasson paced Lydon Russell with two goals.

Barry's Deli cut up Samoset Pharmacy, 10-2. Mike Delahoyde notched a hat trick in the winning effort while Jarrod Swierk and Ryan McFarland had two goals each. Billy Ran and Matt Lavery scored the Samoset goals.

Granite Rail Pizza tossed Purdy's Ice Cream, 10-4. Billy McKeon and Andy Patten both had three goal games for Granite Rail. Ryan Donahue led Purdy's with two goals.

By KERRY BYRNE

The Quincy Sun performer of the week has to be Quincy High's 189-pound wrestler Matt Strauchon.

With his team down 30-24 to North Quincy, a Strauchon loss to Andy Schwenderman meant a loss for the team. A loss by the team meant the possibility of losing the OCL title.

Strauchon was this close to getting pinned and losing the match, and the meet, and the OCL title, in the first round. Somehow he managed to fight his way out of it.

In the second round Strauchon took command and pinned Schwenderman to send the meet to a thirteenth and decisive match, won by Quincy's Mike Feeley.

I said it in the story but I'll say it again: Every athletic event should be this good: Arch-rivals, league title in the balance, match decided on the last play, so to speak, and a loud and boisterous crowd.

It was awesome. Even if you don't know much about a particular sport (to be honest, I don't know much about the intricacies of wrestling), it's easy to enjoy a great sporting event, and this was one of them.

Congratulations to both teams for outstanding performances!

A wrestling tidbit from the Gloria Steinem school: Shouldn't the Quincy wrestling team be called "Persons At Work?"

In the Youth Hockey department, the best performance of the last few weeks was turned in by Pee Wee Billy Connolly who scored SEVEN goals for Colonial Federal in a 12-10 win over Neponset Valley Survey. Granted it was not exactly a defensive struggle, but no one else had more than two goals in the game.

Several people have asked why the Quincy High boys' basketball team has been playing all their home games at Eastern Nazarene College.

According to Quincy coach John Franceschini, some water damage occurred to the gym earlier this year and it rendered the court unfit for play. The gym should be back in operation next Thursday.

The 14th annual Century 21/Easter Seal Volleyball Games will be held March 12, 13 and 19 at North Quincy High School.

Any group can organize a team to play, with competition at every level from beginner to champion. Every team receives a trophy and prizes will be awarded. Prizes include T-shirts, athletic shoes, Red Sox tickets and gift certificates.

The real reward will be knowing that the Games help support Easter Seal services for men, women and children with disabilities.

For help in forming a team or in registering for the 1994 Century 21/Easter Seal Volleyball Games, call 1-800-922-8290 or call Kristen Kelly at the Easter Seal office at 482-3375.

Glass Company Continues Project 2000 Fundraiser

J.N. Phillips Glass Co., 1011 Hancock St., Quincy has extended the deadline of its fundraiser for Project 2000.

The company recently raised $450 for the project by adding glass etching to 75 cars brought in by customers. In addition, J.N. Phillips contributed 50 percent of the day's revenue, or another $225, bringing the total raised for the endeavor to $675.

In response to recent limiting weather conditions, the company has continued the fundraiser until the February school vacation. The cost of $6 from any vehicle being glass etched before then will be donated to Project 2000.

The goal of the project is to provide a tuition-free college education for former Snug Harbor Community School students who will graduate from high school in the year 2000.

Group Offering Support For Widows, Widowers

Quincy residents are invited to participate in Young Widows and Widowers Ltd., a non-profit, non-sectarian self-help support organization for younger widowed men and women.

The group's South Shore chapter meets Tuesdays from 7:30 to 9:30 p.m. at South Congregational Church, 1075 Washington St., Braintree. A "moving on" group for persons widowed longer is held on the first and third Wednesday of the month at the same location and time.

For more information, call Beth Rotondo at 337-8689.

5 Score As Pee Wee A's Win

The Quincy Pee Wee A team, sponsored by the Quincy Elks, powered by Medfield 5-1 as five different Quincy players scored.

The Quincy goal scorers were Jeff Glynn, Kevin Shaw, Mike Powers, Mike Sullivan and Pat Kenney. Assists went to Chad Fitzpatrick, Sean Garvey, Shawn Manning, Jesse Winter, Billy Connolly, Bob Harvey and Kenney.

The win was backboned by the solid efforts of defensemen John Katsarikas, Steven Ford, Paul Markarian, Billy Griffin and Betsy Stone.

Quincy's goaltending tandem of Chris Carbas and Ryan Kreuger turned in another great effort.

The Pee Wee A's will play Framingham and Canton before going on to the Kiwanis Tournament.

The following are representative questions answered daily by VA counselors. Full information is available at any VA office.

Question: What is the current interest rate on loans against government life insurance policies sponsored by the Department of Veterans Affairs (VA)? Answer: Effective Oct. 1, VA lowered the interest rate it charges on policy loans from seven to five percent. The rate change affects both new and old loans taken by veterans against their government life insurance policies. The rate reduction is in effect at least until Oct. 1, 1994.

Q: I have a $10,000 National Service Life Insurance term policy. Can I increase the face value of the policy?

A: No. The Face amount of $10,000 cannot be increased. However, you can use dividends you earn on the policy to purchase more insurance, called "paid-up additions." These paid-up additions will be added to the face value of your policy and paid to your designated beneficiary at the time of your death.

Q: I have just been awarded a service-connected disability rating by VA. How long am I eligible to apply for Service-Disabled Veterans Insurance (SDVI)? A: The eligibility period for applying for SDVI, also known as "RH" insurance, is two years.

SCOTT DEWARE

A THOUGHT FOR THE WEEK

Authors of fiction have never created a comparable character to capture the admiration and education reserved for Lincoln in history. Such memorialization has never happened before and probably will never happen again. Edwin M. Stanton certainly made a prophetic statement following Lincoln's death when he sadly said, "Now he belongs to the ages."

On Lincoln's birthday, we honor a man who rose from disheartening poverty to become one of the greatest and most revered men among men in history. His singular humility would prompt him to dislike the laudatory American given him. Debate and disagreements plagued him in his lifetime. Events and people gave him ample reason to be discouraged and resentful. He conquered discouragement, related resentment. A most fitting eulogy was expressed by Ralph Waldo Emerson - "He heart was as great as the world, but there was no room in it to hold the memory of a wrong."

Members of American Legion Post 380 will attend to honor the memory of the four chaplains on the USS Dorchester during World War II who gave their life jackets to others and went down with their ship. The ship was torpedoed and sank on February 23, 1943.

The sermons at the 9 and 10:30 a.m. worship services will be delivered by the Reverend M. Alicia Corea. At the later service the choir will be directed by Arden T. Schofield, organist. The offertory music will be a flute solo by Janet Little.

A coffee hour hosted by Pam Pratsch will be held between services. Greeters for the day will be Betty Dunn and Jean Bragg.

United First Parish

Dr. Sheldon W. Bennett, minister, will preach on "God Is In The Details" at the 10:30 a.m. worship service Sunday at United First Parish Church (Unitarian Universalist) in Quincy Center.

Norman Corey, music director, will play organ works and the church choir will sing. Usher will be Matt Malloy.

Visitors are welcome and are invited to the social hour in the parish hall following the service. Hostesses will be Janet Dooley and Leslie Simpson.

INVITATION FOR BIDS

INVITATION TO BID

The City of QUINCY, Massachusetts will receive sealed bids for the furnishing and delivery of various play equipment for the Boyson Park in Quincy. Bids will be received until 10:00 A.M. on February 18, 1994 in the Department of Planning and Community Development's Conference Room, Quincy City Hall Annex, 1305 Hancock Street, Quincy, MA 02169.

Copies of the bid package can be obtained from the City of Quincy, Department of Planning and Community Development or by calling (617) 376-1368 from 9:00 A.M. to 4:00 P.M. beginning Thursday, February 3, 1994.

CITY OF QUINCY 1994-95 COMMUNITY DEVELOPMENT BLOCK GRANT PROGRAM REQUEST FOR PROPOSALS AND NOTICE OF PUBLIC HEARINGS

The City of Quincy expects to receive from the US Department of Housing and Urban Development (HUD) approximately $2,488,000 in Community Development Block Grant (CDBG) funds for the year beginning July 1, 1994. The City is therefore soliciting community inputs in identifying community needs and proposals for its Fiscal Year 1994-95 CDBG funding.

Eligible CDBG activities include acquisition, public facilities and improvements, demolition, public services, removal of architectural barriers, rehabilitation and preservation, special economic development activities, and planning activities. Eligible activities must also benefit low and moderate income people, address slums and blight conditions, or meet an urgent community need. Other limitations apply.

Request for Proposal packages are available at the Department of Planning and Community Development (PCD), City Hall Annex, 1305 Hancock Street, Quincy, MA 02169 or by calling (617) 376-1362. Proposals must be received by the PCD no later than March 4, 1994.

The PCD will also hold a series of public hearings to solicit suggestions and proposals on activities that will address Quincy's community development needs and to discuss further the CDBG requirements. The schedule for the public hearings are as follows:

1. Tuesday, February 15, 1994-7:00 PM
Atlantic Neighborhood Center
12 Hunt Street (off Hancock Street, next to North Quincy High School).
2. Wednesday, February 16, 1994-7:00 PM
Germantown Neighborhood Center
333 Palmer Street (located in the Snug Harbor Community School).

AS AMENDED, AND
M.G.L. c. 254A and 5A

HEMISPHERE
CONDOMINIUM UNIT 12B
211 WEST STREET,
QUINCY,
MASSACHUSETTS

By virtue of the Judgment and Order of the Quincy Division of the Norfolk District Court (Docket No. 93 CV 1064) in favor of Hemisphere Condominium Trust against Beverly J. Whalen pursuant to M.G.L. 183A-35 on the real estate known as Unit 12B of the Hemisphere Condominium for the purpose of satisfying such lien, the real estate will be sold at Public Auction at 1:00 o'clock p.m. at the premises, 211 West Street, Quincy, Massachusetts on the 11th day of February, 1994 A.D. The premises to be sold are more particularly described as follows:

DESCRIPTION: The unit being known as Unit No. 12B in the Building at 211 West Street, Quincy, Norfolk County, Massachusetts of the Hemisphere Condominium, a condominium established pursuant to Massachusetts General Laws, Chapter 183A by Master Deed dated December 20, 1972 and recorded with Norfolk Deeds on December 21, 1972, Book 4897, Page 669, which Unit is shown on the floor plans of the Building filed simultaneously with said Master Deed in Norfolk Deeds, Book 4897, Page 669. Said Unit shall be conveyed together with an undivided 5.62 percent interest in the Common Elements described in the Master Deed.

Said unit shall be sold and conveyed subject to all outstanding municipal or other public taxes, tax titles, assessments, liens or claims in the nature of liens, rights of tenants and parties in possession, and existing encumbrances of record affecting said premises including mortgage or record if, and to the extent that they have priority over the lien of the Condominium Trust. In the event of a typographical error or omission contained in this publicity, the description of the premises contained in said unit deed shall control.

For title see deed to Beverly J. Whalen dated October 21, 1988, and recorded with the Norfolk County Registry of Deeds in Book 8137, Page 323. TERMS: A deposit payable in cash, certified check or bank check of $2,500.00 is to be paid by the successful bidder at the time of the auction and the balance of the purchase price is to be paid within thirty (30) days of the auction. Other terms to be announced at the sale. Hemisphere Condominium Trust by its Attorneys, Stephen M. Marcus, Esquire, Marcus, Goodman, Emmer & Brooks, P.C., 45 Brintree Hill Park, #107, Brintree, MA 02184 (617) 843-5000 Dated: December 28, 1993 1/20, 1/27, 2/3/94 about new stores, but the first thing is easy access. It's time to take some action."

Eight Councillors Support Concourse

Other councillors said they tentatively support the concourse project.

"At this point, from what I've read, I think it could certainly help downtown Quincy," said Ward 2 Councillor Ted DeCristofaro. "But I really don't know much about it, except what I've seen in the newspaper. I want something definitive I can peruse at my leisure. I need more time to learn more about it."

Ward 5 Councillor Charles Phelan said he thinks the project could be good for the city, providing citizens' concerns are properly addressed.

"I do agree there's a need for access to Quincy Square, and overall I support the concept of it," said Phelan. "We just have to make sure all the other details are worked out."

Agreed Ward 1 Councillor Peter Kolson, "I think at this point, some areas of the project are in a preliminary stage, but in general I think it's a good idea. I just want to leave some door open before everything is nailed down shut."

Ward 6 Councillor Bruce Ayers said that he, like DeCristofaro, wants to learn more about the project, but said his initial reaction is also positive.

"I think it's a step in the right direction as far as what the mayor is trying to do in terms of getting business to come to the city," said Ayers. "I'd like to scrutinize it a bit more, but the overall concept of it, I think it's a positive. We need something like this to help the downtown area."

At press time, Councillor Timothy Cahill could not be reached for comment. Last week, however, Cahill went on record as saying that he does not think the project will work, adding that he would prefer to see construction of a smaller road connecting Burgin Parkway to the Parkingway.

The Quincy Center Concourse project is a major initiative of Quincy 2000. As presently proposed, the concourse would establish a four-way road in an east and west direction from Burgin Parkway to Hancock Street and further from Hancock Street to Mechanic Street, an overall distance of about 1,500 linear feet.

The roadway, which will be a state project, will cost an estimated $5.9 million to construct, according to Sheets. The city is seeking state and federal funding to finance the project, although Sheets and Colton both said some city money will also be needed. The City Council would have to approve the use of any city funds for the project.

The council would also have to authorize any landtakings from local businesses necessary to build the roadway. As proposed, the Burgin Parkway to Hancock Street link would impact only one business, Tanline 2001 in the Parkingway, which Colton said would have to be demolished and relocated.

The city also would acquire, possibly through state eminent domain, a portion of the Paperama parking lot and the former Kincaide building site where the "west link" would connect with Hancock Street. The Hancock Street to Mechanic Street "east link" may require additional razing depending on which of three methods of construction is used, Colton said.

The method of building the east link will largely be dependent on the findings of the citizens advisory committee, the commissioner added.

Other variations of the Quincy Center Concourse project have been circulating for at least 17 years. LaRaia introduced a similar proposal in 1977, during his term as mayor, as part of a larger 15-year master plan for downtown renewal. In 1978, Mayor Arthur Tobin proposed a "Crosstown Connector" as a smaller plan for a tunnel to be built downtown under Hancock Street to alleviate traffic congestion, but local merchants opposed the plan, saying the roadway would bypass the downtown. Mayor Francis McCanley finally shelved the project in 1982, saying it was too expensive, and instead focused on constructing Burgin Parkway.

In 1992, Sheets introduced a proposal for a "Center Crossway" which would have linked Burgin Parkway with Route 3A, but the plan faltered among opposition from the business community. Sheets said he is confident the Quincy Center Concourse project will succeed because of support it has received from government officials, labor, and downtown merchants.

City, State Officials Back Death Penalty

By MICHAEL WHALEN

A proposal to reinstitute the death penalty in Massachusetts was strongly embraced Tuesday by city and state officials who called the measure a necessary means of punishment for those who commit first-degree murder.

Gov. William Weld unveiled the proposal as part of his new crime package at a press conference at the Quincy Police Station shortly before The Sun went to press.

The legislation would impose the death penalty by lethal injection in first-degree murder cases which meet any one of 12 categories of aggravating circumstances including murder of a police officer, contract killing, murder involving multiple victims, murder committed in conjunction with rape, robbery or home invasion and murder of a judge, juror or witness.

The governor's proposal would also establish a bifurcated trial process, with separate juries to determine guilt and punishment.

Other highlights of Weld's crime package include the "Three Strikes and You're Out" proposal which would impose a life sentence, with no chance of release, for repeat offenders convicted of a third violent felony including murder, manslaughter, rape, armed robbery, kidnapping or a serious assault and battery with a dangerous weapon; stronger crackdowns on white-collar crime and drug trafficking; and establishment of a statewide grand jury for prosecuting criminal activity which crosses

Kolson Reintroduces Required Residency Law

By MICHAEL WHALEN

Ward 1 City Councillor Peter Kolson has re-introduced his proposal for a new ordinance that would require all city employees to be residents of Quincy.

A public hearing on the matter will be held Monday, Feb. 21 at 6:30 p.m. in the City Council Chamber at Quincy City Hall, 1305 Hancock St., Quincy Center.

Kolson originally introduced the proposal last year, but noted after Monday night's City Council meeting it was not acted upon because of higher priority matters the council turned its attentions to. He said he favors the ordinance because he feels it would "add a greater impact" to the job performance of city departments and "increase their caring about the community."

He added that the money Quincy spends on city salaries could better strengthen Quincy's economy if all city employees were residents. City Auditor Robert Foy said the current total for the city's annual payroll is approximately $103

Youth Pleads Innocent In W.Q. Fatal Shooting

By LISA CONNELL

A 19-year old West Quincy youth has pleaded innocent to a manslaughter charge in the fatal shooting of an 18-year old Weymouth friend in what police said was a game of Russian Roulette.

Sean Hynes of 18 Hilltop St. pleaded innocent Monday in Quincy District Court in the death of John Auger of Weymouth.

Judge Charles Black released him on $5,000 bail for a probable cause hearing March 9.

Meanwhile, police said, ballistic tests are being conducted and the results of an autopsy awaited.

The case was to be presented to a Norfolk County grand jury this week, said Norfolk County Asst. Dist. Atty. John Corrigan.

Auger was accidentally shot above the eye in the kitchen of the defendant's home Saturday evening.

Police reports indicate that neighbors witnessed Hynes, Auger, Mark Leuchte, another friend, and an unnamed juvenile shooting BB guns at tin cans in Hynes' backyard since 2 p.m. Saturday.

Corrigan said that while looking for the BB guns earlier in an upstairs bedroom closet, Hynes discovered a .357 magnum wrapped in a Sears plastic bag.

Later that afternoon when inside the house, Corrigan said Hynes picked up the gun and asked the others, "Who wants to play Russian Roulette?"

Corrigan stated that Hynes said to the others he wasn't afraid of playing this game because he had removed the gun's bullets and placed them in a white bag.

Hynes pulled the trigger three times, five to six feet from Auger's head, Corrigan said.

The gun was fired twice, with no discharge yet on the third time, a shot hit Auger above the right eye, according to Corrigan.

Present in Hynes' kitchen at the moment of the shooting was the juvenile who observed Auger's body as it slumped towards the floor, Corrigan said.

Corrigan said that Hynes reportedly shouted "Oh my God! Oh my God! Call 911!"

Quincy police officer Robert Clark arrived at the Hynes shortly after 4:30

Possible Link In Whitman Arson Case And S. Quincy Garage Fires Investigated

By ROBERT BOSWORTH

Quincy police are investigating whether there is a possible link between a Quincy woman and a companion arrested on arson and other related charges in Whitman Sunday and a rash of garage fires in South Quincy over the past four months.

Sandra D. Haraldstad, 29, of 105 Independence Ave., Quincy, and William J. McLellan, 31, of Whitman, were behind bars Tuesday after pleading innocent to arson and other charges in Brockton District Court Monday. They were arrested early Sunday morning after a fire ignited in the rectory of the Holy Ghost Parish in Whitman.

Haraldstad and McLellan were each charged with arson, burning of a dwelling, burning of a building, and breaking and entering in the night time. McLellan was additionally charged with three counts of assault and battery on a police officer.

After their arraignment, McLellan was held on $20,000 cash bail in the Plymouth House of Correction. Haraldstad was held on $1,000 cash bail in the Framingham House of Correction.

The two are scheduled to appear in Brockton District Court Feb. 16 for a pre-trial conference. As of Tuesday, bail had not been

McFarland New Purchasing Agent Sheets Reappoints 17 Department Heads, Adds One Newcomer

By ROBERT BOSWORTH

Seventeen department heads were reappointed and one newcomer appointed to the administration of Mayor James Sheets during a brief ceremony Monday at City Hall.

The new department head, Purchasing Agent-Parking Clerk Michael McFarland of Wollastan, succeeds Robert Denvir who is retiring after 12 years. Denvir will officially step down in two weeks after helping McFarland with the transition.

McFarland's appointment, like most of the other department heads, is for one year.

Sheets welcomed the newest member of his administration. Noting McFarland has been active in community affairs, including the Quincy Partnership, the mayor said, "(Mike) will add substantially to the official family."

The mayor plans to combine the city and school purchasing departments to save the city money.

McFarland said he looks forward to his first year in his new position.

"I'm looking forward to the challenges of the consolidation. I hope to bring some of my business background (to the job)," said McFarland, the owner and operator of Barry's Deli in Wollastan.

McFarland's wife, Marty, and two of their three children, twins Erin and Ryan, both 9, attended the ceremony. Their other child, Tara, 4, could not attend because she is in nursery school.

Those reappointed were:

City Solicitor Stephen J. McGrath; Assistant City Solicitors James S. Timmins and Kevin Madden; Legal Counsel Joseph J. MacRitchie, DFW Commissioner David Colton, DFW Operations Manager Lester Gerry, DFW Programs Manager Michael Wheelwright; Traffic Engineer John (Jack) T. Gillon, Recreation Director Barry Welch, Personnel Director Kathleen Yaeger.

Also receiving one-year reappointments were Data Processing Director Robert Brennan, Conservation Enforcement Officer Heather Sargent, Engineer Saeed Mirza, Treasurer-Tax Collector Dana Childs, Rent Grievance Board Executive Secretary Jane Reikard and Equal Opportunity Administrator Janet Ellis.

Assessor Henry J. Bertolon was reappointed to a three-year term. The terms of the three-member Board of Assessors are "staggered," meaning one board member is appointed or reappointed annually.

Sheets, in an enthusiastic and at times motivating manner, thanked the department heads for their dedication and hard work over the last year. The mayor highlighted several successes, including the stabilization of the city's economy, the progress of Quincy 2000, and the addition to the Bernazzani Elementary School.

Sheets, who was re-elected to a third term last November, said other initiatives will be undertaken in the coming months. He noted the proposed golf course and recreational facility at the former West Quincy landfill, a bond issue to retrofit the city's parks and playgrounds, and additional physical improvements to city schools as well as a curriculum study.

"I think the next two years will be more exciting than last year. We'll see the culmination of our work," he told his department heads.

"None of this would be possible without all of you. We're going to make more exciting things happen."

Sheets said his administration will continue to emphasize public safety and a crack down on crime and drugs.

"We're going to declare a war on drugs in the City of Quincy over the next two years. America has to take its streets back so that families can be raised in safety."

"You have to get tough. Cities and towns are starting to do that and we're going to be a part of it."

In conclusion, Sheets asked his department heads for their cooperation and communication.

"I deeply appreciate your efforts. The only thing that I ask is work together. No department is an island. I think the next two years will be very, very exciting."

"We don't expect to take a back seat to any city or town because we have some of the best talent in government."

Thanks for being creative and energetic."

$5,000 From City Store Put Into Special Account

A city "special activities-celebration" account has received its first deposit, courtesy of the Quincy City Store.

The City Council Monday night accepted an amount of $5,000 in proceeds from the store to be placed into the account.

The store, which opened Jan. 8, is open Saturdays from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. at the main administration building of the Fore River shipyard on East Howard Street in Quincy Point. Through the sale of surplus items from various city departments, the endeavor raises money for the account which Mayor James Sheets said will finance future family-oriented city activities.

Sheets said the easiest way to set up a special account of that kind is to have the City Council accept money raised from an enterprise such as the city store in the form of a gift.

Ward 1 Councillor

South Shore Rental Assn. Meeting Feb. 21

The South Shore Rental Association will meet Monday, Feb. 21 at 7 p.m. at the Knights of Columbus Hall, 5 Hollis Ave., North Quincy. Meetings are open to the public.

Peter Kolson said Monday night that the amount of the deposit was determined prior to last Saturday's sales and that in actuality the store has raised a total of "almost $8,000." Sheets has said he hopes the store can raise between $25,000 and $75,000 annually.

The idea for the Quincy City Store originally came from Kolson, who was inspired by an acquaintance from San Diego, Calif. A similar operation in that city reportedly brings in about $500,000 a year.

State To Work With City, Governor Says Weld Expresses Support For Concourse, Local Commuter Rail Station

By MICHAEL WHALEN

Gov. William Weld has pledged his support in helping the city build both the Quincy Center Concourse and a commuter rail station in the city's downtown area.

The governor met with Mayor James Sheets for about 40 minutes in the mayor's office last Friday to discuss those and other issues of interest to Quincy, such as the city's efforts to bring ship-building back to the Fore River shipyard.

Although Weld would not offer a specific timetable, he said at a press conference following the meeting that he is interested in seeing the concourse built as soon as possible.

"If the mayor thinks it's a good idea, then I think it would be good for the city," said Weld. "The city has its act together."

Asked by a reporter if he thinks he will be able to secure state funding for the project, Weld drew a big laugh from the crowd in Sheets' office when he replied, "Yes, I think I'll be able to."

The Quincy Center Concourse, an east-west roadway that would connect Burgin Parkway with Hancock Street in the city's downtown, is a major initiative of Quincy 2000, Quincy's public-private planning corporation. Sheets has applied for $5.9 million in state and federal funding for the project.

Weld also expressed a desire to help build a commuter rail station in the city, saying it could help strengthen the "natural connection" between Quincy, Boston and Plymouth. He added, however, that he would not want the station to interrupt the Old Colony Railroad line scheduled open in 1997.

The governor said he would speak about the two projects with state Transportation Secretary James Kerans, whose support is crucial to both.

Weld also said he will ask Michael Hogan, executive director of the state's Office of Business Development, to help find companies interested in building ships in the city and to look at other possible uses for the shipyard. He added that he and Sheets also discussed other ways to increase tourism in the city as well as education reform.

The visit to Quincy City Hall was a first for Weld, although he and Sheets have previously met at the State House. The mayor said they will be meeting again in a few months.

Sheets and Quincy 2000 Executive Director Charles D'Aprix both said they were happy with what Weld had to say.

"From my point of view, I think the governor knows the Quincy Center Concourse project makes sense," said Sheets. "I was also pleased that he sees the relationship between Quincy, Plymouth and Boston and the importance of a commuter rail station."

"It was very encouraging," said D'Aprix. "It's good to let the governor come here to see first-hand the projects we're working on."

Library Adds $92,298 To FY94 Budget

The Thomas Crane Public Library has received an additional $92,298 in state money to add to its FY94 budget.

The City Council Monday night approved the allocation of the funding, which was given to the library by the Massachusetts Board of Library Commissioners.

Library Director Ann McLaughlin said the money will increase the library's FY94 budget from $156,712 to $249,010 and will "translate into materials, staff and equipment" for the library.

Ward 5 Councillor Charles Phelan spoke in favor of the allocation.

"I fully support it," he said.

The Cost Of Snow Removal

Editor, The Quincy Sun:
Each snow season it becomes more difficult to fathom the game plan of snow plowing. Just when one thinks it safe to dig out because the street is very passable and the sander has been by, out of nowhere swoops another snow plow jockey to bury the driveway.

Now we all know this is eating into the snow fund, but who has considered the other costs?

Cost #1: Take the intersections that are the repositories of snow that didn't make it back into the driveways. Get trapped in that "quick snow" and if you don't run a tire or break a spring you may have to pay to be pushed or towed.

Cost #2: Back to the driveways and sidewalks. Why sidewalks? Because the faster the plow goes the further the snow goes. Who is left at home to man the shovels and checkbooks? Grandma and the wee ones! The alternative is to stay buried until some time during the day when someone will ask you if you need to be dug out. For a fee, of course. Once a day is tolerable, but more than that is expensive.

Cost #3: Is the lucky one at home. Greased shovel in hand, forward! As many times as it takes! Then back to the couch and the heating pad or a visit to the chiropractor.

Cost #4: All of those missed engagements due to "Pretzelitis."

"Snowplow Jockey's Credo"—I take a solemn oath to uphold the following mandates of the Brotherhood of Snow Plow Jockeys:

1. Wait for the commuter exodus of those brave souls who got out before breakfast to clean the driveway, then dutifully fill it again.

2. Increase speed to see how far I can throw the snow.

3. Never endanger my plow on small side streets.

4. Stick to passable streets to preserve the blade.

5. Never stop to clean an intersection.

6. For an extra point, make a late night run so the snow can really ice up the driveways.

Hey, Fellas! It ain't funny anymore!

Seeks Information On Stevenson Family

Editor, The Quincy Sun:
Can any of your readers help me? I want to know if, in Quincy, there is a family named Stevenson whose grandparents had emigrated from Beith in Scotland before the first World War.

I remember my father-in-law, Hugh Stevenson, telling about his family in Quincy. He said his sister's married name was Fleming.

I am now a grandmother, and I thought it would be nice to make contact again with the family, even for the sake of my grandchildren.

Della Chiesa In Lead?

City Councillor Tom Fabrizio thinks he has an amicable solution to the debate over whether the new Early Childhood Center should be named for Abigail Adams or Amelia Della Chiesa.

And, the way he sees it, it would make both of them winners.

Right now, Della Chiesa appears to have the lead.

The School Committee will hold a public hearing on the issue Feb. 16.

The meeting will be held in the multi-purpose room of the center which is on the site of the old Lincoln School on Brooks Ave. in South Quincy.

The choice between Abigail Adams and Della Chiesa isn't an easy one. Both are good candidates:

Abigail, the only woman to be the wife of one U.S. President and the mother of another—John Adams and John Quincy Adams—and an early advocate and activist for women's rights.

Della Chiesa, whose distinguished political career spanned 22 years as city councillor, mayor and state representative.

Twelve of those years were as mayor—longest of any mayor in Quincy's history: two terms under Plan E and four under the present Plan A.

A good many residents grew up knowing him as their only mayor. He was mayor when they entered the first grade and was on hand as mayor to help hand out their diplomas when they graduated from high school.

Fabrizio will attend the Feb. 16 meeting and offer his compromise:

Name the childhood center for Della Chiesa and rename the Beechwood Knoll School which the city will reopen, in honor of Abigail Adams.

"This way both would be honored," says Fabrizio who first suggested the Childhood Center which is in his Ward 4, be named for Della Chiesa.

"It would be very appropriate," he says. "Della Chiesa was a contemporary leader who came from that area."

Della Chiesa was born on Rodman St. in 1901 just a stone's throw from the old Lincoln School which he attended.

Fabrizio believes that renaming the Beechwood Knoll School for Abigail Adams would be more appropriate than naming the childhood center for her, considering Della Chiesa's deep roots in the South Quincy area.

The Ward 4 Neighborhood Association Board of Directors has voted in favor of Della Chiesa.

There is another compromise that has been offered: name the childhood center for Abigail Adams and the attached community center for Della Chiesa.

Fabrizio thinks his compromise is more appropriate. Most residents, he says, want the childhood center named for Della Chiesa and that the community center be known as the Ward 4 Association Center.

Right now it appears that Della Chiesa may have the edge over Abigail Adams in the voting department. Four votes are needed among the seven School Committee members who will decide. Della Chiesa is believed to have possibly three votes with a fourth leaning toward him.

WAHLBERG

CRONIN

ROSEMARY WAHLBERG'S term on the Quincy Housing Authority board of commissioners expires this month and three names are being prominently mentioned as candidates for the vacancy: Christine Cedrone, Michael Cronin and, Wahlberg herself.

Another name heard, but not as much, is that of Ralph Maher who once held the job on a fill-in basis.

Cedrone, who finished in a dead-heat for a seat on the School Committee with Sean Barry and then lost to him at a joint convention of the City Council and School Committee, is a Republican. So is Cronin, a former member of the Voter Board of Voter Registrars who ran for state representative in 1992. Wahlberg is a Democrat. Maher has been both a Democrat and Republican and is presently unenrolled.

The political affiliations are being taken into consideration because this five-year appointment belongs to Gov. William Weld, a Republican. (The mayor has four appointees, none of which are due up this year.)

Some observers think Cedrone, who is seen as a coming GOP star, has the inside track.

But partisan politics aren't always involved in the choice.

Wahlberg, although a Democrat, was first appointed to the QHA in 1974 by Republican Gov. Francis Sargent, to replace a Republican, Francis McCauley. Party lines though have been pretty much followed since.

Democrat Gov. Edward King appointed Lolita Harris, the first black and a Democrat, in 1979. Maher was named to fill out her term when she moved out of the city.

Wahlberg returned to the QHA board in 1984 with an appointment from Democrat Gov. Michael Dukakis and reappointed by him in 1989.

With three terms, Wahlberg has had 15 years of experience on the QHA board.

"I don't see it as a political thing," she says. "I have a passion about helping people with housing."

The consensus is that she has done a good job. But that's no guarantee she will keep the job.

But temptation got the better of them the other day when they, while discussing shedding pounds, just couldn't drive by Brigham's on Beale St. They stopped and dashed in. Koch and McGrath ordered vanilla cones and Shea, mocha—which he insists was low caloric yogurt.

It didn't do much for their diets. But it did prove one thing: two out of three people prefer vanilla.

A Clarification On John Adams

Editor, The Quincy Sun:

This reply is written with respect to the letter that appeared in The Sun Thursday, Jan. 27 referring to Abigail Adams. I have no quarrel with naming a school after this great lady but I offer a correction after her husband, John Adams.

In June of 1774 Adams was elected one of the delegates from Massachusetts to the First Continental Congress. The purpose of the Congress was for the colonies to discuss their opposition to England's Colonial government. John was a great debater and was an active participant not only in the First but also the Second Continental Congress. He became known as the Architect of Independence.

He had already published "Thoughts on Government" advocating Republican governments for all the states, along with a plea for a bicameral legislature and an independent judiciary. It was the considered opinion of the delegates that John possessed "the clearest head and firmest heart of any man in the Congress."

Meanwhile, Abigail was in Braintree/Quincy tending the farm, raising and educating her four children, melting down her pewter spoons to make bullets for the Revolutionary soldiers and enduring the loneliness of separation from her husband. It was their letters that contained their tears and heartbreak.

The year 1778 would bring about a longer separation when John was appointed one of the Commissioners to negotiate peace with Great Britain. For this he went to France and was in Europe for 10 years. He would return home for only three months during which time he would write the Massachusetts State Constitution. Returning to Europe, Abigail would join him abroad in 1784.

John was in England when the Constitutional Convention was held in Philadelphia. He did not write it and John, being a man of honor and principle, would not want to take credit for another's work. James Madison has the reputation of "Father of the (U.S.) Constitution."

Something that may have influenced the Founding Fathers, though, was John's three-volume edition of "A Defence of the Constitutions of Government of the United States of America." These men were certainly aware of the scholarly impact of this work.

All during his career, John sought the advice of his wife. She was one of the few people he could trust. Even when she disagreed, he respected her opinion and valued her suggestions. I wholeheartedly agree with Alicia Gardner that Abigail was "a most amazing and inspiring woman."

Urges Public Support Of MDC Park System

Editor, The Quincy Sun:

The news of the possible demise of the Metropolitan District Commission brought me to revisit "Common Sense" by Thomas Paine, Jan. 10, 1776.

"These are the times that try men's souls," Paine said of a new army in a pamphlet entitled "The Crisis" shortly before. That sentence alone marched the American soldiers off to capture the City of Trenton that turned the tide of history on Dec. 25, 1776.

The MDC, after 100 years of existence, cannot leave behind all its accomplishments without notice. That notice must be brought out by the citizens of the Commonwealth standing on the shores of Nantasket, Castle Island, walking the Blue Hills, Fenway in Boston, our great boulevards, and above all our glorious park system who say "Yes, these are times that try minds of men."

Once the principle concepts of conservation, preservation and containment of our environment that has made so many things in our great park system become dismantled as Mr. Geary says, we shall miss them, never to recover because of the personal effort and enjoyment derived at our own time of visiting and personal use.

The realignment of agencies must occur. For example, the Blue Hills Museum suffered much anguish in transition, but was preserved through support of letters and common effort from sincere people who would not let this jewel succumb to the treas of demise for the lack of funds. An astounding campaign was launched by the population, to the extent of shorter hours, less wages, volunteering and exciting public awareness through their complete sincerity of purpose.

This outpouring of effort from the public must occur in the case of the Metropolitan District Commission. All people who have been part of this outstanding organization have to always be a part of the transition. Their talents and dedication can be dove-tailed into a smooth acceptance from professional parks people recruited by His Excellency to continue the "principle" laid down so many years ago.

I urge all to drop a line to the Governor in expressing your most sincere desire to have what is the best park system you know maintained under whatever aegis that can satisfy continuity while using all talents available under the present organization.

Squantum Oil Tanks Ruled Out At Victory Plant

Opponents of an oil tank farm proposed for the site of the old Victory plant in Squantum claimed a victory when the Navy Department agreed to transfer part of the 160-acre plot to the War Department for use as an airport.

The area in the southwest corner of the parcel was believed to be the location where the Victory Terminal Corp. had planned to construct its oil tanks.

Both William A. Clarke, president of the Atlantic Improvement Association, and Atty. Frank D. Coffman, counsel for opponents in the long controversy over the oil tanks, expressed confidence that the transfer precluded the tanks.

The agreement on the transfer was reached by Navy Secretary Curtis D. Wilbur and War Secretary Dwight H. Davis following a conference with President Calvin Coolidge.

New DOVE Center To Offer Year-Long Stays For Abused Families

The DOVE (Domestic Violence Ended) center for battered women in Quincy plans to open a new, long-term shelter in the spring where women and children can stay for an entire year after leaving an abuser.

The shelter, the first of its kind on the South Shore, will help families start over by finding them affordable apartments, giving them skills for daily living, and providing continual support, DOVE officials announced last week.

DOVE has provided emergency housing, counseling and other services for abused women for 15 years, but presently families can stay at the center for no more than 90 days.

The state has had long-term, transitional housing programs for battered women since the mid-1980s. There are few programs outside Boston, however, and none have been set up south of the city. Advocates for battered women say more are needed.

Officials said DOVE began looking into the idea of a long-term shelter five years ago, and its board of directors decided this winter that the organization had the financial stability to move forward. DOVE is seeking funding for the shelter, officials added, and hopes to work out details in the next few months.

The shelter will likely begin with two or three low-income families, officials said, and DOVE will evaluate the facility and consider expanding it or making changes after the first two years.

Quincy Neighborhood Housing is reportedly helping DOVE find a building suitable to rent. Its exact location will be kept secret to protect the women and children who live there, and the shelter will also have an alarm system and other security devices to give occupants a feeling of safety. Support services will depend on individual needs, officials said.

DOVE will help each family move to its own apartment and provide food, clothing, furniture, dishes, linens and other items they need to begin their new lives. Officials said it has not yet been decided whether families will pay rent or how much they would pay.

Some families will need to learn life management skills such as how to find a job, how to care for children, and how to balance a checkbook, and many will need counseling, support groups and legal assistance regarding the kinds of social services in Quincy.

Officials said participating women who do not have jobs will be encouraged to take college courses to get the training they need to find work, adding that children will go to school day care.

Officials also noted that DOVE does not plan to hire any additional personnel to run the program, although a caseworker will visit the families at least once a week.

Approximately 400 to 500 women and children annually seek emergency shelter from DOVE. Officials said at least one-third of the center's clients could benefit from long-term housing assistance.

Officials said that when families need help beyond the maximum stay of 90 days, DOVE refers them to one of the long-term, transitional housing programs in Boston.

8 Residents Receive Nursing Assistant Pins

Eight Quincy residents were among 40 recipients of Certified Nursing Assistant pins at a recent ceremony at the Elihu White Nursing and Rehabilitation Center in Braintree.

All recipients were trained or tested at the 204-bed skilled nursing facility. Those from Quincy included: Cheryl Balais, Wendy Beliveau,

Pins were distributed by Florence E. Logan, CEO of Logan Healthcare Management Group, Deborah Rosman, RNC, Director of Nursing Services and Doreen Callaghan, RN, Director of Education at Elihu White.

By federal law related to long-term care facilities, CNA's are required to participate in an 80-hour program consisting of clinical classes and labs, and pass an examination administered by the American Red Cross. The exam covers clinical skills and healthcare knowledge, and involves an understanding of more than 20 different skills areas.

Elihu White is a training site for many local nursing and nursing assistant programs, including those at Quincy College School of Nursing, Quincy Vocational School of Nursing, and Blue Hills Regional Technical School. The center also provides preceptorships, or internships, for on-the-job training of students from George Washington University in Washington, D.C.

QSO To Perform At NQHS Feb. 20

The Quincy Symphony Orchestra will present the third concert of its 40th season Sunday, Feb. 20, at 2 p.m. in the Performing Arts Center of North Quincy High School.

The concert will be directed by Ann Danis, conductor. Gilles Dery of Radio Station WCRB will be the narrator.

Featured soloist will be 16 year old violinist, Elizabeth Buzney, a student at Milton Academy, and winner of the orchestra's Robert E. Brown Scholarship Competition. She will play the first movement of the Concerto for Violin by Sibelius.

The program will also include works by Alfred Reed and Georges Bizet and short selections featuring the different sections of the orchestra.

Single tickets, available at the door, are $10 for adults, $8 for seniors and $2 for children accompanied by an adult. Season ticket holders may bring two children in free of charge.

For more information, call 925-4319 or 472-0608.

'Run For Your Wife' Comedy At Masonic Building March 2

The Quincy Lions Club will sponsor a dinner theatre production of "Run for Your Wife," an adult comedy, March 2 at the Masonic Building of Quincy, 1170 Hancock St.

The evening will include a buffet dinner at 6:30 p.m. followed by the play. Cost of the play and dinner is $23.

The Lions Club is the oldest service organization in the world. In Quincy, Lions maintain the heritage of community service by raising funds for granting donations to eye research and vision care.

Proceeds from the dinner theatre will enable the club to provide eye examinations and eyeglasses for needy Quincy residents.

For reservations, call Lion John Reed at 356-2800, or tickets may be purchased at several local companies: Frank Evans Company, 343 Newport Ave., 479-1014; Wollaston Market, 615 Hancock St., 479-9411; and Second Sight, 1147 Hancock St., 773-1178.

Denver Steps Down As Purchasing Agent

Robert Denver retired last Friday after 12 years as Quincy's purchasing agent.

Denver, 64, said that after four years working under Mayor James Sheets and eight under former Mayor Francis McCauley, he feels this is the right time to step down.

"Even though I'm not quite 65, it's time," he said. "It's as simple as that."

Asked what he would miss most about the position, Denver joked, "Why would I be retiring if I thought I'd miss the job?"

On a more serious note, Denver said the people he worked with helped make his dozen years in the city enjoyable ones.

"I hope everyone is as lucky as I am," he said. "It's probably one of the nicest places I ever worked."

Denver also had strong words of praise for Mike McFarland, owner of Barry's Deli in Wollaston who will succeed him as purchasing agent.

"I've known Mike for years," he said, "and I think he'll do a fine job."

Ward 4 Democrats To Caucus Feb. 12

Ward 4 Democrats will meet Saturday, Feb. 12 at 10 a.m. in the Lincoln-Hancock School Cafeteria on Water Street to elect delegates to the state Democratic Convention to be held June 3-4 at the Worcester Centrum.

The meeting will be headed by Bernice Mader, administrative assistant to the mayor.

"The purpose of this year's convention is to nominate Democratic candidates for governor and all other statewide offices," she said.

Ward 4 will elect 10 delegates and four alternates to the convention. Those elected will be evenly apportioned between men and women. All Ward 4 Democrats registered as of Dec. 31, 1993 are eligible to run for the seats and their names may be placed in nomination by any two Democrats from the ward. Delegate registration fee for the convention is $45. For more information, call Mader at 773-6881.

Mariano: Seniors Have Clout At State Level

State Rep. Ronald Mariano said that Legislative initiatives passed in the Legislature in 1993 bear witness that senior voters have clout at the state level.

"The '93 Legislative year will have a positive impact on the quality of life for senior citizens and the needs of this group continues to be a high priority in the Legislature," said Mariano. "Several new laws should improve the quality of living, especially for those on fixed incomes."

Mariano listed as examples the following measures:

•Medigap Insurance: new laws to control costs and to eliminate age discrimination and provide all policy holders with prescription drug coverage.

•Medical Records: news laws to prohibit charging senior citizens for expensive medical records.

•Housing Rehab. Funds: $20 million was appropriated to repair the state's existing elderly residential buildings.

•Free Prescription Drugs: a Legislative initiative to allow low income seniors access to free prescription drugs.

•Water and Sewer Subsidy: $30 million was secured in sewer and water relief, and an additional $4 million was appropriated to assist low income seniors in paying their bills.

State Sen. Michael

Morrissey said additional gains included "the defeat of tighter nursing home restrictions, the creation of a central clearinghouse of nursing home information, an extension of rights for grandparents to see their grandchildren in foster homes, and the expansion of home care services."

"Our seniors will continue to be a priority in the '94 session," said Morrissey.

ORAL ASPECTS OF AGING

Geriatric Dentistry is improving and a lot of changes are happening now from Restorative Orientation to a Preventive approach. Less drastic and costly procedures are avoided. The elderly can and should keep their teeth all their lives. Prevention of oral disease starts with the child and continues throughout life of a person. Regular care and early diagnosis procedures should be maintained. Poor oral health can contribute to systemic disease, malnutrition, speech defects and facial deformities.

In aging, the oral tissues change and teeth wear down. Commonly, before the age of 50, people become edentulous (dentitionless) because of periodontal disease, caries that have not been treated, tooth loss due to infection and destruction of supporting tissues. Changes in oral tissues and supporting tissues. The tissues become fragile and susceptible to tears develop easily causing an inability to tolerate the dental procedure, to eat or wear dentures. Additional difficulties include B. A and C and a low estrogenic level leads to the occurrence of caries, bone loss and regular shrinkage between the corner of the lips. Complaints of abnormal taste and burning sensation in the mouth, or loss of taste sensation can accompany changes in the aging process. Osteoporosis or degenerative joint disease in the temporomandibular joint (TMJ) (temporomandibular joint), rheumatoid arthritis may also cause bone and cartilage and cause a serious malocclusion and malocclusion (bad bite).

In elderly people, the tongue increases in size as they grow older. Loss of papillae and flattening of the tongue can cause malnutrition and are possibly associated with various diseases such as anemia, chronic liver and vitamin B deficiencies, pernicious anemia or hypothyroidism of the oral cavity is due to the decrease in salivary flow and caries the most of diseases such as diabetes, hepatitis or pernicious anemia. It can also be the result of the administration of certain medications and conditions such as xerostomia, a dry mouth, mouth breathing, dehydration medications and conditions with dentures retention as well as making grinding and swallowing difficult.

The average age of a person diagnosed with oral cancer is 60. The male-to-female ratio is about 2:1. The tongue is the most common site of oral cancer in both men and women (glossopharynx). The four of the mouth follow, swelling the soft palate. Individuals over 45 years of age, heavy smokers who drink alcohol, have irregular, and sometimes (although balance wears have increased susceptibility to oral cancer).

Dental Cancer is an infection that attacks the hard tissue of the teeth. Early prevention includes daily brushing, flossing and regular professional visits to your dentist. Tongue clearing should be initiated in the elderly. Topical application of various fluoride solutions prevents most caries and preserves gingival health.

A good diet is essential to the supporting tissue of the teeth and to the health of the elderly. The elderly should be encouraged to maintain an interest in food.

Dental care reduces the number of prosthodontic dentures through application of knowledge regarding physical, metabolic and endocrine changes associated with aging as well as the knowledge of nutritional deficiencies and associated disturbances common among the aging. Elderly patients can be helped toward their optimal health and happiness.

Play It Cool--Warm Up

(NAPS)—Risk of injury during sports and exercise can be greatly reduced by warm-up and cool-down routines, according to the American Fitness Association. Follow these essential steps to have a healthier body.

It takes more than just yogurt and a tough workout to keep fit. No one knows this better than Gabrielle Reece, professional volleyball player, top fashion model and spokesperson for the new Peak Performance line of personal care products available exclusively at Lady Foot Locker stores.

Gabrielle offers some tips in her new free brochure, "Reaching Your Peak," including:

TO WARM UP...
• Warm Up Before You Warm Up—Follow the "BTU Theory" which means Body Temperature Up. Take a brisk walk or jog for a few minutes first.

The rule of thumb is to begin perspiring before you do your warm-up stretches.

• The Importance of Hydration—Fifteen minutes before you begin your warm-up, you should drink eight ounces of water. During exercise, keep your body hydrated by taking another eight to ten ounces of water every twenty minutes.

Competitive diving has been an Olympic event for men since 1904 and for women since 1912.

TO COOL DOWN...
• Slow Down Gradually—Just as you warmed up at the beginning, you should devote approximately ten percent of the time you spent exercising to cooling down. The best cool-down routine mimics the exercise you just performed. If you ran for an hour, walk or jog for about six to ten minutes. The key is to stretch the muscles you've just used and to slow down gradually.

• Stay Warm—It's okay to cool off in a cold shower after exercise, but dress warmly afterwards to avoid having your muscles tighten up.

Finally, it is critical not to sacrifice your skin, hair or feet while working out. Always protect yourself against the sun's harmful rays by using products that contain sunscreen and remember to moisturize your skin before you exercise.

Making And Maintaining Fitness As A Way Of Life

By RICHARD FINN

On Jan. 1, statistics show, that 28 percent of previously sedentary people attempt to choose their lives by adopting some sort of fitness program or try to improve their lives by quitting smoking, drinking, or going on a diet. By Feb. 1, statistics further show, that 90 percent of that 28 percent have abandoned their resolutions and have reverted back to their former lifestyles.

In an age when so much is known about the benefits, both mental and physical, of even the least demanding of fitness programs it is alarming and saddening that the message is lost on so many. Furthermore, it is even more alarming when you realize that despite all the warnings and publications people still smoke cigarettes with the full knowledge that the chances are very good that some smoking related malady will eventually kill them.

Everyone, for the most part, knows what is bad for them but most are either unwilling or unable to help themselves break the cycle of detrimental behavior. For many the want or need does not translate into the action and there are many different reasons for this. Many people are completely disinterested in staying fit and it is rare for this type of person to adopt a program out of the blue. Unfortunately it takes a life threatening health dilemma to motivate this person and often times this is not enough. There are also those whose schedule does not allow them to fit a fitness program into their busy lifestyle. This is an excuse! And then there are those who are constantly starting and burning out after only a month or so because they have set unreachable goals or expect dramatic or immediate results. The problem lies in our motivation and our ability to sustain it long enough to reap the many benefits of a health and fitness program.

In a perfect world our motivation would come from our desire to be healthier individuals who want to relieve stress and improve the quality of our lives. Unfortunately in the real world it is just as easy for us to grab the clicker and settle in with some ice cream and a camel non filter. If the thought of living a fuller, more relaxed and longer life does not motivate you how about considering those around you whether they be loved ones or just friends or co-workers. How relieved they would be to be in the company of a happier, calmer and more pleasant individual. So you see not only are you benefiting but so are they. Think how excited your loved ones will be to know that you are going to be with them for many years to come because of your decision to live a fitter life.

Beginning a health program is as easy as putting on your sneakers and walking out front door. A walk around the block can do wonders for your heart, lungs and attitudes and it's free!

It is easy to start your own fitness program and there are a few simple guidelines you may want to follow:

- Choose something you enjoy doing.
 - Set reasonable and attainable goals.
 - Get out and do it.
 - Stop smoking.
 - Start slow and work your way up slowly.
- Finally, whenever you begin a fitness program be sure to get a complete check-up. And remember, although there are many good reasons to join your local fitness facility the important thing is to just do something. Your life depends on it.

Chiropractic Update

by Mark C. Jaehnic D.C.

WHAT IS CHIROPRACTIC?

Chiropractic is that branch of the healing arts that deals with the structure and functions of the spine, and specializes in the evaluation and treatment of back and neck pain among other systems. Chiropractors feel that the cause of many back and neck problems stems from the misalignment of one or more of the 33 spinal bones (vertebrae), and the subsequent nerve pressure that may result.

A Doctor of Chiropractic may often use an x-ray and extensive diagnostic tests to determine if such a misaligned vertebrae and/or "pinched nerve" exists. These "pinched nerves" may often be the cause of back and neck pain, headaches or perhaps pain, tingling and/or numbness in arm or leg. It is the job of the chiropractor to determine if such a problem exists, and to correct it, naturally, without medication or surgery.

The Doctor of Chiropractic uses techniques learned through years of study whereby he/she applies pressure with his/her hands to areas of the spine that are misaligned, in order to restore joint mobility and function and relieve pressure on pain sensitive structures. A chiropractic adjustment provides a safe, painless, drug free, method for reducing the pain and pressure caused by the pinched nerve or misaligned vertebrae.

If you have any questions or would like to make an appointment please call Dr. Mark Jaehnic, a lifelong Quincy resident, at Quincy Chiropractic Office, 110 Billings Road, N. Quincy, 773-4400.

UPS AND DOWNS OF BLOOD PRESSURE READINGS

Anyone whose blood pressure is monitored regularly knows that there can be wide variations in the readout numbers, even on readings taken just minutes apart. A recent study indicates that the diastolic reading (the bottom number) depends to some extent on where the subject sits. Simply moving from sitting on a chair to sitting on an examining table resulted in a diastolic pressure rise of 6.5 points. The reason for the jump seemed to be the muscular effort required by the subject to sit upright without any back support. Researchers have concluded that for the most accurate results, blood pressure should be taken with the patient seated on a chair in a quiet room, with the arm resting near heart level. P.S. Blood pressure measurements should be taken on at least three different occasions before a diagnosis of hypertension is made.

Most doctors will not make a diagnosis on the basis of a single blood pressure reading. If you would like to learn more about this topic, or about how you can help prevent heart disease, call COMPREHENSIVE CARDIAC CARE at 472-2550. We specialize in the treatment of heart problems, hypertension and cholesterol. We place strong emphasis on caring for the patient, rather than simply treating the disease. Office hours are by appointment, and our comfortable office is located in Crown Colony, 700 Congress St., Suite 2C in Quincy. I am affiliated with Quincy Hospital and South Shore Hospitals.

Student At Central Middle School

Amy Harper Writes Winning Essay

Amy Harper of Quincy, a student at the Central Middle School, was recently honored by Sen. Michael W. Morrissey and Rep. Michael G. Bellotti for writing a winning essay in a contest sponsored by the Massachusetts CUNA Credit Union Association, Inc.

Amy's essay entitled, "Why I Like Massachusetts" was selected after judges reviewed hundreds of fine essays written by junior high school and middle school students from throughout Massachusetts.

In her essay, Amy stressed that Massachusetts has it all. Amy talks about the historical sites and tourist attractions, sports and entertainment, theater and cultural events, and different types of food that are found in Massachusetts.

The contest was conducted by the Massachusetts CUNA Credit Union Association, Inc. Amy's winning entry was sponsored by the Quincy Municipal Credit Union which is headquartered in Quincy.

In addition to receiving a citation from Morrissey and Bellotti, Amy had a meeting with Lt. Gov. Paul Cellucci who also gave her a citation recognizing her accomplishment. Amy received a $100

United States Savings Bond from the Massachusetts CUNA Credit Union Association, Inc. for her winning essay.

'Why I Like Massachusetts'

By AMY HARPER

Disneyland? The happiest place on earth? The Floridians should do a double take on Massachusetts. We've got it all. Historical sites and tourist attractions are your preference, then come visit us. Everyone knows John Adams, John Quincy Adams, and Abigail Adams, right? Right. Well they lived here and we have their houses, summer cottages, old diaries, and letters. We also have Plymouth Rock, where the Pilgrims landed, the Salem witch trials, Concord Bridge, and my personal favorite, the Lowell Mills and boarding houses, which I visited recently. Also, what better way to visit some of them than to take the trolleys in Boston and Quincy?

Okay, so history isn't your aspiration. That's fine, there's something for everyone here. For example, we have great sports and entertainment. We have the Patriots (football), Celtics (basketball), Bruins (hockey), and the Red Sox (baseball). You know what might be fun? To see the Patriots win a game. It might happen while you're here. Maybe.

When it comes to theatre and cultural events, your choices are many. The rank of the theatre productions range from professional Broadway shows at the Wang Center for Performing Arts, to non-professional and college groups.

Whatever your music tastes may be, from the Boston Symphony Orchestra to the hard rock and rap at the Centrum in Worcester, there is always something to please.

Here is a tip: if you go home from Massachusetts hungry, something is seriously wrong! The food in Massachusetts is absolutely wonderful!!! We have more different types of goods you could ever imagine. Such as, seafood, middle eastern, Italian, Chinese from China Town, Japanese, Greek, Southern, Irish, German, French, and good old New England Homestyle. Now my mouth is watering.

After everything you just found out that you can do here, don't you just want to kick back and relax for a while? Well, don't do it 'till you come to Massachusetts. This is because you have to experience some heavy duty R & R during the beautiful four seasons. During summer, my recommendation is to visit Cape Cod and the North Shore beaches. In the spring and fall, go to Boston Common and ride the swan boats. Or go pick apples and take in the beautiful foliage. In the winter, there is a gorgeous view from the Blue Hills, or it's just as pretty anywhere else.

I love Massachusetts. Everyone can certainly see why now. I was born here, and I grew up with the warm hug of Massachusetts all around me. I wouldn't trade it for anything!

A Rose Is A Rose...NOT!!

Ever wonder how some florist shops and street vendors can sell roses at those unbelievable prices? The answer is simply where the roses have been grown.

Local roses are the most expensive, however, they are the longest lasting and the most fragrant. You can expect to see them priced from $50-$70 a dozen depending on stem length.

California roses are probably the next best bet if you can't find local grown roses. They will not have quite the longevity but are not a bad second choice. Price wise $30-$50 will be the going rate, again depending on stem length.

Finally, and only out of desperation or lack of funds, consider the South American roses; longevity 1-2 days; price $15-$35 per dozen.

Since this holiday is very much subject to the laws of supply and demand, shop early for the best selections in color and variety of Valentine flowers.

New Ranks For 1 Captain, 3 Lieutenants Sheets Promotes Four Fire Department Officers

By ROBERT BOSWORTH
Four Quincy Fire Department officers were promoted by Mayor James Sheets during a ceremony at City Hall last Thursday.

Captain Thomas P. Lyons, and Lieutenants Peter Williams, David Chenette and Russell Patten, Jr. were sworn-in to their new ranks by City Clerk Joseph Shea as 75 family, friends, city and fire officials looked on. The promoted officers received their new badges from Acting Fire Chief Paul O'Connell who filled in for Chief Thomas Gorman. Gorman is recuperating at home after being hospitalized recently.

Lyons, 44, a resident of Pembroke, is a 15-year veteran of the department. He became a firefighter in July, 1978 and was promoted to the rank of lieutenant in April, 1989.

As a captain, Lyons will be assigned to the fire prevention department. He will receive an annual salary of $48,516.

Chenette, 43, of Quincy, joined the fire department as a firefighter in October, 1978. The 15-year veteran has been assigned to Ladder 2 at the Wollaston station.

Patten, 44, also of Quincy, became a firefighter in February, 1974. The 20-year veteran has been assigned to assist the department's training recruit program.

Williams, 40, of Plymouth, joined the department as a firefighter in October, 1984. The 10-year veteran has been assigned to Engine 5 at the West Quincy station.

The three lieutenants will each be paid an annual salary of $39,443.

Sheets, who congratulated the officers and their families, said the promotions will strengthen the department.

"Today's promotions are significant because they are designed to strengthen the fire department administratively and to make sure the proper number of officers are assigned to each piece of equipment," he said.

The fire department, like other city services, experienced cuts during the budget-lean years of the late 1980s and early 1990s. As fiscal matters improve, Sheets has made a commitment to bolstering public safety in Quincy through various initiatives, including promotions and hirings.

"We share in the feeling and idea that you can serve the City of Quincy and when you do a good job there is opportunity to be promoted and do more. These men are deserving and I congratulate them and their families," the mayor added.

O'Connell also congratulated his fellow officers. "I know all of them and I know these men will do a fine job. They will continue to work for the City of Quincy."

With the promotions, the fire department has 13 captains, 43 lieutenants and 137 firefighters as well as one chief and five deputy chiefs. The city will hire 19 additional firefighters before the fiscal year ends June 30.

"We expect to have them (the fire trainees) to start in a training program in the spring," said Tom Koch, executive secretary for Mayor James Sheets.

"We're trying to maintain full manning levels in both the fire and the police departments. In recent months, as things have stabilized, we've decided to bring both departments up to full complement for public safety reasons," Koch added.

Kelly's In Square Charged With Violations

By LISA CONNELL

The city Licensing Board voted Tuesday to continue discussion of charges received from the Quincy Police Department regarding incidents at Kelly's In The Square restaurant.

Charges against Kelly's In The Square include four counts of serving alcohol to persons under 21 years old, serving liquor to an intoxicated person, and permitting fighting and overcrowding on the premises.

Detective Sergeant Richard Laracy detailed events on Oct. 21 and 23, Nov. 19 and Dec. 31. Quincy Police Sergeant Charles Middendorf and Officer Richard Praetsch testified before the Board.

In the Oct. 23 incident, Middendorf reported that 300 patrons were crowded into a space designed to hold a maximum 202 occupants.

On that same night, Middendorf observed that the floor of Kelly's was covered with water and broken glass. Middendorf also said that many adults inside were drunk and were falling on the floor.

No employees of Kelly's were making any attempts to ensure the safety of the occupants, Middendorf said.

Peter Kelly, owner of Kelly's, appeared before the Board but did not make any statements nor was he questioned by Board members. Quincy attorney Robert Fleming of 85 Clay St. asked questions of Middendorf and Praetsch concerning their police reports.

Prior to the hearing, Fleming said to the Board that he had asked for a continuance of this hearing because he had only recently been retained by Kelly's.

Also testifying before the Board was Gregory Mancus, of 36 Main St., Quincy, who attended a New Year's Eve party at Kelly's Mancus, with his wife by his side, detailed injuries he suffered as a result of a fight at Kelly's. In that incident, Mancus said, he was hit near the eye by another patron and slammed against Kelly's glass doors by Kelly's doorman or "bouncers".

Middendorf reported that he observed blood on Kelly's door, after Mancus had been shoved against it.

Citing a pattern of past incidents affecting the police department and the Board, the Board voted to continue the hearing until Feb. 22.

"We will have to review the entire license and operation [of Kelly's] in the near future," said Mulvey.

"This has come to our attention and it's the Board's responsibility to do something about it," said Police Chief Francis Mullen.

City Clerk and License Board Chairman Joseph Shea also wants to review the operating practices of Kelly's downstairs function room. Presently Kelly advertises that the function room of his restaurant can be rented free of charge. This practice must also be discussed, said Laracy, because of the crowds that are attracted to this free party situation.

Board Approves 24-Hour Drive-Thru Service At Southern Artery McDonald's

By LISA CONNELL

The Golden Arches will shine all night on Southern Artery.

McDonald's Restaurant at 473 Southern Artery won approval by the Licensing Board Tuesday to operate a 24-hour drive-thru window to serve world famous fast food fare around the clock.

The inside, sit-down restaurant will continue to close at 11 p.m. All doors will be locked and secured at this time.

Several employees will be scheduled to serve after hours patrons via the outside window.

Because there will be no inside access available to non-employees after closing, Quincy Police Chief Francis Mullen, Licensing Board Vice Chairman and Building Inspector Matthias Mulvey and Board Chairman and City Clerk granted the extension of operating hours to McDonald's manager Charles Hamilton.

Mulvey requested a six month trial period for the restaurant to operate under its new schedule. Hamilton will report to the Board at that time.

Shea reported that Ward 1 City Councillor

Peter V. Kolson had voiced opposition to the 24-hour schedule because Colson believed indoor seating and food service would be involved.

Colson was unable to attend Tuesday's hearing. Shea expressed confidence that Colson would be in favor of this plan because it centered around an exterior drive-thru window.

"I expect to see an increase of 10 to 15 % above current sales," said Hamilton.

Hamilton expects to add another 10 to 14 employees to staff the restaurant's new hours.

Kelly were to be on hand to give residents an update on issues within the ward.

Officer Bob Hanna was also scheduled to speak and all interested Republicans are urged to attend.

Dress will be casual. Refreshments and hors d'oeuvres will be available.

Kolson stressed, however, that if the ordinance were passed it would only affect newly-hired employees. Current city employees who live outside of Quincy would be grandfathered into the system, he said.

Personnel Director Kathleen Yaeger said the city currently employs between 3,200 and 3,300 employees. She said she did not have a total percentage of how many of those are Quincy residents, although she noted that about 50 percent of the police and fire departments live outside the city. She added that in the school department, the percentage of employees who are not residents is "quite high."

Mayor James Sheets said he agrees "philosophically" with the idea of residency requirement, but added that he is unsure if it can be done "from a practical point of view," citing Quincy Hospital and Quincy College as his main concerns. The mayor said it may be impossible to find all of the people with "specialized skills," such as "doctors and college teachers, needed for those two organizations if hiring is limited to Quincy."

Kolson said he is willing to see amendments made to his proposal, as long as it remains reasonably close to its current form and is not "amended to death."

Quincy Win Keeps Tourney Bid Alive

By KERRY BYRNE

Key free throw shooting down the stretch helped the Quincy boys' basketball team overcome a second-half deficit and hand Plymouth a 60-55 loss. The win was Quincy's seventh (five in the league) of the season and kept alive their hopes of making the end of the year basketball tournament.

Joe Kelly had a monster game for Quincy, scoring 25 points with 11 rebounds and five steals. The point total was Kelly's highest of the season.

Harold Montel also had a huge game with 16 points and six steals. Nine of his points came due to a 9 of 10 day shooting from the line.

"Everybody shot well from the line tonight, especially late in the game," said Coach John Franceschini. "If we didn't hit those free throws then we probably would have lost this game."

Quincy was down 26-23 at halftime but their 10 of 13 shooting from the stripe in the second half helped them overcome a hole that had grown to six points.

With about nine minutes left in the game the Presidents went to the mainstay of their defense, the full-court press, to help stifle the Plymouth attack.

The Eagles were unable to handle the pressure while Quincy flourished, scoring 37 second half points.

The key to setting up the Quincy offense was point guard Mike Bartlett, who has emerged unquestionably as the team's leader.

"Bartlett played exceptionally well tonight. He did a fantastic job," said Franceschini. Bartlett was superb in the second half with 8 points and 7 assists.

The win was vital if Quincy is to go on to post-season play. Two losses in the six remaining games will knock the Presidents out of contention for the eastern Mass. tournament.

The Plymouth game was marred by an incident with 9:50 left which caused play to be temporarily suspended.

Quincy's Brian McPartlin and a player from Plymouth began to exchange words after battling under the hoop. A fight broke out between the players and soon escalated when fans from each team joined the melee.

Quincy police officers on hand called in back-up and were able to quickly subdue the rowdy parties. All spectators were removed from the Eastern Nazarene gymnasium to prevent any further altercations.

An unidentified person was bleeding from a blow he received during the ruckus but no other injuries were reported.

With the consent of both coaches the game was continued, without incident. Only team members and officials were allowed to remain.

Quincy Police reported that no arrests were made.

Quincy Bullets Open With Three Straight Wins

The Quincy Bullets, state basketball champions at last year's Special Olympics, opened the new season with three straight victories.

The Bullets' most recent game was a dramatic 36-34 triumph over the Newton Celtics. The win followed two straight wins over Cardinal Cushing. The first game was a 38-24 win at Cushing. The second game, a 42-16 romp, was played at the Bullets' home court at Lincoln-Hancock School.

Coach Billy Ketchen has an outstanding group of players and believes that the Quincy Special Olympics program is among the "best in the world."

The league is run by the Special Olympics and by Towards Independent Living and Learning (T.I.L.L.), an organization aimed at teaching important day to day skills to those with special needs.

The Bullets made the Special Olympics last year by virtue of a great regular season record and a strong showing in the post-season qualifying tournament held in Malden. Quincy needed victories over strong opponents from Worcester and Shrewsbury to advance to the Olympics.

The Special Olympic basketball tournament was held at Worcester Polytechnical Institute, where the Quincy squad beat all-comers and established themselves as the best team in the state.

The Bullets will play 16 games this season and will participate in various tournaments. In their most recent tournament, held at Milton Academy, Quincy finished second out of seven teams.

The Bullets' next home game is Friday, Feb. 25 against Templeton at the Lincoln-Hancock gymnasium.

A COOL RECEPTION

With the international agreement to cut the production of Refrigerant-12 (R-12) sharply and stop it altogether by 1995, it makes more sense than ever to service the air conditioning systems of earlier model cars. R-12 is a chlorinated fluorocarbon (CFC) that may leak into the atmosphere to destroy the earth's protective ozone layer. Not only does it make good ecological sense to keep air-conditioning systems in good repair, but it makes good financial sense, as well. Beyond 1995, R-12 will not be available at any price. Until then, it is being sold to auto technicians at increasingly higher cost for the repair of air-conditioning systems that use it. Only professionals have the recycling equipment mandated by law to work with R-12.

HINT: Newer automobiles are being outfitted with air-conditioning systems that use R-134a, a safer refrigerant.

Next time you need major or minor work done, bring your car into LEO & WALT'S SUNOCO. Our highly trained technicians and availability of parts will make your experience quick and easy and will assure you of a job well done. We're proud of our staff and you can trust us to get you back on the road. Here at 258 Quincy Ave., E. North Quincy Boys One Win From Tourney

The North Quincy boys' basketball team inched closer to a tournament berth with another nail-biting victory, 51-50, over Boston English.

The win gave the Red Raiders 11 for the season with five games left to play. A total of 12 wins are needed to secure a spot in the eastern Massachusetts tourney.

North also holds a one game lead over second place Silver Lake in the race for the Old Colony League title. With four OCL games remaining, three NQ victories will insure at least a tie for the title. The race was tightened when the Red Raiders fell to Silver Lake, 45-42, last Tuesday.

The win over English was of the type patented by the Red Raiders this season. Trailing 50-49 with 40 seconds left to play, North ran a special out-of-bounds play with sophomore guard Matt Boston tossing a pass into the paint to senior center Jason McLeod. The 6'8" McLeod made the easy layup to give North the one-point lead.

After taking the lead the Red Raiders stifled the English offense. Not only was English unable to score but they were unable to get a shot off until a desperation heave missed the mark as the buzzer sounded.

The win was engineered by McLeod and Boston who combined for the winning bucket and scored 21 and 12 points, respectively. The defense was led by Adam DeBoer and Brad Gray.

With North Quincy

battling for the OCL title and Quincy fighting for a tournament berth, the Feb. 17 clash between the cross-town rivals may have a lot more riding on it than just city bragging rights. It is all but a given that the Presidents will need a win over North to make the tournament. Quincy needs to win five of their last six games to go on to post-season play. North is virtually assured of needing the win in order to capture the OCL crown.

The game could prove to be one of the most important of the season for both teams.

NQ's remaining opponents include third place Bridgewater-Raynham, a team just two games behind North in the Old Colony League standings.

Gott Leads North Boys Past Quincy

It took a North Quincy victory in the next to last event, the 4x400 relay, for the Red Raiders boys' winter track team to capture a dramatic 46-45 win over Quincy.

The NQ relay team of Glenn Peterson, Chris Geary, Warren Fong and Jeremy Gott finished with a time of three minutes, 55.7 seconds, exactly five seconds ahead of the Quincy team of Jim Lencki, Peter Kolson, Doug Gallagher and Ray Slubocki.

Gott was the best performer in the meet. He captured the high jump for North with a leap of 5'8". Geary's jump of 5' was good enough for second place. Quincy's Kevin Carey finished third.

Quincy dominated in the 50-yard hurdles as Carey and Kolson finished 1-2. NQ's Jerry Warrick finished third. In the 50-yard sprint Quincy's Terry Bowman finished with a time of 5.9 seconds, nipping Shawn Nee of North (6.0 seconds). President Damon Blaco finished third.

Tim Dowling captured the 300 for Quincy in 36.5 seconds. Peterson (37.3) and Geary (38.0) finished second and third for the Red Raiders. North Quincy finished first and third in the 600 as Gott (1:22.6) and Greg Conway (1:35.1) sandwiched Slubocki (1:26.6).

The 1000 was won by NQ's Fong in 2:55.8. President Hubert Lam (3:04.4) and Red Raider Ted McGillicuddy (3:22.6) rounded out the event.

In the mile, Eric Torvi of NQ crossed the finish line in 4:55.2, exactly 6.5 seconds ahead of Quincy's Jim Lencki. Red Raider McCue was third with a time of 5:48.7. Quincy had better success in the two mile as Doug Gallagher outraced the competition with a time of 11:23.8. Brian O'Donnell (11:45.2) and Duncan (13:09.1) captured second and third for North.

The shotput was all Quincy as Butch Palazza, a contender for the league title, dominated with a heave of 43' 2 1/4". Rounding out the event were Tom Burke of North and Kolson of Quincy with throws of 39' and 36'.

The 4x100 was captured by the Quincy team of Dowling, Blaco, D'Olympio and Bowman in 1:21.1, just .8 seconds ahead of the North team.

North Girls Finish Strong To Complete Sweep

Sweeps in the 1000-yard run and the shotput helped the North Quincy girls' winter track team cruise to a 60-31 victory over Quincy.

Victories were almost evenly split (six for North, five for Quincy), but strong second and third place finishes by the Red Raiders put the meet out of reach.

The 1000 was captured by Mel Gaziano in a time of three minutes and 40 seconds to lead the North Quincy sweep of the event. Katie McNamara and Diane Jordan finished second and third. Jen Pineo, who has been incredible all season, led the NQ domination of the shotput with a throw of 30'2". Wingsze Yuen and Katy Deady rounded out the 1-2-3 finish for North.

Quincy's victories were in the 50, 600, mile, high jump and 4x176 relay.

Casey McNaught finished the 50 in 6.5 seconds while NQ's Deady and Casey Ngo captured the second two spots. Suzanne Civitarese raced to a time of 1:44.8 in the 600. Again two Red Raiders, Ursula Feurtado and Joanne Timbome finished second and third, thereby limiting the advantage gained by the Quincy win.

Liz Sawan, one of the Presidents' top runners, set the pace in the mile, 5:40.2. Erin Duggan and Erica Doherty of North were the next two to cross the line.

Quincy's best showing was in the high jump as Michelle Civitarese made a leap of 4'6" and Sawan finished in third. Red Raider Aja Jackson was the second place finisher.

Quincy's 4x176 relay team of Nytesha Younge,

M. Civitarese, Angela Martinson and McNaught finished the race in 1:35.5.

Besides the 1000 and shotput North Quincy garnered victories in the 50-yard hurdles, 300-yard run, two mile and 4x400 relay.

Phyllis Poon leaped the hurdles in 8.4 seconds. Suk Ng (NQ) and Martinson (Q) were second and third. Jackson's winning time in the 300 was 42.3 seconds, with Pineo (NQ) and Younge (Q) following.

Laura Blaikie's two mile time was 13:22.5. Kathryn Lencki (Q) and Kelly Duggan (NQ) followed. The Red Raider relay team of Karen Shea, Feurtado, E. Duggan and Gaziano flew to victory in 4:55.7.

The win gave North a final record of 2-4 while Quincy fell to 0-6.

kept the Canton offense from getting organized. Krueger provided the final spark against Framingham as he scooped the puck out of his own crease and up the boards to Ford who put away the game winner.

The Pee Wee A's have the next two weekends off. Captains Michael Sullivan and Michael Powers will be playing with the Greater Boston Junior Bruins in an International Tournament in Quebec. They will be back in time to join the Pee Wees for their annual appearance in the Quincy Kiwanis Tournament scheduled for February 21-27.

Powers and Steven Ford. Ford's tally with eight minutes remaining was the game winner.

Solid defensive work by Paul Markarian and Betsy Stone in the late stages of the game held off the Framingham attack and helped preserve the win. The speedy backchecking and timely offense of Bob Harvey and Jesse Winter were major factors in the victory.

Quincy's goaltending tandem, Ryan Krueger and Chris Carbas, once again provided the team with the tools they needed to win. Carbas was the key player against Canton with several kick saves that

Squirt A's Qualify For District Finals

The Quincy Squirt A's, sponsored by South Boston Savings Bank, qualified for the District Finals with a big 5-1 win over Milton in a state playdown game.

The Quincy goals were netted by five different players: Frank Currier, Steve McGonagle, Dave Germain, Dan Kennedy and Mark Giese. Currier also handed out two assists, as did Ryan Doyle. Charlie Sorrento and Mark Gibbons were credited with one assist each.

Matt Gregory was a rock between the pipes, playing one of his best games of the year.

In Greater Boston League action, Quincy rolled over Belmont, 6-1.

Doyle led the way with two goals. Sorrento, Kennedy, Giese and Paul Flynn scored one goal each. Germain, Doyle and Giese registered two assists apiece and Flynn and Kennedy each had one.

In a game played at Boston University, Quincy romped over Charlestown, Giese led the charge with two goals while Shane Kabilian, Flynn, Gibbons and McGonagle notched one each. Doyle set up three tallies. Sorrento, Currier, Germain, Kennedy, Andy Nestor, Tom Gaeta and Dom Papile each had one assist.

6-1.

Brian Stock and Jim Cashins have been strong defensively as Quincy limited these three opponents to only one goal each.

Mite B's Extend Win Streak To 5

The Quincy Mite B team, sponsored by the Quincy Firefighters, extended its winning streak to five with wins over Belmont, Wellesley and Waltham.

Chris Sheehan and Timmy McMahon scored two goals each as Quincy crushed Belmont, 10-1.

Pat Maloney, Rob Mooney, Lindsey Langille, Richard Stone, Dan Durocher and Ryan Tobin each had one goal. Tobin was the game's leading playmaker with three assists. Mooney dished out two while Maloney, Langille, Brendan Craig and Joe Norris each had one.

Tobin and Mooney scored two goals each in a 4-2 triumph over Wellesley.

Craig was the set-up man with two assists. McMahon and Bobby Donovan also handed out assists. Matt Alleva and Pat Caspar were strong defensively and were smooth in the transition to offense.

Andrew McDonough showed undaunted ferocity in the corners as he dug out the puck amidst several larger Wellesley players.

Waltham gave Quincy a run for their money before falling, 5-2.

Five different players, Mooney, Craig, Stone, Tobin and Donovan, netted goals for Quincy.

Andrew Patten was again a work horse between the pipes for Quincy. His quick glove hand in the third period was the difference against Wellesley. He also held the fort against Waltham before the Quincy offense got rolling.

The Mite Bs are scheduled to play a rematch against Somerville on Sunday at Quincy Youth Arena. Quincy narrowly defeated Somerville, 5-4, in their last meeting.

Squirt House

Giese's 4 Goals

Power Johnson, 5-0

Mark Giese scored four times for Johnson Motor Parts as they blanked Green Environmental, 5-0, in Squirt House League play.

Matt Kenney notched the game's only other tally. Frank Currier passed for two assists. Jon Tallant and Danny Sheehan each recorded one assist. Shaun Flaherty was flawless between the pipes as he posted the shutout.

Ryan Doyle registered a hat trick and Martin McGrath had two goals and three assists as Doran & Horrigan nailed Granite Auto Electric, 9-1.

Doran's other goals were netted by Brian Stock, Mark Fitzpatrick, Kyle Piazza and Mike Conley. Assisting were "Skateless" Joe Jackson, Jill McInnis, Alex Booker, Eric Abdon, Fitzpatrick, Piazza and Conley.

The single Granite Auto goal was scored by Joe Thorley with Merri Langille assisting.

Paul Zenga, Tommy Gaeta and Dan Kennedy had two goals each for Burgin Platner as they bested The Quincy Sun, 8-2.

Scott Markarian and Sean Fennelly recorded the other two Burgin goals. Mark Gibbons was the game's big playmaker with three assists. Also with assists were Markarian (2), Terrence Doherty (2), Matt Reggiannini, Frank Guest, Fennelly and Gaeta.

Quincy Sun's goals were scored by David Germain and Joe Fitzpatrick. Matt Moriarty had an assist.

The Standings: Burgin Platner, 7-6-2; Granite Auto, 7-6-2; Green, 7-6-2; Doran, 6-6-3; Johnson, 6-7-2; Quincy Sun, 5-7-3.

Mite A's Shell Dedham

The Quincy Youth Hockey Mite A team pounded Dedham, 10-1.

Billy Ryan led the Quincy charge with three goals. Billy McKeon was on his heels with two goals and Jamie Chiochio, Ryan Donahue, Matthew Germain, Stephen Kelley and Andy Ross had single goals.

Sean Moriarty, Kelley and Ross each had two assists. Dishing out single assists were Miah Hasson, Brian O'Hanley, Chiochio, Germain, McKeon and Ryan.

Goaltender Bruce Maggio narrowly missed the shutout as Dedham scored half way through the third period. Forward Kevin Richardson skated well for Quincy. Jon Chevalier and Timmy Duggan played well both at forward and defense.

In earlier action Quincy held a late 3-2 lead over Somerville, but two goals in the last minute gave Somerville a 4-3 win.

McKeon led the Quincy effort with two goals. Bryan Cooper netted the other goal. Donahue recorded two assists and Ross and Matthew Lavery each had one.

Downs Plymouth, 4-3

North Quincy Lands State Tourney Berth

By DAVE SOUTHWICK

The North Quincy hockey team, aiming for a second straight trip to the Boston Garden state semifinals, qualified for the state tournament last Saturday night with a nail-biting 4-3 win against Plymouth to raise its record to 11-3-2.

The Raiders travelled to Weymouth Wednesday and will return to the Quincy Youth Arena Saturday night to face Bridgewater-Raynham. Face-off is 7:50 p.m.

The first period against Plymouth started slow for both teams. The awesome line of Brendan O'Brien, Jim Sapiezna and A.J. Carthas was held at bay by the Plymouth defense until 7:39 of the period when Sapiezna broke through with his 19th goal to give North a 1-0 lead.

Plymouth answered with a goal at 13:26 to send both teams into the locker room with a 1-1 tie.

Dave Pacino also played well for North in the first period.

The second period was fast paced with North expanding its lead to 3-1 with both goals scored by O'Brien. O'Brien's first goal at 1:51 of the period was assisted by Dennis Pateris and Andy Vermette and his second was assisted by Vermette. North outshot Plymouth 11-2 in the period to bring the game total to 19 shots for North and 11 for Plymouth.

The third period proved to be one of the most exciting of the season. Plymouth scored to make it 3-2 24 seconds in, but that did not last long because a few minutes later, Jim Kelly put one between the pipes from Pacino and Vermette to regain the advantage, 4-3.

Plymouth roared back to tie the game 4-4 in a two-minute span. Both teams played excellent down the stretch, but just as North was going to settle for the tie, Vermette scored an unassisted goal with just 35 seconds left to give North the win and a berth in the Div. 1 state tournament.

Goaltender Mike Manganaro finished the night facing 16 shots, saving 12 of them.

In North's other game last Wednesday, North defeated Silver Lake, 5-2. Carthas scored twice for the Raiders along with scores from Pacino, Vermette and Bob Flannery.

Raftery Accepts Four-Year Scholarship To Rutgers

By DAVE SOUTHWICK

Brian Raftery, a three-year starter for the North Quincy High School football team, has accepted a full four-year scholarship to Rutgers University in New Jersey.

Raftery, the son of Michael and Kathleen Raftery of North Quincy, signed his letter of intent to attend Rutgers at a recent ceremony at the high school.

During his stellar schoolboy football career, Brian has won his share of awards and honors on the gridiron.

As a sophomore, he was awarded the team MVP. In his junior year, he received Patriot Ledger Honorable Mention and All-League linebacker. This past season, Brian earned All-Scholastic honors from The Boston Globe and Patriot Ledger. He was also recently selected to the very first Globe All-Scholastic "Super Team", one of only 11 players from Eastern and Central Massachusetts to earn this honor.

Ken McPhee, North Quincy head football coach, gives all the credit to Brian, his first Division 1-A college-bound player.

"It's nice for our program. It shows that our program can get kids that far (college)," McPhee said.

The coach also pointed out Raftery's tremendous athletic ability for his 6-5, 265-pound size.

Brian is skilled at other sports. He is presently a starting forward on Ted Stevenson's basketball squad, and in the spring, Brian runs track to keep his legs in shape for football. Brian also played baseball in his freshman and sophomore years.

There were quite a few reasons Brian chose to study and play at Rutgers, a member of the Big East football conference.

One of the main reasons Raftery chose Rutgers is a chance to play against other top teams.

"I couldn't give up playing against the best like Miami, Notre Dame, Penn State and teams like that," Brian says. "I just couldn't give up the opportunity."

Several division 1-AA schools, including most Yankee Conference schools, expressed interest in Brian, but Brian chose the school that wanted him to play tight end, as opposed to the other schools that wanted him to play defense.

Even though Brian has not yet decided, he is leaning on majoring in communications or political science.

For Brian, the chance to go to college on a full scholarship has made his family one happy bunch. The Rafterys are sure to make the trip down to watch their son play a few games.

The college signing on Brian Raftery is another addition to the long tradition of excellence in North Quincy athletics. In addition to the 1992 Super Bowl title, the football program is sure to gain more recognition as a top Eastern Massachusetts program.

Wrestling

Quincy's Feeley Pins Defeat On Silver Lake

Quincy finished their Old Colony League wrestling schedule with a dramatic 31-30 victory over Silver Lake. The win moved the Presidents to 4-1 in the league and tied them with Weymouth for the OCL title.

The outcome of the match again fell on the broad shoulders of Quincy heavyweight Mike Feeley, one of the heroes in the Presidents' comeback win against North Quincy two weeks ago. With Quincy down 30-25, Feeley wasted no time. He pinned his opponent in only twelve seconds to give Quincy the win.

Pins were also recorded by senior Jon Bonisoreno (112) and junior tri-captain Bryan Gallabue (145). Senior tri-captain Ashley Davis (152) and junior Greg Santoro (160) provided big wins for Quincy.

Quincy's overall record is 11-7-1.

The Presidents were scheduled to finish their regular season schedule last night (Wednesday, Feb. 9) against defending state champion Bellerica and will host the Division I South Sectional tournament Saturday, Feb. 12. Athletes will compete for both team an individual sectional titles. The top four finishers in each weight class will advance to the Division 1 state tournament to be held at Lowell High School.

Quincy has been ranked third in the Division I South Section for most of the year and coaches Lou Venturilli and Larry Taglieri feel that they are a contender for the sectional title.

Several individual Quincy wrestlers should also contend for the sectional title in their weight class. Among those included are junior Matt Miller (130), Davis and Feeley.

Mite Bs Win Close Pair

The Quincy Mite B team, sponsored by the Quincy Firefighters, swept two close weekend games, beating South Boston 5-4 and Parkway 4-3.

Ryan Tobin scored two goals in the win over South Boston. Other tallies were notched by Chris Sheehan, Steven Price and Richard Stone. Assists were made by Dan Durocher (2), Robert Mooney, Matt Allava and Andrew McDonough.

Goalie Andrew Patten was spectacular between the pipes as he fought off a late surge by South Boston. Joe Norris and Rob Donovan turned in strong efforts along the blue line.

Tobin's second goal of the game, with less than three minutes left to play, was the clincher against Parkway. Quincy's other goals were scored by Brendan Craig and Mooney. Both Craig and Mooney recorded assists as well. Durocher also notched an assist.

Goalie Pat Caspar turned in an excellent performance in the absence of regular goalie Andrew Patten.

In previous action, the Mite Bs recorded two wins to capture a second place finish in the South Division of the Coca-Cola Tournament. The first victory was a 6-4 performance against the South Shore Seabawks.

Goals were scored by Norris, Tobin, Mooney, Craig, Pat Maloney and Lindsey Langille. Assists came from the sticks of Craig, Allava, Stone, Mooney and McDonough.

Allava set up two of Quincy's goals in their 4-1 win over Cape Cod Canal. The goals were scored by Sheehan, Tobin, Craig and Caspar.

Patten sparkled between the pipes as he let up only one goal.

International Flair For Quincy Kiwanis Club Hockey Tournament

The Kiwanis Club of Quincy's 21st annual Youth Hockey Tournament will have an international flair as teams from Ontario and Riga, Latvia come to the Quincy Youth Arena for the week-long event.

The AHA-sanctioned "A" tournament will be held Feb. 21-27 and will feature teams from four divisions: Pee Wees, Mites, Squirts and Bantams. Local teams from Needham, Arlington, Pembroke, Winchester, Weymouth, Milton, Avon, Medford, South Boston, Braintree and Quincy will take part. Also playing will be teams from Martha's Vineyard, Providence, Long Island and Pennsylvania.

A pass, good for admission to all games throughout the week, can be purchased from any Kiwanis member or at the door for $5.00. Single admission at the door is $3.00 and $1.00 for students 12 to 18 years old. Children under 12 are admitted free.

Proceeds will help provide scholarships, camperships and financial assistance to families in need. Funds will also go to the Kiwanis Pediatric Trauma Center at the New England Medical Center in Boston.

Four NHL players from Riga, Grigori Pantelev and Sergei Zholtok of the Boston Bruins and Artus Irbe and Sandis Ozolins of the San Jose Sharks have joined with Latvian sponsors to supply equipment, ice time and transportation for the Riga Bantam team so that they may participate in the Kiwanis Tournament. The 13-year old players will be staying with host families while in the area.

For specific time of games and further information call Bev Reinhardt at the Quincy Youth Arena at 479-8371.

Pledge Sheets Available For Benefit Ski-A-Thon

A cross country Ski-A-Thon fund raiser for the benefit of the Carroll Center for the Blind will be held Saturday, Feb. 26 in Jackson, N.H.

The event will take place from 8 a.m. to 8 p.m. and all are urged to attend.

"People can come and ski for just five minutes or for as long as they want," said Quincy resident and Carroll Center board member Bob Seamans.

Money is raised based on pledges for each mile skied. The course is an easy half-mile circuit which beginners will find easy to handle.

The trail is located in the beautiful White Mountain Village of Jackson, N.H., the "cross-country capital of the East" according to Ski Magazine. There are no trail or entry fees and all participants will receive a colorful, commemorative T-shirt.

Skiers can obtain pledge sheets by calling the Carroll Center at (617) 969-6200 or 1-800-852-3131. For those who can't participate, contributions for any amount will be accepted. Checks can be made out to Carroll Center for the Blind, 770 Centre St., Newton, MA 02158.

The Carroll Center is a tax exempt, non-profit organization which has pioneered rehabilitation services for newly blinded adults and other visually impaired persons for nearly six decades.

Contributions are deductible to the extent allowed by law.

Mite House

Barry's Holds Off Granite

In the week's most exciting Mite House League game, Barry's Deli had a 7-2 lead in the third period and held off a furious come back by Granite Rail Pizza to post a 7-6 victory.

The Barry's Deli goals came from seven different players: Jeff Hunt, Andy Ross, Matt Germain, Ryan Tobin, Mike Delahoyde, Justin Swierk and Ryan McFarland. Drunk Driving Teenage Killer, Part II

How Much Do You Know About Drinking and Driving?

True or False?

1. If a person concentrates hard enough, he or she can overcome any effect that drinking has on driving?
 2. If you have been drinking at a party, coffee will sober you up quickly before you leave?
 3. If you drive home from a party late at night when the roads are deserted, there's not much danger in driving after drinking?
 4. It's okay for a person who has been drinking to drive, as long as he or she doesn't act drunk?
 5. A drunk or two helps people drive better because it relaxes them?
- If you answered "true" to any of these questions, you are only fooling yourself. Be smart. Don't drink and drive.

Drunk Driving Law

Driving while intoxicated is against the law in all states. If you are arrested and convicted of OUI (Operating Under the Influence), you will lose your license, be fined, or imprisoned. Don't expect to get off because you are under 18. Most courts today can try 16 or 17 year-olds as adults in cases where death or severe injury has occurred. If you cause an accident while driving (and the chances are higher if you've been drinking), your insurance rates will increase or your policy may be cancelled. If you are under minimum drinking age for your state, it's illegal for you to purchase alcohol or a drink—any place.

Is It Worth Taking The Chance?

No one wants live with the fact that he or she caused an accident, injured someone, or took a life. If you drink and drive, you are taking that gamble. Don't let your friends take that risk either. If people you know have been drinking, try to stop them from driving—call a cab or a friend, or see that they stay put. If these actions don't work, DON'T RIDE WITH THEM.

Teens Can Help Each Other

- Organize buses, carpools, or limousines for prom nights or other parties.
- If you are out with a group of friends be sure to have a "designated driver," someone who agrees not to drink at all.
- Get parents to sign pledges that they will not serve beer or liquor to teens in their homes.
- Ask a student, who has been involved in an alcohol-related accident, to speak to your club or a school assembly about how it felt.
- Suggest that parents and teachers run a hotline on prom night. If students have trouble getting to and from the dance or are riding with someone who's been drinking, they can call for a safe ride with no question asked.
- When you're old enough to buy beer, wine and liquor, "DON'T BUY IT FOR YOUNGER TEENS. You're not doing them any favors.

Youth Pleads Innocent In West Quincy Shooting

p.m. and observed Auger's body lying in a pool of blood.

Defense Attorney Daniel Fitzgerald said that his client had been extremely cooperative with the police and made a two and a half hour statement to the police.

"All of the boys had been shooting BB guns at tin cans and sometimes, even at each other," said Fitzgerald.

As such, Fitzgerald said, all the boys present were guilty of wanton and reckless behavior.

Fitzgerald also stated that Hynes had been giving his account of the details before counsel arrived.

Fitzgerald, entered a plea of "not guilty" on Hynes' behalf before Black.

Norfolk County Assistant District Attorney John Corrigan asked that bail be set at $50,000 surety or $5,000 cash for Hynes, because "the seriousness of the situation warrants this bail."

Fitzgerald stated that the higher bail was excessive and asked that bail be set at $5,000 surety or $500 cash because of his client's lack of prior troubles with the law and academic, athletic and family ties to the community.

Hynes' parents, Daniel and Kay Hynes, were not present in the courtroom.

On vacation in Mexico at the time of the shooting, the Hynes' began immediate plans to return to Quincy when notified of the shooting by family members.

Present at the arraignment were Hynes' uncle and many other family members.

Neatly dressed in a pale blue shirt, tan pants and patterned sweater, Hynes stood quietly before the judge and appeared to be in a mild state of shock.

A 1993 graduate of North Quincy High School, Hynes was a member of the swimming team. Only recently has he become unemployed. He was an employee with a vacuum company in Canton.

Possible Link In Whitman Church, Quincy Garage Fires Investigated posted for McLellan nor are suspects (in the Haraldstad. Bail could be looking at them as part of their pre-trial conference.

McLellan is a suspect in 13 unsolved arson cases in Whitman since 1992, investigators said. Quincy police are investigating the pair to determine whether they are linked to the South Quincy garage fires.

"We can't say that they are suspects (in the Haraldstad. Bail could be looking at them as part of their pre-trial conference. The investigation is ongoing," Det. Thomas Casey said Tuesday.

According to police, the pair was observed breaking and entering into the garage of the Holy Ghost rectory early Sunday morning, whereby a window was kicked in and gasoline poured inside and ignited. Both were fleeing running from the fire scene with the gas can in hand, police said.

After scaling a fence which led to the backyard of his home, McLellan was arrested by two Whitman police officers. Haraldstad fled inside the house and was apprehended and arrested by the officers.

They were transported to Whitman police headquarters where they were held on $10,000 cash bail or $100,000 surety until their arraignment.

The fire caused minor damage to the building and was only smoldering when firefighters arrived. Firefighters remained on the scene until the gasoline vapors had dissipated.

OBITUARIES

Charles A. Bird, 85

Former Minor League Pitcher

A private funeral service was held for Charles A. Bird, 85, of West Quincy.

Mr. Bird died Feb. 2 at home after a brief illness.

A former minor league baseball pitcher, he played in the minors for the Brooklyn Dodgers and many other major league clubs.

Best known for his "submarine ball," he played in the New England League for George Lane's Weymouth Pals. He also played for Manchester, N.H. and the Cranston Chiefs of Rhode Island, as well as in the Boston Park League.

He pitched for Casey Club, Jordan Marsh, Fore River Club of Quincy and many other baseball clubs. In all, he pitched for 35 years. He was inducted into the Boston Park League Hall of Fame in 1982.

In a 1965 interview, he said that even though many people thought minor league ball players made a lot of money, he was only getting about $18 in the early and mid-1930s. He turned down a number of opportunities to advance in the minors, he said, because the money was not tight.

He also played basketball for West End House, St. Mary's of Quincy, the Finnish Karhu Club and Jordan Marsh.

A life member of the Quincy Lodge of Elk, he was also a member of the Wampatuck Country Club of Canton.

Mr. Bird was born and educated in Boston.

He is survived by his wife, Helen V. (Wilander) Bird; a daughter, Janice V. Smith of Quincy; and three grandchildren.

Burial was private.

Funeral arrangements were by the Sweeney Funeral Home, 326 Copeland St.

SCOTT DEWARE

A THOUGHT FOR THE WEEK

Valentine's Day is for children, lovers and romantics. Well, essentially, yes, but when it comes to affairs of the heart, everyone is included.

Valentines need not be expensive. A happy note written in your own handwriting... or a telephone call to someone who might not otherwise receive a call.

Some people find it hard to say "I love you," but on Valentine's Day they express that sentiment with special remembrances or gifts. It is also a day that "mussy" sentiments on brightly colored paper are not really taken seriously (i.e. Valentines exchanged by children at school). There, the important thing is the number of valentines received, not the sentiment. As people mature, the sentiment becomes more important than the number.

It only takes a little time to send a valentine, or a note, or to make a telephone call to someone, especially someone who is a little "out of circulation these days." A little surprise gift will make someone feel special, and you'll feel good too!

At O'Brien Towers Security Guard Accused Of Sexual Assault

Four months after the rape of a 76-year-old woman at O'Brien Towers in Germantown, a security guard at the complex has been accused of the sexual assault of one of its residents.

Thomas A. Dooling, 37, of 191 Burgin Parkway, an employee of Guard Force Management Co. of Quincy, is scheduled to appear for a probable cause hearing in Quincy District Court Feb. 18.

Dooling pleaded innocent Jan. 19 in Quincy District Court to charges of kidnapping, assault and battery with a dangerous weapon, carrying a dangerous weapon, threatening to commit a crime, two counts of assault and battery on a person 14 years or older, and two counts of assault and battery. He was ordered held on $5,000 bail at the county jail in Dedham.

Quincy Housing Authority Director said the attack was not random and that Dooling knew his accuser, who is in her mid-40s. O'Brien Towers is one of several facilities under the QHA's jurisdiction.

Comer added that the woman is disabled, but said he could not provide any further information.

Dooling's accuser said in an affidavit filed in Superior Court that Dooling entered her fourth floor apartment uninvited shortly before 4 a.m. on Jan. 11. She claimed Dooling, who was on duty at the time, was drinking from a bottle of coffee brandy and using foul language.

The woman also said Dooling talked about having sex with her, showed her brass knuckles he was carrying, held the knuckles up to her neck, pushed her head back and forth and grabbed her private body parts, threatening to return if she told anyone about the incident. He refused to leave the apartment until after 11 a.m., she said.

Guard Force Management officials said Dooling, who has been with the company for only a few months, has been suspended without pay. An attorney for the QHA said a temporary injunction has been obtained that will prevent Dooling from entering all QHA property.

The 275-unit O'Brien Towers became embroiled in controversy following the September attack. The 76-year-old victim said she was raped by a naked man who entered her seventh floor apartment looking for money. The man has still not been captured.

Residents at the facility claimed security there was inadequate, and Mayor James Sheets and Mayor Jones Sheets and Comer joined some of them in calling for the end of a policy that allows non-elderly disabled tenants, including those with mental disabilities, at the site.

Guard Force Management was reportedly hired in November after submitting the lowest of 15 bids the city received to provide security services. Officials said Dooling was one of eight company employees who patrolled QHA property.

United First Parish Church

The Rev. Jade C. Angelica, guest minister, will lead worship and give the sermon "For the Children with Love" Sunday during the 10:30 a.m. worship service at United First Parish Church (Unitarian Universalist), 1306 Hancock St., Quincy Center.

Rev. Angelica's ministry specializes in researching and writing about child abuse. She is a graduate of Harvard Divinity School.

Officials Support Death Penalty

city lines.

The governor said the recent fatal shootings of Paxton Police Chief Robert Mortell and Boston Police Officer Wayne Anderson are evidence enough that the state needs the death penalty to make the punishment fit the crime.

"I don't see how anyone can seriously oppose this legislation," said Weld. "There are dozens of human wrecking balls out there who deserve the death penalty."

Weld, who said the much of his current crime package has been before the state Legislature in the past but was not acted upon, added that the death penalty would only be used "fairly and judiciously," and "procedural safeguards" would be put in place to ensure no one is put to death unnecessarily.

"This legislation is sending a basic, clear message to violent offenders," said Lt. Gov. Paul Cellucci. "Police officers and other law enforcement officials protect our lives, and we must do everything we can to protect their lives."

Cellucci added that while people will mainly focus on Weld's proposals for the reinstatement of the death penalty and "Three Strikes and You're Out," the public should realize that the governor's entire crime package is a solid one and could be a major weapon in the fight against crime.

City officials were unanimous in their support of the governor's package.

"I'm proud to have a governor who believes in the death penalty," said Mayor James Sheets. "Americans and Americans wants to do something about crime, and the governor understands that the punishment must fit the crime."

"I think that he (Weld) was on target," Police Chief Francis Mullen said of Weld's announcement. "His crime package expresses the feeling of all law enforcement officials, the feeling of the people in the trenches."

"I agree with what the governor said," said Ward 6 City Councillor Bruce Ayers, chairman of the City Council Public Safety Committee. "I think he's taking the right steps toward cracking down on what's happening lately with the killings of police officers."

Members of Quincy's Legislative delegation also said they were firmly behind Weld's proposal.

"I'm glad to see there is another push for the death penalty" said Sen. Michael Morrissey. "I strongly favor that."

Morrissey added he supports Weld's proposal for a state death benefit for the families of police officers and other public safety officials who are killed in the line of duty.

"I think this is an extremely important message we have to send," said Rep. Ronald Mariano. "The message is, we are going to come down swift and hard on anyone who is going to violate our laws."

Rep. Stephen Tobin, who noted that he is the second-ranking House member on the state Criminal Justice Committee, said that when an individual kills a police officer, he or she is treated with the utmost respect in prison by drug dealers, rapists and other criminals.

"I can't tolerate that personally," said Tobin. "I want to push this legislation through as soon as possible."

Tobin added that although he could not pinpoint a date, he believes the last time the death penalty was in effect in Massachusetts was during the 1940s.

Weld's decision to make his announcement in Quincy Tuesday came at the prompting of state Secretary of Public Safety Thomas Rapone, who said he suggested the location because of his great respect for Mullen and the Quincy Police Department.

"The governor and I both felt it was appropriate that it be done in a setting indicative to what we're talking about," said Rapone.

Also in attendance at the press conference were Norwood Police Chief George DiBlasi, who serves as president of the Massachusetts Chiefs of Police, and law enforcement officials from several South Shore communities.

PRAYER TO THE BLESSED VIRGIN
(Never Known to Fail)
Oh most beautiful flower of Mt. Carmel, Fruitful vine, splendor of Heaven, Blessed Mother of the Son of God, Immaculate Virgin, Assist me in my necessity. Oh Star of the Sea, help me and show me

herein you are my mother. Oh,
Holy Mary, Mother of God,
Queen of Heaven and Earth! I humbly beseech you from the bottom of my heart to succor me in this necessity. There are none that can withstand your power. Oh, show me herein you are my mother. Oh Mary conceived without sin, pray for us
who have recourse to thee (3x)
Holy Mother, I place this cause
in your hands (3x) Holy Spirit,
you who solve all problems,
light roads so that I can attain
my goal. You who gave me
divine gift to forgive and forget all evil against me and that in all instances in my life you are with me. I want in this short prayer to thank you for all things
as you confirm once again that
I never want to be separated from you in eternal glory. Thank you for your mercy toward me and mine. The person must say this prayer 3 consecutive days.
After 3 days the request will be granted. This prayer must be

College Governance To Be Discussed By Council, School Committee

The debate over the governance of Quincy College could be taken up by the City Council and School Committee within the next month.

Ward 5 Councillor Charles Phelan, chairman of the city's Education Committee, said after Monday night's council meeting that he hopes to schedule a meeting between the two groups on the matter as soon as possible, and "hopefully" in the next 30 days.

Four governance proposals will be on the table for discussion:

• A proposal from a task force led by School Committee member Linda Stice that a separate board of trustees be established as the governing body of the college. Currently, the School Committee is the governing authority over the college, and School Supt. Eugene Creedon serves as secretary to the School Committee. In essence, the college president reports directly to the superintendent.

• A proposal by School Committee Vice Chairman Daniel Raymond that calls for the college to remain under the jurisdiction of the School Committee. In Raymond's plan, however, the superintendent is removed from the picture and the college answers directly to the committee. The School Committee recently voted 4-3 in favor of the Raymond version, although that was before new members Sean Barry and JoAnn Bragg replaced Margaret King and Frank Santoro who both voted in favor.

• A proposal by Atty. Richard Murphy which Mayor James Sheets said is closer to the Raymond plan than the first proposal, but adds legal language that offers more protection for college employees.

• A new proposal by the mayor which Sheets said still calls for the establishment of a separate board of trustees but adds language from the Murphy plan as well as what the mayor called some of the "better points" of the Raymond proposal.

Sheets noted that the City Council, which has the final say in the matter, can vote on any plan it chooses.

The New England Association of Schools and Colleges has ruled that Quincy College must establish a separate board of trustees as its governing body or risk losing its accreditation. Sheets said the NEASC is scheduled to meet in March and could place the college on probation at that time if the governance issue is not resolved.

Phelan said he personally prefers establishing a separate board of trustees at the college, but will listen to all sides of the issue when the Education and School Committees meet to discuss the matter.

OLYMPIAN KAREN CASHMAN of Quincy, a member of the U.S. short-track speedskating team, prepares for the 3000-meter relay competition in Lillehammer, Norway.

Cashman's event will be televised on CBS Channel 7 Tuesday, Feb. 22 at 7 p.m.

From Pageant Field To Lillehammer, Norway Quincy's Karen Cashman Goes For The Gold Tuesday

By KERRY BYRNE

It's a long way from Pageant Field in Quincy to Lillehammer, Norway but Karen Cashman is there and ready for her try at Olympic gold.

The 22-year old Quincy skater and North Quincy High School graduate will compete as a member of the United States short-track speedskating relay team Tuesday night.

And her hometown will be there—in front of their television sets—to cheer her on. The event is scheduled for 7 p.m. on CBS (Ch. 7).

Besides Cashman the relay team features Cathy Turner, a defending gold medalist from the 1992 Albertville Olympics, Nikki Ziegelmeyer and Shana Sundstrom. In competition held January in Lake Placid, N.Y. the relay team broke the previous American record in the 3000 meter by three seconds.

Cashman's trip to the Olympics is just the icing on the cake of an impressive athletic career. She competed five times at the Hensley National Competitions as a member of the Quincy Track Club's 4x100 relay team. She was also a state meet medalist for North Quincy in the 1000 meter and went to the New England Championships as a member of the 4x800 relay team.

Her track abilities, combined with the skills she developed as a long time figure skater is what led her into short-track speedskating.

"I hardly think I was the first to suggest it, but many of us felt that speedskating would be ideally geared towards her other athletic experiences and abilities," said Geoff Hennessy, Cashman's track coach during her senior year at North Quincy.

This must be true, for how else to explain her meteoric rise in the world of speedskating? Five years ago Cashman had never tried the sport. Today she stands on the brink of Olympic glory, a goal which takes many a lifetime to reach.

"This is one of the happy things for us," said Cashman's mother Jane. "Some of the kids who compete on this level have no life, it revolves around their sport. We never let her get too involved in any one thing. She did a lot of different activities and enjoyed them all."

Another aspect of Cashman's trip to the Lillehammer which makes it so exciting is that a little over a week ago she had no inkling that she would be traveling to Norway to compete. Her relay team had shaved over three seconds of the previous American record but they did not qualify for the Olympics when they had to. A pleasant surprise came when the North Korean team had to drop out of the 1994 games. Cashman and her teammates were chosen as the replacements.

Will Not Impact FY95 Snow Costs May Exceed $1 Million

By MICHAEL WHALEN

The city may exceed its FY94 snow and ice removal budget by as much as $1 million, Mayor James Sheets said Tuesday.

The mayor said that the city has currently reached a total of $1 million for snow and ice removal, a figure $700,000 above the original $300,000 FY94 budget. He added that Quincy may end up spending a total of $1.2 to $1.3 million for this winter, depending on how much more snow falls.

Sheets said the funds will be taken from the city's free cash account. In FY94, the account began with approximately $2.3 million, and will drop from $2.2 million to $1.5 million after the $700,000 is subtracted, he said. The account should remain fairly intact after winter's end, barring unforeseen circumstances.

"We'll be okay if we don't have some other emergency," Sheets said. He also noted that the city's FY95 budget will not be affected at all by this winter, other than the fact that there will be less free cash to "roll over" into FY95.

Ward 4 City Councillor Thomas Fabrizio, chairman of the City Council Finance Committee, said he sees taking the winter money from the free cash account as a necessary act.

"It's a service that had to be done," said Fabrizio. "We wouldn't like to see an increase in taxes when we can take the money out of free cash. I would say it's one of the more appropriate uses for free cash."

Still, Sheets said he would like to see more state funding given to Massachusetts cities and towns for snow and ice removal purposes. Gov. William Weld said last week that he would ask legislators to approve $40 million for such expenses on both the state and local levels, but Rep. Thomas Finneran, the Massachusetts House budget leader, said Monday he will oppose Weld's proposal because he feels city and town governments have overspent their budgets unnecessarily this winter.

Sheets took issue with Finneran's position.

"That's the problem," he said. "The state mandates these programs, and then doesn't pay for them."

The mayor added that while he is a friend of Finneran's, "I hope he (Finneran) changes his mind about that," and said he personally will lobby for more state funding.

Sheets also said that if the city reaches the $1.3 million mark in winter expenditures, it will total about two-thirds of the city's total FY94 property tax revenues of approximately $1.8 to $1.9 million. He noted that while the state has a number of revenue sources it can draw from, cities and towns rely heavily on property taxes.

City Auditor Robert Foy and Public Works Commissioner David Colton both said that while Discusses Research With Central Middle Students Nobel Prize Winner Hopes His 'Greatest Achievement' Ahead

By MICHAEL WHALEN

On Valentine's Day he spoke from the heart, and the students at Central Middle School listened.

After all, it's not every day that your guest speaker is a Nobel Prize winner.

Dr. Robert Fogel, winner of the 1993 Nobel Prize in Economics and father of Steve Fogel, owner of Steve's Beale Street Diner in Wollaston, talked to a group of about 100 eighth graders at the school Monday about his current research and the future that the students themselves face.

The speech was part of Central's "Step Into Society Week" during which special guests visit the school to talk about future career choices and other issues of interest to the students.

Fogel, 67, a professor of economics at the University of Chicago, won the $825,000 Nobel Prize jointly with a colleague, Douglass North of Washington University in St. Louis, last October for a school of thought the pair developed called "cliometrics," which Fogel said deals with the "application of statistical and behavioral models of economics in the field of historical economics."

Currently, however, Fogel said he is working with colleagues from Harvard and Tufts Universities and the Massachusetts Institute of Technology (MIT) in research that encompasses both economics and biomedical science in trying to determine why people today live longer than their forefathers and why the quality of life is presently so much better than it was for those born earlier in this century.

Fogel told the students that one reason for these changes is the "phenomenal breakthroughs" made in medical science since World War II. As an example, he noted that chicken pox (which he himself had in 1933), pneumonia and other common sicknesses were "killer diseases" which claimed many lives when he was a young boy, but now are not much worse than the common cold.

"Before then (World War II), they didn't have the miracle drugs of the 1990s," he said. Fogel added that since his birth, the average life expectancy has increased from 45 to 76 years of age.

He also cited the natural evolution of the human race as another reason for members of today's society living longer, healthier lives. People today tend to be taller, stronger and have better basic organ systems than in years past, he said.

"The process of getting healthier is still working its way out," he said. "We're still evolving as human beings."

Finally, Fogel said that today's average work week of 37 hours, which is "about half of what it used to be," has also helped extend life expectancy and improve the overall health of the general population. He noted that people today also tend to stay in school longer before entering the work force.

Fogel concluded by telling the students that their future is bright, saying that research shows that the human race will continue to get stronger and healthier as work hours continue to dwindle and leisure time increases. He said that the rate of chronic diseases has declined about six percent since the beginning of the century and should continue to decrease by the same rate for the next 60 years. Average life expectancy when the Central students reach their golden years should be 90 to 95 years old, he added.

He also encouraged students with interests in economics and science to seriously pursue them as career goals.

"I first became interested in science while in middle school," he said, "and I had teachers that made it come alive."

Fogel also took several questions from the audience. When one student asked how it felt to win the Nobel Prize, Fogel drew a big laugh by responding, "like a fairy tale come true, and I recommend it." Asked by another what he thinks his greatest achievement is, he said, "I hope it's ahead of me."

Responding to a question about his thoughts on President Clinton's health plan, Fogel said "We (Americans) have the best health care system in the world... (but) I'm not sure the effort to constrain it is feasible. We're going to have to be prepared to pay higher taxes for it."

Speaking briefly in response to a question about his background, Fogel, who was born in Manhattan, N.Y. told the students that his parents left the Soviet Union illegally by bribing an official to escape the rule of Communism.

"My brother and I were both beneficiaries of that success," he said.

School officials in attendance, including School Supt. Eugene Creedon, Central Principal Louis DiMartinis and Assistant Principal Donald Houghton, all had strong words of praise for Fogel. In fact, it was Houghton who was able to secure Fogel's presence at the school because of his acquaintance with the professor's son, Steve, who himself has spoken during "Step Into Society Week" in the past.

"We have here today a very distinguished guest," DiMartinis said before the speech. "It's incomprehensible to me that I have to introduce a Nobel Prize winner." He then turned the introduction over to Houghton because of his assistance in bringing Fogel to the school.

"It was a thrill to share in Steve's pride when his father won the Prize," said Houghton in his introduction.

"I'm extremely honored that Dr. Fogel spoke here today," said Creedon afterward. "It's an unbelievable opportunity for the students to hear from such a gentleman." He added that Quincy has a connection of sorts with the University of Chicago, since Col. Francis Parker, the city's first superintendent of schools (from 1875 to 1880), eventually went on to work for the university.

Students who listened to the speech, including class treasurer Andrew Bisconte, were also impressed with what they heard.

"It made me realize how lucky we are to have cures for all these diseases, because he didn't have them when he was a kid," said Bisconte. "I didn't know that before."

Another student, Andy Mauriello, said he was impressed by Fogel's work ethic.

"It was very interesting," said Mauriello. "It helped me understand things I didn't completely understand before, and made me realize that a person who studies a lot can end up doing whatever he wants in life."

Steve Fogel, who was also in the audience Monday, recalled with great pride watching his father accept the Nobel Prize during ceremonies last Dec. 10.

"It was one of the most emotional moments of my life," he said. "I consider my father to be an absolutely brilliant man, and I never had any doubt he would win."

Rec. Complex At Landfill Could Be Windfall For City

Mayor James Sheets has proposed a 50-year lease for a recreation complex on the former landfill site in West Quincy that indicates the project will earn considerable revenue for the city in addition to providing a golf course, nature trails and other amenities.

The proposed lease, unveiled at last week's City Council meeting, guarantees the city 10 percent, or between $100,000 and $200,000, annually from the profits from the 18-hole course and rental of function facilities. The money he used for the upkeep of other Quincy parks.

The lease also requires the developer of the project, Quarry Hills Associates, to set aside $1 million as a security fund while the complex is being built. The City Council and state Legislature must both approve the proposed lease between the city and the developer.

Several councillors, including Ward 4 Councillor Thomas Fabrizio whose ward includes the site, have already expressed initial support for the project. Council President Michael Cheney said he also is supportive of the lease but wants a provision that would give the city 10 to 20 percent of the profit if the developers should ever sell the lease.

Officials have said the complex would be built and maintained by the developers, who include developer Peter O'Connell and former Mayor Walter Hannon, at no cost to taxpayers. The details of the lease have been worked on for the past three months.

The project will also depend on whether fill can be secured from Boston's Central Artery Project to finish covering the landfill. The lease also says that Quarry Hills Associates, who would be paid to accept the fill, would share any profits with Quincy after construction is completed.

While competition for the fill is likely to be strong, officials and developers have said Quincy's proximity to Boston will help its cause.

In addition, the lease calls for an advisory committee of residents and officials to be appointed to review financial operations at the golf course.

Plans for the project calls for a complex of about 250 acres, including the 178-acre landfill as well as about 70 acres of private land to be purchased by Quarry Hills Associates. Officials said the complex will cost an estimated $8 to $10 million and about three years to build.

The developers are also negotiating with the Town of Milton. Officials have said adding land in Milton would allow Quarry Hills to increase the number of golf holes from 18 to 27.

The recreation complex would also include three baseball fields, two softball fields, nature trails and picnic areas. A one-acre artificial lake would be used for skating and the adjacent quarry is available for hiking and rock-climbing.

The complex would also provide residents with direct access to the Blue Hills Reservation.

Ward 4 Democrats Elect 10 Delegates To Convention

In addition, Bernice Mader, of 108 Connell St., and Stephen Hawko, 17 White St., will attend the convention ex-officio.

Alternates are Geoffrey Hatch, 170 Copeland St.; and Louise Brabazon, 94 Alrick Rd.

The purpose of this year's convention is to nominate Democratic candidates for governor and all other statewide offices.

Ward 2 Democratic Delegates Elected

Ward 2 Democrats recently elected delegates to the June 3 - 4 Democratic convention at the Worcester Centrum.

Elected were Vincent Picardi, Theodore DeCristofaro, Robert Noble, Ron Iacobucci, Keith McCray, James Nestor, Nina Picardi, Gloria Noble, Barbara Nestor, Dolores McCray, M. Eve Powell and Deborah DiBona.

Ruth DeCristofaro, John O'Brien and Jane O'Brien were elected as alternates.

Sheets To Send Family Commission Ordinance To Council Next Week

By MICHAEL WHALEN

Mayor James Sheets is planning to send an ordinance for the establishment of a Quincy Family Commission to the City Council next week.

Sheets said the commission, which he hopes to see established by March or April, will aid needy Quincy families by providing a database of information on area service organizations including hospitals and other medical centers, schools, rehabilitation centers, food pantries, shelters for the homeless and abused, and other community organizations.

The 17-member commission may also be able to provide financial assistance in certain circumstances, although that is not yet certain, the mayor added.

Sheets said the primary goals of the commission will be the following:

- To complete a needs assessment for needy families in the city.

- To determine what resources are currently available to meet those needs.

- To make a recommendation to the mayor on how to secure outside resources for the needy.

- To set up all existing resources so they can be easily utilized by Quincy's needy families.

"I see the commission as an agency that is going to bring together all the resources we have under some kind of informational control," said Sheets. "It will aid all of the city's needy, from newly-born children to senior citizens, kind of like a 'cradle to the grave' type of coverage."

Sheets said the Quincy Planning Department, Quincy Community Action Programs (QCAP) Inc. and Quincy Neighborhood Housing Services have put together a directory consisting of around 100 pages containing information on a number of agencies and organizations throughout Boston and the South Shore. He said that information will be broken down in greater detail and will help make up a database relevant to the City of Quincy.

As an example of how the commission will work, Sheets said if someone's grandfather or grandmother suddenly came down with Alzheimer's Disease, he or she could call the Quincy Family Commission. The group's computerized database would be able to provide instant information for the caller on how to help someone with Alzheimer's and the locations and phone numbers of agencies that service people or families of people who suffer from the disease.

"All of this information would be available at the touch of a button," said Sheets. "It's important in a time of crisis to know where resources that could help are located."

Sheets said at press time the ordinance to establish the commission is in draft form but should be completed by Friday. He added that he does not intend to lobby the City Council about the commission, although he has received "general support" from the councilors he has spoken to.

The mayor also said that it is not yet certain who the 17 commission members will be, although representatives from the city's school, public safety and recreation departments will be included. Two or three sites are currently being looked at as possibilities for the commission headquarters, he added.

Once the commission is established, Sheets said he intends to hold a "full-day's conference" with city department heads to discuss the information the commission has on resources available to the needy.

The Quincy Family Commission will be formed at no expense to the city, Sheets said. If the group needs funding for any reason, the mayor said money will either be taken from the "special activities" account funded by the sale of city department surplus items at the Quincy City Store or else raised from private donations.

Sheets said he does not know of any other organizations similar to the Quincy Family Commission in any of the communities that surround the city.

MIKE McLAUGHLIN of Curtis Avenue in Quincy Point clears sidewalk in front of his home last Saturday. The city received three storms last week that dumped a total of 32 inches of snow on the ground.

License Board Warns Two Businesses On Early Opening

By LISA CONNELL

Two Quincy businesses were officially reprimanded at Tuesday's Licensing Board meeting for serving alcoholic beverages before noon last Christmas.

State law forbids any bar from opening and serving liquor before noon on Christmas and Memorial Day.

Morris Foley, manager of Delaney's Pub, 35 Franklin St., and Mark DiBona, manager of Brannigan's, 226 Water St., were warned not to open before noon on either holiday. Both incidents were officially recorded and placed on file.

An surprise on-site inspection by Police Liquor Inspector Det. Sgt. Richard Laracy on Dec. 25 found several patrons in both sites, before noon, being served liquor.

Laracy asked bartenders at both locations to close down and informed them of the state law. Both businesses complied immediately, Laracy said.

Foley said his son, not knowing of the regulation, opened early. Laracy said later that DiBona, who has only been in the restaurant business for several years, may not have been aware of the state regulation.

"We're not bird dogging anyone. I really expect regulations to be adhered to. What we do for one [business], we do for all," said Police Chief Francis Mullen.

Apologizes To Rep. Tobin For Misstating His Position On Seat Belt Law

Editor, The Quincy Sun:
As someone who has been a political activist for over 25 years and who has been writing letters and commentaries since my days as a 19-year-old from East Somerville, I admit to being rather impetuous at times when I allow highly-charged emotions to cloud my public policy positions. I commit errors. Ouch! I make mistakes. But I always try and own up to my misuses. Recently, in a letter published in The Quincy Sun on January 6, 1994, I wrote on the mandatory seat belt law and blasted state Rep. Steve Tobin, D-Quincy. Basing it on a few minutes of TV viewing, I misstated his position and participated in some needless name-calling.

After a recent chat with Rep. Tobin and a re-reading of my letter, I found my rhetoric to be both indefensible and inflammatory. How could I infer that Tobin was a flaming liberal? I publicly apologize for that. I have always found him to be a voice and vote for his representative district.

Sometimes I can be too quick on the draw. It is a journalistic hazard to be avoided at all costs. Reasonable people can disagree with each other over public policy issues without being disagreeable. I feel that I failed the test on January 6th. Rep. Tobin's record is clear. He does support the new seat belt law but to his credit, also does support putting the issue on the November ballot. The more I checked Tobin's Beacon Hill record, the more I found him to be supportive of the same kinds of policies and laws as I do. When it comes to drunk driving measures, we are complete disagreement. There is no right to drive drunk and stricter drunk driving measures do no sound the deathknell for constitutional liberties.

State Rep. Steve Tobin has informed me that if the voters once again were to repeal the mandatory seat belt law, he would accept that as both the voice and will of the people.

Tobin is definitely not a knee-jerk liberal Democrat and is to be commended for deliberating quite seriously before pushing any buttons up in the House of Representatives. Many years ago, Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey once said, "The moral test of government is how that government treats those who are in the dark of life—the children; those who are in the twilight of life—the elderly; and those who are in the shadow of life—the sick, the needy and the handicapped."

Also, many years ago, my old state Rep. Charlie Iannello, D-Roxbury, repeated to me a lesson he had learned early on in his public career, "Never be afraid to admit a mistake or apologize for it. After all, isn't that why they make pencils with erasers at the top?"

I forgot those lessons with my January 6th letter blasting state Rep. Steve Tobin. I forgot that I'm not always right and that words can hurt when making quick emotional responses. I usually do better than that!

Sometimes It Takes Awhile

The mail does get through even though sometimes it may take awhile.

Like the letter received by Bryant Carter, Sr., of 1000 Southern Artery, who until a couple of months ago lived at 182 Quincy Ave.

Carter, past commander of the Wollaston Legion Post, was committee chairman for the 45th anniversary reunion of his North Quincy High School class of 1942 in 1987.

Carter was a little surprised to see classmate Richard Hamilton and his wife, Bernadine, of Grace Rd., Braintree the night of the reunion because he hadn't heard from them that they planned to attend.

"I sent my response back to you," Hamilton told him. "My check ($70) was with it."

"I never got it," said Carter.

Sometime later, when Carter still hadn't received the check, Hamilton sent him another one and Carter received it.

The other day, Carter received a letter at his 1000 Southern Artery apartment which was mailed in Brockton and postmarked—Sept. 23, 1987.

It was Hamilton's first check for $70 and with it, his dinner choice of shrimp for the 1987 reunion.

It got to Carter after six years, four months and 10 days.

Carter informed Hamilton he finally received the check and told him he will hold onto it for the next reunion scheduled for this Oct. 12.

FORMER STATE SENATOR Paul Harold, Quincy's Marco Polo, is on an overseas lecture tour sponsored by the U.S. Information Agency with which he has been affiliated 14 years.

HAROLD

First stop was Helsinki, Finland, where the temperature was 30 below zero without any wind chill factor. The tour will also take him to Russia, Lithuania, Denmark and Cyprus.

Main topic for the lecture series is federal-state relations, a timely one for the new independent states of the former Soviet Union and the countries of a new United Europe.

In St. Petersburg, Harold will visit that city's shipyard to learn first hand of their plans to convert facilities for civilian use.

Harold, incidentally, was recently elected president of the Boston Center for International Visitors which brings together official international visitors and their professional counterparts here.

On his way back from the tour, Harold plans to stop off in Rome to visit Ambassador to the Vatican, Ray Flynn. (Better call ahead first, Paul, he might be back here campaigning for governor).

TWO PROMINENT QUINCY Republicans are backing separate GOP hopefuls for the U.S. Senate.

RESIDENTS AT 1000 Southern Artery are in for a treat Wednesday, Feb. 23 when the Quincy Alumni Band presents a 7:30 p.m. concert there, recreating the Big Band era sound mixed with music of today. The talented band, led by George Vallatini, has become one of Quincy's cultural assets. If you get a chance to hear them, don't miss it.

Action Programs, Inc. can pay heating costs such as oil, gas, electricity, kerosene, wood and a direct cash payment to those whose heat is included in the rent. Homeowners, as well as renters, are eligible to apply.

In addition to the benefit of paying the heating bill, eligible clients are entitled to year-round discounts on their electric, gas, and telephone bills.

At this time, there is only one day's wait for an appointment. Those interested in making an appointment should call the main office at 479-8181 and press for the fuel assistance program.

The program is scheduled to end this year on March 31.

Scenes From Yesterday

BUILT IN 1894, this West Quincy fire house was in the backyard of the Willard School which was built just three years earlier. Organized in 1852 the "Granite" Hose Company No. 3 was originally located further down Copeland Street in a small wooden building at the corner of Furnace Ave. Today's West Quincy fire station was built in 1939 and is located on the corner of Miller and Copeland Streets. This postcard was printed in Germany about 1915.

The Irish Have A Way Of Saying Things

By PAUL HAROLD

The Irish have a way of saying things and like many of the things they do, it's with a combination of whimsy, politeness and literary flair.

Some might call it Blarney, but it's actually an evolution of the English language, called Irish-English. For Americans, many of the words or phrases are in fact English or European (such as calling the second floor the first, or a line a queue). Other are unique to Ireland, to Dublin or even to neighborhoods of Dublin.

The award-winning author Roddy Doyle (known to Americans for his books made into movies, including "The Commitments" and "The Snapper") chronicles much of this newspeak. However, he doesn't include a glossary in his works, so the reader has to guess as best he can the meaning by its context.

Writer Dermot Bolger does include a "translation" in the front of his work "The Journey Home." These new words and meanings include: nixers (work done under the table), hard chaws (tough men), spots (Irish pounds), and dot (girlfriend).

"Crack" in the Irish context is not an illegal drug but a good time/good company. A "shout" is not a loud noise (though it may lead to loud conversation) but a round of drinks. "Chuffed" means you are pleased, a "dew" is a celebration and a "clinic" has nothing to do with a hospital but is the name for constituent offices hours by a local member of Parliament (Dail).

When I first arrived at University College in Cork I was asked to present a one-hour lecture on "Cientalism." I said I'd be happy to, but asked, "What is it?" Clientalism is constituent service by elected officials (a practice perfected in Ireland) and adopted in the U.S., but held in low esteem in the Irish academics).

Sometimes words are not different, but pronounced differently because of the Irish or regional accent. The most troublesome for me was being introduced as an American "liar" (the Irish pronunciation for lawyer). After the first week, I asked to be referred to as an attorney.

The politeness in phraseology was noted at Dublin's Heuston Station. The tow zone sign read, "kindly refrain from parking in this area." An application for free legal counsel asked the question, "Are you free from any pecuniary embarrassment?" (do you owe anybody any money). People who were unemployed are referred to as "unwaged." Handicapped persons are not disabled but "differently abled."

One of the best examples of colorful phraseology is the Irish description for a small flat (apartment). "It's not big enough to swing a cat."

Finally, Irish-English includes a number of commonly used Gaelic words. I learned this my first day at Cork. I think I would have had a better chance of figuring out the meaning if the signage included the whole word.

On my first visit to the loo (toilet) I was confronted with a choice of doors labeled M and F. Assuming M was for "male" and F for "female," I startled some young ladies when I opened the wrong door. M is short of "mna," Gaelic for woman, and F for "fir," man.

(Former State Sen. Paul Harold was recently in Ireland as visiting professor of American Studies at University College, Cork County).

Quincy's Yesterdays

Housing Authority To Manage Federal Projects

The City Council voted to create a Quincy Housing Authority composed of five members to supervise the construction and maintenance of a low income permanent federal housing project if the city chooses to build one.

Sentiment at a public hearing held prior to the Council meeting was so heavily weighted in favor of such a project that Councillor Frank Orcutt said the Council could not vote against it without giving up majority rule.

The only voice in opposition was sounded by William M. Edmonston, executive secretary of the Quincy Taxpayers Association, who said he favored the authority but he did not favor construction of the project.

Meanwhile, Mayor Charles A. Ross announced that a special committee had chosen three possible sites for the 150 temporary veterans; housing units that had been allocated to Quincy by the federal government.

They were on the north side of Pond St. between Washington St. and Southern Artery; in a parking lot between Cleverly Court and Chubbuck St., Quincy Point; and on a vacant lot between Canal and Brackett Sts.

GOP CALLED 'JOKE'

Ernest Wheeler Towne of Wollaston told fellow members of the Republican City Committee that the GOP has become "A joke. Mention it and you get a smile. The reason is apparent. It is as failed to be the opposition party."

"Under control of the New Deal," said Towne, "The democratic party has been the left wing party and has led us into National Socialism. The Republican party has been a cheap 'me too' party."

"We need youthful leadership. We must purge our ranks of all isms and lists. We must put the mark of Cain on all so-called liberals and send them out to work under true name, National Socialists."

A 'Thank You' From The Salvation Army

Editor, The Quincy Sun: While The Salvation Army's personnel have been on the front line providing winter holiday assistance programs, the many, many hours of behind-the-scenes volunteer work carried out by community-minded businesses, media organizations, citizens, churches and school children have provided the resources for our successful effort to assist the less fortunate.

As winter extends its cold grip on our Commonwealth, and we continue our service to your community, I am again reminded of the warmth generated by the battalions of caring volunteers and donors who helped their neighbors through their local Salvation Army.

Early estimates show The Salvation Army assisted over 283,000 individuals in Massachusetts this past Christmas season. Our heartfelt "thank you" goes out to all of our friends for assisting us in providing hope for a brighter future in 1994!

DAFFODIL DAYS Co-Chairmen Dennis and Pauline Sweeney.

Daffodil Days For Cancer, March 22-27

As many as 150,000 golden daffodils will burst into bloom in Quincy and eight other South Shore communities to greet Spring, March 22 - 27, as the South Shore Unit of the American Cancer Society stages its annual Daffodil Days.

The daffodil promotion benefits the research, education and service programs to cancer patients throughout the area.

"Last year people here bought over 130,000 daffodils, plus attractive vases to help us raise $66,000 and we hope to do better this year," said Pauline Sweeney of Quincy. Sweeney, with her husband Dennis, will again head this year's effort. "It is a wonderful way to greet Spring with the flower of hope and help fight cancer," said Sweeney.

Many businesses and professional people support the effort by purchasing the flowers and giving them to customers and clients. Schools, nursing homes and public offices also find them an attractive way to brighten up the premises while aiding a good cause.

Advance orders are being taken up to March 11 for the bright yellow blooms and volunteers will be delivering and selling them beginning March 22. Orders may be placed by calling the South Shore Unit office, 341-4210.

A bouquet of 10 is $5, and a box of 500 is $250. A custom-designed vase is also $5. Orders for five or more bunches will be delivered by volunteers on March 22 and 23, while pick-up of smaller orders may be made at 15 CVS pharmacies in the area and other pick-up spots beginning March 24.

The South Shore Unit of the Society carries on a program of help for cancer patients in Quincy, Braintree, Cohasset, Hingham, Hull, Milton, Norwell, Scituate and Weymouth. Some 1400 businesses and individuals have been contacted by volunteers for support.

Statewide it is expected that three million blooms will be sold with a goal of raising more than the nearly $1,000,000 raised last year. For the past several years, the South Shore Unit has topped all others in the state in Daffodil Days results.

Quincy History Play At Historical Society Feb. 21

"Your Town", the interactive, family-oriented play about Quincy history that was a hit as part of First Night, will be performed Monday, Feb. 21 at 10 a.m. and 11 a.m. at the Quincy Historical Society in the Adams Academy, 8 Adams St. Admission is free.

The production and these performance are made possible by First Night Quincy, Michael Cheney, Chairman, and Quincy 2000, Charles D'Aprix, Executive Director.

"Your Town" is created and performed by Boston's City Stage Theater Company, who have created many highly-praised productions. It was commissioned by the Adams National Historic Site, the Society for Preservation of New England Antiquities, the Quincy Historical Society, First Parish Church and the Quincy Homestead.

The play spans from Native American times to the heyday of the Fore River yard in rapid order. Along the way it looks at John and Abigail Adams, the Quincy family and the granite industry. There are opportunities for audience participation. The play has a special appeal for children, but adults will also enjoy it and are invited to attend, with or without accompanying youngsters.

Call 773-1144 for further information.

Foreign Language Program At Beechwood Center

Beechwood Community Life Center has added a Foreign Language Enrichment program for children and adults, as well as English as a Second Language classes for area adults.

After school Spanish and French clubs for elementary school children allow students to learn the language through participation in games, songs, drama and activities in small groups.

The clubs meet one hour each week, immediately after school. The eight-week course costs $55 or $50 for Beechwood members.

Pre-registration is required and enrollment is limited. Program coordinator is Liliane Verdier, a trained, experience educator-linguist. All teachers are either bilingual natives or are fluent in a second language.

In addition, adult classes are now organizing for French, Spanish and English as a Second Language.

For more information about Beechwood's Language Enrichment program or any their programs for children or adults, call the Center at 471-5712.

PREDICTING PROBLEM DRINKING IN WOMEN

Whether or not a woman will develop a problem with alcohol may have as much to do with genetics as anything else. A study of more than 1,000 pairs of adult female twins has found that women whose identical twins were alcoholics were likely to be problem drinkers themselves. Women whose fraternal (or non-identical) twins were alcoholic were much less likely to have problems controlling their drinking habits. (Identical twins are exactly the same genetically, while fraternal twins are no closer than any other siblings.) Researchers believe this may mean that certain genes make people more vulnerable to depression, or may affect the way the liver processes alcohol, both of which can be factors in alcoholism.

P.S. The link between genetics and problem drinking among men has been established for some time.

If you suspect that someone close to you has a drinking problem, consult your physician or contact your local Alcoholics Anonymous chapter. If you'd like more information on this or any other column topic, feel free to call any of the doctors—myself, Dr. Lisa Antonelli, or Dr. Ronald Durap, at COMPREHENSIVE CARDIAC CARE at 472-2550. If necessary, we will refer you to another medical professional. Office hours are by appointment. We have ample parking at our office, located in Crown Colony, 700 Congress St., Suite 2C, in Quincy. I am affiliated with Quincy Hospital and South Shore Hospitals.

Eye Safety Encouraged For Weekend And Professional Athletes

(NAPS)—Imagine a racquetball or handball coming at your eye at 60 to 125 mph. A tennis ball traveling in your direction at 50 to 85 mph. There is no question that physical protection is especially important in games which involve fast, moving objects and a high level of contact. Baseball, basketball, squash, racquetball, paddleball, football, tennis, soccer, hockey, boxing and volleyball are among the riskiest of all sports when it comes to the eye.

The National Society to Prevent Blindness estimates that 100,000 sports-related eye injuries occur each year. Surprisingly, it is estimated that 90 percent of these injuries could be prevented simply by using protective eyewear.

According to Dr. Kenneth Marton, sports vision specialist and member of the Bausch & Lomb InVision Institute, "Protecting the eyes is as important to athletic success as maintaining optimum visual acuity. Proper eye safety includes physical protection of the eye, as well as protection from adverse environmental elements such as glare and ultraviolet rays."

"We know that 50 percent of the American population require vision correction," noted Marton. "Many wear their glasses on the court, which may actually lead to unnecessary injury. Basic physical protection is best provided by a shatter-resistant sports goggle or sports spectacle frame held firmly on the head with a strap. Everyday eyeglasses are not designed to sustain the rough handling of an athlete in action and do not provide the necessary protection. In fact, they place the athlete at serious risk for frame-related eye injuries," Marton added.

According to sports vision experts, contact lenses and sports goggles enhance athletic performance and maximize eye protection.

Contact lenses are the vision correction option of choice for athletes. They not only enhance certain visual skills that can improve sports performance such as peripheral vision and depth perception, but they serve as protection. Contacts can act as a shield to potential abrasions or lacerations. Because they are directly on the eye, contacts lessen the chance of trauma to the cornea and act as a protective buffer.

According to Dr. Marton, "Frequent lens replacement maintains the best vision clarity and eye health—all important to maximize performance." Now is a good time for sports minded consumers to try contact lenses. Bausch & Lomb is now offering free trial pairs of its disposable or monthly planned replacement contact lenses. For a trial certificate, interested consumers should consult their eye doctor or call Bausch & Lomb at 1-800-552-7388.

Reducing The Risk Of Heart Attack

(NAPS)—Originally developed as therapy for people with arthritis, aspirin is now recognized for its role in reducing the risk of cardiovascular disease. Citing a number of studies that have shown aspirin to be beneficial both immediately following a heart attack and as a long-term treatment thereafter, the recently published American Heart Association guidelines give strong support for the use of aspirin in the treatment of heart disease.

While the daily dosage of aspirin used to prevent cardiovascular problems is small compared to the large daily doses used to ease the pain and inflammation of arthritis, physicians are concerned that even this can damage the stomach lining and cause bleeding. In fact, several studies have shown a link between low doses of aspirin and adverse gastrointestinal conditions.

Ecotrin, the most thoroughly clinically-tested enteric-coated aspirin, has an unsurpassed safety profile due to its protective coating, "Sensi-Coat." This stomach-safe coating prevents the aspirin tablet from dissolving until it reaches the small intestine where it can be absorbed safely.

Most heart attacks are caused by a blood clot that blocks an oxygen-transferring artery. Aspirin is effective in preventing heart attacks because it inhibits the clumping together of platelets, specialized blood cells that play a role in clotting.

In 1985, doctors began to recommend one aspirin tablet (325 mg) daily as a "therapeutic agent" in the prevention of second heart attacks. But patients should not begin an aspirin regimen without consulting a physician.

Ecotrin provides a newsletter with further information about safe aspirin use to all heart patients free of charge. Call: 1-800-453-7000.

Podiatrists Recommend Flexible Shoes That Fit

Shoes are the most expensive piece of apparel that parents will buy for their children because, before a child reaches age 10, their foot size will change more than 30 times. This fact isn't meant to discourage parents, so much as it is to encourage careful and educated shoe buying.

The American Pediatric Medical Association (APMA), which is based in Bethesda, Maryland, also believes that young children do not need shoes until they begin to walk in areas that could potentially affect their feet, such as rough or dirty surfaces. When shoes are worn, they should be flexible and fit properly to ensure normal development of the foot.

Dean Wakefield, director of public affairs for the APMA, says that children's feet attain almost half of their adult size in the first year. Thus, it is extremely important for parents to measure a child's foot every four to six weeks to make sure shoes still fit. Shoes that are too small, for example, are harmful because they restrict growth and development.

"A common mistake parents make is to buy shoes that are too big, believing their children will eventually grow into them. In fact, shoes brought too big can cause a child to trip or to get blisters," Wakefield says.

The APMA recommends shoes that are wide enough at the ball of the foot and the toe box. The length of the shoe should be a thumb's width longer than the child's longest toe.

Saving used children's shoes for younger siblings and friends may seem practical and cost-effective, but this is not healthy for a child's feet. Shoes conform to the shape of an individual's foot, which means that size and fit cannot be guaranteed in a hand-me-down pair of shoes. In addition, fungal and viral organisms can be transferred.

The best way to avoid these problems, Wakefield says, is to discard children's shoes when they've been outgrown, even if they shoes remain in good condition.

Nutritive Drink Good For Training, Recovery

with vitamins, minerals, proteins, enzymes and chlorophyll. It mixes well with just about everything—even bagels and cream cheese. Just mix three tablespoons of Green Magma with one tablespoon cool water and whip into cream cheese. Serve on toasted bagel, with favorite toppings—onion, tomato, salmon, capers.

It's a good dish for athletes who have a strong love for good food. Call 1-800-777-4430 for a free sample.

BE WISE... EXERCISE!

Come in so we may fit your child.

Accurate measurements of all areas of the foot will be taken. Fit is more than just how shoes feel or look. Fit is a whole system of checks and balances which make sure your child's shoes contribute maximum balance. Trust Hanel's. Because even though your child's feet go back a year or two, Hanel's perfect fit goes back over fifty years.

Nine-Year-Old Boy Praised For Courage City, Burn Victim Celebrate 'Claudius Burrows Day'

By MICHAEL WHALEN

Last December, he experienced the worst day of his life. Last week, he celebrated one of the best.

Nine-year-old Claudius Burrows of the Bahamas, who was so severely burned in a Dec. 11 accident he had to be flown to the United States for special treatment, received the grandest of Quincy compliments when officials proclaimed last Thursday "Claudius Burrows Day" in the city.

City and state officials, media representatives and other well-wishers joined Claudius and his mother, Dolly Dawkins, for a special celebration at the Quincy Housing Authority headquarters in Wollaston. Among those in attendance were City Council President Michael Cheney, Ward 1 Councillor Peter Kolson, State Rep. Michael Bellotti, QHA Executive Director John "Jake" Comer and Quincy Veterans Services Director Hank Bradley.

Cheney, in his capacity as acting mayor-Mayor James Sheets was out of town and unable to attend-presented Claudius with a replica of Quincy's city seal as well as a special Certificate of Recognition that was signed by Sheets and officially named the day "Claudius Burrows Day." He also told those at the celebration that the boy's courage has served as an inspiration to all who have met him.

"We go through life hoping that we can make a difference, and Claudius has made a large difference in a lot of people's lives," said Cheney. "He's a brave, brave young man."

Claudius' day did not begin at the QHA headquarters, however. Earlier he had been taken on a tour of a number of city hall offices, including the mayor's (despite the fact that Sheets was in Washington, D.C. at the time). He also stopped in at the Quincy Municipal Credit Union on Washington Street, where a special fund has been set up in his name. Finally, there was a visit to McDonald's on Southern Artery, where Claudius was treated to a free meal.

"It was about a $30 (McDonald's) bill, but they wouldn't take our money," said Comer. "When they saw we were with Claudius, they said it was 'on the house,' because he's the special guest of the city."

Claudius, a shy, soft-spoken fourth grader, said he was also thrilled by the fact that the Boston Celtics sent him an autographed basketball signed by the entire team. Basketball, he said, is very popular in the Bahamas.

"That's the sport I like best," said Claudius, who was taken to a Celtics-Dallas Mavericks game at Boston Garden during his stay in the Bay State.

One thing they don't have in Claudius' homeland, however, is snow. The boy had never even seen New England's favorite form of precipitation before, and he said he has enjoyed it immensely.

Asked if he missed the warm weather back home, Claudius said "no, because I like to play in the snow." He particularly enjoyed throwing snowballs at his mother, he said.

Claudius ran around in the snow during the part of the celebration and also played with balloons and ate chocolate cake and ice cream.

Claudius' special day in Quincy was a stark contrast to the event that brought him here. During a traditional Christmas festival in Freeport, Grand Bahama Island Dec. 11, a strong wind took hold of the costume he was wearing and blew a portion of it into an open flame in one of the festival events. Startled, Claudius reacted as any nine-year-old would-he began running around in a panic. As a result, he received third-degree burns over half of his body.

"CLAUDIUS BURROWS DAY" was held in the city last week in honor of the 9-year-old burn victim from the Bahamas. Attending the celebration at the Quincy Housing Authority headquarters in Wollaston were Quincy Veterans Services Director Hank Bradley, City Council President Michael Cheney, Claudius, his mother, Dolly Dawkins and QHA Executive Director John "Jake" Comer.

Comer, who was vacationing in the Bahamas at the time with his wife Eileen, learned of the event and decided to help. Since Bahamian hospitals are not equipped to handle such burns and the boy's mother could not afford to send him elsewhere for treatment, Comer told Dawkins about the free care available at the Shriners Burn Institute in Boston. He also put her in touch with Bradley, whose daughter Annette works at the burn center.

Transportation was arranged, and Claudius was flown to Massachusetts. Comer said a special air ambulance (which was flown by Mel Acuff of Quincy) costing $9,000 was needed because of damage done to the boy's lungs.

"He couldn't breathe on his own," said Comer, adding that the Shriners center paid for the flight.

Dr. Robert Sheridan, a Quincy native and North Quincy High School graduate, performed the initial operation on Claudius and expects a full recovery. Sheridan said the boy almost certainly would have died if he had stayed in the Bahamas.

His mother, who has been granted free lodging at the Susse Chalet in Dorchester (which is managed by Lou Pasquale, who grew up in Quincy Point) since the accident, knows that Sheridan's comment is no exaggeration, and expressed gratitude to all who helped Claudius through his ordeal.

"I want to tell all the people in Boston and Quincy that I thank God for them," said Dawkins. "I want to thank Jake and Eileen Comer, Hank and Rose (Hank's wife) Bradley, and the people at Shriners. They are all just great people, and they saved my boy's life."

Although Claudius is expected to go home in two or three weeks, Comer said donations are still needed for his special fund to finance future visits to Shriners the boy will have to make periodically for additional treatment. So far, $6,500 has been collected for the fund, he said.

Donations to The Claudius Burrows Fund may be brought to the QHA, Quincy Veterans Services or Quincy Municipal Credit Union, or mailed to: The Claudius Burrows Fund, P.O. Box 38, North Quincy, MA 02171.

Robert Watson Memorial Scholarships Available

Applications are available at Quincy and North Quincy High Schools for the Robert Watson Memorial Scholarship, announces Alicia Coletti, director of the Quincy Public Schools Chapter I program.

Applicants must receive their high school diploma by June, 1994 and have received Chapter I services for at least one year at any grade level from preschool through grade 12.

"This is an excellent opportunity for students to comment on how their experience in Chapter I has helped them to achieve their educational goals," Coletti said.

Information about the Watson Scholarship may be obtained by calling the guidance offices of the high schools or the Chapter I office at 984-8737.

Four QHS Air Force Jr. ROTC Cadets Commended By Sheets For Aiding Storm Victims

Four Quincy High School Air Force Junior ROTC cadets were recently commended by Mayor James Sheets for helping victims of a recent major winter storm that battered Quincy.

Cadets Rich Bergeron, Ben Sharkey, Scott Mercurio and Dennis Lawrence were presented their awards by Sheets in the mayor's office. They showed their training by their skilled service to the Quincy Emergency Management Agency.

Cadets Mercurio and Lawrence saved a woman stranded on top of her car by high flood waters. They received the Silver Valor Award, the second highest honor the AFJROTC program offers its cadets.

Two other cadets, as well as Mercurio and Lawrence aided storm victims by volunteering their time pumping out flooded basements in the hardest hit areas. Cadets Bergeron, Sharkey, Lawrence and Mercurio also assisted Emergency Management by carrying the pumps, rolling out the hoses and starting the pump at the first house.

Knee deep in a flooded cellar, the cadets worked to keep the water flowing into the pump, and their help was greatly appreciated by the owners of each house. At the second house, the cadets were filmed by WCVB-Channel 5 news which reported on the hardest hit areas.

The cadets and their two instructors were present at the award ceremony. Cadets Mercurio and Lawrence received both the Silver Valor Award, which accompanied a certificate, medal and a citation from the U.S. Air Force for their aid in saving the unknown woman from her car.

These two cadets and Cadets Bergeron and Sharkey were presented with the Cadet Humanitarian Award, which is an AFJROTC ribbon for community service above the call of duty.

Catholic Parishes Offering Adult Confirmation Classes

Star of the Sea Parish in Squantum will be the host parish for seven weeks of instruction for Catholics 18 years of age and older who wish to receive the sacrament of Confirmation.

Classes will be held in Mary Hall (the church basement) for seven consecutive Wednesdays beginning March 2, from 7:30 to 9 p.m.

A $25 registration is requested for the textbook and for program expenses.

Rev. Daniel J. Crowley, pastor of Star of the Sea Parish, will coordinate the program. The sacrament of Confirmation will be conferred by Most Rev. Daniel A. Hart, the auxiliary bishop of the South Region, on Wednesday, April 20 at 7 p.m. at St. Agatha Church, Adams St. at Brook Rd., East Milton.

Adults from the Quincy area are urged to contact their respective parishes: St. Boniface, Most Blessed Sacrament, St. Mary's, St. John's, Sacred Heart, Star of the Sea, St. Joseph's, St. Ann's or Our Lady of Good Counsel.

Falmouth Win Keeps Quincy Hopes Alive

The Quincy High boys' hoop team kept their post-season hopes alive with a 60-59 win over Old Colony League rival Falmouth.

The win sets the stage for Thursday's battle against North Quincy which could prove to be a must-win contest for both teams.

The victory over Falmouth gave the Presidents a record of 8-7 (6-7 in OCL play) while Falmouth dropped to 6-10.

The game was not as close as the score indicated. Quincy maintained a comfortable 6 to 10 point margin for most of the game. It appeared that they had the game wrapped up but some missed opportunities at the free throw line allowed Falmouth to climb back into it.

Guard Harold Mortel was hot as he netted 15 points, dished out six assists and made four steals for the Presidents. Tom Malvesti had his usual excellent game with 12 points and seven boards.

Joe Kelly and Jon Gangi led the Quincy inside game with 11 and 10 points respectively.

"Kelly and Gangi did a great job at the forward spot tonight. On both offense and defense," said Coach John Franceschini.

Franceschini also pointed to the play of senior Don Goss who came in as the sixth man and scored four points to help spark the Quincy effort.

The Presidents led 29-26 at the half and opened up their lead to as many as 10 in the second period. They had to overcome the stellar play of Falmouth point guard Brian Andrews who had a great second half and ended the night with 26 points.

Quincy and North Quincy will meet for the second time this season Thursday at 7 p.m. at the Quincy High gymnasium. The first meeting between these two schools was a double-overtime thriller won by the Red Raiders. The Presidents are fighting desperately to keep their tournament hopes alive and two losses in their last five games will eliminate them. North holds a slim first place lead in the Old Colony League and a loss to Quincy could ruin their chance of capturing the league title.

North One Win Shy Of State Tournament

By DAVE SOUTHWICK

The North Quincy boys' basketball tournament express reached a temporary derailment on Monday with a heart-breaking 66-61 defeat at the hands of Taunton to drop their record to 11-5, one win shy of qualifying for the state tournament.

The Raiders' revised schedule had them home against Bridgewater-Raynham Tuesday, followed by a clash of cross-town rival Quincy tonight (Thursday) and then a trip to Weymouth on Saturday.

The Raiders came out fired up in the first half against Taunton. Senior Mike Santoro hit two three-pointers to give North a 13-5 lead. The rest of the Raider offense held its own with Jason McLeod and Matt Beston scoring baskets throughout the half while the defense did their job by holding Taunton down. North kept the Tigers scoreless over the last 4:00 of the half to give the Raiders a 37-21 lead at the half.

The second half was a total reversal for both teams, even though North kept the lead to over 10 points for the first four minutes of the half. Taunton played catch-up and closed the Raider lead to two points at 45-43 with 11:00 left in the game. North was outscored 22-8 in this span. McLeod continued to keep the home team in front with several key baskets and rebounds. McLeod also hit a three-pointer with 7:15 left to give North a 53-46 lead. Taunton once again played catch-up and with 3:00 to play, hit a three-pointer to tie the game at 58-58. Adam DeBoer hit a three-pointer to put North up, 61-58. This was North's last score of the game.

Taunton took their first lead of the night at 62-61 with 39 seconds left and went on to win the game. North was outscored, 45-24, in the second half.

"We didn't play very good in the second half," said head coach Ted Stevenson. "They out-hustled and outplayed us in the second half. We just didn't play well and they deserved to win."

McLeod led North with 21 points. Other scorers included Boston with 16, Brad Gray with nine, Mike Koski and DeBoer with seven each, Matt Ngutler and Mike Santoro with three each and Brian Rafferty with two points.

North still needs just one win to make the Division One state tournament. That will not come easy with three games remaining against tough league opponents, and the finale against Milton, a top-ranked team.

QHS Wrestlers Medal In 10 Of 13 Weight Classes At Sectionals

The Quincy High School wrestling team medaled in ten of the thirteen weight classes and narrowly missed the team runner-up position at the Division I South Sectionals hosted by the Presidents.

Senior tri-captain Ashley Davis (152) won the sectional title and is Quincy's best hope for a state champion. Quincy also had three finalists who received the silver made and could also challenge for the state title: sophomore Matt Froehlich (125), junior Matt Miller (130) and junior Mike Feeley (HVY).

Several other wrestlers also medaled an will advance to the state tournament. Junior tri-captain Bryan Gallahue (145) finished third, sophomore Rich Testa (103) placed fourth and junior Matt Strauchon (189) also finished fourth. Senior tri-captain Shane O'Connor (135) finished in fifth place and is an alternate for the states. Sophomore John Leonard (112) won a sixth place medal.

In the overall team standings, Weymouth won with 177 points. Bridgewater-Raynham finished second with 144 and Quincy followed with 141. An unfortunate eye injury to junior Greg Santoro (160) in his first match cost the Presidents some valuable team points as Santoro had to default to a wrestler who went on to compete in the 160-pound final.

DOWN TO THE WIRES

Although the ignition wires leading to the spark plugs should last for at least 50,000 miles, they may fail earlier to produce rough idle or engine misfiring (especially at high speed). These symptoms should provide sufficient cause for a car owner to schedule an immediate appointment with the auto technician. A failed or defective ignition wire can be diagnosed by using an automatic oscilloscope. If a wire were to fail completely, a buildup of voltage in the ignition system could lead to the destruction of the ignition coil or ignition module. Misfiring caused by defective ignition wires can lead to the ruination of the catalytic converter. Thus, this is a problem that should be handled quickly.

HINT: If replacement ignition wires are not properly selected in accordance with the correct resistance value, it could cause problems with the operation of the car's computer.

The best way to make sure that your car functions at its optimum level is to follow a regular maintenance schedule. Our service department at LEO & WALT'S SINOCCO will be happy to help you set one up. Here at 258 Quincy Ave., E. Braintree (843-1550) our technicians have the best diagnostic equipment available anywhere, as well as the ALL-DATA computer system that keeps up to date on all manufacturer recommendations. Undermanned Quincy Falls To Barnstable

By KERRY BYRNE
The Quincy High hockey team faced a stacked deck Monday afternoon when they battled the red-hot Red Raiders of Barnstable.

With their starting goaltender and top defenseman out due to injuries and putting as many as four freshmen on the ice at once, the Presidents got bounced, 9-1.

The win was Barnstable's fifth in a row and moved them to a record of 12-5, good enough for post-season play. The Presidents fell to 5-8-3.

The difference in the contest was a 4 minute 12 second span in the beginning of the second period in which Barnstable rattled off five goals. Quincy was only down 1-0 at the time. It became clear that the Presidents were sorely missing goaltender Mark Smith and team captain and Old Colony League All-Star defenseman Steve Provost.

"With the injuries we had to play a lot of younger players and it gave us the opportunity to see what we have going into the end of the season," said Quincy coach Bob Sylvia. "We also have to get some kids ready for next season."

Barnstable rattled off another goal at 6:16 of the second when Mark Butler fired a shot from the right point past netminder John Masoni to open up a 7-1 lead.

Quincy's only goal of the game was a beauty.

Steve Miller passed to Dan Mann in the left slot who then passed to freshman Scott Cooper in front of the net. Cooper one-timed the puck past the left pad of goalie Jarrod Dwyer for the score.

The Presidents gave up two more goals in the third despite carrying the play for much of the period. In two power-play opportunities Barnstable was unable to lay a shot on the Quincy net. A Dave Cooper pass up center ice to Miller led to a golden short-handed opportunity for Quincy, but Miller was denied by replacement goal tender Lance Parkas. A few seconds later Dave Cooper had short-handed bid of his own from in close but was stonewalled by the netminder.

Despite being out-shot 37-20 the two teams battled evenly throughout most of the game. Except for the let down which opened the second period Quincy played a solid game.

Pee Wee C's Capture State Tournament Berth

The Quincy Pee Wee Cs captured a spot in the state tournament by virtue of a 9-1 win over the Milton Red team.

Quincy dominated the game from the outset, scoring their first goal 8 seconds into the contest. Almost the entire game was played in the Milton half of the ice as Quincy displayed an unprecedented degree of aggressiveness. The combination of top-notch skating, hard checking and fluid teamwork was more than Milton could handle.

Joe Vallatini hammered the Milton goaltender with four goals. Josh Silverman fired another two goals. Mike Carloni scored on a pool shot as the puck caromed off two players before finding its way into the net. Mike Hastings and Mike C. Sullivan also scored, eliminating any hope for Milton.

Jamie Parisi did his Gretzky imitation with three assists. Two assists were registered by Ryan Murray, John Bertucci, Chris Cullen and Mike C. Sullivan. Single assists were made by Silverman, Hastings, Shawn Cheney and Mike D. Sullivan.

Strong play by Sean Fitzgerald, Chris Lumaghini, T.J. Wilson and Dave Noonan helped contribute to the crushing win. Nick Pizziferri was a stalwart in net.

The Quincy Pee Wees will play Canton in the near future in a game that will determine seeds in the state tournament. The state games are currently scheduled for March 3, 4 and 5.

In a previous game Quincy beat Canton 5-1. Wilson paced the attack with a hat trick. Murray and Silverman each tallied once. Mike C. Sullivan had two assists and Vallatini, Silverman, Noonan and Mike D. Sullivan each had one.

Pee Wee C's Win 2

The Quincy Pee Wee C team posted two impressive wins this weekend, 8-2 against South Boston and 6-2 over Mid State.

In the victory over South Boston Mike Hastings and Joe Vallatini were impressive with two goals each. Josh Silverman, Mike C. Sullivan, John Bertucci and Ryan Murray had one goal apiece.

Forwards Vallatini and Bertucci had two assists each. Defenseman Sean Fitzgerald also had two assists. One assist each was handed out by T.J. Wilson, Silverman and Hastings.

The tougher Mid State opponent brought out the best in the Quincy squad as play improved in all areas. The Pee Wees performed well on offense and defense. Vallatini was again the high scorer with two goals. Silverman, Wilson, Murray and Mike C. Sullivan added one each.

Mike D. Sullivan was the leading playmaker with two assists. With on were Chris Lumaghini, Mike Carloni, Murray, Hastings and Silverman.

Quincy's Karen Cashman Goes For The Gold

"This was completely unexpected. We had resigned ourselves to the fact that Karen wasn't going to be in the Olympics this year, but overnight that changed," said a harried Mrs. Cashman, who has been inundated with phone calls since the news broke.

Cashman had just barely missed qualifying as an individual competitor by the narrowest of margins in the U.S. world short-track speedskating trials held at Lake Placid in early January. The top two overall finishers were chosen to represent the U.S. The Quincy woman finished third. In the 1000 meter race Cashman was edged by just .49 seconds by defending gold medalist Turner.

It appears that Cashman is in top form as she prepares for the opportunity of a lifetime. "Right now Karen is taking part in some pretty intense practice sessions in Oslo," said Mrs. Cashman, who talked with Karen by telephone on Tuesday. "She just did her best 3000 ever with a time of five minutes 28 seconds, 14 seconds better than her previous best of 5:42."

Even if Cashman fails to get an Olympic medal she'll make her hometown proud. Anyone for Karen Cashman Day in Quincy?

Expanded Gym Program For School Vacation Week

The Quincy Recreation Department will supervise 10 local neighborhood gymnasiums on an expanded schedule during next week's school vacation period, announces Director Barry J. Welch.

Activities are scheduled at various times and all programs are coed for boys and girls age 8 through high school.

- Squantum, 9 a.m. to 1 p.m., Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday.
- Wollaston, 8 to 10 a.m., Wednesday and Friday.

The regular schedule of programs will also be held Saturday, Feb. 12 and Feb. 19.

Bay Girls' Defeat Brookline

In Yankee League play the Quincy Bay girls' eighth grade hoop team won the weekends first contest, 33-23, over Brookline.

Leading the scoring for Quincy were Leela Shankar and Dominique Good with nine points each. Erin Barry was close behind with eight points. Sarah Satkevich and Kelly Shaw recorded four and three points.

With only seven players available the team traveled to Easton and lost, 44-33.

Outstanding games were played by Good with 10 points and five rebounds and Barry with eight points and 15 boards. Satkevich was also strong of the glass with 12 rebounds to go with her 4 points. Shankar buried six points in the contest and Shaw scored three points and grabbed 12 rebounds. The scoring was rounded out by Kara McSweeney's two points. Jocelyn West was the teams floor leader, dishing out 10 assists and playing tenacious defense.

The sixth grade squad notched one win while losing two.

The victory was a dominating 64-19 win over Westwood.

Pacing Quincy was Aubrey Guastalli with 12 points and Caitlin Powers and Meghan Ginty with 10 each. Caitlin O'Donnell netted eight and Kelly Raymer scored seven. Also scoring were Amy Satkevich, five points, Camilla Kidd and Lisa Vidali, both with four and Lauren Awed and Aimee DuBois each scoring two.

Against a strong Northbridge squad, the Quincy girls were overpowered, 42-23. Forced to play with only seven members, Quincy hung tough and maintained a 13-13 tie at the half.

The high scorer was Powers with nine points. Ginty buried six and Satkevich and Guastalli each had four.

In their third game the Quincy sixth graders played a hard fought game against Stoughton but fell short, 33-31.

Guastalli posted nine points and Satkevich recorded seven. Ashley Rowderink followed with five points and Powers buried three. Scoring two points were Ginty, Awed and Raymer. Vidali added one point.

By MATT MULVEY
Quincy Inspector Of Buildings

Adding To Non-Conforming Residential Structures

Many inquiries have been made in the past to the Quincy Building Department regarding the construction of additions to non-conforming residential structures.

I will briefly explain what non-conforming means and how it applies to building projects. I will use a single family dwelling in a Residential A District as an example. The Quincy Zoning Ordinance, Chapter 24 as amended defines a non-conforming building or lot as: "A building or lot that does not conform to a dimensional regulation prescribed by this ordinance for the district in which it is located or to regulations for off-street parking or loading or accessory buildings; provided that such building or lot was in existence and lawful at the time the regulation became effective."

The City of Quincy adopted zoning regulations in 1943. Subsequent to 1943, revisions have been made to the ordinance. Today's regulations require a conforming, single family dwelling in a Residence A district to contain a minimum lot size of 7,650 sq. ft., 85 ft. of frontage, and any dwelling constructed to maintain a front setback of 25', side setbacks of 13' and a rear setback of 20'. The dwelling can have a maximum height of 2 and a half stories. All new homes must maintain these provisions.

To be considered non-conforming to the current zoning ordinance, the particular lot in question must have met the laws in effect when it was created. A non-conforming structure would be a structure, such as a house, that complied with the dimensional requirements when constructed, but does not meet current setback restrictions.

Massachusetts General Law Chapter 40A and Quincy Zoning Ordinance allow these non-conforming lots and structures to be maintained. Both laws also allow a non-conforming one or two family structure damaged or destroyed to be rebuilt on its footprint.

The difficult part of owning a non-conforming structure is when one wants to add on to it. To help the owner of a one or two family nonconforming structure, the City of Quincy has amended its zoning ordinance to simplify the construction process. Vertical additions complying with the height restrictions are allowed and certain horizontal additions are allowed without Zoning Board of Appeal approval.

Still, some property owners who wish to expand horizontally are required to seek a finding from the Zoning Board of Appeal that the proposed addition is no more detrimental to the area than existing site conditions.

The clearing house for a Zoning Board of Appeal case is the Building Department. The necessary paperwork and assistance in completing the applications is available. Any homeowner can make their own presentation to the Zoning Board of Appeal. In a future article, I will explain the Zoning Board of Appeal process.

Covenant Congregational

Rev. LaAnn Johnson, pastor of Covenant Congregational Church, Whitwell and Granite Sts., will install the newly elected officers of the church at the 10:45 a.m. worship service Sunday.

Richard Smith, minister of music, will direct and accompany the choir in an introit and two anthems. He will also play an organ prelude, offertory and postlude.

Sunday School, with classes for all ages, nursery through adult, will begin at 9:30 a.m. During worship service, an attended nursery is available for children age four and under. The attendant will be Don Johnson.

Immediately following the service, coffee will be served in the fellowship hall downstairs. Volunteers are needed to serve for March.

The officers to be installed are: President, Linda Day; vice president, Robert Dano; clerk, Elinor MacDonald; treasurer, Don Johnson and financial secretary, Winnie Erikson.

For more information about any of the church's activities, call the church office at 479-5728.

School Committee To Vote On CPR Staff Training

By LISA CONNELL
Quincy public school nurses may get some first aid Wednesday night: Two CPR trained staff members per school to back up the school nurse's efforts in case of emergency.

The School Committee was scheduled to vote Wednesday on a motion to offer free training in Red Cross CPR, First Aid and the Heimlich maneuver to any school faculty or staff member who wishes to learn. This plan of "two plus the school nurse" was outlined by Quincy Health Services Coordinator Registered Nurse Rosalie Barry at Monday night's Citywide Parents' Council meeting.

Quincy Hospital Ambulance Services staff will teach and coordinate the classes at the hospital.

Training will also be offered to all school bus drivers, bus matrons, lunchroom and food services staff.

The city has 10 full-time nurses that serve medical needs at 18 public schools throughout the city. Many nurses travel back and forth between schools to offer at least partial medical coverage for students, said Barry.

"One of the problems is that we don't have enough nurses. I feel I got a Christmas present when they [school officials] said I was getting another nurse."

"The ideal situation is one full time nurse in every school," said Barry.

Barry said Quincy schools began a study to determine how many athletic coaches were trained in CPR last fall when spurred by an incident late last summer in Plymouth in which a football player fell ill during practice and was given CPR by a coach and fellow teammate.

When organized by Quincy Athletic Director William Walker following the study, 24 coaches took CPR classes.

Last November, Barry

put together a list of CPR trained staff members, school by school. While she found most schools had at least two people besides the nurse trained in CPR, she discovered several schools did not.

A list that Barry handed out Monday evening to council members revealed that the Bernazzani, Parker, Broad Meadows and Wollaston Schools and the Center for Technical Education in Quincy Center did not have two additional emergency trained staff.

Barry said that many staff had been certified at one time but for reasons including time and money had let their certification lapse.

All physical education staff are currently certified and so are five elementary health educators. All school nurses are recertified annually, said Barry.

Barry does not anticipate a lack of volunteers signing up for the CPR classes, but several council members disagreed. Fear of communicable disease transmission and litigation should anything go wrong with a student's health may make some school staff members shy away from emergency training, council members said.

Citywide members hope that the School Committee will not only pass this motion but that it will become a city mandate. The Massachusetts Department of Public Health Division of Maternal and Child Health, School Unit and The National Association of School Nurses recommend there be at least two people in each school building currently trained in CPR other than the school nurse.

Financial details and specific training schedules were not discussed by Barry.

Dennis Tardo To Announce Candidacy For Secretary Of State Feb. 24

Dennis Tardo, 43, of Sea St., Merrymount, will formally announce his candidacy for the Republican Secretary of State nomination Thursday, Feb. 24.

Tardo, a Republican Registrar of Voters for Quincy will seek the Republican nomination for the four year term. The Office of the Secretary of State oversees elections, lobbyists, campaign finance, securities, corporations and record births, marriages and deaths.

Tardo said his priorities as Secretary of State would be "to change the election laws to reflect the will of the voters, to encourage more participation in the political process, to advocate tougher ethics laws, campaign finance laws and to promote a constitutional amendment to implement term limits."

Tardo said he would also "implement the motor voter registration."

A maintenance foreman for the Bureau of State Office Buildings, Tardo has worked for the Commonwealth since 1970. Tardo has been a Republican activist for many years and ran unsuccessfully for state representative in 1988. In 1990 Tardo ran a sticker campaign at the request of the Republican State Committee and lost the Republican primary by 31 votes.

Kennedy Praises Clinton For Proposing Adams Site Funding Increase

Sen. Edward M. Kennedy has praised President Clinton for proposing a significant increase in funding for the Adams National Historic Site in Quincy.

While all national parks would receive an approximately 2 percent increase in their operation budgets under the Clinton budget, the Adams site would receive a 9.5 percent increase.

"I am pleased that the President has recommended this needed increase in funding for the Adams National Historic Site," said Kennedy, a longtime supporter of the site who had urged the Administration to increase its budget support for Quincy. "The steady annual growth in visitors is a solid indicator of the site's success, and the funding increase is well-deserved. With more funds, the park can draw more visitors to Quincy and provide more business for local merchants and restaurants.

"I intend to work closely with others in the congressional delegation to see that Congress supports this investment in Quincy's economic development and heritage."

The increase would bring the total proposed operating budget for the Adams site to $1.3 million for the fiscal year that begins in October 1994.

The funds must be approved by both the House of Representatives and the Senate later this year.

Democratic State Committee Members To Be Elected April 9

State Rep. Michael Bellotti, Democratic State Committeeman and coordinator of the Norfolk Senate District announces that two two-year Democratic State Committee members will be elected April 9.

One man and one woman will be elected. All interested Democrats residing within the Senate District may file a letter of intent with the Massachusetts Democratic Party Offices, 45 Bromfield St., Boston, MA 02106 no later than Friday, Feb. 11 at 5 p.m. Candidates must be registered Democrats as of Dec. 31, 1993.

The Democratic State Committee is the governing body of the Democratic Party in Massachusetts and is responsible for setting policy and guiding the party between State Conventions. Those elected April 9 will join more than 150 other State Committee members and more than 14,000 local Democratic Committee members in planning and carrying out election services for Democrats in the 1994 election.

Snow Costs May Exceed $1 Million

Sheets' expenditure estimates for this winter may be a little high, they could very well be reached by winter's end.

Foy said the additional $700,000 the city will need to take from free cash at this point can be broken down into estimates of about $350,000 for truck and plow hires, $200,000 for overtime salaries of city employees who put in additional hours during snowstorms, $100,000 for the salting and sanding of roadways and $50,000 for repairs to city trucks and additional incidental expenses.

"And the original $700,000 (FY94 snow budget) would be proportioned about the same," said Foy.

Foy said the money the city has spent on snow and ice removal this winter is the most since 1978, although he did not have a dollar figure for the year of what has come to be referred to as "The Great Blizzard." Last year, Quincy's winter expenditures totalled about $415,000, he added.

Colton said the city has received approximately 84 inches of snow from 13 storms this winter, easily the most in recent memory. Last week alone, 32 inches of snow fell in Quincy during three separate storms, he noted.

Colton also said that while last year's total of 76 inches was the worst in 10 years prior to this winter, Colton said that was much easier to deal with because much of last winter's snow came in the month of March.

"A snowstorm in March is much easier to deal with because of the higher temperatures that cause the snow to melt faster," he said.

Local meteorologist Rob Gilman said the modern record for snowfall in Quincy was set during the winter of 1947-48 when approximately 115 inches of snow fell in the city. In 1977-78, the winter of "The Great Blizzard," the city received between 95 and 100 inches of snow, he said.

Colton said as The Sun went to press that city crews planned major snow removal operations in several parts of the city for late Tuesday evening into early Wednesday morning and late Wednesday evening and early Thursday.

"We have to do it then because there's less traffic," he said.

Colton added that while he does not like to see people's cars towed during snow emergencies, it sometimes is necessary so that streets can be cleared as quickly and efficiently as possible. He added, however, that the city does not receive any money from the owners of towed vehicles unless the vehicles are ticketed before they are towed, something that is generally not done in Quincy.

"The tow company rates are mandated by the state, so the city doesn't see any of that money," said Colton. "And we could charge $15 a car by ticketing after snowstorms, but we usually don't ticket because we don't want to add any fuel to the fire. We figure the $75 the tow companies charge for each towed vehicle is enough."

Quincy Center Concourse Topic For Quincy Citizens Assn. Feb. 23

The proposed Quincy Center Concourse will be the topic of discussion at the next Quincy Citizens Association meeting, Wednesday, Feb. 23 at 8 p.m. at the Atlantic Neighborhood Center, Hunt St.

Chuck D'Apris, director of Quincy 2000, will discuss the plan, its scope including routes, landlaking, new railroad station and pertinent parking, and its potential effect on the improvement of retail businesses and real estate values in the downtown. As proposed, the concourse would link the Burgin Parkway with Hancock St. and Revere Rd. and perhaps extend to McGrath Highway and Southern Artery.

QCA members and guests will have an opportunity to express their thoughts on the merits of the concourse project, or the disadvantages to the city and its residents.

Prostate Cancer Support Group At Quincy Hospital

The Quincy Hospital Prostate Cancer Support Group was scheduled to meet Wednesday at 7 p.m. at the hospital.

Subject of discussion was incontinence impotence followed by questions and answers.

The support group is for prostate cancer survivors and for those diagnosed with prostate cancer. It was formed to show care, concern, acceptance and understanding while acknowledging the special needs of patients with prostate cancer.

Meetings are held monthly to provide information by specialists in the various fields related to prostate cancer, such as surgery, radiation, medicine, nutrition and psychology. Most meeting ends in an informal discussion session.

Robert J. Howard, 51

Former Professor, Chairman Of Eastern Nazarene Music Department

A funeral service for Robert J. Howard, 51, of Wollaston, former music department chairman at Eastern Nazarene College, was held Tuesday in the Wollaston Church of the Nazarene.

Mr. Howard died Feb. 10 at Brigham and Women's Hospital, Brighton, after a long illness. He was stricken three years ago with a neuromuscular disease that affected his voice, made breathing difficult and left him confined to a wheelchair.

He resigned as music department chairman in 1991 but continued teaching. Professor Howard gave voice lessons and taught classes in conducting, music history and instrumental methods. He taught at Eastern Nazarene 18 years.

He was a former minister of music at Fort Square Presbyterian Church and was minister of music at the Wollaston Church of the Nazarene.

After he lost control of the muscles in his arms, he directed musicians by moving his head and using facial expressions. He directed Handel's "Messiah" and taught an instrumental conducting class by moving his head.

He was praised by hundreds of people at a tribute held in September in the college's Fall Chapel.

Friends, colleagues and associates described Mr. Howard as a dedicated and loving teacher who was versatile in many areas of music. He was also considered an inspiration during the last six months.

Mr. Howard previously taught music at Asbury college in Kentucky and was chairman of music at Trevacca Nazarene College in Nashville, Tenn.

He received a bachelor's degree at Eastern Nazarene in 1966 and a master's degree at Kent State University in 1968. He later studied at the University of Kentucky and Boston University in pursuit of a doctorate.

He is survived by his wife, Lois M. (Roberts-Rines) Howard; two sons, Robert B. Howard and Stephen J. Howard, both of Quincy; two stepsons, Thomas E. Rines and Randall L. Rines, both of Quincy; a stepdaughter, Lara M. Rines of Quincy; his father, C. Albert Howard of Ohio; and a brother, Charles A. Howard of Ohio. A THOUGHT FOR THE WEEK

George Washington was a great and gracious man: a dedicated patriot.

It has been said that Washington's greatness was a composite of simple virtues: honesty, courage, physical and spiritual and tremendous force of character. Add to this great dignity and a sense of moderation and there is the moral picture of a great man. His moderation was often criticized, yet it was a golden virtue.

His life melts into the background of the times in which he lived. In fact, he was such an integral part of this background that at times his personality completely vanishes in the vast panorama of events...

Yet, his example has been an inspiration to the people of many nations and circumstances; for this was truly one of the great men of all time...

Chances 'Not Good' For Federal Money

Sheets: City 'Has Shot' At More State Funding For Water, Sewer Rates

Mayor James Sheets said Tuesday he is hopeful the city will receive additional state aid for Massachusetts Water Resources Authority water and sewer rates, but he is not counting on any more federal aid.

Sheets said the MWRA's proposed rate increase of 5.4 percent, unveiled last week, is certainly better than the average increase of 42 percent over the last five years and "a step in the right direction," but should eventually be lowered to no more than 3 percent per year.

Eventually, the figure should ideally be brought down to a 1 or 2 percent annual increase, the mayor said. Sheets said that would be more in line with the cost of living.

This year's lower rate increase was made possible by the city's work in securing funding, Sheets said. He added that state and federal funding are the only weapons the city has at its disposal to combat the skyrocketing rates.

Sheets said the city is expecting to receive $40 million in state funding and $100 million in federal money to help with the rates. Those figures should ideally be increased to $60 million and $200 million respectively, he said.

The mayor said he does not expect any additional federal funding.

"They're (the chances for more federal funding) not good," said Sheets. "It's an uphill battle, and it's always been an uphill battle."

Sheets said he thinks the chances of securing the additional $20 million in state money are a bit better, saying that the state legislature will push as hard as possible toward that goal.

"I think we have a shot at it," he said.

Suspect Held In Bank Robberies

A suspect in two separate Quincy bank robberies is being held by Boston police on similar charges, Quincy Police Lieutenant William Curran said Tuesday.

George S. Burns, Jr. 29, was arrested by Boston police for allegedly robbing a Jamaica Plain Baybank on Feb. 7.

Burns' is accused of robbing the Hibernia Savings Bank, Wollaston, Feb. 3 and the Quincy Savings Bank, North Quincy, Feb. 10.

Curran said following his arrest, Burns' admitted to his role in both Boston and Quincy bank robberies.

Curran said that once Burns' is released on bail or from the Boston police department, Quincy police warrants will take effect and he will be taken into Quincy police custody.

Burns' case may be presented before a grand jury in Superior Court, where an indictment will be sought.

No one was injured in any of the robberies. Total amount of money stolen was unavailable.

FR. BILL'S PLACE Director Joseph Finn looks on in admiration as Andrew McCormack fills out a donation card at the homeless shelter. In three years, Andrew has collected more than 30,000 bottles and cans, resulting in over $1500 for the shelter.

Andrew McCormack Raises Over $1,500

10-Year Old Collects Over 30,000 Bottles, Cans To Aid Homeless

By WAYNE
FITZPATRICK

Ten-year-old Andrew McCormack is on a determined crusade to end the problem of homelessness—five cents at a time.

A fourth grader at the Atherton Hough School, he has spent more than three years donating money he gets from returning cans and bottles to Father Bill's Place, 38 Broad St., Quincy.

Since he began his efforts, he has collected over $1,500 according to Janice Whalen, financial administrator for the shelter.

That's more than 30,000 cans and bottles.

As a result of his drive to help the homeless, Andrew was recently nominated for Quincy Sun "Citizen of the Year." He said he takes pride both in the results of his efforts as well as his nomination.

"I felt very proud because people say one person can't make a difference, but I did make a difference," Andrew, of 976 Sea St., Quincy, said of his nomination.

Although he is not one of the shelter's biggest financial contributors, Joe Finn, director of the shelter, said Andrew is one of the most "significant" contributors to the shelter.

"For someone that age to contribute not only so much money, but also his time and effort, is truly amazing," he said.

Finn said Andrew's determination is truly inspiring.

"Andrew is a good sign of the generosity of

Sign $625,000 Purchase Agreement Crane Library To Buy Land For Addition

By MICHAEL WHALEN

The Thomas Crane Public Library has entered into a purchase and sale agreement with a Quincy Center businessman for the purpose of building an addition to its main building at 40 Washington St.

The announcement of the deal was made by Mayor James Sheets and Library Director Ann McLaughlin.

Under the terms of the agreement, the library will pay $625,000 for the property at 66-88 Washington St. owned by Quincy Point resident Severino Tocchio who is reportedly selling because of health reasons. The site includes the Modern Metal Craft store owned by Tocchio as well as Electrolux Vacuum, H & L Cleaners, Signature Signs, Wah Lum Praying Mantis Kung Fu Academy and two vacant businesses.

The Tocchio building measures just over 32,000 square feet, and the total land area of the property is about 45,896 square feet. According to McLaughlin, the outside perimeter of the current library building totals about 50,000 square feet and its total land area around 100,000 square feet.

McLaughlin said the rent the library receives from the remaining tenants at the Tocchio property should be enough to cover the cost of the monthly mortgage the library must pay Quincy Savings Bank as the new owner of the site. The Crane building also has a trust fund of about $200,000 to fall back on as collateral, she added.

The trust fund was begun in 1880 by the wealthy family of former Quincy Point resident Thomas Crane for whom the library is named, McLaughlin noted.

McLaughlin said she is "extremely happy" with the deal, since the library has been pursuing the property since it first went on the market early last summer. The purchase and sale agreement became a reality about three weeks ago, she said.

Sheets said he, too, is pleased with the agreement, adding that the city stands firmly behind the purchase of the property.

"The question that is fair to ask is 'why now?,' and there are two reasons," said Sheets. "First, during these economic times, the value of commercial properties has

School Committee To Vote March 3 Della Chiesa Likely Childhood Center Name

By MICHAEL WHALEN

Results of a Quincy Sun survey indicate that the new Early Childhood Center in South Quincy will likely be named after Amelio Della Chiesa.

Four of six School Committee members polled this week said they will either vote, or are leaning toward voting, to name the center after the former Quincy mayor.

School Committee member Sean Barry said he will definitely vote for the Della Chiesa name. Committee Vice Chairman Daniel Raymondi and members Stephen Durkin and Ronald Mariano also indicated that they are leaning in that direction. Committee members JoAnn Bragg and Linda Sice indicated they will likely vote for naming the center after Abigail Adams, second First Lady of the United States and wife of President John Adams.

AMELIO DELLA CHIESA

Mayor James Sheets, who serves as chairman of the School Committee, is out of town this week and could not be reached for comment. Sheets has said in the past, however, that he thinks both names are worthy of the honor.

Four of seven School Committee votes are necessary to make either name official. The committee will vote on the matter at its meeting Thursday, March 3 beginning at 7:30 p.m. in the City Council Chamber at Quincy City Hall, 1305 Hancock St., Quincy Center.

Originally, the committee had decided to vote on the school name at its regularly-scheduled meeting of Wednesday, March 2, coincidentally the same day pupils will begin to attend the new center. The meeting, however, has been moved one day so that Sheets, who is vacationing in Florida, will be able to attend.

About 70 people, including proponents of both proposed names, attended a public hearing on the issue last week. Adams backers said it is important to honor a woman who made

Quincy Center Attack May Have Been Racially Motivated, Police Say

Quincy Police are still investigating what they say may have been a racially motivated attack in front of the Quincy Center MBTA station early Monday morning.

Police said a 22-year-old South Boston man was stabbed, beaten, knocked to the ground and robbed by four black men at the site.

The victim, whose name was not released, was treated at Quincy Hospital for a stab wound in the cheek and numerous cuts and scrapes, police said. According to police, the man got off an MBTA train around 1 a.m. and was walking across McIntyre Mall toward Hancock Street when the four men approached. Police said the man told them one of the four made a racial slur and threatened that the group would kill him.

Police said after the victim was stabbed, beaten and knocked to the ground, the four men took an undetermined amount of cash and fled.

A doctor at Quincy Hospital who treated the victim said the wounds inflicted may have been caused by his being beaten with a chain and a club, according to police.

The victim told police that one of the assailants wore red pants and had a design cut in the hair on the back of his head. At press time, police said no arrests had been made.

Beechwood To Begin New Art Club March 1

Beechwood Community Life Center, 225 Fenno St., Wollaston is beginning a new Art Club for children in Grades 2-5.

The first class of the six-week course will begin March 1. Children will make jewelry, plaques, pendants, masks, tie-dye T-shirts, decorated caps and more. Instructor will be Gayle Kiley Olson.

For more information, call the center at 471-5712.

dropped and second, a nearby parcel has gone up for sale. It's a wonderful opportunity for the library."

The deal cannot be finalized until a 21-E assessment (environmental assessment report) is completed, but McLaughlin said that is a routine procedure and she does not foresee any problems with the results.

The library will put out a request for proposals to architects interested in building the library addition within the next couple of months, McLaughlin said. The total cost of the work is "projected" to be between $6 and $8 million, she added.

Funding for the project will be derived from three sources: grant monies, private donations and a bond issue that Sheets will send to the City Council. McLaughlin stressed, however, that only a very small portion of the total funding will be raised through private donations.

The timetable for the project will hinge on the grant monies, she added. Currently, a Library Construction Bill is before the state Legislature for consideration, McLaughlin noted, and if it is passed, the Crane library could receive 30 to 40 percent of the total cost of the new addition from the state. The money would be administered through the Massachusetts Board of Library Commissioners, she added.

Taking into consideration the possibilities for available funding, construction should be completed in two to five years, McLaughlin said.

The library, which was built by architect Henry Hobson Richardson, first opened in 1882. In 1908, Richardson's firm added a rear wing to the building. The last time major architectural work at the site was 1940, when architects Paul and Carroll Coletti built the addition that today includes the building's front door.

The building has been declared a historic landmark by the National Park Service, which McLaughlin said could help the library's success in securing state funding for the addition.

The plan to make the library completely handicapped accessible is also moving along, she noted. The first phase of that plan, which includes the renovation of the library's front door and walkway and construction of a new ramp leading to the front door, should be completed by the end of this summer.

McLaughlin said the work will be done by Stahl Associates Architects of Boston at a pricetag of $150,000. Funding will come from Community Development Block Grant (CDBG) money the city is entitled to, as well as part of a bond issue that Sheets will send to the City Council in order to meet the requirements of the American Disabilities Act (ADA), she added.

The ADA, which is enforced by the U.S. Justice Department, mandates that all buildings, city-owned and otherwise, must be completely accessible to people of all disabilities by Jan. 26, 1995.

Sheets said that in addition to compliance with the ADA, the city also plans to make a number of Quincy facilities, including city school buildings, the library and its branches "technologically accessible." Under the plan, the city would enter an agreement with a major corporation to purchase hardware, software and other advanced technological equipment to make access to information easier for students and other residents.

Board Closes Down Kelly's For 30 Days

By LISA CONNELL
Kelly's In The Square was ordered closed down for 30 days Tuesday by a unanimous vote of the City License Board for a number of alleged violations.

The board also voted to revoke Kelly's entertainment license, remove all video games, and set a permanent closing time at midnight.

The suspension takes effect March 1, to allow owner Peter Kelly and his attorney Robert Fleming time to appeal the Board's decision.

On four counts of serving alcohol to persons under 21 years of age, Kelly's received a 20 day suspension. Five days were added for allowing various disturbances and disorders, three days for serving obviously intoxicated persons and two days were added for permitting overcrowding for a total of 30 days.

"Mr. Kelly will decide whether to appeal," said Fleming.

"I don't think the punishments warrant the charges brought because they weren't proved," Fleming said.

The only incident that Fleming says is substantiated is one on the night of Nov. 19, when a minor was arrested and placed in protective custody by Quincy police.

"All other charges are pure speculation; they were never identified," Fleming said.

Regarding the appeal process before the state alcohol and beverage control commission (AABC), Fleming said Kelly is analyzing the board's decision.

"These are very serious appealable issues. He must afford himself of that opportunity, but it's his decision to make," Fleming said.

City Clerk and Chairman of the Licensing Board Joseph Shea will be filing a record of Tuesday's hearing with the AABC. The AABC can uphold, modify or increase the censures set by the city Licensing Board.

While not questioning the integrity of Quincy Police Sergeant Charles Middendorf or Officer Richard Praetsch, Fleming questioned the police reports made at the previous hearing because they were not documented with names, ages and addresses.

Prior to the hearing Fire Chief Thomas Gorman requested that Assistant City Solicitor James Timmons sit in on the hearing.

At the beginning of the hearing, Fleming, speaking for Kelly, stated that Kelly wanted Building Inspector and Licensing Board Vice Chairman Matthias Mulvey to disqualify himself from making any vote concerning Kelly's In The Square.

Mulvey declined to disqualify himself from voting at the hearing.

Fleming said Kelly questioned the timing of a building inspection by two of Mulvey's staff, while a hearing is underway.

Following an inspection last Thursday by Structural Engineer Mahesh Chandra and Building Inspector Roger Wallin, the restaurant had its permitted occupancy reduced from 202 to 159 persons.

Fleming said Kelly felt he was being unfairly treated and that an arbitrary decision was made to reduce occupancy total.

Mulvey said later that based on police reports of overcrowding at the earlier hearing, a on-site inspection was only a matter of routine follow-up procedure by his office.

Though Fleming brought up the issue of affordability of Kelly by board members during the hearing, Fleming denied later that there were any personality problems prejudicing the board's decision. Shea and Mulvey later said that this was the first time that issue had been raised and it was a surprise to both of them.

Fleming examined each of the police charges, reported on four separate dates, Oct. 21 and 23, Nov.

City Plans Investigation Of Firearms Licenses

The city is planning to conduct an investigation into whether it can revoke federal firearms licenses issued to gun dealers who operate out of residential neighborhoods.

Mayor James Sheets recently ordered the investigation after learning from Building Inspector Matthias Mulvey that 26 of the 27 federally-licensed firearms distributors in Quincy are located in home areas without storefronts.

The city could become the first community in Massachusetts to take such action against federally-licensed gun dealers, although the Town of Norwell is also considering a similar ban on gun sales.

Sheets said he has asked City Solicitor Stephen McGrath to look into the legality of revoking gun dealer permits issued by the U.S. Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms (ATF). Mulvey noted that the gun dealers could be violating Quincy's zoning ordinances by operating out of their homes without a business permit.

ATF officials said that since August, the agency has worked with police in Denver, New York City and other cities to reduce the number of licenses, but claimed that they have received few responses from Massachusetts.

To qualify for a federal firearms license, a person must be 21 or older, must never have been convicted of a felony, never have been judged mentally incompetent or received a dishonorable discharge from the military. Federal license holders are able to order guns from manufacturers by mail at wholesale prices.

An applicant for a license must establish that he or she is engaged in the business of selling guns or ammunition, but many license holders do not actually sell guns or own gun stores. Some use the license merely to collect or repair guns or to buy and sell guns at gun shows.

Currently, the license for most firearms costs $30 for three years, but under the new Brady Bill the price will go to $2000 for the original license and $90 for a three-year removal.

ATF officials said the number of federal firearm licenses in Quincy is not unusual considering there are a total of 4,094 in Massachusetts. Mulvey, however, said he is concerned that all but one of the license holders in the city has a residential address. He added that even storing guns and ammunition in residential areas poses a safety hazard.

Jack's Guns and Ammo Shop, located on Franklin Street, is currently the only federally-licensed distributor in Quincy that has a window sign and advertises openly.

Cheney Readies Snow Emergency

At press time Tuesday, the city was planning to declare a snow emergency as six to eight inches of snow were being predicted for yesterday (Wednesday) by weather forecasters.

City Council President Michael Cheney, in his capacity as acting mayor, said he would likely have the snow emergency declared yesterday at 3 p.m. in order to get a jump-start on rush hour traffic.

Cheney asked all residents to cooperate by removing all vehicles from their streets if possible in order to increase the efficiency of snow removal efforts. He said that Quincy DPW efforts to remove snow have been impeded this winter by parked cars.

He also noted that city properties, and apartment buildings in particular, would be monitored to help ensure cooperation during the emergency.

Cheney added such cooperation not only makes snow plowing efforts run "smoother" but also saves money for taxpayers by cutting down on the number of times a street has to be plowed.

Residents will receive further updates on the snow emergency on WJDA and other local radio stations, he said.

Mayor Della Chiesa Had A Profound Impact On City

By THOMAS FABRIZIO

The City of Quincy has honored nearly all of its historical figures in one way or another.

Through the naming of streets, parks, quarries, schools and other municipal buildings, the city has done a commendable job preserving our rich heritage. As our city grows, so should the list of individuals honored through the naming process. When the Quincy School Committee meets next week to select a name for the new Early Childhood Center in South Quincy, they should choose the name of Mayor Amelio Della Chiesa.

Recently, the Ward 4 Neighborhood Association met to consider the name for the new school. In choosing to honor Mayor Della Chiesa, the association recognized a number of factors. Mayor Della Chiesa was born and raised in a neighborhood served by the new center. As a youth, he attended the former Lincoln School which was razed to make way for the new center. Most importantly, as a parent, city councillor, mayor and state legislator, Mayor Della Chiesa had a profound impact on the history of the neighborhood and the region.

As the son of Italian immigrants, Mayor Della Chiesa was a plumber by trade. Hoping to make a positive impact on the community, he ran for the City Council and was elected in 1943. From here, his career began a meteoric rise with 14 years on the City Council, 13 years in the state Legislature and a record 12 years as mayor. During these important formative years, Mayor Della Chiesa laid the foundation that has allowed Quincy to prosper toward the new century.

Despite his popularity with the voters, Mayor Della Chiesa never forgot his humble beginnings. He always maintained a healthy respect for the working men and women of the city. When his son, Walter Della Chiesa, gave the Supreme Sacrifice during the Korean War, Mayor Della Chiesa became part of a generation of grieving parents. Throughout the good times and the bad times, Mayor Della Chiesa remained an unpretentious man.

Three distinguished mayors who served after Mayor Della Chiesa have been honored through the naming of municipal buildings or portions thereof. When the School Committee votes to name the new Early Childhood Center, members should select the name of Mayor Amelio Della Chiesa, a modest but irreplaceable figure in Quincy's contemporary history.

(Thomas Fabrizio is City Councillor of Ward 4 where the Early Childhood Center is located).

Correction

Because of a typographical error, a letter from Sal Giaratani of 184 Atlantic St. in last week's issue of The Quincy Sun incorrectly stated that Mr. Giaratani is in "complete disagreement" with State Rep. Stephen Tobin's position on drunk driving measures.

In fact, the letter should have stated that Mr. Giaratani is in complete agreement with Rep. Tobin's position.

It Was Also A Hot Winter

I may have been a cold, cold winter for most of us, but for Bob Curry, it's been a hot, hot one.

Curry, who has three hardware stores—two in Quincy and one in Braintree—says he can't remember a winter like this one for snow or business.

After one quick storm on top of another, the stores sold over 3,800 snow shovels in just 11 days.

"Right now, we're up to 5,500 snow shovels sold so far this winter," says Curry.

Incidentally, most of those shovels are plastic and more popular.

"They are less expensive ($6.99 to $12.99), lighter, and the snow doesn't cling to them," says Curry.

At the start of the winter he had 24 snowblowers in stock and they were gone after the first storm.

"We got as many more in as we could," he says. "But after running out of 105 of them, we couldn't find anymore."

In a normal winter he said he might sell 25 or 30.

And, as for rock salt and ice melting pellets, he has gone through five trailer truck loads totalling 200,000 pounds.

"It's been a hectic winter and a challenge," says Curry. "But when you're busy, it's also a lot of fun."

How does this winter—which hasn't gone away yet—stack up against the Blizzard of '78?

"This winter has been five to ten times busier for us than '78," says Curry.

"I was trapped in my store for five days during the Blizzard of '78 and couldn't get out. And no one could get in. The whole area was paralyzed."

"At least this winter, despite all the snow, people have been able to get out of their homes, go to work and go shopping. There have been complaints about snowplowing, but I really think for all the snow that has fallen, the snowplowing overall has been pretty darn good."

THERE'S A FOURTH name being mentioned for appointment to the Quincy Housing Authority board of commissioners: Susan Gallagher, chairman of the Republican City Committee.

State Police Barracks Urged For West Quincy

Brig. Gen. Otis M. Whitney, the state's commissioner of public safety, was reported to be "very much interested" in building a new state police barracks in West Quincy to serve the new superhighways, Routes 128 and 3.

Capt. Arthur T. O'Leary, adjutant, toured the site near the Granite Railway with Mayor Amelio Della Chiesa and a group of business and civic leaders and indicated that, should the plan be approved, construction would start within the year.

"This appears to be a good location and would offer the state police a happy medium between the Foxboro and Norwell barracks in patrolling the new state highways," he said.

Capt. O'Leary said the new barracks would be a substation of Troop D which is headquartered in Middleboro and would consist of 15 men, including a sergeant and two corporals.

Remember Abigail

By MARIANNE PEAK

Considering the role and function prescribed for the Early Childhood Center located in Quincy, naming it for Abigail Adams would be appropriate as she was a significant role model for "Public Service through Domestic Affairs," and the Early Childhood Center will serve the community in similar ways Abigail served family, children, education, and community.

Traditionally, we have defined public service as a service performed for public benefit, outside of the home. Abigail Adams was a public servant on the domestic front. As wife, mother, teacher, patriot and First Lady she contributed more to the public good. She believed her responsibilities were of greater importance in the long term, influencing children through educational opportunity and nurturing.

"Chastity, modesty, decency, and conjugal faith are the pillars of society." Without these, "The whole fabric falls sooner or later." In the 18th century, a woman's primary concerns were domestic and Abigail was no exception.

But, through her marriage to John Adams and the events of the Revolutionary War this traditional outlook that one brought to marriage would change—Abigail would embrace these challenges and rise to the cause.

In John's first letter to his wife, on his way to Philadelphia, he outlined the primary areas of responsibility in their partnership. Essentially, these were the supervision of their farm and the education of their children. He assured her of her qualifications for assuming the role of "School Mistress." And, she took her domestic responsibilities seriously. But, this did not mean that women should be sheltered intellectually.

She wrote to John in 1776, "If we mean to have Heroes, Statesmen and Philosophers, we should have learned women." As First Lady, she sent to her sister her thoughts on females, "I shall never consent to see our sex considered an inferior point of life." What greater gift can we give to society than the next generation...and, to serve community with a sensitivity to achievement for all, through education and nurturing.

Abigail, through education informally, strove to educate the sixth President of the United States. Though married, she assumed the role of a single parent while John Adams served his country in domestic and foreign affairs. The Early Childhood Center will serve children who will through influence of this center aspire to be contributing citizens and eventually direct our country's future.

In a letter to her cousin Isaac Smith Jr., Feb. 7, 1762, Abigail Adams advised, "Youth is the best season wherein to acquire knowledge; 'tis a season when we are freest from care, the mind is then unencumbered and more capable of receiving impressions than in an advanced age—in youth the mind is like a tender twig, which you may bend as you please, but in age like a sturdy oak and hard to move." Abigail believed knowledge was essential to happiness; the ability to expand one's knowledge through life depended on laying a strong intellectual foundation in youth.

When John Adams left for the Continental Congress, in 1774, Abigail Adams was given the task of educating their children to her and John's standards. Abigail felt very strongly about the need for education for all her children, not just her sons. Abigail proved to be an excellent teacher; though a very strict one, she was able to bestow her own love of learning on the children.

Abigail Adams in a letter written to John Adams, Oct. 25, 1775, stated "The instructions of my own Grandmother are as fresh upon my mind as any I ever received from my own parents and made as lasting and powerful impressions in early youth. Many years of vice and vicious examples do not erase from the mind seeds sown in early life. They take a deep root, and the often crop'd will spring again."

Again Abigail expresses the importance of early education in properly shaping a child's future. Abigail's views on education did not soften as she grew older. The importance of discipline and learning was a constant theme in her letters to her sisters, her grown children and grandchildren. Abigail believed strongly in the need for the education of women, because one of the most important roles that a woman had was to be the educator of her children.

Abigail Adams excelled in all the different roles she filled throughout her life: friend, wife, mother, teacher, farmer, patriot, correspondent, diplomat, vice president's wife, First Lady, and president's mother. She was a truly outstanding woman, and she still serves as an exemplary role model for young people today.

In the year of Abigail Adams' 250th Birthday (Nov. 11, 1744), what greater recognition than to name the Early Childhood Center for Quincy's own First Lady, who stood for educational opportunity for betterment of life and country? Abigail Adams was not the typical woman of the Revolutionary War period. Her education was different, she was given a freedom to learn that was most unusual for girls at that time. She was also exposed to ideas that were usually reserved for the education of boys and men. She had some very definite ideas about education. It is because Abigail is such an exemplary role model, that Quincy can now consider the Early Childhood Center to be named for her and all she stood for.

Abigail Adams reminded her husband John to "Remember the Ladies" and Quincy, at this time, can "Remember Abigail!"

(Marianne Peak is the superintendent of the Adams National Historic Site. Located in Quincy, the site is a unit of the National Park Service and was established in 1946 to commemorate the lives and accomplishments of the distinguished Adams family including U.S. Presidents John Adams and John Quincy Adams).

Dottie's Apple Cheese Cake

Here is a great recipe for a different kind of cheese cake made with apples from a friend, Dottie. She said every time she is asked to bring something when invited out, she always prepares this recipe.

Dottie's Apple Cheese Cake Crust
1 cup graham cracker crumbs
1/2 cup pecans (chopped)
3 tablespoons sugar
1/2 teaspoon cinnamon
1/4 cup (1/2 stick) margarine (melted)
Mix crumbs, pecans, sugar, cinnamon and melted margarine. Press into bottom of a 9-inch pan and bake for 10 minutes in a 350-degree oven.

Filling
2 8-ounce packages cream cheese

(softened)
1/2 teaspoon vanilla
2 eggs
4 cups thinly peeled apple slices
1/3 cup sugar
1/2 teaspoon cinnamon
1/4 cup chopped pecans

Beat cream cheese and sugar at medium speed with electric mixer until well blended. Add eggs one at a time mixing well after each addition. Blend in vanilla and then pour onto crust.

Mix the apples with the sugar and cinnamon and spoon over the cream cheese layer. Sprinkle with the pecans. Bake for one hour and 10 minutes in a 350-degree preheated oven. Refrigerate before serving.

Legislators To Fight For MWRA Rate Relief

State legislators are vowing to push for additional funding to help offset the Massachusetts Water Resources Authority's proposed increase in water and sewer rates.

Rep. Ronald Mariano said the House leadership has already committed to place $40 million in the budget to offset the increasing rates, but added that the MWRA's proposed 5.4 percent increase is "unconscionable," and that he and Rep. Michael Bellotti will lead the fight on the House floor for additional funding.

"We must scale the scope of this project back by either forcing the Federal courts to recognize the financial calamity we are facing or pressuring Congress to amend the Clean Water Act," said Mariano.

He also applauded the recent efforts of Mike Deluca and citizens of the MWRA district.

"This is a Federal mandate and as such should be federally funded," said Mariano. "We must continue to work as a team and stay focused on solving this problem."

Studds, Kennedy, Kerry Seek Protection For P & G Workers

U.S. Rep. Gerry Studds and Sens. Edward Kennedy and John Kerry have written to Procter & Gamble Chief Executive Edwin Artzt in Cincinnati, Ohio in the hopes of protecting workers at P & G's Quincy facility.

The three decided to contact Artzt following the company's announcement that the Quincy site would be shut down.

"We remain extremely concerned of the closure on the city's economy and on the facility's 300 employees and their families," the letter stated.

Studds, Kennedy and Kerry also made three requests of Artzt:

•Authorization of a Rapid Response Team of the state-federal Industrial Services Program (ISP) to operate at the Quincy facility. "This state team," the letter stated, "with which we have worked closely in the past, serves as a clearinghouse for information, resources and guidance essential to workers displaced by plants closures."

•Establishment of an Emergency Workers Assistance Center following the "short-term" work of the Rapid Response Team. The center would provide a variety of employment services designed specifically for P & G workers.

•Extension of the company's tuition reimbursements to employees through the spring of 1995, even if the Quincy plant shuts down sooner.

The letter concludes by saying that now that the decision to close the plant has been made--a move that had been opposed by the congressman and senators--"we cannot overstate the importance of doing so in a manner which eases the consequences for the people whose lives will be affected so seriously."

HEALTH & FITNESS

Why Work Out?

(NAPS)—Does regular exercise really matter?

"Yes!" says Dr. William Baubie, an emergency specialist at Kingston Hospital in Kingston, New York. "After the pain and sweat have been showered away, healthy skin, toned muscles, and extra physical and mental energy remain. Perhaps even more important than making you feel and look your best, regular exercise can also help prevent injury, disability and chronic disease."

Dr. Baubie says that proper exercise decreases the health risks of smoking, stress, obesity, and alcohol use and may prevent stroke, high blood pressure, heart attack, sports injury or osteoporosis.

Can exercise be dangerous?

"To get the greatest health benefits from exercise, and reduce your risk of injury," Dr. Baubie says, "It's important to exercise properly and safely."

He suggests beginning by selecting an exercise activity that you can enjoy and can perform regularly without getting discouraged. "Always consult your physician before you start an exercise program," says Dr. Baubie. This is especially important if you have any of the following risk factors: over age 40, inactivity, obesity, smoking, problems of the heart, lungs, or musculoskeletal system.

Dr. Baubie also suggests you:

- Learn appropriate form and technique from a fitness instructor.

- Always include warm up and cool down activities, such as slow walking and stretching exercises for the appropriate muscle groups.

Include a variety of exercises in your fitness program.

- Drink plenty of water, and dress appropriately.

How hard should you exercise?

Proper exercise intensity requires reaching your "target heart rate," which is 50 percent to 80 percent of your maximum heart rate, for at least 30 minutes three times a week. Your maximum heart rate is 220 minus your age in years. You should exercise at 50 percent of your maximum heart rate for the first few weeks in order to slowly adapt to your new exercise program.

What if you get injured?

"If you experience any pain, dizziness, shortness of breath, irregular heart-beat, or increased fatigue, stop your exercise immediately and consult your physician or trainer," says Dr. Baubie. Most exercise or sports-related injuries are caused by overuse and unusual demands on muscles, joints, tendons, and ligaments. Overuse injuries are treated with cold packs, elevation, rest and anti-inflammatory medication for the first few days and then heat with gradual stretching and strengthening activities.

Caffeine & Women's Health

(NAPS)—Is there an association between caffeine and painful lumps and tenderness in women's breasts?

Consuming caffeine, found in beverages and food such as coffee, tea, soft drinks and chocolate, does not lead to lumps or discomfort in women's breasts, known as fibrocystic breast disease (FBD). In 1986, researchers from the National Cancer Institute published the largest and most conclusive study ever done on more than 3,300 women with FBD. They found no association between caffeine consumption and FBD incidence.

What about reports of links between coffee and breast or ovarian cancers?

The American Cancer Society (ACS) has reviewed this question and concludes caffeine is not a risk factor in breast or ovarian cancer. In addition, the ACS suggests that coffee be used in moderation.

Do pregnant women need to be concerned about coffee consumption?

Most pregnant women breathe a sigh of relief when they are told that it is safe to drink three cups of coffee per day. So they do not have to give up enjoying their morning cup of coffee.

In fact, no coffee-related birth defects have been found in three major studies involving more than 15,000 women, including women who consumed large amounts of coffee.

Likewise, recent study findings continue to support the conclusion that moderate caffeine consumption by pregnant women does not lead to miscarriage, early delivery, or low birth-weight babies.

I'm concerned about developing osteoporosis. Should I reduce or eliminate drinking coffee?

There is no evidence that reducing coffee consumption will protect you from developing osteoporosis, a disease that leads to loss of bone mass and poor bone quality.

A 1990 study published in the American Journal of Clinical Nutrition found that moderate caffeine intake does not increase osteoporosis risk, at least for those women with adequate calcium intakes. The study examined caffeine intake for women consuming at least 600 mg. of calcium daily (approximately two eight-ounce glasses of milk).

In any event, I recommend that all women take supplementary calcium, at least 1,000 mg. per day, from the age of 45. And remember the old adage—everything in moderation.

NEWS

by Robin Vitetta, nutritionist (NAPS)—A recent Gallup poll of over 1,000 women over the age of 18 revealed that 51 percent say they are overweight by at least ten pounds. In fact, the Calorie Control Council determined that 48 million consumers are dieting at any time, and an additional five million are dieting as a result of holiday over-eating.

My guess is, you, or someone you know, are probably one of those feeling guilty about over-indulging this holiday season. Just get back on track, and make your New Year's resolution both attainable and enjoyable.

"Diets don't work!" Heard this before? Well, it's true. The word "diet" evokes feelings of frustration, deprivation and often failure for anyone who has unsuccessfully tried to lose weight. Successful weight loss begins with changes in food intake and exercise routine. But, what few people realize is these changes should incorporate the foods and activities you enjoy.

Follow these suggestions to help you prepare great tasting low fat meals: Fill 75 percent of your plate with fresh vegetables, whole grains and legumes, and add a fist-size portion of lean meat or fish. Marinate in oil-free, fat-free dressings, and grill or broil for the ultimate fat and calorie savings. If you don't have time to cook, you can still eat healthy, as prepackaged meals boast a better-than-ever nutritional profile. For example, you can't go wrong with Weight Watchers Food Company products, including an extraordinary line of frozen entrees called Smart Ones™, with one gram of fat (or less) per serving.

When dinner is over, don't blow it on dessert! Choose fresh fruit, sweets or reduced-fat sweets such as Weight Watchers Chocolate Mousse Bar, or an indulgent Sweet Celebrations™ Chocolate Eclair, and not feeling guilty.

To be a smart eater, you must be a smart shopper. A cabinet filled with high-fat chips and cookies is dangerous, choose fat-free or reduced-fat snacks instead. For example, to play it safe, stock up on some Weight Watchers Smart Snackers™, a fabulous line of low-fat snacks including apple chips, cheese curls, honey roasted peanuts and butter toffee popcorn. Eat realistic portion sizes, read labels for fat, calorie and sodium content and use snacks wisely. Weight Watchers Food Company offers a wide

JOAN'S OLYMPIC TEAM Elite Gym team will perform during half-time at the Boston Celtics-Atlanta Hawks

STREP: A CAGEY, ELUSIVE KILLER

Strep is one of those painful health hazards that has become so common that people sometimes get a little careless about it. The fact is that depending on the variety of strep bacteria, the result can range from a mild sore throat to serious illness and even sudden death. (It was a form of strep that brought about the unexpected death of Muppet genius Jim Henson in 1990.) While the most deadly forms of strep are rare, you can protect yourself by seeking medical attention promptly when strep-like symptoms occur. A typical strep throat is very sore and is accompanied by swollen glands and fever. Skin sores can also be symptomatic. See your doctor if breaks in the skin (cuts, burns, insect bites, etc.) become red and

Unstreptococcal can also cause outbreaks of pericarditis. For more information on this, or any aspect of heart disease, call the doctors—myself, Dr. Ronald Dunlap, or Dr. Lisa Antonelli, at COMPREHENSIVE CARDIAC CARE at 472-2550. Office hours are by appointment, and our office is located in Crown Colony, 700 Congress St., Suite 2C, in Quincy. I am affiliated with Quincy Hospital and South Shore Hospitals. Della Chiesa Likely Childhood Center Name significant contributions to the city. Adams was the only woman to be the wife of one U.S. President and the mother of another (John Quincy Adams), as well as an early advocate and activist for women's rights. If the Adams name is chosen, it will be the first time in the city's history a school building has been named after a woman.

Della Chiesa supporters said it is important to honor a native of the city and someone who was part of Quincy's contemporary history. Born in South Quincy, Della Chiesa served Quincy 22 years as city councillor, mayor and state representative, including six terms as mayor from 1954-1965. Two of his mayoral terms came under Quincy's Plan E in which the mayor was appointed by members of the City Council, and four were under the present Plan A in which city residents elect the mayor.

Other city officials are also divided on the issue. Some, such as School Supt. Eugene Creedon favor naming the school after Adams, while others such as Ward 4 City Councillor Thomas Fabrizio are backing Della Chiesa.

As a compromise, Fabrizio has suggested naming the new school after Della Chiesa and the soon-to-be-reopened Beechwood Knoll Elementary School in Wollaston after Adams.

Reached by telephone Monday, Barry said he was impressed by the number of South Quincy residents at the public hearing who spoke in favor of the Della Chiesa name.

"I went into it (the public hearing) leaning that way, and I came out convinced," said Barry. "If you're going to have a community school, you're going to have to place a value on the immediate community."

Raymondi noted that the Ward 4 Civic Association recently voted in favor of the Della Chiesa name and agreed that a majority of South Quincy residents, including those at the public hearing, have expressed similar sentiments.

"This is a community school, and it would not have been built without the support of the community," said Raymondi, who added that he will "in all probability" vote for the Della Chiesa name.

Mariano said he still wants to read the sign-up sheet from last week's public hearing to see the signature totals of those who chose to not publicly voice their opinions. He also noted, however, that he is aware most of the South Quincy residents who spoke at the hearing favored naming the center after Della Chiesa. Mariano said he is "very supportive of returning to a neighborhood concept" regarding such matters and is "leaning toward" voting in favor of naming the school after the former mayor.

Durkin said he has not made a final decision about his vote, but hinted that he also will likely back the apparent majority of South Quincy residents.

"The vast majority of phone calls I've received from that area have been in support of Della Chiesa," said Durkin, "and I'll be mindful of that when I make my decision."

Bragg, however, said that while she feels both names are worthy, she is "leaning toward" voting for naming the center after Adams. She said her position is based on a number of telephone conversations she has had with residents, the majority of which favored the Adams name, as well as the positions of Creedon, area school children and parents who have voiced support for naming the center after the former First Lady.

Bragg added that she does not think the Fabrizio compromise is possible since a majority of Wollaston residents she has spoken to have voiced opposition to renaming the Beechwood Knoll School.

Stice said she also is "leaning toward" the Adams name, noting that she was "impressed" by the fact that many of the staff members who will be employed at the new center have requested that it be named after a woman. She added that she personally feels strongly that a woman should be so honored and has "no explanation" to offer the approximately 4,000 female students in the Quincy Public Schools about why the city has never named a school building in memory of a woman.

Stice also said she would have no problem with Fabrizio's compromise, but added that, like Bragg, she does not know if that solution is possible.

The $2.2 million Early Childhood Center on Brooks Avenue will serve approximately 200 pre-schoolers, kindergartners and first graders now assigned to the Lincoln-Hancock School in South Quincy. The city's first new school in almost 20 years, the center was built to relieve overcrowding at Lincoln-Hancock, which serves around 660 pupils.

About 120 kindergartners will begin attending classes at the center March 2. First grade classes are scheduled to begin in September.

QHS Selects January STAR Award Winners

Quincy High School announces its January STAR Award winners.

They are: Students Jaymi Graham, Mike Feeley and Kasey McNaught and faculty teacher Carol Lane.

Graham, a senior, is an honor roll student in addition to being co-captain of the girls' volleyball team. She also starts for the girls' basketball team and participates in softball. Jaymi plans to attend college next year.

Feeley, a junior, was an All-Scholastic football player for the Presidents this past season and is captain-elect of next year's team. He is also on the wrestling team and represented Quincy High at the state meet this season.

A testimony to Mike's affable manner and helpful attitude is the fact that this his third selection to STAR in three years. Each nomination was by a different classroom teacher.

McNaught, a sophomore, is one of a group of good student-athletes who are turning the girls' track fortunes around at Quincy High. An honors student in English and social studies, Kasey won almost all of her dual meets in the dash. In addition, she qualified to represent the high school at this year's state meet.

Lane, a science teacher, noticed symptoms of diabetes in one of her students and reported those feelings to both the student and his parents. Her suspicions turned out to be accurate. On checking with a doctor, the youngster was found to be diabetic and was immediately hospitalized to stabilize this situation.

Art Assn. Exhibit Reception At Handshakes Cafe Saturday

The Quincy Art Association has installed an ongoing exhibit of members' artwork at Handshakes Cafe, 1354 Hancock St., Quincy Center.

An opening reception will be held Saturday from 1 to 3 p.m. The public is invited and admission is free. The exhibit may also be viewed during the Cafe's regular business hours Mondays through Saturdays from 7 a.m. to 5 p.m.

The exhibit includes works in oils, water colors, pastels, and serigraphy by professional and amateur level members. Most works are for sale through the QAA.

The current show will be on exhibit through April 30, after which it will be replaced by works of other QAA members.

For more information, or to arrange a purchase, call 436-1084.

Andrew McCormack: Helping The Homeless And Making A Difference

the community," said Finn. "Rather than feeling totally hopeless about the homeless situation, Andrew thought we would be a great outlet for his contributions," Finn said.

Andrew began collecting cans and bottles after he noticed some men gathered under a bridge and asked his mother why they were there.

"My mother told me they had to live there because they didn't have a house," Andrew said.

When he asked his mother how he could help, she suggested collecting cans and bottles.

Andrew's mother, Marianne McCormack, said Andrew has no intentions of stopping.

"His ultimate goal, as lofty as it may seem, is to end homelessness," she said.

Andrew's parents are very proud of their son.

"I am so proud of the way Andrew has decided to help others," Mrs. McCormack said.

"He is focused, he is a real good kid, I am thrilled by his consciousness," said his father, Thomas McCormack.

Dorothy Greene, principal at Atherton Hough School, nominated Andrew for "Quincy Sun Citizen of the Year" for his efforts.

"Initially, he started by collecting cans and bottles from his friends and neighbors and then he began collecting them from the streets," Greene said. "The fact a child is so giving with his time and effort, I felt he should receive some recognition."

Greene said Andrew stands out because of his caring attitude and positive nature.

"Andrew is a very happy-natured kid who is concerned about the feelings of other people," said Greene.

Andrew collects cans and bottles from other students and faculty every couple of weeks. He also receives bags of cans and bottles from friends and neighbors.

The harsh reality of the life of the homeless has given Andrew mixed emotions about his crusade to end homelessness.

"Well, sometimes I feel bad, because they don't have a place to live, but I feel good by seeing how I can help them have a shelter," he said.

Despite his unique interest in helping the homeless, Andrew is very much like other children his age.

"Andrew is a pretty typical, normal 10-year-old with a sensitivity for the homeless," Finn said. "What is unique about him is his concern of the problems around him, such as poverty and homelessness."

Although he is too young to help at the shelter, Andrew said he would like to work there when he is older.

Andrew and three other volunteers at the shelter were recently recognized for their work with helping the homeless at a dinner and ceremony late last year. He also received a plaque and a letter of commendation from the Quincy City Council.

VETERANS CORNER

[Editor's Note: Following are representatives questions answered daily by VA counselors. Full information is available at any VA office.]

Q: If a veteran served in more than one branch of service, may all branches be placed at government expense of a gravemarker provided by the Department of Veteran Affairs (VA)?

A: Space permitting, more than one rank and branch of service are authorized in the inscription. This is more easily accommodated on upright headstones than on flat markers. The VA's National Cemetery System suggests listing the branches of service only, or the highest rank and its branch of service and other branches of service without the rank, where space is limited.

Q: May a nickname be placed on a gravemarker at government expense if the veteran has no middle name?

A: A nickname may never be placed on the name line. Nicknames, expressed in terms of endearment, such as "Lovingly Called Dutch," may be included as an additional item of inscription at private expense. That addition would be placed below the authorized inscription, which is just below the dates of birth and death. Diminutives, such as Jim for James or Joe for Joseph, may be used in the name line. For additional information about VA's headstone and gravemarker program, call 1-800-697-6947 from 8 a.m. until 4:30 p.m. (ET) weekdays.

North Runs Unbeaten Streak To Lucky 13

By KERRY BRYNE

The North Quincy hockey team looked razor sharp as they extended their unbeaten streak to 13 games (10-0-3) with a 7-1 victory over the Quincy Presidents and a 1-1 tie with Somerville in recent action.

Against Quincy last Wednesday, 11 different players had a hand in the scoring for the streaking Red Raiders.

After making it to the semifinals of the post season tournament last year, the depth and experience displayed in this contest could carry North further this year.

Even with the seven goals, it was North Quincy defenseman Andrew Vermette, Dennis Pateras, Dave Pacino and sophomore standout Dan Stone who commanded the show against the struggling (5-9-3) Presidents.

"Our defense played really well tonight," said North Quincy's fourth year head coach Tom Benson. "But they're going to have to play even better in the tournament in order to succeed."

The two teams battled evenly throughout the first period but tallies by Joe Carinci (Andrew Vermette, Jim Kelly) and Brendan O'Brien (Dennis Pateras, Dan Stone) gave North a 2-0 lead going into the second.

The Presidents had their share of opportunities in the first period. At one point they carried the play in the North Quincy zone for close to three minutes but were unable to penetrate mammoth Red Raider goaltender Mike Manganaro.

In the final two periods the smothering North Quincy defense clamped down on the Quincy attack. The Presidents were able to muster only ten shots over that span.

Quincy played valiantly but they were outmanned by a North Quincy team which is among the best in the state.

"North was just too much for us," said Presidents' coach Bob Sylvia. "You have to give credit where credit is due. It was their night, they were the better team."

The Red Raider offense also turned it up a notch, recording 28 shots, in periods two and three. Goals by forward Bob Flannery (Josh Wingate, Vermette) at 6:41 of the second, and OCL scoring leader Sapienza (Pateras) at 13:25, gave the Red Raiders a comfortable 4-0 lead at the end of two.

The Sapienza tally was a thing of beauty. Pateras' pass split the Quincy defense and landed on the stick of the hard charging left-winger who skated down ice and fired the puck past Smith.

A third period goal by A.J. Carthas put North ahead 5-0 before the Presidents were able to crack the nearly impenetrable Manganaro. At 6:31 Dan Mann tipped a Dave Cooper shot and the puck found a seam between the goaltender's legs.

Playing for over two periods with a groin pull, Quincy goaltender Mark Smith was replaced by John Masoni early in third. Masoni looked tough under pressure as he stonewalled Carthas from in close, but O'Brien picked up the loose puck and flipped it past the rookie netminder. Sapienza recorded his second assist of the night on the play. Stone rounded out the scoring late in the third when he deflected a Robbie Callow shot past third string goalie Tom Hawes.

Injuries to key players hampered the Quincy effort. Besides Smith, all-star and captain Steve Provost (sliced Achilles tendon) was unable to play. Inexperience was also been a problem for the Presidents. Three freshmen, center Scott Cooper and defensemen Mark Glynn and Matt Langille played regular shifts against North. Each one played exceptionally well and should be bright stars for Quincy in the future.

On Saturday night, North and Somerville skated to a 1-1 tie. With the win and tie, North improved to 14-4-2.

Quincy, which tied Taunton 2-2 Saturday, is 5-9-4.

Ashley Davis, Matt Miller Excel At Div. I Meet 2 Quincy High Wrestlers Qualify For All-State

The Quincy, High wrestling program reached another level of excellence on Saturday at the division one state championships at Lowell High School with two wrestlers qualifying for this Saturday's all-state championships.

Ashley Davis, a two-year captain, capped off one of his best weekends of wrestling ever, won the title in the 152 lb. weight class by defeating Justin Milanovich of Greater Lawrence, 15-7 in the semi-final and Luke Caveney of Lowell, 9-4 in the final. Davis, the winner of the Old Colony League Sportsmanship Award, should be one of the top seeds in the all-states.

"Ashley Possesses some of the best ability of any wrestler I coached," said

Quincy coach Lou Venturelli. "He is the best worker I have ever seen." Venturelli also pointed out the outstanding wrestling of junior Matt Miller. Miller also qualified for the all-states with a fourth place finish in the 130 weight class. Miller has been wrestling very well as of late and should perform well this weekend.

Also this past weekend, the junior varsity state championships were held at Quincy High. Among the top finishers saw Rich Bergeron win the title in the 152 lb. weight class, John Richards finishing second in 95 lb., John Moss second in the heavyweight division, Jason Torrez fourth in the 140 lb. class and Quang Pham coming in fourth in the 125 lb. division.

John Murphy New Varsity Soccer Coach At Massasoit

Winning championships is second nature to John Murphy, the new varsity soccer coach at Massasoit Community College.

Following the retirement of Coach Nick Palantzas, who directed the Warriors for 13 years, the Quincy native was named the fourth head coach in the history of the Massasoit's men's soccer program.

Murphy, who graduated from Massasoit in 1992 and is studying human performance and fitness at UMass-Boston, will enter his rookie campaign with six years of experience with the Warrior's soccer program.

A member of the 1985 New England Champions and the 1986 National Championship team, he has gone on to win four New England titles as an assistant coach from 1988 to 1993. One of the youngest head soccer coaches in the country, Murphy holds a USSF "B" coaching license and has gained the reputation as one of the most knowledgeable goalkeeper instructors in the area.

In his six years as an assistant coach, he was instrumental in developing an All-New England or All-Tournament goalkeeper each season at Massasoit.

Murphy has organized and directed many soccer camp programs and currently is director of the Massasoit Boys' and Girls' Summer Soccer camps.

As a former coach for the Southeast Boys' Bay State Games, Murphy has won two silver medal as a head coach and a gold medal as an assistant.

STARTER RIGHT UP

If an engine cranks slowly with a fully charged battery, it may be an indication that the starter needs replacement. Other symptoms include: an engine that does not crank at all with a fully charged battery; an engine that fails to crank even though the starter spins; or a loud, grinding noise being emitted from the starter. Before a starter is replaced, the auto technician should check the condition of the battery, as well as the wiring of connections. Ignition and fuel system problems may also be the culprit. Once a starter is replaced, however, the condition of the ring gear should also be checked. This is the large-toothed gear attached to the engine crankshaft which the starter must turn to crank the engine. HINT: A bad starter can be confirmed with tests of voltage, circuit resistance, and current draw.

LEO & WALT'S SUNCOCO would like to remind you that our technicians here at 258 Quincy Ave., E. Braintree (843-1550) look forward to the challenge of giving your car the same level of personal attention they give their own. Whether you need to have your starter replaced, or more extensive work done, make us your first stop. "A Place Where Your Car Can Live Longer." Suncoco and most major credit cards honored. Two local kids, Butch Palazza of Quincy High and Jeremy Gott of North Quincy High, recently wrapped up Old Colony League championships in track & field.

Palazza, Quincy's massive shot-putter, made his best throw of the season when it counted. Going into the OCL meet held Feb. 8 at Taunton, the junior's longest heave of the season was 44 feet, two inches. At Taunton he wiped out his previous high with a toss of 44'8", narrowly beating out Weymouth's shot putter by two inches.

It was a big week for the big guy as he was named one of next year's captains of the Quincy High football team just two days before the OCL meet.

Gott has been a standout for the Red Raiders all season. In the OCL meet he was the league's best in the 600-yard run with a time of just over two minutes, 19 seconds. The senior also placed in the high jump. Gott was the anchor on the North Quincy relay team during the regular season.

It was a tough week for hockey players in Quincy. First, OCL All-Star Steve Provost of Quincy High was injured against Silver Lake. As he was fighting for a puck along the boards, the blade of an opponent's skate came down on the back of his foot and seriously sliced his Achilles tendon.

Later in the week, in the Presidents/Red Raiders game, center Jeff Coleman of NQ went down with a knee injury just 1:37 into the contest. He had to be carried off the ice by stretcher. The word is that he will miss the rest of this season but will be ready for play in his junior year.

Even more bizarre was that later in that same game, Quincy High freshmen coach Richie Reinhardt had to be carried out of the arena by EMTs after suffering from shortness of breath. Reinhardt was taking medication for bronchitis and the constant temperature changes he endured going from behind the bench to locker room and back again led to the shortness. A couple of days rest should be enough RX to get him back on his feet.

Some more news from the world of hockey: several freshmen hockey players in the city have had outstanding seasons. Quincy High blueliners Matt Langille and Mark Glynn have undergone what is known in the biz as "trial by fire." The two ninth graders have impressed many as they've taken on some of the top forwards in eastern Mass. week after week.

Little Scott Cooper has displayed excellent speed and stick handling skills for the Presidents. The peanut-sized Cooper will be making defenses miserable for the next three years. Goalie John Masoni has also seen a lot of playing time lately as he's filled in for Mark Smith who has a nagging groin injury.

Freshman Red Raider goaltender Brian Beaton won his first varsity start when he stopped 26 shots in a 4-2 win over Bridgewater-Raynham. Beaton looked sharp but his main problem is that he is playing in the very big shadow of Mike Manganaro, the top netminder in the Old Colony League.

North Quincy hockey coach Tom Benson, just 28 years of age, has led the Red Raiders to three post-season appearances in just four years as head coach. With a slew of returning talent, Benson has his team poised to be one of the best in the league for years to come.

Volunteer opportunities exist for people who would like to get involved with the Easter Seal Volleyball Games. The Games will be held March 12, 13 and 19 at North Quincy High School. Proceeds will support local Easter Seal services for children and adults with disabilities.

For more information, please call Kristen at Easter Seals, (617) 482-3375.

Six City Champions Crowned In Elks Free Throw Contest

Six city champions have been crowned in the Elks National Free Throw Contest. The boys and girls age 8-13 were winners in the contest sponsored by the Quincy Lodge 943 of the Elks and the Quincy Recreation Department.

This is the first step in a national competition as the six winners now advance to the Circle District Championship to shoot against winners from nine other competitions in Southeastern Massachusetts.

Capturing the city championship trophies were Shannon Desmond and Steve Barbuti in the 8-9 age category; Colleen Kelly and Patrick Bregoli in the 10-11 age group; and Kate Lavery and Chris Bregoli won the 12-13 age category.

The champions were winners in the contest originally conducted at 10 locations supervised by leaders from the Quincy Recreation Department. Nearly 400 boys and girls took part and center winners were all eligible to compete in the finals.

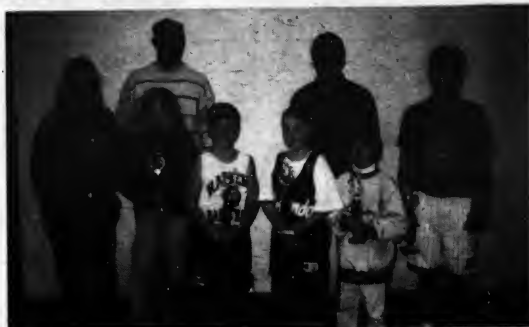

Sons and daughters of Quincy Lodge 943 members also participated in the competition which awards one point for each successful free throw out of 25 attempts.

Those receiving second place trophies were Scott Miller and Jackie Goguen in the 8-9 category; Sean Bailey and Katherine MacRitchie in the 10-11 category; and Mike McEvoy and Kim Lavery in the 12-13 category.

Those receiving third place trophies were Danny DiNardo and Erica Mayo in the 8-9 age category; Brian Miller and Krystal Linehan in the 10-11 category; and Justin Adams and Alania McDonough in the 12-13 category.

The first, second and third place winners all received trophies from Ed Miller, Hoop Shoot chairman for the Quincy Lodge.

Recreation Director Barry Welch presented certificates to all centers and also presented water bottles provided by CVS.

The center champions are: Girls 8-9 category: Debbie Brown, Kimberly Fournier, Erin Croke and Jessica Loud. Boys 8-9 category: Matt Kobialka, Paul McAteer, Jason Chase, Eric Blair, Patrick O'Brien, Matthew Spardaro and Tom Buckley. Girls 10-11: Andrea Marshall, Sara Kurpeski, Jennifer Djerf and Pam Sullivan. Boys 10-11: Dan Long, Chris Selter, Patrick Jachnig, Brian Steadman, Christian Donovan, Dean Zoia, and Joe Sudak. Girls 12-13: Colleen MacDougall, Holly Flaherty, Christine Kurpeski, Theresa Ryan, Barbara Ryan and Lauren Shields. Boys 12-13: Dan Kelly, Stephen Reddy and Danny Hamilton.

Kiwanis Hockey Tournament Underway

Quincy Mites, Squirts Win Openers

By ROBERT BOSWORTH

The 21st annual Quincy Kiwanis Club International Youth Hockey Tournament got off to a flying start Monday as eight games in three different divisions were played before an estimated 1,000 spectators and fans at Quincy Youth Arena.

And as the week-long AHA-sanctioned "A" tournament progresses, so too will the competition and level of skill.

Locally, two Quincy teams posted victories in opening round play Monday. In the Mite Division, Quincy edged the Randolph-Avon-Holbrook Mohawks 3-2. The Quincy Squirts were also winners with a 8-3 victory over Weymouth.

The Quincy Mites were led by Andrew Ross and Billy McKeon who each scored a goal and added an assist. Matt Lavery was the other Quincy goal scorer.

Quincy also received assists from Timmy Duggan, Brian O'Hanley and Matt Germain.

In Squirt action, Quincy was boosted by a balanced offensive attack as 10 different players figured in the scoring.

Quincy's point production was highlighted by Frank Curreri and Mark Giese, each of whom scored twice and assisted once. Other Quincy goal scorers were Paul Flynn, Charles Sorrento, Ryan Doyle and James Cashin.

Daniel Kennedy was the key playmaker for Quincy as he assisted on three goals. Other assists came from David Germain, Steven McGonagle and Cashins.

In other opening round Mite action, Billerica beat Braintree, 6-2, and Medford blanked Providence, R.I., 7-0.

In the Squirt Division, joining Quincy in the winner's bracket were Pembroke, which shut out Milton, 5-0; and Winchester, a 3-1 winner over the Mohawks.

In Pee Wee action, two games ended in ties: Medford and Milton, 4-4; and Arlington and Mohawks, 1-1.

The Quincy Pee Wees did not play Monday. Their first game was Wednesday at 6:40 p.m. against Milton.

The tournament will swing into high gear on Thursday when the Bantam competition gets underway. At 7:50 p.m. that evening, Quincy's Bantam squad will skate against Riga, Latvia, a team some think will challenge for the Bantam championship.

Beverly Reinhardt, manager of the Quincy Youth Hockey arena, said this year's tournament is off to a successful start. After an idle day on Tuesday, Reinhardt said she expects the excitement to build.

"We had about 1000 people on hand Monday watching the games. The tournament will build as the week goes on."

"Thursday, Friday and Saturday will be wild down here. There's some good hockey coming up," Reinhardt added.

The Bantam competition, which begins Thursday at 6:40 p.m., features Quincy as well as some national and international teams, including entries from New York, Pennsylvania, Ontario and Riga, Latvia.

Reinhardt said Latvia squad, which faces Quincy's bantam team Thursday at 7:50 p.m., "is very strong."

The complete tournament schedule, including remaining games and time slots for the playoffs Sunday, is listed in the chart accompanying this story.

A pass, good for admission to all games throughout the week, can be purchased from any Kiwanis member or at the door for $5. Single admission at the door is $3.00 and $1.00 for students 12-18. Children under age 12 are admitted free.

Proceeds will help provide scholarships, camperships and financial assistance to families in need. Funds will also go to the Kiwanis Pediatric Trauma Center at the New England Medical Center in Boston.

Squirt House

Granite Auto Maintains Lead With 3-2 Win Over Green

Joe Thorley scored two goals, including the game winner, as Granite Auto Electric defeated Green Environmental 3-2 to maintain its lead in the Squirt House Youth Hockey League.

Mike Maloney added a goal for Granite Auto (9-6, 20 points). Paul Flynn, Merri Langille and Kris Farr had assists.

Mark Tetreault and Steve Gott scored for Green Environmental (7-7, 17 points, tied for second in house standings). Joe Callahan, Matt Miller and Steve McGonagle added assists.

The Quincy Sun and Johnson Motor Parts also recorded recent victories.

The Sun downed Doran & Horrigan, 6-1, behind twin hat tricks by Peter Turowski and Matt Gregory. Turowski and Gregory also posted three assists for a total of six points apiece.

The Sun also got assists from Matt Conso (four), Matt Moriarty and John Ryan. Gregory, Turowski and Conso were named playmakers of the game for the Sun which finds itself in a three-way tie for third place with Doran & Horrigan and Johnson Motor Parts. All three teams have identical records of 6-7-4, 16 points.

For Doran & Horrigan, Jimmy Cashins scored while Ryan Doyle and Brian Stock assisted.

Johnson Motor Parts and Burgin Platner skated to a 3-3 tie. The tie kept Burgin Platner tied for second with a record of 7-7-3, 17 points.

Frank Currei had two goals and an assist for Johnson while Sean Fennelly scored twice for Burgin Platner.

Johnson also got offense from Mark Giese (one goal) and Charlie Sorrento, Dan Sheehan and Pat Lahar (one assist each).

Burgin Platner's attack was boosted by Paul Zenga (one goal), and Matt Petit, Scott Markarian, Terrence Doherty and Brian Keefe (one assist apiece).

Josh Silverman's Hat Trick Powers Pee Wee C's

The Quincy Pee Wee C's met Waltham at Northeastern University's arena and recorded a 7-2 victory.

Waltham jumped off to an early lead with a goal in the first two minutes of play. Quincy overcame this deficit with two goals from Ryan Murray and another from Dave Noonan.

The second period action featured was a goal for Waltham balanced by another goal for Dave Noonan.

The third period belonged to Josh Silverman as he fired in three goals in rapid succession for a hat trick and the 7-2 win.

Josh Silverman, Chris Cullen, Joe Valatini, Mike D. Sullivan, Ryan Murray, and Mike Hastings each had an assist.

Outstanding goaltending by Nick Pizziferri helped keep Waltham's score low.

In other action, the Pee Wee C's lost to Canton in overtime, 2-1.

Canton got their first break and score in the first period during a Quincy's shift change. Quincy's goalie was left without defense support. While able to block the initial Canton onslaught, he was pulled too far out of his area to recover from the next attack.

Quincy's Joe Valatini evened the score in the second period with an unassisted goal.

The third period was scoreless. Quincy's chance to pull ahead was thwarted when the referee stopped a play even though the puck was loose in front of Canton's net and Quincy was battering the goalie with a potential to score. This was Canton's second break of the game.

Canton scored with a goal in overtime giving them a 2-1 victory. Quincy may get their chance for revenge if they meet the same Canton team next month in the state tournament. The entire team played well. The team will represent the city of Quincy in the state tournament.

Marina Bay Taxi, Morrissey Club Tied For Top Spot

Marina Bay Taxi and Mike Morrissey Club each posted victories in recent action to keep pace for the top spot in the Pee Wee House Youth Hockey League standings.

Marina Bay Taxi, which dropped Skinner's Winners 8-3, and the Morrissey Club, which edged Neponset Valley Survey 5-4, are tied for first with 12-5-0 records. Each team has 24 points, six ahead of third place Colonial Federal.

Against Skinner's Winners, Marina Bay's Kevin Shaw and Ryan Barrett each scored twice and assisted twice. Chad Fitzpatrick had a goal and two assists. Other goal scorers for Marina Bay were Joe Vallatini, Jeff Brophy and Mike Gavin.

Other assists were dished out by Mike D. Sullivan, Kevin Mason, Sean Slattery, Matt Struzik, Joe Doyle and Tony Fasoli.

For Skinner's Winners, David Noonan, Tim

O'Connor and Graham McShane scored. Assisting were T.J. Wilson (two) and John Kisielous.

In the Mike Morrissey Club's win over Neponset Valley Survey, Mike Viles was the offensive star with four goals. Shaun Cheney also scored.

Assisting were John Alves (two), and Chris Lumaghini, Jamie Parisi and Bill Walker, (one apiece).

Neponset Valley Survey got a balanced attack as four different players scored but it wasn't enough. Scoring goals were Steve Ford, Jeff Glynn, Josh Silverman and Nick Pizziferri.

Ford added an assist as did Matt Gibbons with two and Bill Griffin, one.

The most productive Pee Wee of the Week was Paul Markarian who recorded six points with two goals and four assists in Keohane's 9-3 win over Colonial Federal.

Other offensive stars for Keohane were Didier Alther with four points (two goals, two assists), John Katsarikas with three points (two goals and one assist).

Keohane's also received production from Pat O'Neill, Spike Bertucci and Sean Owens (one goal apiece); and Mike Hastings, Brian Ehrlich, Chris Cartha, Mike Carloni and Rich Bouvie (one assist each).

Six different players figured in the scoring for Colonial Federal. Ashley Rowerdink, Matt Minicucci and Adam Smith scored while Rick Tatem, Joe Ardagna, Steve Faye and Rowerdink assisted.

The rest of the Pee Wee standings look like this:

Colonial Federal (8-7-2, 18 points); Neponset Valley (7-9-1, 15 points); Keohane's (5-11-1, 11 points); and Skinner's Winners (5-12, 10 points).

Mite House

Ryan Tobin's Hat Trick Sparks Barry's Deli

Ryan Tobin and Matt Peters collected four points apiece to highlight a 11-1 win by Barry's Deli over the Paul Harold in recent Mite House Action.

Tobin notched a hat trick and one assist while Peters potted a goal and three assists. In all, 12 different players figured in the scoring for Barry's Deli.

Mike Lind and Andy Ross each had a goal and two assists for three points; Mike Delaboyde, Danny Sullivan, Jeff Hunt, Ryan McFarland each had two points (goal and assist); Brendan Linnane one goal; and Steve Price, Andy McDonough and Tony Connolly, one assist apiece.

Peters was selected the playmaker of the game. Liam Powers scored for the Paul Harold Club.

In other action, Skatesmith, Lydon-Russell and Campbell's Auto Service all notched victories.

Skatesmith, behind John Segalla's two goals and one assist and brother Steve's two assists and one goal, swirled past Pundy's Ice Cream, 5-3.

David Reggiani and Jimmy Kennedy also scored for Skatesmith. Dishing out assists were Kennedy, Josh Sawtelle and Pat Maloney.

Purdy's received offense from Ken Young (one goal, two assists), Pat Casper (one goal), Ryan Donahue (one goal). Assisting were Steve Dunn, Joe Sweeney and Tim Duggan.

Lydon-Russell nailed Granite Rail Pizza, 9-4. Offensive stars were Brian Lynch (two goals, two assists), Matt O'Leary (two goals, one assist), Corey Piazza (two goals), and Justin Thorley and Tony Benigni (one goal and one assist) each.

Also contributing were Miah Hasson (one goal),

Steve O'Brien (two assists) and Mike Cox, Bryan Petit and Tom Walsh (one assist) apiece.

For Granite Rail Pizza, game offensive star Bob Donovan scored a hat trick. Billy McKeon had a goal while Andy Patten and Mike Ogilvie assisted.

Campbell's Auto Service, led by Matt Alewa's three goals, downed Samoset Pharmacy, 7-3. Also finding the net were goal scorers Kevin Richardson, Brian O'Hanley, Bill Jones and Brendan Craig.

O'Hanley also assisted on one of Campbell's goals.

Samoset got point production from five different players but it wasn't enough. Steve Kelley had a goal and an assist while Tim McMahon and Matt Lavery each scored once.

Also assisting were David Toner and Myles Clancy.

North Quincy Junior Raiders Record Even

The North Quincy Junior Raiders dropped a 34-22 decision to the first place Braintree Sonics in recent MBA action, evening their record to 3-3.

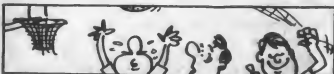

Braintree ran to an early 8-0 lead before Dan

Duggan's two free throws got North Quincy on the board. The Raiders battled back to a 14-10 halftime deficit as Charlie Acton's offense and Eric Stanton's defense led the charge.

Braintree began the second half running off another eight points before Joe Sudak, Pat Bregoli and Brandon Sleeth got North back to within eight points.

Action led North Quincy with six points while Duggan, Bregoli and Sudak had four each.

The first basketball game was played, under supervision of the game's inventor Dr. James Naismith, in 1892.

Basketball

Tunes Up For Tourney With Wins Over Quincy, Weymouth

North Has Shot At Share Of OCL Title

By KERRY BYRNE

North Quincy High boys' basketball completed its Old Colony League season in winning fashion at Weymouth Saturday, giving the Raiders an outside shot at capturing a share of the league title.

North, a half game behind Silver Lake, can earn a tie for the top OCL spot if Silver Lake loses its game with Bridgewater-Raynham Friday. The Raiders (13-6) closed out their regular season with a 7 p.m. home game Wednesday against Milton.

North is hoping for a double dose of good luck Friday. While rooting for a Silver Lake loss that evening, the Raiders will learn its seeding and pairing for the state tournament earlier that day.

The tournament couldn't come sooner for the Raiders which has shown no mercy for its recent opponents.

On Saturday, North thumped Weymouth, 59-32. Two of the three top scorers for the Raiders, Brian Raftery (13 points) and Jason McLeod (9 points) sat out the second half.

Also contributing with the offense was Kevin Ross with 10 points.

Last Thursday, North humbled cross-city rival Quincy 63-39 at Quincy High. The win, which clinched a berth in the state tournament for North, snapped a three-game slide against OCL opponents.

North Head Coach Ted Stevenson appeared worried entering his team's clash with Quincy. The last time these archrivals met, North squeaked out a 61-57 double-overtime win at home.

And with a tournament berth at stake and North needing a victory, the pressure had begun to mount for the Raiders.

"I was very nervous coming into this," Stevenson said. "Quincy is very tough but I knew if we could play our game and not the helter-skelter game that they play then we would win."

His team was able to play their type of game as Hoop Hulk Brian Raftery (13 points, 10 rebounds) and Red Giant Jason McLeod (18 points, 11 boards, five blocked shots) led North Quincy past the underized Presidents.

North led 30-19 at the half and maintained a comfortable advantage for most of the second period. But when Quincy's Joe Kelly stole the ball at center court midway through the second half, and then preceded to bang home the two, get fouled and hit the free throw to cut the NQ lead to 40-34, it looked like the Presidents would use the momentum shift to take control of the game.

McLeod and Raftery answered Kelly's challenge as the two big men combined for 10 straight points from inside the paint to give the Red Raiders a comfortable 16 point margin. The 10 straight were part of 23-5 run by North Quincy to end the game.

For Quincy, the difference in this contest compared to the double-OT game was their inability to shoot from the floor.

"We live and die with our shooting and we just didn't shoot well (17% field goal shooting) tonight," said Quincy coach John Franceschini.

"We had the opportunities and when you have the opportunities you gotta make the shots."

Both coaches singled out the play of NQ's Raftery and Jerry Fernandez as a major factor in the game.

"Raftery was in kind of a slump the last few games but he came back very tough. He has a lot of pride and it showed tonight. Fernandez also played outstanding ball," said Stevenson. The coach was also pleased with the performances of Matt Beston, William Ngutler, Brad Gray, Mike Santoro, Bob Johnston and Kevin Ross, who came on big late in the game.

Harold Mortel was Quincy's top player throughout the game. The small but speedy guard led the Presidents with 12 points while playing tough full-court defense against Beston, NQ's stand out point guard. Also playing well for Quincy were Kelly (10 points), Jon Gangi and Brian McPartlin. These three had the unenviable task of fighting off the much bigger Raftery and McLeod.

The loss dropped Quincy to 8-9 and eliminated them from post-season play. However, the Presidents regrouped Monday and blasted Marshfield, 71-46 in the opening round of the seventh annual Quincy Invitational Basketball Tournament.

Quincy, which improved to 9-10, is aiming for a 500 season. A win Wednesday against Stoughton in the championship game would upgrade the Presidents' record to 10-10. Tip-off was set for 7:30 p.m. at Quincy High School.

North Quincy, Quincy Players All-Stars Stevenson Named OCL Coach Of The Year

The Old Colony League boys' basketball all-star team was announced Monday and there are quite a few familiar names on the list.

The list is led by North Quincy head coach Ted Stevenson who was selected Old Colony League coach of the year by his peers.

Stevenson turned his 9-11 team from a year ago to a 13-6 tournament-bound record this year. His team has spent much of this season atop the OCL standings. This is Stevenson's first honor of his kind in his seven years behind the bench for North.

Joining Stevenson are three of his basketball stars: Jason McLeod, Brian Raftery and Matt Beston.

McLeod, a senior center, earned his first all-earlier this year.

Raftery, a two-time football OCL all-star, earned his first basketball all-star selection by averaging 9 points and 8.5 rebounds per game. Raftery, who will attend Rutgers University on a football scholarship, is credited with being the key to the Red Raider basketball offense.

Matt Beston, another Red Raider, is the only sophomore on this year's team. Despite missing the first three weeks of the season due to injury, Beston has caught up for missed time by averaging 12 points and 7 assists per game.

Joe Kelly of Quincy High was also selected to the team. Kelly has been a great asset to Quincy's season.

star selection by having one of the best years in recent memory. McLeod has averaged 21 points per game (second in the OCL), 13 rebounds per game and 7 blocks per game.

Jason's season highlight was collecting a school record 10 blocked shots in a game against Bridgewater-Raynham

SCOTT DEWARE

A THOUGHT FOR THE WEEK

Andrew Carnegie once said, "The average person puts only 25% of his energy and ability into his work. The world takes off its hat to those who put in more than 50% of their capacity, and stands on its head for those few and far between souls who devote 100%."

Do you ever feel an emptiness or unfulfilled desire in your life? If so, have you ever considered your view is perhaps nearsighted, instead of farsighted enough to vision your capabilities? The plain fact is that every one of us possesses certain energies and resources that are often unused or wasted.

Let us remember that each of us has some unique capacity waiting for realization. Let us remember every person is valuable in his own existence... for himself alone... Let us remember that in our communities, in our circle of family and friends, each of us can bring to fruition these innate, God-given abilities...

Chretien Urges Caution

Break-Ins Topic For Montclair- Wollaston Assn.

Ward 3 City Councillor Lawrence Chretien is calling upon residents of Montclair and Wollaston to be cautious in response to a number of recent break-ins in those neighborhoods.

Chretien will update residents of any new information regarding the break-ins at the next meeting of the Montclair-Wollaston Association Thursday, March 3 at 7:30 p.m. in Good Shepherd Lutheran Church, Harvard and West Squantum Streets.

"Residents who have been reading the paper lately have noticed that a large number of break-ins have occurred recently in the Montclair-Wollaston area west of Newport Avenue. Although most of the breaks have happened in the area north of Beale Street, some homes have been broken into just outside that area, such as up on Wollaston Hill."

Chretien said he has contacted Police Chief Francis Mullen about the situation.

"I have spoken to Chief Mullen about this wave of break-ins and he has assured me that the Police Department is responding appropriately," he said. "However, I advise all residents of Ward 3 to properly secure their homes and to keep a careful eye out for suspicious activity. If you see anything suspicious, call the Police Department at 479-1212 and let the police determine whether or not it is related to these breaks."

Cheney Updates Ward 4 Assn.

On Winter Weather Issues

City Council President Michael Cheney recently updated the Ward 4 Neighborhood Association on issues related to the many snowstorms the city has experienced this winter.

A Snow Removal Task Force was recently established in the city, under Cheney's direction, to examine problems of winter parking and snow removal. The task force, which includes Ward 1 Councillor Peter Kolson and Ward 6 Councillor Bruce Ayers, is in the process of formulating solutions for improvement.

Cheney told the Ward 4 association that some possibilities for change include notification of winter parking regulations sent with tax bills, a training session for snow plow drivers, and a comprehensive driveway expansion program.

The driveway program would assist homeowners who wish to create additional off-street parking through the entire process, Cheney said.

Cheney also discussed the history of the Quincy's First Night festivities. This year over 500 volunteers worked at the event, which was attended by 25,000, he said. Cheney also noted that an "Office of Special Events" is being established to help coordinate such citywide events.

IDS Financial Services Reaches $100 Billion As Centennial Approaches

IDS Financial Services Inc., a leading financial planning firm, will reach the $100 billion mark in assets owned or managed as the company is celebrating its 100 year anniversary, according to John E. Keohane, a Personal Financial Planner with the local office of IDS, 1245 Hancock St., Suite 32 in Quincy.

"The milestone is a great way to unofficially kick off our centennial year," Keohane said. "IDS is quickly becoming one of the largest and most successful financial services companies in America. Our assets have increased more than five-fold since 1984, when American Express acquired IDS - from $19.3 billion to $100 billion."

The official kick-off of the company's centennial year took place Jan. 1, at the 105th Tournament of Roses Parade in Pasadena, California, where IDS sponsored a float. The theme of the float, "Making Dreams Come True," was chosen to reflect IDS' mission of helping people build a secure financial future.

IDS, founded in Minneapolis, has a number of other events planned throughout the year to celebrate its milestone birthday. The American Express shareholder meeting will be held in April in Minneapolis. The company's national conference to honor its financial planners is scheduled for July in that city. Special "100th birthday" lights will surround the IDS Tower, the company's headquarters.

Since being acquired by American Express, IDS earnings have compounded at an annual growth rate of 22 percent. In addition, the number of financial planners associated with IDS has nearly doubled.

IDS originally began its business offering a single product - face amount savings certificates. The company now offers about 150 financial products and services, including financial plans, mutual funds, insurance, annuities, brokerage and lending services, limited partnerships and others.

During its 100 year history, the company has focused on establishing long-term relationships with clients by helping them plan and save for various "life events," such as buying their first home, providing college education for their children and planning for retirement.

IDS planners offer plans for individuals, families and small businesses.

DeWolfe New England Hosts Over 900 At Annual Convention

The DeWolfe Companies Inc., the Massachusetts-based homeownership company providing residential real estate, mortgage and relocation services, recently held its annual convention at the Hyatt Regency Cambridge.

The one-day event featured nationally-known keynote speakers and educational courses, including personal finances, legal issues, top selling/listing panels and more. The convention also featured a trade show offering real estate products and services.

Lou Platt, executive vice president of the Jon Douglas Company in Beverly Hills, Calif. told the over 900 DeWolfe attendees "I respect you as a leader... You may think of yourselves as a local New England company, but you are not. You are a national model, an innovative company, that is really watched and observed by real estate professionals all over the country." The Douglas company is a 30-office real estate firm with annual sales volume in excess of $6 billion.

Richard B. DeWolfe, chairman and chief executive officer and Daniel Gabriel, general manager reviewed corporate strategy and new developments. Nicki Joy, a real estate marketing specialist, closed out the day's events. DeWolfe's Marketing Department unveiled the 1994 plans for advertising and promotional materials.

DeWolfe said "the convention was an extremely exciting event for our entire company."

Between the keynote speakers, the team of professionals who taught the courses and the vendors represented, the convention produced an even higher level of energy and enthusiasm among those affiliated with the company.

Since 1949, DeWolfe New England has been providing homeownership services to its customers and clients. Today, The DeWolfe Companies Inc. has over 1,000 sales associates and employees and provides its services throughout Massachusetts, New Hampshire, southern Maine and northern Rhode Island. DeWolfe is the only publicly held homeownership company in America and recently announced its 41st sales center in Worcester.

NQHS Teacher Elected NEBEA 1st Vice President

Gerald C. Quintiliani, a business/computer teacher at North Quincy High School, was elected 1st vice president of the New England Business Educators Association during its recent 91st annual convention at the Sheraton Portsmouth.

Quintiliani has also served as a computer/word processing instructor at Quincy College and an instructor for the Education Human Services Department at Suffolk University.

A resident of Braintree, he is a member of the Massachusetts Business Education Association, Eastern Business Education Association, National Business Education Association, Quincy Education Association, and Norfolk County Teachers Association.

Joseph Innello Promoted At Kennedy & Lehan

Joseph Innello of Quincy has been promoted to audit semi-senior at Kennedy & Lehan, CPA, 300 Crown Colony Dr., Quincy.

A lifelong Quincy resident, Innello is a graduate of Stonehill College. He recently passed the CPA examination.

Ayers, D'Aprix, NQ Businessmen To Discuss Quincy 2000 March 3

Ward 6 City Councillor Bruce Ayers will hold a meeting in conjunction with North Quincy Businessmen and Professionals Association President Joe Doran Sr. Thursday, March 3 at 8 a.m. at Walsh's Restaurant, Billings Road, North Quincy. Guest speaker will be Charles D'Aprix, executive director of Quincy 2000, the city's public-private planning corporation. He will discuss the various programs Quincy 2000 has to offer including its consulting program and low interest loans available for small businesses.

"Being a small businessman myself, and in these economic times, to have an ally like Quincy 2000 gives extra support," said Ayers. "Joe Doran Sr. and myself want to make sure that the North Quincy Businessmen know what is available to them."

For more information, call Ayers at 472-9877.

Board Closes Down Kelly's For 30 Days

19 and Dec. 31.

Fleming questioned Greg Mancus, of 36 Main St., Quincy who had previously testified that he suffered physical injuries as a result of being allegedly shoved into Kelly's glass doors by a staff "bouncer" as Mancus was being ejected from the premises following a dispute on the floor.

Fleming said that Mancus' injuries, including a broken nose and black eye, may have been by a stranger outside the restaurant or by a patron that followed Mancus outside.

Fleming said Mancus had to assume some responsibility for the injuries he received as, according to Fleming, Mancus' ejection from the building began when he got involved in a trivial incident involving a party hat.

Both Shea and Mulvey said nonetheless, Kelly had to assume some responsibility for the incident as it began in Kelly's and was only continued outside.

Specific management policies, such as obtaining accurate door counts were reviewed as they affected incidents on the dates under review.

The restaurant's night manager, Philip Steele, 46, of Plymouth, was questioned before the board by Fleming on the fall incidents.

Steele who was not at work Oct. 21 was unable to discuss a report of a disturbance.

No other employees of Kelly's appeared before the Board.

Steele, whose responsibilities include supervising the floor men, disputed Middendorff's Oct. 23 report of overcrowding by 98 people.

According to his count, based on tickets dispensed and dollars collected, 175 patrons were in the building.

This particular incident led to a discussion of the way in which an occupancy count at the door is taken at Kelly's.

Although recommended by Mullen for all city restaurants and nightclubs to use, Kelly's staff does not use a metal counter. Without one, he explained, an accurate occupancy count cannot always be guaranteed.

Also discussed as a contributing factor to the frequency of police instances at the restaurant is the way in which Kelly's business has evolved.

In 1989, members of the board at that time approved a common victualler's license for a proposed family style restaurant that would cater to families and a mature business crowd.

Kelly's average patron age is 23, according to Police Chief Francis Mullen.

Said Shea to Fleming with direct reference to Kelly's young patrons, "Of the 89 establishments in the city, and they've all had their moments, and perhaps some haven't had any, there seems to be more instances in this particular place in a shorter period of time.

If you removed him [Kelly] from this process, I think this incident would still be before us."

City Rejects State School Choice Plan

Quincy will not be part of the state's school choice plan.

The School Committee voted last week not to participate in school choice, a program in which students from one community can attend schools in another without paying tuition, if space is available.

The committee vote was taken after hearing a recommendation from School Supt. Eugene Creedon, who said Quincy should not participate because current and projected enrollments show overcrowded conditions in the city's elementary and middle schools.

School districts can reject the program under the state Education Reform Act if they do not have space.

Jordan Marsh Warehouse Portion Leased To Reebok

A major portion of the new vacant Jordan Marsh Warehouse in North Quincy has been leased to Reebok International of Stoughton for storage use.

The announcement was made Tuesday by Ward 6 City Councillor Bruce Ayers and Charles D'Aprix, executive director of Quincy 2000, the city's public-private planning corporation.

"It (the deal) sends a positive message to the development community in Massachusetts that a prestigious organization like Reebok has decided to locate in Quincy," said D'Aprix. "Although the initial lease is only for six months, it removes a significant portion of a large vacant parcel from the market."

D'Aprix said Reebok has agreed to lease approximately 500,000 square feet of space in the 1.3 million square foot building. He praised Quincy broker Mark Dickinson for putting the deal together.

"Mark Dickinson has a strong handle on the Quincy real estate market," said D'Aprix. "He actively pursued Reebok on Quincy's behalf."

The amount of the tax benefit to the city from the deal has not been determined because D'Aprix is still working on those numbers.

Ayers said he shares D'Aprix's enthusiasm and is sure Reebok will be a good neighbor.

"Before the deal was signed, I met with representatives of Reebok and with Federal Department Stores, the owners of the warehouse," said Ayers. "I received commitments that there would be limited truck traffic and that the neighborhoods in the area would not be affected."

Ayers added that Reebok did not require city approval of the deal because the use remained warehousing. He added, however, that he has worked with Reebok officials to receive assurances of compatibility with the neighborhood.

D'Aprix said Reebok's initial six-month lease can be renewed and Quincy 2000 will actively seek the company as a permanent fixture at the site. He said the rest of the structure will become easier to market now that Reebok is in place, adding that Quincy 2000 will work with Federated to lease the rest of the building to a compatible user.

School Committee Vote On Childhood Center Tonight

The School Committee will vote tonight (Thursday) on the naming of the new Early Childhood Center in South Quincy.

The committee's meeting will begin at 7:30 p.m. in the City Council Chamber at Quincy City Hall, 1305 Hancock St., Quincy Center.

The two proposed names for the center are that of Abigail Adams, wife and mother respectively of John Adams and John Quincy Adams (second and sixth U.S.

Presidents) who was also an early proponent of women's rights; and Amelio Della Chiesa, a South Quincy native who served the city 22 years as mayor, city councillor and state representative.

Four of the School Committee's seven votes are needed to make either name official.

School Committee Vice Chairman Daniel Raymond and members Stephen Durkin and Ronald Mariano have indicated they will likely vote for the Della Chiesa name, while committee member Sean Barry has said he definitely will. Committee members JoAnn Bragg and Linda Stice have said they are leaning toward voting for the Adams name.

Mayor James Sheets, who serves as chairman of the School Committee, was on vacation at press time but will attend tonight's meeting. The mayor has said in the past that he feels both names are worthy of the honor.

8-0 Confidence Vote

Council Backs Sheets' College Autonomy Plan

By MICHAEL WHALEN

Mayor James Sheets' home-rule petition to establish an independent board of trustees as the new governing body over Quincy College has been endorsed by the City Council.

The council's Education Committee gave an 8-0 vote of confidence to the mayor's plan Monday night. Councillor Joseph LaRaia was unable to attend.

A formal vote on the matter will not be taken until the Education Committee meets Monday, March 7 at 7 p.m. in the City Council Chamber at Quincy City Hall. The council delayed a formal vote so that several amendments made Monday night to the Sheets plan can be incorporated.

With the support of the City Council and the mayor, the petition will now have to be approved by the state Legislature and Gov. William Weld before taking effect. Executive Secretary Thomas Koch said Sheets is hopeful the legislation will be passed before the start of the new fiscal year in July.

Councillors decided it was best to vote as quickly as possible for the governance change because the New England Association of Schools and Colleges is scheduled to vote Friday whether to place the college on probation. The NEASC has ruled that the college, which is currently under the jurisdiction of the School Committee, must change its governance system or face losing its accreditation.

Quincy College President Donald Young told the Education Committee he plans to meet with NEASC officials this afternoon in Dedham to ask them to delay their vote. The committee agreed to give Young a letter regarding its vote of confidence to show to the NEASC as a display of good faith.

Young said after the meeting he thinks there is a "good chance" that the NEASC will delay its vote after seeing that the City Council and the mayor are supportive of a governance change at the college.

"They're (NEASC) reasonable people," said Young.

Council President Michael Cheney said the Education Committee almost had to take the action "in light of the impending meeting" between Young and the NEASC this afternoon.

Ward 5 Councillor Charles Phelan, chairman of the Education Committee, agreed.

"It would help Dr. Young going into the meeting with a letter (of good faith) like that," said Phelan.

Councillor Timothy Cahill voiced similar sentiments, although he said he was "frustrated" by the fact that it has taken so long for the governance change proposal to receive a vote of confidence from the council.

"It reflects badly on us (Cont'd on Page 19)

Johnson Files Suit To Get Job Back

Former Quincy College President O. Clayton Johnson has filed a lawsuit in the hopes of being reinstated as head of the college.

Johnson, fired last September after accusations of insubordination and mismanagement, is also seeking back pay and damages from Supt. Eugene Creedon and the School Committee.

When he fired Johnson from his $70,000 a year position, Creedon said he was acting under the authority of the state Education Reform Act, which gives superintendents the power to hire and fire school personnel.

However, Johnson's attorneys, Lauren Duca

and Bruce Singal, counter in a complaint filed in Superior Court that the firing should be overturned because the Reform Act does not apply to college presidents.

The lawyers are asking for a ruling from the court that Johnson was not a school principal and that the act only applies to employees of public schools with grades from K-12.

Quincy College is owned by the city and managed by the school department. Johnson, who served as college president for 10 years, was the first president to be fired from the college since its founding in 1957.

At press time neither Johnson nor Creedon could be reached for comment on the suit, which was filed last week.

The litigation, which also lists state Education Commissioner Robert Antonucci as a defendant, also seeks an injunction to prevent the department (Cont'd on Page 19)

Proposed School St. Cafe Runs Into Opposition

By LISA CONNELL

License Board officials voted Tuesday to continue a common victuallers/all alcoholic beverage hearing for a proposed cafe at 3 School St. because of opposition from property abutters, including a church.

A lack of adequate parking in the area for potential patrons was also a cause for the board's postponement, according to Police Chief Francis Mullen.

Quincy resident Gregg Rennie, manager of International Cafe, hopes to renovate and move into the 800 square foot space, the former site of Stooges cafe.

International and flavored coffees, cordials and cold sandwiches are planned for Rennie's menu. The cafe and coffeehouse will accommodate no more than 30 seats.

Angus MacDonald, manager of Firestone Tire and Senior Warden Edward Corey of Christ Church, Episcopal spoke in opposition to the proposed cafe.

Corey, reading from a letter addressed to the board, said that "this...area may shortly qualify for a reputation of being called 'Saloon Alley.'"

As stated in Corey's letter, "the statutes of the commonwealth note that boards should give considerations to objections brought by Houses-of -Worship [sic] located in proximity to license addresses. Christ Church is located diagonally across the intersecting streets at the location being sought after. Being so close gives our parishioners concern that we might be subjected to scenarios that historically have occurred outside of alcohol dispensing establishments."

MacDonald objected to Rennie's plans primarily due to lack of parking in the area.

Located across the street from the proposed cafe site, MacDonald said, "there is a parking problem in the area and cars have been left overnight in front of the store."

Without mentioning any specific establishments, MacDonald said he has experienced a history of patrons who sneak out of the establishment they are in, go into the Firestone lot with glass bottles, and later break those bottles in the Firestone parking lot.

A new ruling by the state Alcohol Beverage and Control Commission (ABCC) may affect what beverages Rennie serves at his cafe.

License Board Chairman and City Clerk Joseph Shea said he had learned very recently from Police Chief Francis Mullen and city Liquor Inspector Detective Sergeant Richard Laracy that the ABCC will allow a new license for those establishments that serve coffee and cordials, as in a cafe or coffeehouse setting.

While all specific information regarding the new type of liquor license has not yet been received by city officials, including Mullen, Shea said, "It's a lesser of a license...In lieu of an all alcoholic beverage license, they allow the common victualler to serve cordials and liquors. This will limit the serving of alcohol [in some establishments]."

Shea also spoke on parking problems in the area.

"We've had questions about that site in the past," said Shea, "but it's not our job to discourage anyone."

Rennie, educated in Quincy schools, an experienced restaurant manager, will be managing and hiring staff.

The board will continue this discussion March 15.

Cheney Calls Meeting Regarding Possible Storm

City Council President Michael Cheney was scheduled to hold a meeting with city department heads yesterday (Wednesday) to discuss plans for another impending snowstorm.

At press time Tuesday, local meteorologists were predicting a major storm for last night and early today (Thursday).

Since meteorologists are in agreement that the storm would cause flooding along the coastline, Cheney, who called the meeting in his capacity as acting mayor, said he wanted to meet with department heads to discuss plans to protect public safety during the storm.

Mayor James Sheets was out of the city as press time and expect to return later in the week.

Cheney said additional firefighters and equipment will be placed on the peninsulas of Houghs Neck and Squantum. He added that he has requested that the Department of Public Works check out all water pumping and emergency generator equipment, as well as block separations in the seawalls along Edgewater Drive in Houghs Neck.

The Quincy Police Department and Quincy Emergency Management Agency will also be ready to address residents' needs, Cheney said.

In the event of any real emergency, shelters will be located at the Atherton Hough, Squantum and Quincy Vo-Tech Schools, he added. Cheney asked all residents to remain tuned to WIDA (1300 AM) for additional storm-related information.

Kelly's Loses First Appeal

By LISA CONNELL

While awaiting a ruling by the state Alcohol Beverage and Control Commission, Kelly's In The Square may remain open, but it must abide by a midnight closing and surrender its entertainment license. Board Chairman and City Clerk Joseph Shea said Tuesday at the board's weekly meeting.

Kelly's lost an appeal Tuesday morning before Norfolk Superior Court Judge Thomas E. Connolly to retain their entertainment license and remain open until 1 a.m.

Before going into executive session with Assistant City Solicitor James Timmins, Shea said that "Judge Connolly did not see favorably on his [Kelly's] request and that Connolly believes the License Board has the right to set hours [for an establishment]."

Kelly and Fleming, appeared before the board Feb. 22. At that time, the board unanimously voted to close Kelly's down for 30 days, beginning March 1, for reported liquor violations and other disturbances as reported by Quincy police to the board.

The board also voted to suspended Kelly's entertainment license, set a midnight closing and ordered three video games to be removed from the premises at 15 Cottage Ave.

Following the board's decision, the ABCC was petitioned for a stay on the 30 day suspension of Kelly's license. Kelly's will remain open for business while the ABCC makes their ruling.

Shea said the board won't go forward on a suspension of operations until the ABCC rules. Shea is hopeful the ABCC will make their ruling sometime in March.

Ward 4 Group Receives Crime Fighter Award

In recognition for helping the Quincy Police Department rid a Willard Street apartment building of suspected drug dealers, the Ward 4 Crime Watch Group has become the first recipient of the department's Crime Fighter Award.

Quincy Crime Prevention Officer Bob Hanna presented the plaque to the group and its founder, Ward 4 City Councillor Thomas Fabrizio, at a recent ceremony.

"It's important for the community to stand high, and this crime watch is an example of that," said Fabrizio. "I'm very proud of the residents' involvement. This award proves that if people get involved, good things will happen."

Hanna said the building at 145 Willard St. had long been suspected of being a center of criminal activity, but police were having trouble monitoring it because the suspects had police scanners and therefore knew when police were nearby.

Hanna said the crime watch gave information to police that was crucial in leading to the arrest of eight people on drug and theft charges in December, which led to a virtual end to problems in the

Broad Meadows
School Will Miss Procter & Gamble

Editor, The Quincy Sun:
On behalf of my colleagues and the students of the Broad Meadows Middle School in Quincy, may I express our sorrow that Procter & Gamble will soon be closing its Quincy plant.
Our hearts go out particularly to the workers and their families, many of whom will have great difficulty finding comparable employment in a very tight job market.

Broad Meadows Middle School and the Quincy P & G plant have developed a model school-business partnership over the past 3 and 1/2 years. This was a major factor for our being designated as a National School of Excellence. The company has generously supported the costs of our field experiences and many other endeavors which have allowed our students to experience the real world outside the classroom.

More important, though, has been their willingness to work directly with the teachers and students at the school in helping us to understand and prepare for what our students will experience when they enter the world of work.

Our sixth graders have had the opportunity to collaborate on science projects with volunteer scientists from P & G. Our seventh graders have had the opportunity to experience a manufacturing operation first hand in visits to the plant. This experience has made them think more meaningfully about the importance of their education to their future.

Our eighth graders have had the opportunity to spend the greater part of a day at the plant learning about and performing experiments in the testing laboratories.

P & G has welcomed frequent visits by both teachers and students to the plant and P & G personnel have been frequent visitors to the school. A special bond has developed between Broad Meadows and Procter and Gamble which with the plant's closing will be sorely missed!

Although all of the workers at Procter & Gamble have been generous and kind to us, I would be remiss if I did not publicly acknowledge the unique contributions of several workers without whose support our partnership could never have succeeded. First and foremost, I would like to commend the efforts of Nancy Traiser, the plant's personnel director, who served as the coordinator for the program and without whose efforts the partnership would never have flourished as it has.
Special thanks to Bob Randall who organized the eighth grade mentoring

A Karen Cashman Day

Quincy is planning a Karen Cashman Day to honor its hometown speed skating Olympic bronze medal winner.

Mayor James Sheets has given an enthusiastic green-light from Florida where he has been on vacation.

He and Executive Secretary Tom Koch will start formulating the plans today when he arrives back.

The question is just when the event will be held.
She'll be home this week but not long enough.

Cashman, the 22-year-old daughter of Fred and Jane Cashman of Furnace Brook Parkway, is a junior at Northern Michigan University where she is studying clinical and administrative dietetics.

An easy solution, it would seem, would be to hold the tribute during her spring break from school. But it may not be that easy.

She will be training for the world championships to be held in Guilford, England this month and later in Canada.

But the mayor's office is confident they will be able to work her day around her schedule.

Cashman won the bronze medal as a member of the U.S. short track speed skating relay team.

MEANWHILE, there is already a Quincy honor for Karen. Purdy's Ice Cream Parlor on Billings Rd., North Quincy is now featuring a special new flavor called "Cashman's Crunch."

It has an appropriate bronze colored nugget base with a Heath Bar crunch, walnuts, and almonds.

"She's a hometown girl and we just thought it would be nice to do this," says Kevin Forti.

The new flavor will be the special for two weeks.
And if it proves popular it may become a permanent special.

QUINCY BUILDING INSPECTOR Matt Mulvey may be stepping into the political arena. Mulvey is thinking about running for Norfolk County Commissioner this year.

"I'm giving it some serious thought," he says. "I plan to come to a decision sometime this month."

Mulvey is an East Weymouth resident and a Democrat.
He would be running for the seat now occupied by Bruce Olson of Stoughton, a Republican.

Mulvey says his experience as a building inspector would be helpful in estimating the costs of repairs to and maintenance of county buildings and save taxpayers some money.

JIM McGETTRICK, owner of the Nostalgia-Beachcomber at Wollaston Beach celebrated his 60th birthday the other night and Quincy youngsters got the present.

Friends wanted to hold the party but McGettrick really didn't want it.
But he agreed with the stipulation that if there were any proceeds, that they would go to the Quincy Police Athletic League that does so much for Quincy youth.

Well, not only did the proceeds go to PAL, but McGettrick also wrote out a $1,000 personal check to go along with it. Total benefit for PAL: approximately $6,000.

That'll help Quincy kids this year.

FRIENDS AND ASSOCIATES roasted Bob Denvir, retired city purchasing agent and parking clerk, at a party the other night at the Common Market.

But Denvir came loaded up with his own zingers to make it a real hilarious night.

By the end of the night the question was: who roasted who?

Even when his long-time friend, former Mayor
Frank McCauley whom Denvir calls
"The Fuhrer" was being nice, Denvir was ready. McCauley was presenting a personal citation to him, commending him as a dedicated "foot soldier" in the McCauley political battles.

McCauley cited the time Denvir was going door-to-door with McCauley campaign literature when he was attacked by two dogs.

"Yeah," interrupted Denvir, "when I called him to tell him, all he wanted to know was whether I had finished the route."

Former Mayor Joseph LaRaia recalled the 1965 mayoral race when he ran against James McIntyre and James McCormack. LaRaia finished second in the preliminary election—some 8,000 votes behind McIntyre.

LaRaia said he asked Denvir (his friend) for an assessment of his chances of winning in the final election. Denvir, never one to pussy-foot around told him: "I wouldn't give you a dime." (to help finance the campaign.) It was a good assessment: McIntyre swamped LaRaia by 14,000 votes in the final election.

City Clerk Joseph Shea who served on the reception committee with City Solicitor Steve McGrath and DPW Commissioner
Dave Colton, noted they had trouble trying to find the right date for the party.

"We wanted to be sure to do it while the mayor was out of town," Shea said, inferring that if Jim Sheets was in town, he wouldn't attend. (Sheets was in Florida).

"The mayor's not out of town," retorted Denvir.
"He's right over there"—pointing to McCauley.

Denvir, using McGrath to zing the city councillors taking part in the roast, said: "McGrath told me this is the worst City Council he has ever seen."

Council President Mike Cheney and Councillors
Peter Kolson, Larry Chretien and Chuck Phelan laughed but seemed to be studying McGrath the rest of the night.

Shea came up with an appropriate touch for the tickets to the party: actual parking violations tickets which included the fine ($20 price) and the violation:
code 22 (meter expired.)

Denvir, during the night, sat in the chair he used in his office and which was later presented to him. Also presented were a lamp and telephone attached to the bronze head of a parking meter.

To which I would like to add my little shot: It's too bad they didn't plug it in. I don't mean the lamp. I mean the chair. You know, "electric" chair.

Only kidding Robert. Happy retirement.

Scenes From Yesterday

THIS PICTURE POSTCARD view of the old Regent Theatre in Norfolk Downs was taken about 1930 from what is now the Wheelhouse Diner parking lot on the corner of Hancock and Hayward Sts. The theatre building was demolished in the 1970s and replaced with the building now occupied by the South Boston Savings Bank.

Paying Taxes On Social Security Benefits

By CAROL BOYLE

One of Ben Franklin's most famous sayings went something like this: "nothing in life is certain but death and taxes."

I've got a hunch if Ben were around today he'd add: "...but nobody is certain about paying taxes on their Social Security benefits!"

I'll try to make some sense of this very confusing issue.

First, if you're a Social Security beneficiary, the odds are you do not owe any taxes on your benefits. In fact, about 80 percent of all Social Security recipients don't pay taxes on the benefits they receive. Those who do are generally in the upper-income brackets.

Second, a word about income. You owe taxes on your benefits when your "combined income" exceeds certain limits. Combined income refers to your (and your spouse's) adjusted gross income as reported on line 31 of your tax return plus one-half of your Social Security benefits plus your nontaxable interest (generally, that's the interest you receive from bonds issued by a state or local government).

To help you figure your combined income, we send you a "1099" statement at the beginning of each year showing the total Social Security benefits you received in the prior year.

Third, there are different rules for the 1993 tax return you'll file by April 15 of this year than for the 1994 return you'll file next year. I'm including 1994 information to help in your tax planning efforts for next year.

1993 Tax Returns:

If you file an individual 1993 tax return and your

"combined income" last year was over $25,000, up to 50 percent of your Social Security benefits will be taxable.

If you file a joint 1993 tax return and your "combined income" was more than $32,000, up to 50 percent of your Social Security benefits will be taxable.

Couples who file separate tax returns probably will pay taxes on their Social Security benefits.

1994 Tax Returns:

If you plan to file an individual 1994 tax return and you expect your 1994 "combined income" to be between $25,000 and $34,000, up to 50 percent of your Social Security benefits will be taxable. If your income is above $34,000, you should anticipate 85 percent of your benefits being subject to tax.

If you and your spouse plan to file a joint return for 1994 and your "combined income" is between $32,000 and $44,000, up to 50 percent of your benefits will be taxable. But if your joint income exceeds $44,000, up to 85 percent of your Social Security benefits may be taxable.

Couples who file separate tax returns probably will pay taxes on their Social Security benefits.

For More Information:

Although the subject has been Social Security benefits, questions about taxes are matters for the Internal Revenue Service. So if you need more tax information, you should call the IRS at 1-800-829-1040.

Point-Webster School Thanks Kennedy Studio, Fleet Bank

Editor, The Quincy Sun:

This past December, Kennedy Studio of Quincy and the regional branches of Fleet Bank entered into a business agreement with Point-Webster Elementary here in Quincy. A display of children's art work was assembled for the silent auction at the five bank offices and over $400 was raised for the school.

We at Point-Webster are grateful to David Caswell, the owner of Kennedy Studio to whom I initially approached with the idea of framing students' work for display. His business has been generous to us on many past occasions, but on this request he went all out by framing over 90 pieces of art work, 60 of which were placed under glass.

And it was Paul Stouffer and Cheryl Santee, officers at Fleet

Bank who made the auction possible by displaying the work and taking bids for the pieces at their banks.

The money raised will be used to fund projects at our schools. We thank these people for their generosity.

Impact Quincy To Receive Mayoral Proclamation March 7

Mayor James Sheets will present Impact Quincy with a special proclamation for its work in helping women deal with substance abuse.

The presentation and reception will take place Monday, March 7 from 11:30 a.m. to 1 p.m. in the second floor Conference Room at Quincy City Hall, 1305 Hancock St., Quincy Center.

The event is being held as part of Women's Alcohol, Tobacco and Other Drug (ATOD) Awareness Week March 6-12. The week is dedicated by the Massachusetts Department of Public Health/Bureau of Substance Abuse Services to a wide array of issues related to women and substance abuse in conjunction with the statewide theme "Embracing Visions of Women's Health: Dreams, Themes and Imperatives."

Union Leader Arrives To Lead Drive At Shipyard

John Green, national president of the Industrial Union of Marine and Shipyard Workers, arrived in Quincy and set up headquarters in the Point as the union began a new drive to organize workers at the Fore River Shipyard.

"The events of the Roosevelt administration regarding labor's charter of freedom and the raw decision of three National Labor Relations Board have educated the workers in the Fore River yard and in 1935 they may translate those lessons into action," he said.

"It is obvious to members of the industrial union in the Fore River yard that they will have to fight to win concessions necessary to a better standard of living. It will be no easy job to make the Bethlehem barons back down."

Meanwhile, David Clydesdale, who was trying to organize the shipyard for the AFL Machinists union, pledged to eat a dues book in Quincy Square if the workers joined his union and it failed to better wages and working conditions in six months.

HIGH SCHOOL ADDITION

Mayor Charles A. Ross asked the City Council for authority to borrow $300,000 so that construction of the badly needed new wing for North Quincy High School could get underway by the summer.

Ross said the request did not mean that the city had abandoned hope for federal funds which were delayed by the refusal of Congress to pass President Roosevelt's multi-million dollar work relief program.

The authorization to borrow would just be used as a backup should federal funding fail, said Ross.

Dennis, Pauline Sweeney Lead 'Daffodil Days' Drive

Dennis and Pauline Sweeney of Quincy are leading the American Cancer Society's "Daffodil Days" fundraising effort in the city as well as a number of South Shore towns.

Orders for the flowers, at $5 for a bunch of 10 and $250 for a box of 500, are being taken at the office of the Society's South Shore Unit at 341-4210. Specially marked designing vases are also available at $5 apiece. Deadline is March 11.

Mr. and Mrs. Sweeney have set successive records among all units in the state in recent years for their efforts in Quincy, Braintree, Cohasset, Hingham, Hull, Milton, Norwell, Scituate and Weymouth.

"People respond generously to this campaign because it helps them get over the winter blahs while also helping the fight against cancer," said Pauline Sweeney. "There's nothing quite like the thrill of seeing the buds burst forth overnight into cheery yellow flowers. It's appropriate that we call this first flower of spring the 'flower of hope.'"

Orders for five or more bouquets will be delivered March 22 and 23, while smaller orders may be picked up at a number of locations, including 15 CVS stores in the area, beginning March 24.

Proceeds support the Society's program of research, education and patient services. Among those services are free mammograms, seminars for health professionals, public education programs in schools and businesses, and free transportation by volunteers who take patients to hospitals for treatment.

Prosecutor Says Teen Shooting No Accident

A prosecutor has concluded that the Feb. 5 shooting death of a Weymouth teenager in Quincy was not accidental.

Sean Hynes, a 19-year-old North Quincy High School graduate and a resident of 18 Hilltop St., pleaded innocent Monday to a charge of second-degree murder in the shooting death of his best friend, 18-year-old John Auger of Weymouth.

Quincy Police initially had charged Hynes with manslaughter after ruling that the killing of Auger was accidental.

Assistant District Attorney John Corrigan, however, said Monday that a review of statements made by Hynes and two others present at the time of the shooting in Hynes' home—Mark Leuchte, 18, and Don Salvaggi, 15—led a grand jury to increase the charge because of a number of discrepancies in the teenagers' accounts of what took place.

The prosecutor said the discrepancies indicate that the shooting was "not merely reckless conduct, but intentional conduct."

According to Corrigan, Hynes said his father's .357 Magnum revolver accidentally went off when Hynes entered his kitchen. Corrigan said Leuchte and Salvaggi told police that Hynes walked into the kitchen, said the words "Russian Roulette" and pointed the gun at Auger. The gun clicked twice, but on the third pull fired a shot that struck Auger in the head.

Corrigan said there are other discrepancies that indicate Hynes may not be telling the truth.

Conviction on a second-degree murder charge carries a mandatory sentence of life, with parole eligibility after 15 years in prison.

Quincy Hospital Opens Transitional Care Unit

Quincy Hospital officially opened its new Transitional Care Unit (TCU) at a recent ribbon cutting ceremony on the west-fifth floor of the hospital.

Mayor James Sheets presided over the ceremony.

The TCU was developed to provide essential services for patients who are no longer acutely ill, but need rehabilitative therapy and nursing care before they return home. Within the unit, patients participate in comprehensive rehabilitation programs designed to increase their independence in living skills, mobility and communication.

"The addition of the Transitional Care Unit to the spectrum of services currently offered by Quincy Hospital provides a much needed level of care for hospitalized patients," said Ellen Zane, director of Quincy Hospital. "As health care reform rolls out, it is this type of service which will enable Quincy Hospital to meet our patients needs in the most effective and cost-efficient manner."

Following the ribbon cutting ceremony, Quincy Hospital hosted a Business After Hours reception, in conjunction with the South Shore Chamber of Commerce. City councillors and members of the South Shore business had the opportunity to be a part of the grand opening of the hospital's TCU while networking with other business people from the area.

The Chamber of Commerce regularly offers the Business After Hours events for the South Shore business community at different companies on the South Shore.

TRANSITIONAL CARE UNIT at Quincy Hospital is toured by city officials upon its recent opening. From left, Councillor Joseph LaRosa, Councillor Ted DeCristofaro and Mayor James Sheets look over whirlpool with nurse manager Gerri Hagan and hospital administrator Karol Bisbee. The unit is a short-term program for patients who will receive nursing and rehabilitative care after being discharged from Quincy Hospital without having to leave the hospital building.

It's All In The Wrist: Carpal Tunnel Syndrome

(NAPS)—Have you ever woken up at night with a nagging ache in your hand or wrist? Does your hand sometimes feel numb or weak? If so, you may be suffering from carpal tunnel syndrome (CTS), an ailment that is quickly becoming known as the workplace disorder of the '90's.

The best thing to do, if you suspect you may have carpal tunnel syndrome, is to see your doctor.

CTS is identified with the workplace because it most frequently occurs in people whose jobs are highly automated or require them to perform repetitive wrist movements. Assembly line workers, grocery checkers, musicians, data entry operators, cooks and carpenters are among those at risk. It can also, however, be related to rheumatoid arthritis, gout, amyloidosis, diabetes or even pregnancy.

CTS affects the median nerve, which supplies sensation to the thumb, index finger, middle finger and half of the ring finger, and power to the thumb muscles. When the median nerve is compressed as it passes through a narrow tunnel of bone and ligament at the wrist, it results in CTS, which causes numbness, pain and weakness.

Although the pain and numbness may happen at any time, they usually begin at night. Initially, shaking or massaging the hand may help to relieve the pain, but if untreated, the problem will progress and become more painful.

As it advances, carpal tunnel syndrome weakens the grip, and in chronic cases, it may even cause gradual deterioration of the thumb muscles. Permanent nerve damage may result if the symptoms are ignored.

"Treatment for mild, early CTS may consist of wrist splints to relieve pressure on the median nerve by supporting the wrist in a straight or neutral position," according to Dr. Michael Bowman, a hand specialist with Oakland Orthopaedic Associates. "Medication may also be used to reduce inflammation and swelling. And in the most serious cases, a surgical procedure called a carpal tunnel release may be recommended." Dr. Bowman also noted that new surgical methods are continually being investigated.

To help avoid CTS, Dr. Bowman suggests taking the following steps:

- Avoid using your wrist in a flexed or extended position for long periods of time.
- Use your whole hand and all of your fingers to grasp an object.
- Avoid repetitive movements.

- Alternate easy and difficult tasks, switch hands, or rotate activities.
- Rest your hands periodically.
- Exercise to strengthen your hand and arm muscles.

For more information on carpal tunnel syndrome, please contact: Lora Wilson, Oakland Orthopaedic Associates, 5820 Centre Avenue, Pittsburgh, PA 15206.

Proper keyboard positioning can help reduce the incidence of carpal tunnel syndrome.

YOUR FEET

Foot Health: What You Should Know

To keep your feet healthy, you should be familiar with the most common ills that affect them. Here are a few:

Athlete's foot is a skin disease, usually starting between the toes, which can spread to other parts of the foot and body. The signs of athlete's foot are drying skin, itching, scaling, inflammation and blisters.

Blisters are caused by skin friction and moisture. Don't pop them. Apply moleskin or an adhesive bandage over a blister, and leave it there until it falls off naturally, usually in the bath or shower.

Corns and calluses are protective layers of compacted, dead skin cells. Never cut corns or calluses and never apply home remedies, except under a podiatrist's instructions.

Ingrown nails are nails whose corners or sides dig painfully into the skin. They're frequently caused by improper nail trimming but also by shoe pressure, injury, fungus infection, heredity and poor foot structure. Toenails should be trimmed straight across, slightly longer than the end of the toe, with toenail clippers.

Warts are caused by a virus, which typically enters

Never pop a blister. If it breaks on its own, wash the area, apply an antiseptic, and cover with a sterile bandage.

the skin through small cuts and abrasions. Children, especially teenagers, tend to be more susceptible to warts than adults. Most warts are harmless, though painful and unsightly.

Remember, though, self treatment can often turn a minor problem into a major one. It's a good idea to see a podiatrist when any of these conditions persist.

For a free pamphlet, "Your Podiatrist Talks About Foot Health," call the American Podiatric Medical Association at 1-800-FOOT-CARE (366-8227) or write the Association at: 9312 Old Georgetown Road, Bethesda, MD 20814.

BREAST CANCER AND DIET

Of all the theories about what causes breast cancer, the link to fat consumption is the one that seems to be gaining the most credibility. Both the American Cancer Society and the American Dietetic Association point out that breast cancer is most common in societies that consume diets high in fat. As dietary fat levels rise, so do estrogen levels in fat tissue, and some studies have fingered estrogen as a trigger for the growth of breast malignancies. While scientists have not isolated a cause-and-effect relationship between fat and breast cancer, they do see a strong enough connection to recommend a diet low in fat and high in dietary fiber, vitamins A and C, and beta-carotene. P.S. Breast cancer is the number one killer of American women between the ages of 35 and 52.

It's great to think that even moderate aerobic exercise can make such a difference. Activity Key To A Healthier Life

By ED SPARGO

"In a central place of every heart there is a recording chamber. So long as it receives of beauty, hope, cheer and courage, so long are you young despite what the calendar shows. But when the wires are all down... and your heart is covered with the snows of pessimism and the ice of cynicism, then, and only then, are you old!"

For those flirting with senior citizen status, or those who already have attained it, that profound philosophy expressed most eloquently by the late General Douglas MacArthur on his 75th birthday, carries a most meaningful message. Because most doctors are convinced that both the mind and body are influenced by one's outlook on life and the outlook on life, by the adage: "USE IT OR LOSE IT!"

Accordingly, those of use "getting up there" in years who keep active, exercise, eat sensibly and become involved... stand a better-than-average chance of warding off—or at least delaying—the onslaught of old-age infirmities.

For countless years, our society has been conditioned to assuring the male of the species that once he reaches age 40 he is over-the-hill; at 50 he is an old man, and by 60 (horrors!), he should be retiring and resigning himself to a quick exit from planet Earth. And, since the average person gets less exercise as he grows older, more often than not that same individual is perfectly willing to accept the social stereotype of the decrepit aged.

But, pay no attention to your chronological age, since it's well documented that activity is the key to man's (and woman's) health. Muscles, organs and glands need to be exercised to stay young and in good working order. For the more they work, the better they are able to work. The tendency of people who reach older age levels is to be less active and this, alas, is the direct road to degeneration. For no one dies of old age; there is no such disease. What we do succumb to is some form of infection, or the deterioration of a vital organ. Thus it follows that the more we use our bodies—and our minds—the less likely they are to degenerate. It's as simple as that!

Therefore, along with a sanguine wish for the good health and well-being of all who have the patience to wade through my garbled syntax and presumptuous suggestions, this meddling old oogenarian has the unmitigated gall to propose a regimen and lifestyle that frown on a rocking-chair addiction. To wit:

1. Try to exercise every day, even if it's only walking around the block or to the store or mailbox and using stairs instead of elevators. A word of caution: Strenuous exercise by the Geriatric Set requires a physician's stamp of approval. But anyone, even the most sedentary, can improve functional capacity with simple exercises so essential to help control our weight.
2. Develop a sense of self-discipline and self-restraint by adopting proper eating habits, a sensible mode of living and "doing everything in MODERATION." Cut down on pesky salt and sugar, fatty and starchy foods and cholesterol. Pamper yourself by getting adequate sleep and rest...

and fill your lungs with fresh air whenever that elusive commodity is available.

3. Keep actively involved socially, politically and in community affairs... with folks of all ages. For that re-charges our "batteries."

4. Relive cherished memories of earlier days by occasionally contacting old friends or acquaintances you haven't seen in ages. Particularly those who are virtually along in the world and have precious few visitors. Show that someone really cares.

5. Don't stagnate! Keep busy. But do take the time to gain self-esteem and self-confidence and develop friendships because, to paraphrase the late American educator, Amos Bronson Alcott: "When one finds company in himself, relatives and friends—and in retirement projects and pursuits—he cannot feel old, no matter what his years may be." [Editor's Note: Ed Spargo, 86 years young, a former newspaperman long retired, is a native of Historic Quincy and unabashedly proud of its rich heritage.]

Treating Headaches With Acupuncture

By DANIEL KARP
Licensed Acupuncturist

Acupuncture is medicine's most reliable treatment for chronic headaches. All kinds of headache problems—migraines, sinus headaches, tension headaches, cluster headaches, vascular headaches, and others—respond remarkably well to acupuncture treatment.

Ninety percent of all headache cases can be cured or controlled with acupuncture. Even difficult headache problems that have not improved with medication will respond very well to acupuncture therapy.

Why does acupuncture work so well for headaches? There are two major reasons. The first is acupuncture's unique and well-known ability to stop pain. Acupuncture activates the body's natural pain-killing mechanisms and directs their efforts into the exact area of the problem. With amazing precision, the acupuncturist locates and treats the nerves, blood vessels, and tissues where the headache originates. Acupuncture succeeds where medication fails because the non-stopping effect can be directed so precisely.

Secondly, acupuncture therapy not only stops headache pain, but also corrects the cause of the pain—those nervous, circulatory, and organic imbalances that give rise to headache symptoms. The internal problems that result in headaches vary widely from individual to individual.

In an important sense, no two headaches are alike. Acupuncture corrects the exact cause of each person's headache. This is why acupuncture succeeds where medication (which is less exact and more symptomatic) fails.

Street Smarts: How To Protect Yourself, Friends

Did You Know?

Every day there are over 2,000 violent crimes committed against teenagers by strangers.

Young people are victims of theft more frequently than are adults.

Older teenagers and young adults are physically assaulted at a higher rate than any other age group.

Two-thirds of violent crimes against teens are committed by other teens. Half of those teens are strangers to their victims.

So What?

So... Knowing how to protect yourself and your friends makes good sense. You don't need to be a walking statistic!

Be Streetwise And Safe:

- Stand tall and walk confidently. Watch where you're going and what's happening around you.
- Stick to well-lighted and busy streets. Walk with friends. Avoid shortcuts through dark alleys, deserted streets and wooded areas.
- If harassed from a car, walk quickly or run in the opposite direction to safety. If you are really scared, scream.
- Never hitchhike. Accept rides only from people you know and trust.
- Don't flash your cash. Just carry enough money for the day. Always carry "emergency" change needed for a phone call.

- Know your neighborhood--when are stores and restaurants open? Where are police and fire stations, libraries, and schools? You might need them in an emergency.
- If you go out for a late night snack or a midnight movie, take a friend. Don't go alone. Most assaults happen to lone victims.
- Let someone, a parent, brother, sister, or friend know where you are going and when you will be back. Call if you're going to be late.
- If you are driving, park your car in a well-lighted area and lock it when you leave. Check for uninvited passengers in the back seat or on the floor before you get back in.

- Jogging Or Biking:
•Go with a friend and take familiar and well-traveled routes.
- Don't jog or bike at night.
- Try jogging without your stereo headphones. It's safer to remain alert to what's around and behind you.

On The Bus Or Subway:

- Use stops that are well-lighted and popular. If your stop is isolated, have someone meet you there.
- Make sure you know which stop is closest to your destination. Check a map or ask the driver.
- Don't fall asleep. Stay alert.
- If you are harassed by anyone, attract attention by talking loudly or screaming.

If You Are The Victim Of A Crime:

- If someone attacks you, try not to panic. Look at the attacker carefully so you can give a good description to the police. Try to remember key things like age, race, complexion, body build, clothing, height, weight, hair, eyes, or unusual features.
- If the attacker has a weapon and only wants your money or possessions, DON'T fight back. Your life and safety are more important.
- If you are harassed by a gang, go to an open store, gas station, firehouse or anywhere there are people present. Ask them for help.
- If you follow the above suggestions, you're chances of being in a crime statistic will be greatly diminished.

Ward 4 Group Receives Crime Fighters Award

building.

"We couldn't have done it without the help from the community," he said.

Police Chief Francis Mullen said future awards will be presented to other individuals or groups that help the department solve crimes. While the department has thanked residents for similar assistance in the past, it was only recently decided to formalize the recognitions, he added.

Hanna said the Willard Street crime watch was an offshoot of a larger Ward 4 group that met at St. Mary's Church in August 1992 after a rape in the neighborhood. He noted that for several months, "between 12 and 15" people wrote down license plate numbers of suspicious cars and kept surveillance on individuals they believed to be involved in illegal activities, and forwarded the information to police.

Hanna said police seized approximately $15,000 worth of drugs and stolen property. Among the items confiscated, he said, were vials of crack cocaine, marijuana, drug paraphernalia and a variety of stolen merchandise including jewelry, computers and VCRs believed to have been taken during break-ins throughout the South Shore.

The group also gave information to police that led to the arrest of a prostitute and other drug arrests, according to Hanna. He added that there are about a dozen active crime watch groups in the city, although the Ward 4 group is the first of its kind specifically centralized in one ward.

Hanna was asked if similar groups will be formed in the city's other five wards.

"If there are requests for them, then absolutely," he said.

Fabrizio said on Feb. 28, the Ward 4 group will begin meeting at the new Ward 4 Community Center attached to the new Early Childhood Center on Brooks Avenue. The group, which began monthly meetings last September, meets the last Monday of every month, he noted.

For more information on the Ward 4 Crime Watch Group, call Fabrizio at 471-2302 or Hanna at the Quincy Police Department, 479-1212.

Lifeguard Course Registration

Recreation Director Barry Welch announces that the Quincy Recreation Department will conduct registration for an American Red Cross Lifeguard Training Course.

The course is open to persons who are at least 15 years of age, have current First Aid and CPR Certification and are capable of passing a prerequisite swim test.

Registration can be made in person at the Lincoln-Hancock School Pool from 6 to 9 p.m. weeknights.

The course will be held Wednesday evenings beginning March 9 at 6 p.m. Successful completion of the course along with a completed First Aid and CPR Course will qualify participants for positions as lifeguards at waterfronts or pool locations.

Fee is $10 for Quincy residents who have a current pool membership. Non-residents' fee is $50. Both groups are responsible for purchasing their own text book from the Red Cross. Lifeguard Training replaces the former Red Cross Advance Lifesaving Course.

For more information, call the Quincy Recreation Department at 376-1394.

SPECIAL HISTORIC QUINCY afghan is admired by Deanna Gazarian, owner of Phase II Jewelry, 1361 Hancock St., Quincy Center. The 50-by-65 inch cotton woven afghan was especially created for Phase II and depicts Old City Hall in the center and from the top, clockwise, the Adams Mansion, Thomas Crane Library, the Dorothy Quincy Homestead, United First Parish Church, the Woodward School, St. John's Church, Bethany Church, the Adams Academy and the Presidents John and John Quincy Adams birthplaces. The afghan sells for $49.90 of which Phase II is donating $10 to the historic site of the purchaser's choice.

From The Firehouse

By Quincy Deputy Fire
Chief Paul Cuddy

Smoking Fire Safety

The National Fire Protection Association recently reported that smoking-related fire deaths account for nearly three-tenths of all residential fire deaths where the cause of fire is known.

Fatal smoking material fires usually involve the ignition of upholstered furniture, mattresses or bedding. While we are all aware of the dangers of smoking in bed, the majority of these smoking-related fires actually start in the living room, family room or den.

If a cigarette falls into an upholstered chair, a fire may smolder for hours before bursting into flames. This is why many of these "careless disposal" fires occur at night when everyone is asleep.

Whether or not you or family members smoke, friends or relatives who visit your home may be smokers. The Quincy Fire Department offers the following recommendations for ensuring the safe use of smoking materials in the home:

1. Always use large, heavy ashtrays, and don't let them become so full that hot ashes may spill over the side.

2. Empty the ashtrays only when they have had time to cool completely. A good idea is to leave full ashtrays in the kitchen sink overnight to make certain the ashes are cool before emptying.

3. Before you go to bed after a party, check for smoldering cigarettes under cushions of couches and chairs.

4. If you begin to feel drowsy while watching television or reading, extinguish your cigarette or cigar before you fall asleep.

5. NEVER smoke in bed! Make it a rule not to allow any smoking materials in the bedroom. Burning sheets, blankets and other bedclothes can create a fire from which escape may be impossible. Toxic fumes from smoke can kill before flames ever break out.

POSITIONING INFANTS IN CAR SEATS

As car buyers and automobile makers continue to focus their attention on car safety, air bags are now coming into widespread use. Although an air bag is part of an automobile's passive restraint system, it should not necessarily be viewed passively.

Of particular concern is that case of a passenger-side air bag deploying when an infant is placed in a rear-facing child seat on the passenger side. The National Highway Traffic Safety Administration warns that a deploying air bag can push a rearward-facing infant with enough force to cause a serious head injury. To prevent this possibility, infants in car seats should be placed in the back seat in a rearward-facing position. This is the preferred position for children's car seats, even without passenger-side air bags.

HINT: By the 1996 model year, all new cars will be required to have passenger-side air bags.

Raiders Open State Tourney At Home Against Newton N.

By DAVE SOUTHWICK
The North Quincy boys' basketball team made its final preparation for the state tournament with an exciting 59-53 upset victory over number five ranked Milton last Thursday.

The Raiders, seeded eighth in the Division 1 South state tournament, opened against ninth-seed Newton at home Wednesday at 7:30 p.m. Both teams are finished their regular seasons with 14-6 records.

"We are very happy with our seeding position," said North Quincy coach Ted Stevenson. "We are also very happy to play our first round game at home."

Stevenson said North Quincy must do two things to get by Newton North: get the ball to senior center Jason McLeod and play hard-nose defense.

If the Raiders prevail, North Quincy would then meet top seed New Bedford Saturday. The game would played at a neutral site and be announced later this week.

Against Milton, North came out running and took a quick 2-0 lead with a McLeod basket and breezed from there. North led the Wildcats 32-24 at half-time.

The Raiders enjoyed their biggest point margin of the night, 14, with 14:00 to go in the game and coasted to the win. Milton made it interesting in the last minute by making 3 three-pointers to make the score closer but Matt Boston hit 6-6 from the free throw line for the 59-53 victory.

Top scorers for the Raiders were McLeod with 23 points, 14 rebounds and eight blocks and Boston with 21 points and 14 assists. Also contributing off the bench was Kevin Ross with six points and five rebounds.

Adam DeBoer, Jerry Fernandez and Brad Gray were also outstanding.

North Quincy Volleyball All-Scholastic Maureen McCarthy To Attend FSU On Four-Year Scholarship

Maureen McCarthy, an all-scholastic volleyball star from North Quincy High School, has accepted a four-year scholarship to attend Florida State University.

Maureen, the daughter of George and Ann McCarthy of North Quincy, signed her letter of intent recently at the high school.

Maureen was a four year starter for Jim Rendle's volleyball team and in that span, participated in two state championship and one sectional championship team.

"Maureen is the most talented player we ever had here at North Quincy," said coach Rendle. "She has an incredible set of hands that gives her the ability to set". Jim also pointed out the great success Maureen enjoyed here at North and her talents attracted the attention of colleges nationwide.

Along with Florida state, a division one member of the Atlantic Coast Conference, Maureen was also contacted by Villanova, UConn, Georgetown, and Providence among others.

"I chose Florida State because I really like the south," said Maureen. "The coaches were really nice and I enjoyed my visit there."

Maureen won her share of awards and honors at North Quincy. Maureen was an Old Colony League All Star for three years, a Patriot Ledger All-Scholastic for three years, and Boston Globe and Herald All-Scholastic for two years each.

In her four years at North, Maureen has shown a lot more than great volleyball skills. Maureen has brought the already powerful program to a new level of greatness. In addition to college scouts coming to look at Maureen, they also get a chance to look at other deserving players not only from North Quincy, but from the rest of the state.

Maureen also gets national attention from her participation on the Mass. Patriots, a travelling club team that plays in the spring.

For four years, Jim Rendle has had nothing to worry about with his top player returning. Now, with one of the greatest players in school history moving on, Jim begins the long, hard task of finding a new leader for his team. This problem should find an easy solution with the strong field of talent returning next year.

To Represent North Quincy High Duggan, Gott To Compete In Track Championships

Several track & field athletes from North Quincy took part in the Massachusetts' All-State meet held Sunday at Boston University's Commonwealth Armory.

For many it was the end of the winter track season but two other Red Raiders will continue to compete.

Senior captain Erin Duggan ran the mile in five minutes, 38.2 seconds. It was not as impressive as the 5:30.7 she ran in the Class B championships but she has one more week of rest before competing for the final time this winter in the Girls' Eastern State Championships to be held on Saturday, March 5. The Eastern is an invitation only meet and features athletes from Maine to Virginia.

Shot-putter Jen Pineo threw a personal best 33'3" but finished out of medal contention (they go to the top six in each event). Only a sophomore, Pineo is sure to be a medal winner in the future.

In the boys' competition, Jeremy Gott placed fifth in the 600-yard run with a personal best time of 1:14.8, but the real news happened before the race ever started.

With only four lanes on the track, there was a three-way tie for the fourth seed coming into the meet. Gott, Steve Quinn of Austin Prep and Joe Gbartley of Brookline all finished in 1:15.8. The race official had the three young men guess a number from 1 to 10. Quinn guessed most closely and was awarded the fourth spot in the first heat in which competed the state's fastest runners. Gott won the second heat with his usual come from behind style but was disappointed in not being able to race with the best group.

"I felt Gott belonged in the seeded heat due to the fact that he won Class B a week ago, and all other guys finished second in their classes," said coach Geoff Hennessy.

Gott will advance to the New England Championships which will be held March 12 at Harvard University. He will be competing in the 600-meter event as opposed to the 600-yard race he has competed in all season. With a meter being longer than a yard, the 600-meter is more equivalent to a 660-yard race.

"He'll be right in the thick of it," said Hennessy. "He has some unfinished business and Harvard is a great place to settle it."

Four North Quincy, Two Quincy Wrestlers On OCL All-Star Team

Four North Quincy High wrestlers and two Quincy High wrestlers were chosen to the Old Colony League first team All-Star squad.

Red Raiders Jason Gibson (112), Billy Chiu (119), Jamie Karvelis (130) and Fran Bellotti (145) and Presidents Ashley Davis (152) and Mike Feeley (HYV) were the Quincy representatives on the first team.

Several local wrestlers also made the second team list. Matt Froehlich (125), Matt Miller (130) and Bryan Gallabue (145) of Quincy and Rafael Malheiros (140) and Chris Hamill (152) of North Quincy were all chosen for the second team. A quick scan will show that the Quincy schools had a headlock on the 145 and 152-pound weight classes.

An additional award was given to Ashley Davis for the outstanding sportsmanship he displayed on his way to a 26-5 overall record this season.

The high number of representatives is indicative of the very successful seasons had by each school's wrestling teams. The Presidents finished at 11-6-1, tied for first in the OCL and ranked #3 in Division I South. The Red Raiders finished at 15-3, second in the OCL and #3 in Division II South.

Colleen Kelly, Shannon Desmond Advance In Hoop Shot Contest

Two Quincy youngsters, winners in the Circle District Championship in the Elks' National Hoop Shoot Free Throw Contest, will compete in the Eastern Massachusetts Regional Championships in Watertown.

Colleen Kelly, a fifth grade student from the Snug Harbor Elementary School, and Shannon Desmond, a third grade student at the Bernazzani School, advanced in the contest. They were among six Quincy youngsters who participated in the Circle District Championships held recently in Randolph.

Two hundred boys and girls competed in the local Quincy competition sponsored by the Quincy Recreation Department and the Quincy Lodge of Elks #943.

Also competing in the district championship were Stephen Barbuto, Chris Bregoli, Pat Bregoli and Kate Lavery.

Ed Miller is the Elk's Hoop Shoot chairman for Quincy Lodge #943.

Sarah Beston Qualifies For U.S.

Gymnastics Federation State Championships

Sarah Beston, 13, of Quincy, has qualified for the 1994 United States Gymnastics Federation State Championships.

At a recent state-wide competition, Beston placed first on the uneven bars and floor exercise and second on the beam and vault to win the meet's all around championship with a combined score of 33.55.

She is an eighth grade student at Central Middle School.

Medford Downs Quincy For Mite Championship

The Quincy Mite team fought to a 4-0 record before losing to a tough Medford team, 7-0, in Mite championship game of the Quincy Kiwanis Tournament. Medford ended the tourney with a perfect 5-0 record.

The Quincy wins came against the Randolph/Avon Mohawks, 3-2; New York Apple Core, 5-0; and Martha's Vineyard, 9-3. In the semi-final game Quincy crushed Billerica, 7-2. The Quincy goal scorers in the semi-final were Billy McKeon (2), Andrew Ross (2), Ryan Donahue, Brian O'Hanley and Bryan Cooper.

The highlight of the Mites was McKeon's four goal, three assist performance in their win over Martha's Vineyard, a team whose only other loss was to Medford in the semi-finals. Also having a huge game was Cooper who was the team's leading playmaker with two goals and four assists. Other goal scorers were O'Hanley, Ross and Donahue. With assists were Ross (2), Matt Lavery (2), Billy Ryan (2), Stephen Kelley and Matt Germain.

Final point totals for the Quincy Mites were: McKeon, seven goals, six assists, 13 points; Cooper, 3-5-8; Ross, 4-3-7; O'Hanley, 4-2-6; Germain, 1-4-5; Donahue, 4-0-4; Lavery, 1-3-4; Kelley, 0-3-3; Ryan 0-3-3; Timmy Duggan, 0-2-2; Jamie Chiochio 0-1-1 and Sean Moriarty, 0-1-1.

Final team records were: Medford 5-0; Quincy, 3-2; Billerica 2-2; Martha's Vineyard, 2-2; Mohawks, 1-2; Braintree, 0-2-1; Providence, 0-2-1; New York, 0-3.

Quincy Bantams Bow To Powerful Latvia

The Quincy Bantams battled to the final game of the Quincy Kiwanis Hockey Tournament before falling to a juggernaut from Riga, Latvia.

Quincy lost their opening game to Riga before going on to win their next two, 6-1 over the Southeast London, Ontario Bruins and 5-3 over Lancaster, PA.

In the semi-final round Quincy topped the LMHA Thunder (also of London, Ontario) 4-1 on the strength of two second period tallies by Rob Winter. Mark Glynn assisted on the first goal and Eric Wood and Derek McTomney assisted on the second. In the third Tim Wood scored on a feed from Winter and Steve Verlicco. The final goal was netted by McTomney (unassisted).

In the final game Quincy fell 7-1 to the Latvian squad. Quincy played tough, battling to a 1-1 stalemate at the end of one period. Winter recorded the lone goal for the home team at the 7:49 mark to give Quincy a brief 1-0 lead.

This contest was the tightest game the Latvian team was involved in during the tournament. In their other games Latvia won 8-0 over Lancaster, 18-2 over the SE London Bruins and 10-2 in the semi-final game against Martha's Vineyard. In their first game they beat Quincy 12-0. The final tournament numbers for Riga gave them 55 goals for, while giving up only five goals against.

Final standings in Bantam tourney were: Riga, 5-0; Quincy, 3-2; Martha's Vineyard, 2-2; LMHA, 1-2-1; Needham, 1-1-1; Lancaster, 0-2-1; SE London, 0-2-1; New York, 0-3-0.

Randolph-Avon Takes Pee Win Title

The Quincy Pee Wees finished the Kiwanis tournament with a record of 1-1-1 and just missed playing in the semi-finals.

Quincy opened the tournament with a 3-3 tie against Milton. The Quincy goals were scored by Ryan Barrett, Billy Connolly and Mike Sullivan. Sean Garvey assisted on the Connolly goal and Mike Powers assisted on the Barrett tally. Quincy's only loss was 6-2 to tourney runner-up Medford. Barrett and Sullivan scored for Quincy. Powers and Robert Harvey were the playmakers.

The Pee Wees shut out their final opponent, New York Apple Core, 4-0. Sullivan tallied twice in this contest. Also scoring were Jesse Winter and Shawn Manning. Assisting were Chad Fitzpatrick (2), Barrett, Connolly, Robert Harvey and Mike Powers.

In the semi-finals Medford topped South Boston, 5-1, and the Randolph/Avon Mohawks beat Milton, 3-1. The Mohawks won the final game by a score of 5-4 in three overtimes.

Final point totals for Quincy were: Sullivan, four goals, zero assists, four points; Barrett, 2-1-3; (Cont'd on Page 17)

Winchester Wins Squirt Crown

In the Squirt tournament Quincy went 3-0 before losing in the semi-final game to the Mohawks 5-2. Quincy looked impressive in the opening round of games as they beat Weymouth 8-3, Arlington 6-3 and New York 4-3.

In their best game, against Weymouth, Frank Currier had the hot hand as he scored twice and assisted once. Mark Giese also netted two goals, Quincy's final two of the game, to help pad the lead. Also scoring were Paul Hynn, Dan Kennedy, Ryan Doyle and Jimmy Cashins. Assists were made by Kennedy (3), Giese, Cashins, Steve McGonagle and Dave Germain.

Charlie Sorrento was the hero of the New York game. Trailing 3-1 at the end of the first, Quincy fought back with a second period goal by Thomas Gaeta to cut the lead to one. Sorrento then scored his first goal to tie the game going into the final period. He lit the lamp again at 6:58 of the third for the game winner.

Andrew Nestor scored Quincy's first goal. Dishing out assists were McGonagle (2), Currier, Gaeta, Nestor, Doyle and Dom Papile.

Final scoring totals for the Quincy Mites were: Kennedy, three goals, five assists, eight points; Giese, 6-1-7; Currier, 2-4-6; McGonagle, 1-3-4; Mark Gibbons, 1-2-3; Germain, 0-3-3; Matt Gregory, 1-2-3; Sorrento, 2-0-2; Doyle, 1-1-2; Gaeta, 1-1-2; Nestor, 1-1-2; Papile, 0-2-2; Flynn, 0-1-1.

Final team standings were: Winchester, 5-0; Mohawks, 3-2; Quincy, 3-1; Weymouth, 2-2; New York, 1-2; Pembroke, 1-2; Arlington, 0-3; Milton, 0-3.

Cashman's Thinking Wins Bronze Medal For U.S. Speedskating Team

By KERRY BYRNE

The lightning fast reaction of Quincy Olympian Karen Cashman helped lead the United States to a bronze medal in the 3,000-meter short-track speedskating relay race.

Cashman saved the day when she bolted on to the ice after her teammate on the relay team, Nicole Zieglmeyer, was knocked down by a Chinese skater who refused to get off the track when her leg of the race was over.

Cashman's quick thinking led to a fourth place finish for the U.S. Or so it seemed.

After reviewing the incident and listening to the protests of the American coaches, the officials at the race disqualified the Chinese team for failing to obey relay rules which call for a skater to step off the ice after their turn is over.

The disqualification led to a bronze medal for the American team, helping to make this the most successful Winter Olympics ever for the United States, an accomplishment in which the Quincy woman played a very big part.

Cashman's team finished just seven seconds behind silver medalist Canada. If not for her quick reaction to Zieglmeyer's fall, the difference might have been much greater, to great to allow for the American skaters to bump up to third after the disqualification of the Chinese team.

It took the officials over ten minutes to come to a decision as to what to do with the Chinese team. In the interim Karen's father Fred, on hand in Hamar, Norway with his son Ron, called his wife Jane back in Quincy.

"Karen finished fourth," said a disappointed Mr. Cashman to his wife. "One of the Chinese girls knocked down [Karen's teammate] Nicole during the race. I thought, they would disqualify them but they didn't."

Upon returning to the arena his disappointment turned to elation when he saw the American flag being carried out for the awards ceremony.

Ron Cashman ran to the phone to make the family's second international call in ten minutes. This time the reaction at the other end of the line was noticeably different.

"I didn't know that they had disqualified the Chinese team until I saw the Stars & Stripes being carried out. So we had to call my wife back and tell her what happened," said Mr. Cashman during a telephone interview.

"When I got the first call I thought 'well that's good at least it's fourth.' I was just thrilled she was there," said Mrs. Cashman.

"In between calls I had phoned some friends and neighbors to tell them how she did, then I got the second call and was extremely happy," she said.

At the time of the collision the American team was in second place. So, although Cashman did win the bronze, it is possible that she and her team could have won silver, even gold, had it not been for the stubborn Chinese girl who refused to yield.

Just a few weeks before, the U.S. relay team had broke the American record in the 3,000-meter event. While practicing for the race in Norway, Cashman had shattered by 14 seconds her own personal best time in the 3,000-meter individual race. Cashman and her teammates were in peak form.

Cashman arrived back in Quincy Tuesday night (March 1) and is scheduled to leave again on Sunday. She has a short time to relax and enjoy her bronze medal before going back to practice in preparation for the World Championships to be held in Guilford, England later this month.

Andrew Patten, Ryan Tobin Lead Mite B's Over Somerville

The Quincy Mite B team, sponsored by the Quincy Firefighters, shutout Somerville 5-0 behind the stellar goaltending of Andrew Patten and a hat trick by Ryan Tobin.

Quincy lit up the scoreboard early and often as Tobin scored all three of his goals in the first period. Robert Mooney, Andrew McDonough and Lindsey Langille assisted.

Defensemen Matt Alleva, Pat Caspar, Joe Norris, Timmy McMahon and Robert Donovan used the three goal cushion to their advantage as they checked the Somerville forwards at center ice and quickly fed the puck back into the offensive zone.

In the second period Danny Durocher scored off a feed by Tobin. The line of Richard Stone at center and Steven Price and Pat Maloney at the wings put constant pressure on the Somerville goalie.

Chris Sheehan closed out the Quincy score sheet with a third period tally assisted by Brendan Craig. Somerville mounted its best offensive pressure in the waning moments of the game but "Stonewall" Patten stopped them cold.

Mite A Travel Team Ties One, Loses One

The Quincy Youth Hockey Mite 'A' travel team tied Medfield 5-5 at Cleveland Circle and lost of Charlestown 7-4 at Fessenden in recent action.

Against Medfield, Quincy fell behind 2-0 before getting on track with a goal by Billy McKeon. Quincy went on to take a 5-4 lead late in the third period with goals by Stephen Kelly, two goals by Billy Ryan and a second goal by McKeon.

Medfield came back to tie the game with 2:30 remaining. Collecting assists for Quincy were Ryan Donahue (2) and Bryan Cooper, Brian O'Hanley, Matthew Germain and Sean Moriarty (one each).

In the loss to Charlestown, Ryan Donahue led the scoring with two goals. Jamie Chiocchio scored one goal with an assist going to Sean Moriarty. Billy McKeon scored a goal and an assist.

At QHS Football Parents Club Banquet Bartlett, Colleary MVPs, Other Awards Presented

Quincy High quarterback Mike Bartlett and linebacker/tight end Paul Colleary were the featured players at the Quincy High School Football Parents Club 10th Annual Awards banquet held Feb. 6 at the Quincy Sons of Italy.

Both boys were recognized as All-Scholastics and First Team Old Colony League All-Stars and were co-awarded the teams' Most Valuable Player trophy. Bartlett was recently chosen as the top quarterback in E. Mass Division I football for the 1993 season and will represent Quincy in the Shriners Classic this summer.

The evening's guest speaker was former Quincy High star and 1990 MVP Mark Bogan. Bogan, who now plays at Plymouth State College in New Hampshire, spoke of the need for high school athletes to stress academics over athletics.

"Make sure you organize your priorities," said Bogan to Quincy's 77 football players. "Football is an extracurricular activity, especially in college. If you do this you'll be successful at whatever you do."

In accordance with this message Academic Student Athlete awards were the first to be given. Senior John Perkins, junior Matt Strauchon, sophomore Jake Drohan and freshman Kevin Connolly were the recipients.

OCL Second Team All-Star awards were garnered by senior wide receiver Tom Malvesti, junior linemen Mike Feeley and Butch Palazza and junior half back Sam Brown.

Individual awards were received by Mike Elder, Best Offensive Back; Dave D'Olympio, Best Offensive Lineman; Steve Provost, Best Defensive Back; John Green and Mike Lombardi, co-recipients, Best Defensive Linemen; Ashley Davis, Best Linebacker; Jason Sova, Best Receiver; and Sean McDonald, Outstanding Special Teams Player.

Senior defensive back Tim Dowling received Quincy's 12th Player Award. The Coaches Award went to captain and defensive back Kevin Carey. In recognition of his fourth quarter touchdown reception against North Quincy, Malvesti was given the Granville Award for Quincy's outstanding Turkey Day performance.

The prestigious Paul Grasso Award, named after the former Quincy player who gave his life in Vietnam, was received by senior wide receiver and defensive back Jon Gangi. The Grasso Award was presented by Elenior Osborne, wife of former long-time president of the Quincy High Fathers Club Frank Osborne and one of only two women in the Quincy High School North Quincy High School Football Hall of Fame.

The Quincy-North Quincy Hall of Fame Awards for outstanding play on Thanksgiving Day by a back and lineman were given to Malvesti and Feeley.

The Pride Award for the player who exhibited "that special something" over the course of the season (or "the good parenting award") went to the parents of Ashley Davis, Sandra Horgan and Kevin Davis.

Cheerleading coach Dawn Hartman and varsity cheerleaders Sandy Buonopane, Cindy Cedrone, Mandy Chapman, Cindy Chetwynd, Suzanne Civitarese, Lauren Farrell, Jennifer Harper, Sara Keefe, Melissa Link, Angela Martinson, Patricia Oliver, Samantha Perry, Faith Polito and Chrissy Staffier were recognized for the oft overlooked and under appreciated job they do all year long. Junior varsity cheerleaders Kerry MacDonald, Nicole Sheffer, Amy Wysocki, Suzanne Sweeney, Kelly O'Connor, Michelle Zaborowski, Jen DeAngelo, Caitlin O'Connor, Michelle Dutton, Jill Rossi, Megan Marini, Karen Mezzetti and Kelly Spaur were also recognized.

Ballboy Josh Giordani was awarded a game ball by the Quincy High captains for his hard work during the Presidents' games.

One of the highlights of the evening occurred when equipment manager Jack Weir was given special recognition in the form of a framed article about him which appeared in The Patriot Ledger. Weir has probably put in more time helping the sports teams of Quincy High than any other person in the city.

At the end of the banquet the Presidents' captains for the 1994 season were introduced: offensive linemen Mike Feeley, Butch Palazza and Jeff Burrell; defensive lineman Jason Bennett; and half back Sam Brown.

Sports Spotlight

By KERRY BYRNE

The Quincy and North Quincy girls' basketball teams had less than spectacular win/loss records this season but one of the bright spots for each squad was the number of underclassmen who performed well.

These youngsters made their mark on the Old Colony League All-Star team. Two sophomores, Kerri Connolly of Quincy High and Sara Stanton of North Quincy High were named to the list of top players in the league.

Connolly averaged 14.6 points, five assists and five rebounds per game this season.

Stanton averaged 17 ppg. Helping her average was the school record 39 points she scored against Taunton in January.

North Quincy captain Heather Simmons received the OCL individual award for outstanding sportsmanship in the 1993-94 season. The Quincy Presidents received the team sportsmanship award, a credit to head coach Bob Keuther, assistant Bob Noble and the entire Quincy team.

Karen Cashman wasn't the only person in Quincy to serve as a cog in the team roller that is the American Winter Olympic team.

John Edwards of Weymouth finished fourth in the two-man luge in the Olympics, a significant accomplishment in a sport that has been absolutely dominated by the Europeans. One small reason for his success was Quincy's Beverly Reinhardt.

Despite her light duties as scorekeeper, schedule maker, announcer, secretary, Zamboni driver, saleswoman, pizza chef, structural engineer and all-around Hockey Mom at the Quincy Youth Arena, she found time to let the Weymouth luge practice at the Quincy Youth Arena, sometimes as early as six in the morning.

A few years ago Edwards came to Reinhardt looking for a place where he could practice his luge starts. Speaking from my own personal experience, Reinhardt is one of the most helpful people in the local youth sports scene, so she was more than happy to help a young athlete reach his Olympic dreams.

Reinhardt was not the only one at the arena to help Edwards. It was Frank Derwin who had to get up every morning to let the future Olympian into the rink at the joyful hour of 6 a.m.

A true story for the die-hard believer: Last week your local sports guy was on vacation in London, which, next to Quincy, is one of the great urban Meccas of the Western world.

Purely in the express interest of keen analytical research of English culture, I had to tour an authentic London brewery.

On that tour was a group of Japanese girls who were studying English at King's College in Cambridge.

What a brewery and studying English have in common, I know not. But to continue:

"Are you rugby player?" asked one of the girls, Noriko Kamimura, as we entered the vital tasting portion of the tour.

"Well, no," I replied. "But I did play American football in high school!"

"Really," she said. "Then you must know Kerry Byrne, American football hero!"

(At least two of the above quotes are true.)

Quincy Bay Girls Down Brookline

The eighth grade Quincy Bay girls' basketball team beat Brookline 45-37 in Yankee League action.

Leading the way was Dominique Good with 17 points and three rebounds and Erin Barry with 13 and 12. Sarah Satkevich was huge off the glass with 10 boards to go with her five points. Leela Shankar pitched in with seven points and three rebounds while Jocelyn West scored three points and had three boards.

The seventh/eighth grade team battled into overtime, topping Cohasset 24-22. Pam Gray was the top scorer with nine points, followed by Jaclyn DuBois with eight. Erin Rooney was 5 for 6 from the foul line. Michelle Boncek added two points and Natalie Dymond was strong with five rebounds.

The sixth graders bounced St. Ann's, 45-35. Amy Satkevich and Ashley Rowerdink combined for 25 of Quincy's 45 points. Satkevich with 15 and Rowerdink with 10. Aubrey Guastalli netted six points followed by Caitlyn O'Donnell, Caitlin Powers and Lauren Awed with four each. Kelly Raymer added two. Camilla Kidd was a force on the boards with eight rebounds.

(City Council), and it's not our fault," said Cahill, who suggested that the School Committee "dragged its feet" on the matter.

School Committee member Linda Stice, who headed a task force appointed by Sheets that came up with an earlier proposal for governance change at the college, has said in the past that the School Committee has moved as quickly as possible on the matter but sometimes had to put it aside because of higher priority items on its agenda. The task force first unveiled its proposal, which was sent to the School Committee for review last August after being endorsed by the City Council, a year ago.

The council chose the Sheets plan over the task force plan, a subsequent proposal by School Committee Vice Chairman Daniel Raymond, and an amended version of the Raymond plan drawn up by Atty. Richard Murphy, legal counsel for the School Committee.

Sheets' plan is similar to the mayoral task force proposal, which called for a 13-member independent board of trustees to run the college. The mayor, however, who is on vacation and unavailable for comment, has said that his plan spells out in detail that college employees' rights and benefits will not be affected by a governance change.

Raymond's plan, supported by the School Committee last December in a 4-3 vote, called for the college president to report directly to the School Committee, with the school superintendent, who serves as secretary to the School Committee, removed from the picture. Currently, the college president reports to the superintendent, who in turn reports to the committee.

Sheets has said his plan incorporates some of the "better points" of the Raymond proposal as well as certain language from Murphy's draft of the plan regarding employee rights.

Councillors ultimately agreed that the mayor's proposal does the most complete job of giving the college president the appropriate freedom to run the college, which in turn would allow the School Committee to concentrate on matters pertaining to Grades K-12, and protecting the rights of college employees.

Several minor amendments, however, were made to the mayor's proposal.

"Cheney suggested that the language regarding employee rights be further clarified in the final draft of the home-rule petition. The language was reportedly incomplete in the version the Education Committee discussed Monday night.

City Solicitor Stephen McGrath said he is certain the mayor intended the final draft to be very specific regarding employee rights, adding that some of the language may have been left out because of a typographical error. McGrath spoke with the mayor by telephone Tuesday and said a final draft of Sheets' home-rule petition would be ready by today.

Ward 3 Councillor Lawrence Chretien proposed that Chapter 313 of the Acts of 1981, which set up the enterprise account for Quincy College, be changed so that the mayor would have to approve any transfer of city funds to the college, a responsibility that had been that of the city treasurer.

Ward 4 Councillor Thomas Fabrizio suggested that the initial board of trustees include one School Committee member and one city councillor appointed respectively by the School Committee vice chairman and council president. Originally those representatives were to be chosen by the entire School Committee and

City Council respectively, but Fabrizio said his amendment would "streamline the process" and allow the selections to be made more quickly.

"For similar reasons, Fabrizio suggested that the two School Committee members, two city councillors and one board of trustees member appointed to the initial Trustee Appointing Council be appointed respectively by the School Committee vice chairman, City Council president and president of the college's current board of trustees.

Originally there were have to be three trustees committee members, two councillors and two board of trustees members appointed respectively by the School Committee, council and current board of trustees. The Trustee Appointing Council will name the remaining 11 trustees to the new board.

All amendments were passed unanimously.

Stice said she was happy from what she observed at Monday night's meeting.

"I'm pleased and I'm relieved," said Stice. "It's one more step in a long rocky road. The mayor's plan builds in employee protection, and the City Council clearly has confidence in a governance change."

Johnson Files Suit To Get Job Back

from moving ahead with arbitration proceedings on Johnson's firing.

The Education Reform Act gives fired school employees the right to a hearing before an arbitrator. In October, Singal said an arbitration request was filed to protect Johnson's rights. Singal also said in a letter to Antonucci in October, however, that Johnson was not abandoning his argument that the Reform Act does not apply in his case.

A spokesman for the Education Department said Monday that no date has been set for the arbitration hearing.

Johnson, who is black, also has filed a complaint with the Massachusetts Commission Against Discrimination, accusing the all-white School Committee of racism.

Vote Tonight On Childhood Center

Other city officials are also divided on the name for center. School Supt. Eugene Creedon has said he favors the Adams name, while Ward 4 City Councillor Thomas Fabrizio wants the center named after Della Chiesa.

Peter Ehrlich Completes Navy Basic Training

Peter J. Ehrlich, son of Mr. and Mrs. Peter Ehrlich of Squantum, recently completed basic training at RTC Orlando.

Ehrlich received the Academic Achievement

Award, finishing first in a class of 378 recruits. A 1993 graduate of Quincy High School, he will remain on assignment at the Orlando Naval Base.

Republican Committee Favors Della Chiesa

The Quincy Republican City Committee favors naming the new Early Childhood Center in South Quincy after former Mayor Amelio Della Chiesa.

The committee recently passed a resolution favoring the Della Chiesa name over that of former First Lady Abigail Adams.

The resolution reads as follows:

"Whereas: Amelio Della Chiesa, the late member of the Republican City Committee served as a distinguished city councillor, state legislator and mayor of Quincy, and

"Whereas: Mayor Amelio Della Chiesa was a graduate of the former Lincoln School (which was razed so that the new center could be built),

"Be it resolved: That when the School Committee meets to name the new Early Childhood Center at the former Lincoln School, the name of Amelio Della Chiesa should be selected."

'Neighborhood History' Topic For Montclair-Wollaston Association

The Montclair/Wollaston Neighborhood Association will meet tonight (Thursday) at 7:30 p.m. in the Church of the Good Shepherd, Harvard and West Squantum Sts.

Guest speaker will be Edward Fitzgerald of the Quincy Historical Association. Ward 3 City Councillor Larry Chretien will speak to the membership regarding the increasing number of break-ins occurring in the past few weeks in the Montclair/Wollaston neighborhood.

Correction

Because of a typographical error, a story in last week's Quincy Sun incorrectly stated that the price for a new firearms license under the new

Brady Bill will be $2000, and $90 will be the cost of a three-year removal.

In fact, the price will be $200, and it will be $90 for a three-year renewal.

SCOTT DEWARE

In-hand with loved ones? Yes? ... Then you are a sentimental person ...

The late Jeanette MacDonald, one of Hollywood's most popular singer-stars, was once asked, "What's wrong with sentiment?" - This was her reply:

"Today, anything that has a suggestion of sentiment is quickly dismissed as 'corn.' Frankly, what's wrong with it? Have we become so sufficient that we can live without sentiment?"

"Sentiment, after all is basic. Without it there is no love, no life, no family."

Most Americans, and all funeral directors, will agree ...

INVITATION TO BID

The Department of Public Works for the City of Quincy, Massachusetts, will receive sealed bids for Contract 94-1, Watermain Reconstruction Contract, until 10:00 local time on Friday, March 11, 1994 at the offices of the Commissioner of Public Works, 55 Sea Street, Quincy, Massachusetts 02169, at which time and place all bids will be publicly opened and read aloud.

The work under this contract consists of removal of approximately 2300 ft. of existing watermain of different sizes and installation of new mains in the same trenches. The various watermain lengths and sizes consist of approximately 895 ft. of 12-in. new ductile iron (D.I.) watermain; 775 ft. of new 8-in. D.I. watermain; and 630 ft. of new 6-inch D.I. watermain, including all valves, valve boxes, fittings, hydrants, appurtenances, connections to existing watermain, residential/commercial service connections, watermain cleaning, pressure testing, testing of all materials for quality and workmanship, disinfection, chlorination and all else incidental thereto.

All work shall be performed in accordance with the Commonwealth of Massachusetts Highway Department Standard Specifications for Highways and Bridges and Construction Standards, as last revised and other standards as specified.

All work under this contract shall be completed within 90 calendar days.

A non-refundable deposit of $75.00 in cash or check payable to the City of Quincy, will be required for each set of contract documents.

Bidders requesting contract documents by mail shall also include an additional non-refundable $15.00, cash or check payable to the City of Quincy, to cover the costs of shipping and handling.

The Contract Documents may be obtained during the business hours 8:30 AM to 4:30 PM at the offices of the Commissioner of Public Works, Engineering Division, 55 Sea Street, Quincy, Massachusetts, 02169, on or after Friday, February 25, 1994.

Each bid shall be accompanied by a bid security in the amount of five percent (5%) of the total value of the bid in the form described in the Instructions to Bidders. The Successful Bidder must furnish a one hundred percent (100%) Construction Performance Bond and a one hundred percent (100%) Construction Payment Bond with a surety company acceptable to the City.

The Bidding and award of this contract shall be in full compliance with Massachusetts General Laws, Chapter 30, Section 39M, as last revised.

All prospective bidders must obtain pre-bid qualification certifications from the Massachusetts Highway Department Contract Regulations and Administration Division, 10 Park Plaza, Room 7552, Boston, Massachusetts 02116.

All Federal, State and local regulations in relation to Minority Business Enterprise, Women's Business Enterprise, Minority Work Force, Employment of Quincy Residents, as required under City Ordinance No. 532, and Minimum Wage Rates shall be complied with.

Goals for this project are as follows:
1. The Contractor shall maintain on this project a not less than ten percent (10%) ratio of minority employee manhours to total manhours in each job category.

2. A minimum of ten percent (10%) Minority Business Enterprise (MBE) participation and five percent (5%) Women Business Enterprise (WBE) participation by state-certified MBEs and WBEs will be maintained on this project. The bidder shall submit complete MBE/WBE forms and SOMWBA Certification Letters with the bid.

3. The City of Quincy's Ordinance No. 532, requiring Contractors working on City-supported construction projects to have one Quincy Resident out of every three workers on the project must be complied with.

4. The Contractor shall pay the minimum wage rates, as mandated by the Commonwealth of Massachusetts Department of Labor and Industries.

The City reserves the right to waive any informality in or to reject any or all Bids when such an action is deemed in the best interest of the City. Non-responsive and/or unbalanced bids may be rejected.

Studds Requests Coast Guard Study Of Drawbridge Openings

U.S. Rep. Gerry Studds has asked the Coast Guard to conduct a study of CITGO's openings of the Fore River drawbridge and their effect on traffic on Route 3A.

Studds' action follows CITGO's decision last week to restrict barge traffic going through the drawbridge.

In a letter to Coast Guard Commandant J. William Kline, Studds requested that the Coast Guard meet with representatives of CITGO and local and state officials to discuss its assessment within one month.

Studds has also written to CITGO's President and Chief Executive Officer, Ronald Hull, asking if CITGO could institute a formal system of informing the public in advance of its schedule for using the drawbridge, so commuters can plan accordingly.

In his letter to Kline,

Studds praised CITGO for agreeing to restrict barge traffic during morning and evening rush hours. But Studds noted that nearly 50 percent of the rush hour openings in December 1993 and January 1994 were the result of tanker traffic, which the company said it would not restrict.

At Studds' request, the Coast Guard conducted a study in 1984 which concluded that the conflict between vehicular and marine traffic was not severe enough to warrant a change in the bridge regulation at that time. The Coast Guard did, however, request the maritime community to voluntarily restrict outbound vessel traffic during rush hour.

"Unfortunately, it appears that these voluntary measures have not worked," Studds wrote in his letter to Kline. "Therefore, I request that the Coast Guard work with state transportation officials to conduct a new study."

The study would determine how often over the past three years the openings have occurred, at what time of day, what type of vessels went through and the effect on vehicular traffic of CITGO's restrictions on barges.

"Given the rancor of recent discussions about drawbridge openings, time is obviously of the essence," Studds wrote to Kline. "Therefore, I invite a member of the Coast Guard's New York bridge administration staff to present the results of this study at a meeting in the Quincy-Weymouth area within one month."

Studds said in the meantime, CITGO could publicly notify commuters of when it plans to send tankers through the bridge opening, so South Shore commuters could plan to take alternate routes.

"Currently, even the most seasoned and patient commuters are often surprised to learn that they have unexpectedly encountered intolerably long delays because of traffic through the raised drawbridge," Studds wrote in his letter to Hull. "If CITGO were able to project its maritime traffic needs with some certainty each month—or on any regular schedule that would make business sense to you—this information could be easily and widely disseminated and updated as often as necessary. It can assure you that this information would constitute a genuine public service to thousands of area commuters."

Naval and Shipbuilding Museum on the Fore River in Quincy Point.

The 465-foot vessel, a fast-attack break-bulk carrier, will be used for training by the Massachusetts Maritime Academy for the next year or two, according to museum officials.

The training program, which grew out of the experience of Operation Desert Shield/Desert Storm, will prepare officers of the U.S. Merchant Marine for the specific demands and requirements of operating Ready Reserve Fleet vessels in the event of a national emergency.

A flag-raising ceremony was planned for Friday with Mayor James Sheets, Museum Director Bill MacMullen and officials from Mass. Maritime. Cong. Gerry Studds, who was instrumental in bringing the ship to Quincy, was also invited to attend.

The Southern Cross was towed by a private company from New York to Quincy over the weekend. The ship left at 3 p.m. Friday and arrived at approximately 8 a.m. Monday. It is now berthed at one of the museum's piers.

KAREN CASHMAN displays the bronze medal she won at the Winter Olympics as a member of the United States short-track speedskating relay team.

To Visit White House In April Cashman's Whirlwind Triumphant Olympic Journey Not Over Yet

By KERRY BYRNE

Karen Cashman, you just won a bronze medal in the Winter Olympics as a member of the U.S. short-track speedskating relay team! What are you going to do now?

She's certainly not going to DisneyWorld. Who has time to do that?

Everything has been a blur for Cashman since she found out she was going to compete in the Olympics less than a week before they started. The close call was the result of the North Korean team opting out of the Lillehammer games, just days before they were to commence. The American team was next in line.

"I was taking a nap when Nikki [Ziegelmeier, Cashman's room and teammate] woke me up to tell me she got a call telling us that we were going to the Olympics. We totally freaked out. We celebrated by going out for a big dinner but we didn't have time to take it all in," said Quincy's blue-eyed Olympic hero.

"My biggest problem was that we were leaving the next day and I was at school [Northern Michigan University] but my passport was in Quincy. My father had to meet me in New York so that I could go to Norway."

With passport in hand

Cashman began her triumphant journey to snow covered Scandinavia. It wasn't until arriving that she realized that she, Karen Cashman, 1989 graduate of North Quincy High, was about to compete in the Winter Olympics.

"The first time it hit me was at the opening ceremonies. Up until then I really didn't have time to think about it," said Cashman from her Furnace Brook Parkway home, a house full of more red, white and blue balloons than you could shake a speedskate at.

The only time Cashman has had to relax since that call was

Because Home-Rule Petition Section Deleted

Sheets Fears College Might Have To Move

By MICHAEL WHALEN

The deletion of a section in Mayor James Sheets' home-rule petition to establish an independent board of trustees as the governing body of Quincy College could result in the school losing control of three of its properties and ultimately force it to move.

Sheets said Tuesday while he is "thrilled" the City Council unanimously agreed to support the petition Monday night, he is "concerned" that a section allowing the establishment of a special account through which the school department would accept rent money from the college was stricken from the legislation. He added that the college may subsequently be forced to move as a result.

The mayor said if the passage had been left alone, the school department would have been free to use the $217,000 a year in rent money—which the college pays for use of Coddington Hall and two houses at 50 and 58 Saville Ave.—into the school programs of its choice. Three priorities for the department right now are computer education, foreign language programs and middle school athletics, he said.

Sheets said because that section was deleted from the petition, the school department can now only use the rent

DeCristofaro's Condition Improves

Ward 2 City Councillor Ted DeCristofaro was in stable condition Tuesday in the intensive care unit at South Shore Hospital in Weymouth after suffering a heart attack and stroke last week.

DeCristofaro suffered a heart attack March 1 and was taken to Quincy Hospital. He was reportedly transferred to South Shore Hospital March 4 after suffering a stroke.

Mayor James Sheets, speaking on behalf of DeCristofaro's family, said at press time that DeCristofaro's condition was improving.

"I spoke today with Ted's son, Richard, and clearly, Ted has stabilized," said Sheets. "Hopefully we'll continue to see more improvement in the days to come."

"Ted is a very close personal friend of mine and it's my hope and my prayer that he's going to be okay."

The mayor described DeCristofaro as "an outstanding family man" who regularly attends his grandchildren's sporting events and added, "my heart goes out to his family."

Sheets said he has known DeCristofaro for 21 years.

Cabaret License Approved For Restaurant

By LISA CONNELL

The gentle sounds of the piano and classic Frank Sinatra and Tony Bennett melodies will soon emanate from Siro's restaurant in Marina Bay as Licensing Board officials approved a cabaret license for the waterfront business Tuesday.

The board's decision was unanimous.

"A piano would enhance the already nice atmosphere you have there," said Building Inspector and Licensing Board Vice-Chair Matthias Mulvey.

No more than three musicians will perform at any time in the 92-seat restaurant located at 307 Victory Rd., and the music played will be primarily background music, according to Mulvey.

The atmosphere and nature of Siro's will not change, according to Siro's manager Kristie Henriksen.

Henriksen said food shall remain the main thrust of Siro's. "Total sales receipts [at Siro's] break down to 84% food, 14% wine and 7% hard liquor. I don't see it going any differently," she said.

The music will be for background purposes only on weekend nights and special events, such as weddings and showers, Henriksen said.

Ward 6 City Councillor Bruce Ayers said that some of his constituents "were concerned with the nature of a cabaret license," but Ayers spoke in favor of granting the license with the stipulation that no more than three entertainers play at any one time.

Mulvey told Henriksen that for safety reasons, the Building Department will approve final placement of the piano within the restaurant's interior premises

Boston Chicken Eyeing Site At Grossman's Plaza

By LISA CONNELL

A franchise of Boston Chicken, a national restaurant chain headquartered in Ohio, will be coming to Quincy, according to Quincy attorney Robert Fleming.

Following the Licensing Board meeting Tuesday, Fleming said that the restaurant would occupy 4500 square feet of vacant property at Grossman's Plaza in downtown Quincy.

The area that once housed a branch office of the former Granite Cooperative Bank will be the location of the proposed Boston Chicken site. Papa Gino's restaurant is next to this space, said Fleming.

Further details will be forthcoming, Fleming said.

MWRA Valve Work To Cause Rusty Water

The Massachusetts Water Resources Authority Waterworks Division is exercising main-line valves this week.

The valve work will create rusty water and pressure loss on Friday, March 11 and Saturday, March 12, throughout the entire town of Milton and in the following areas of Quincy:

- Adams St. at Beale St.
- Beale St. at Summit Ave.
- Furnace Brook Parkway at Copeland St.
- West Squantum St. at Amsterdam Ave.

Residents living in these areas are advised to draw a few gallons of water beforehand and/or hold off on doing laundry. If a load of laundry is accidentally washed in rusty water, Rust-Over, a product similar to a stain remover, can be used to remove rust. Rust-Over is available at the MWRA.

Do not use bleach to remove rust from laundry; this will only cause the stain to set.

Those with questions or concerns about discolored water can call MWRA Public Affairs at 241-6057.

Della Chiesa Seen Choice For Childhood Center Name By 5-2 Vote

Amelio Della Chiesa appeared to be the name of the new Early Childhood Center in South Quincy at press time Tuesday.

The School Committee was scheduled to vote on the matter last night (Wednesday).

The two proposed names for the center were those of Abigail Adams, wife and mother respectively of John Adams and John Quincy Adams (second and sixth U.S. Presidents) who was also an early proponent of women's rights; and Della Chiesa, a South Quincy native who served the city 22 years as mayor, city councillor and state representative.

Four of the School Committee's seven votes are needed to make either name official, and Della Chiesa Tuesday appeared en route to a 5-2 victory.

Mayor James Sheets, who serves as chairman of the School Committee, said Tuesday he would definitely vote for the Della Chiesa name. Committee member Sean Barry had said the same. Committee Vice Chairman Daniel Ramondini and members Stephen Durkin and Ronald Mariano had indicated they also would likely vote for the name of the former mayor.

Committee members JoAnn Bragg and Linda Stice had both said they were leaning toward voting for the Adams name.

Other city officials were also divided on the name for the center. School Supt. Eugene Creedon had said he favored the Adams name, while Ward 4 City Councillor Thomas Fabrizio wanted the center named after Della Chiesa.

Council OKs Home Depot Expansion

Home Depot will be allowed to expand its West Quincy store.

The City Council, in its capacity as the Planned Unit Development (PUD) special permit granting authority over the site, voted Monday night to grant the store's request to build a 5,000 square foot greenhouse inside its garden center and to construct an addition to make up for space the store loses because of the presence of the new greenhouse.

Ward 4 City Councillor Thomas Fabrizio, whose ward includes the site, said currently the store and garden center combine for approximately 120,000 square feet.

Fabrizio said the addition of the greenhouse will not cause the current square footage to increase because it will be built inside the existing garden center. However, he added that the store's new addition will add about 5,200 square feet to the site.

Fabrizio also noted that Home Depot had agreed with a Home Depot Monitoring Committee that includes Fabrizio and four neighborhood residents that it would not make any further changes at the store if the work approved by the council Monday night were allowed.

Ayers Reschedules Safety Meeting

Ward 6 City Councillor Bruce Ayers has rescheduled a public safety meeting for Wednesday, March 16, at 7:30 p.m. at the Atlantic Neighborhood Center, 12 Hunt St., North Quincy.

The meeting originally scheduled for Feb. 9 was cancelled due to snow conditions.

Ayers has asked representatives from the Quincy Police Department who are directly responsible for the North Quincy area to attend and discuss safety with residents. Officer Robert Hanna will also be on hand to explain the neighborhood watch program and give a course on crime prevention.

All are welcome.

Top 10 Things You Should Know About Social Security

By CAROL BOYLE

With apologies to David Letterman, here are the top 10 things you should know about Social Security.

Number 10: Your Social Security benefit is based on your earnings, so make sure your employer is using your correct name and Social Security number when reporting your earnings to the government.

Number 9: Social Security is more than retirement. Disability coverage for people who can't work for a year or more and survivors benefits for the family members of a worker who has died are important and often overlooked parts of Social Security.

Number 8: When you work, you earn Social Security "credits," up to a maximum of four per year. Most people need 40 credits (10 years of work) to qualify for retirement benefits. Younger people need fewer credits for disability and survivors coverage.

Number 7: Social Security provides benefits to qualified family members of retired and disabled workers. Generally, children under 18 can get checks and so can a spouse who's 62 or older or who's caring for a minor child. In many cases, divorced spouses also get benefits.

Number 6: You can get an estimate of your Social Security benefits and a copy of your earnings history by calling 1-800-772-1213.

Number 5: Check with Social Security about a year before you plan to retire. In some cases, you can get retirement benefits even before you stop working.

Number 4: When you file for retirement benefits, we need to see a certified copy of your birth certificate and your last W-2 form (or tax return if you're self-employed).

Number 3: Social Security should not be directly compared to private savings and pension programs because "social" objectives are a fundamental part of Social Security. For example, workers with low incomes get a benefit that represents a higher percentage of their earnings than do well-paid workers.

Number 2: You should not expect to live on your Social Security. The program was always intended to supplement, not replace, private pension plans and other savings and investments.

Number 1: Social Security will be there when you need it. Social Security has changed a lot in the last 60 years and it undoubtedly will change in the next 60 years... but a basic program that provides benefits to retired people, to people with disabilities and to the survivors of a worker who has died will always be the foundation of our society's income maintenance network.

Jim McIntyre Remembered

Quincy's political scene hasn't been quite the same these past 10 years.

It changed suddenly, unexpectedly—and sadly—the night of March 7, 1984, in the recovery room at Massachusetts General Hospital when James R. McIntyre died of a heart attack after undergoing unrelated surgery.

He was 53—in the prime of his life.

I would like to repeat some of the following words that I wrote at the time of his death. They seem appropriate on this anniversary.

He was one of Quincy's all-time powerful and popular political figures. Maybe the most powerful. And, certainly, one of the brightest.

His political career got off to spectacular start in 1955 at the age of 25 and making his first bid for public office—while still attending college—he was elected city councillor under Plan E.

He finished third in a field of 14 candidates in the final election—topped only by two Republican powers—Amelio Della Chiesa and Thomas Burgin. He placed ahead of such other veteran strong Republican vote-getters as David (Tuck) McIntosh, Edna Austin and Carl Anderson.

Not bad for a young Democrat in a city that was still a GOP stronghold.

McIntyre was soon city council president, state representative, state senator and mayor.

He was elected mayor in 1965 and served three terms, leaving in 1971 to become counsel to the Massachusetts senate—a post he held at the time of his death.

That job took him out of the political spotlight but not out of politics. He remained a dominant political figure—in the background.

Just about every young person thinking of running for political office sought his advice.

Veteran office holders sought his counsel.

Jim McIntyre was a rare species in the political world. He had intelligence wrapped in common sense. He moved with foresight while others stumbled over hindsight.

He was witty, charming and compassionate. He had charisma by the pound and at his fighting weight, that was a lot of charisma.

He was as much at ease with a President as he was with a precinct level campaign envelope stuffer. And he had as much respect for the latter.

He liked people and they liked him. He knew them by their first name. And he was Jim or Jimmy to them.

Oh, he had his critics—and some enemies. Any man with the political clout he carried over three decades would have to pick up some resentment and some enemies along the way.

But critics, detractors and those enemies respected him. They may have called him a few things, but one thing they never called him was "stupid."

Some said he ran "the machine." Well, if there was a machine and he ran it, at least it had round wheels and moved Quincy forward.

Most people remember Jim McIntyre for his many political victories. I remember them too, but more fondly, his only political defeat. Because I really came to know Jim McIntyre, the man, and his wife, Sheila, the woman behind that man, the night he lost.

He was only 29 years old and city council president when he challenged the old master, popular incumbent, Mayor Della Chiesa for mayor in 1959.

It was one of the hardest-hitting mayoral races in years with Della Chiesa prevailing by a slim 1,117 vote margin.

I was covering the election for The Boston Traveler and walked right into the McIntyre headquarters election night.

McIntyre, who was studying what he considered key early returns, shook his head and said: "I don't think we're going to make it."

Later figures proved him right.

Sheila, was there. When they were sure it was not to be their night, she went to a phone and put a call in to her mother in Niagara Falls, N.Y.

"Jimmy didn't make it," she told her mother. And then she added: "But it's only an election. We lost something more important than that."

She was referring to the death not very long before the election of their infant son, William, named after Jim's father, Police Capt. William McIntyre. (A second son named William was to die tragically in an elevator accident just three months before Jim's death.)

Now, it was getting late. James (Pete) Ricciuti, longtime friend, advisor and campaign coordinator and McIntyre looked at one another. Both knew what they were going to do.

"Let's go," said Jim.

I went along with them as they walked across Hancock St. to City Hall and climbed the stairs to the mayor's office that had eluded them that night.

Della Chiesa was in his office after leaving his own campaign headquarters.

"Congratulations, Mel," McIntyre said, extending his hand, "You're still the mayor."

Della Chiesa took his hand and then, like a father, slipped his arm around McIntyre and said: "You're young, Jimmy. Your day will come."

The two men had campaigned hard against one another. Strong words had been fired back and forth between the two political camps.

But now the battle was over. One had won, the other had lost. But they could still be friends. It would still be Mel and Jimmy. There was no hate.

McIntyre's day did come as Della Chiesa said it would. Ironically it came when Della Chiesa decided to retire after 12 years as mayor and McIntyre succeeded him.

Ironically, too, that old City Hall in which the mayor's office was located back then is now officially the James R. McIntyre Government Center.

Jim McIntyre's day did come as Mayor Della Chiesa said it would that night.

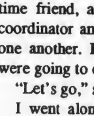

It's sad that it ended so soon.

Scenes From Yesterday

THIS IS A 1911 postcard view of the square at the end of Houghs Neck taken from in front of what was Moore's Summer Ballroom. The Quincy Yacht Club in the center of the picture is the only thing in this view that survives today. Just to the left of the yacht club with the oval sign was Norteman's Pavillion which featured fish dinners, boiled live lobsters and fried clams. Close to the square, along with The Sea Street Dream, were several other great destinations including Taylor's Summer Ballroom and Power's Pavillion, a casino for pool, dancing and bowling. This popular summer resort area could be reached by a four-mile trolley car ride from the Quincy railroad depot or by boat from Boston. The boats ran every few hours back and forth from Boston to the public steamboat landing near the yacht club.

Support Available For Those Affected By Alzheimer's Disease

Editor, The Quincy Sun:

There is a silent enemy stalking older Americans and the families who care for them. It is Alzheimer's disease, a catastrophic illness that steals the mind and robs families of precious time, financial resources and the companionship of people they love.

Few Americans realize that Alzheimer's disease is the fourth leading cause of death among adults, claiming more than 100,000 lives annually. Today, it affects approximately four million Americans. And, the future looks even darker as the aging population grows and the number of people who are at risk of developing the disease increases. It has been projected by the National Institute on Aging that, by the year 2040, an estimated 14 million Americans could suffer from this insidious disease unless medical research finds a way to prevent or slow its progress.

And, for every Alzheimer patient, there are at least four other people whose lives are changed by the illness. Alzheimer families and caregivers must live with the constant physical, emotional, and financial demands of caring for an Alzheimer patient. They are in desperate need of support services and programs to help ease the burdens of this illness.

The Alzheimer's Association is a living, caring national of 211 local chapters, 1,600 support groups and 35,000 volunteers who stand by to provide the support and hope these caregivers so desperately need. In Quincy, Beechwood Community Life Center offers two Alzheimer's Support Groups every month.

Most importantly, I want to encourage those in our community who are affected by Alzheimer's disease to call on us. It is difficult, sometimes, to reach out for help when it is needed. We understand what you are going through and we may be of help in several ways.

Please call me at 471-5712.

$200,000 Would Help Community Center

Editor, The Quincy Sun:

When the multi-family development project, Lincoln Heights in South Quincy, was approved by the City Council, it included 19 conditions. One of those conditions stated that the developer would contribute $200,000 toward the construction of a neighborhood center in South Quincy.

The new school on the former site of the old Lincoln School will have the Ward 4 Neighborhood Community Center. The center will need many items to make it attractive. The $200,000 would help.

Quincy's Yesterdays

Orcutt Renegs, Spoils Oust Deegan Move

An attempt to oust City Manager William J. Deegan, Jr. collapsed when City Councillor Frank N. Orcutt withdrew from a bloc of four councillors, headed by Mayor David S. McIntosh, who had demanded his resignation.

"I am changing my position because of information received in the last 24 hours which has disproved certain statements made to me and which I had accepted as reliable information," said Orcutt, who was under pressure from Plan E supporters to retain Deegan.

Two days before, on a Monday morning, McIntosh, Orcutt, and Councillors David J. Crowley and Carl W. Anderson visited Deegan and asked that he resign by 5 p.m. Tuesday for what they called his "lack of accomplishment."

They represented the four Council votes needed to fire the City Manager, who had been on the job since the advent of Plan E government in 1950.

"I am opposed to it," said Councillor Amelio Della Chiesa. "Mr. Deegan has been here only two years and I think the City Council should cooperate with him to make the plan successful."

Anderson confirmed that he was aware of a plan by Deegan to seek action against him (Anderson) for alleged violation of the Plan E law that prohibits a councillor from interfering with the administrative functions of the city manager.

EAST MASS STRIKE

State Labor Commissioner John J. DeMonte held out little hope for a quick settlement of the strike by AFL bus drivers against the Eastern Mass street Railway Co. which affected some 800,000 commuters in 92 eastern Massachusetts communities.

The drivers, who earn $1.55 an hour, were seeking parity with drivers of the state-owned Metropolitan Transit Authority, who make $1.87. The company has offered a 13-cent an hour raise and refused to arbitrate pension requests.

SITE CHANGED

The School Committee rescinded a previous action that would have taken part of the Furnace Brook Golf Club as the site for a new school building and selected the Rice estate on Adams St. as the new location.

Marie's Kitchen

By MARIE J. D'OLIMPIO

Eggless Milkless Raisin Cake

The endless snowstorms have given me more reason to head for the cookbooks and the kitchen. This time it was one of the great recipes my mother had left for me. It's an eggless milkless raisin cake and unlike most pastries that are almost fat free and tasteless, this is by far the most tasty cake I have ever made. And takes no time at all.

This time instead of making a cake, I made a dozen cupcakes. With three small grandchildren living with us now, cupcakes are very popular and easier to serve.

Eggless Milkless Raisin Cake

1 cup raisins
2 cups water
1/2 cup margarine

1 cup sugar
1 3/4 cup flour
1 teaspoon baking soda
1/2 teaspoon salt
1/4 teaspoon cloves and ginger
(optional) I added these myself
Preheat oven to 350 degrees.

In a sauce pan, boil 1 cup of raisins in 2 cups water for 10 minutes. Add the margarine and let cool. When cool, add the flour, soda, salt, sugar, cinnamon, nutmeg and the cloves and ginger if you like. Mix all together until well blended. Bake in a greased pan for 30 minutes or 15 minutes for the cupcakes. Chopped nuts may be added, but then it won't be as fat free, but delicious all the same.

money for maintenance purposes at the college. Any rent money that is left over will have to go to the city's general fund and be put into Quincy's free cash account, he said.

He added that because the school department has the authority to take the properties back from the college for another use—for instance, additional space for Grades K-12—it could do so, which in turn could force the college to move to another location.

"If the school department decides they need the property for something, they might take it back," said Sheets. "If they were getting rent, they would have an incentive not to use it."

Sheets said although the school department may never need the property for another use, deleting the special account section from the home-rule petition was not worth the chance.

"It's a risk," said Sheets. "It may never happen, and it could happen by the end of this year. No one knows, but it's a risk."

"Five thousand full and part-time students are important to the city's economy, and that's the reason I supported it (establishment of a special account)."

The special account section of the legislation was introduced by School Committee Vice Chairman Daniel Raymond in an earlier proposal he had for college governance.

Councillors said Monday night that accountability is a key concern of the council's and that the school department should have to go through the normal appropriation process if it needs more money for its programs.

Council President Michael Cheney and others also agreed that the section had nothing to do with college governance and should not have been included in the mayor's proposal.

"We shouldn't confuse apples and oranges," said Cheney.

The council's Education Committee gave Sheets' home-rule petition a unanimous vote of confidence last week, but delayed a formal vote until Monday so a few minor amendments could be made.

With the support of the City Council and the mayor, the petition will now have to be approved by the state Legislature and Gov. William Weld before taking effect. Sheets is hopeful the legislation will be passed before the start of the new fiscal year in July.

Councillor Joseph LaRaia had expressed concerns that Sen. Michael Morrissey might not support the mayor's petition, since he has stated in the past he would not support any college governance change that did not have the approval of the School Committee. The School Committee voted at the end of last year to support Raymond's plan.

Morrissey said Tuesday he will not stand in the way of any plan that could prevent Quincy College from being put on probation, although he added he would like to see the School Committee offer some kind of approval of Sheets' petition in the future.

Despite the fact that the new governance system has been approved for Quincy College, officials are still awaiting a ruling on whether the school should be put on probation.

College President Donald Young said Monday night he expects to hear from the New England Association of Schools and Colleges by the end of this week on the probation decision. Young met with NEASC officials last week with a letter from the City Council indicating that the council was in favor of a governance change at the college.

The NEASC has ruled that the college, which has always been under the jurisdiction of the School Committee, has to change its governance system or face losing its accreditation.

Councillors expressed relief and satisfaction after their approval of the governance change, which has been discussed for about two years.

Initially, School Committee member Linda Stice headed a task force appointed by Sheets that came up with an earlier proposal for governance change at the college. After a number of months the task force first unveiled its proposal, which was sent to the School Committee for review last August after being endorsed by the City Council, a year ago.

The council chose the Sheets plan over the task force plan, Raymond's subsequent proposal, and an amended version of the Raymond plan drawn up by Atty. Richard Murphy, legal counsel for the School Committee.

Sheets' plan is similar to the mayoral task force proposal, which called for a 13-member independent board of trustees to run the college. The mayor said his plan spells out in detail that college employees' rights and benefits will not be affected by a governance change.

Raymond's plan, supported by the School Committee last December in a 4-3 vote, called for the college president to report directly to the School Committee, with the school superintendent, who serves as secretary to the School Committee, removed from the picture. Currently, the college president reports to the superintendent, who in turn reports to the committee.

Sheets said his plan incorporates some of the "better points" of the Raymond proposal—mainly the section regarding the rental property—as well as certain language from Murphy's draft of the plan regarding employee rights.

Councillors ultimately agreed that the mayor's proposal does the most complete job of giving the college president the appropriate freedom to run the college, which in turn would allow the School Committee to concentrate on matters pertaining to Grades K-12, and protecting the rights of college employees.

Additional $238,000 In Fuel Assistance

Quincy Community Action Programs, Inc. has received an additional appropriation of $238,000 in fuel assistance for eligible federal clients.

Automatically, eligible federal clients will get their increase, but Quincy Community Action now has more money to help additional people who fall into federal income guidelines, said Patricia MacNeil, fuel assistance director.

For example, households of two with gross income under $16,503 or households of four with gross income under $21,525 are eligible. The general guideline is income over the last 30 day period, annualized.

The deadline to apply to this year's fuel assistance program is March 31.

Quincy Community Action's service area is Quincy, Weymouth, Braintree and Milton. The agency can help homeowners and renters alike with their heating bills. People whose heat is included in the rent may be eligible.

Anyone experiencing problems paying their heating bills should call Quincy Community Action Programs, Inc. at 479-8181 to make an appointment.

The moratorium on utilities (gas and electric) comes off on March 16 and if utility bills are not current, the shut-off procedure may begin.

SPOTLIGHT ON HEALTH Adult Acne: Causes And Cures

While most of us think of acne anxiety as the scourge of adolescence, consider this surprising statistic: The largest single group of acne sufferers are women, 20 to 29 years old! The triggers of this "twenty-something" phenomena are not the often-blamed fatty foods, chocolate and cola. Adult acne is induced by organic stimuli which may in turn be aggravated by life-style patterns, events and habits. Here are some common causes and effective cures to try if you're troubled by this problem.

• Look for the word non-comedogenic on labels. This will assure you that the product has no known acne-causing ingredients such as lanolin or stearic acid.

Acne Cosmetics: Many cosmetics seal the skin's surface to air and moisture can't pass in or out. Some can also contain acne-stimulating oils that can cause blackheads and whiteheads. Using cosmetics to disguise minor flaws can itself aggravate acne and the more camouflage make-up you use, the worse it gets, so:

• Choose and use cosmetics carefully to minimize their acne-causing potential. Ask your dermatologist for a list of potentially irritating ingredients such as PABA and perfume and avoid make-up brands that contain them.

• Buy only water-based foundations; the less oil in the makeup, the better it will be for your skin.

• If you use a sunscreen, check the label to make sure it is low in oils. Olive oil, coconut oil and cocoa butter have a tendency to clog pores.

Fast-track Acne: Although the connection between stress and acne has not been scientifically proven, you can almost always read the amount of anxiety in your life by looking at your skin. Acne often seems to worsen in times of emotional stress and tension and the reason may have to do with an upset in the body's hormone levels.

Along with keeping your face scrupulously clean and using an acne wash, get exercise and drink lots of water. If, like many people, you find that nighttime is when most pimples come out, you might want to try the latest acne fighting tool—a lotion designed to fight acne while you sleep. Called OXY Night Watch, its formula is based on two time-tested ingredients: Salicylic Acid, a sloughing agent that removes dead skin cells and unclogs pores, and Sorboxyl, an ingredient that absorbs oil that can accumulate on the face at night, irritating pimples. The idea is to stop acne before it starts, relieving the stress of dealing with acne.

Hormonal Acne: You may be surprised to know that the big acne villains are male hormones called androgens. Both men and women produce male androgens and female estrogens. Androgens do their dirty work by prompting the skin's oil glands to step up the production of fatty matter. This causes pores to clog and acne to flare up. When the male and female hormone ratio in your body changes, as it does before your menstrual period, estrogen production is suddenly reduced and progesterone, which chemically resembles androgen, becomes more dominant—often resulting in acne.

Women often develop acne a few months after taking birth control pills because the newer low-dose estrogen pills contain progesterone (the hormone that behaves similarly to androgens).

The best solution to hormonal acne syndrome is to switch pills under your doctor's guidance, and adopt a program of topical treatment to keep acne-causing bacteria and excess oil under control. The most effective acne remedy, once a breakout is underway, is Benzoyl Peroxide applied evenly to all acne areas. Benzoyl Peroxide is sold in several strengths, usually "5 percent" and "10 percent." It's a good idea to start with the lowest number and graduate to a more concentrated formula only if needed. Happily, hormonal acne is cyclical and can often be controlled with an easy daily preventative skin care regimen occasionally supplemented with treatment.

New Food Labels Show Nutrition Standards

If you've ever wanted to buy more nutritious food but found food package labels too complicated, you're in for a pleasant surprise.

New labels are required by the U.S. Food and Drug Administration on all food packages by May, and they clearly show how well a food measures up to good nutrition standards.

For starters, the "Nutrition Facts" labels show standard serving sizes so you can compare similar products. The standard sizes are also more realistic, to prevent manufacturers from making claims for unreasonably small portions. On the old label, you may have read that one serving had only 90 calories—but that was for a tiny serving you have to triple to satisfy a normal appetite.

The new labels list "percent Daily Value," which tells you who much of nutrient a serving of the product will contribute to your total daily need or limit. For example, the label for a whole-grain bread may list dietary fiber as 3 grams per slice, which is 12 percent of the recommended amount of fiber for the day.

With sodium and fat, the percent daily value tells you how much fits into a limit that is reasonable for good health.

Eating too much fat has been linked to a higher risk of cancer and heart disease. But how much fat is too much? Health authorities like the American Institute for Cancer Research advise getting no more than 30 percent of your daily calories from fat. The new food labels allow this 30 percent limit to tell you how much fat is in a serving of food product. They can also help you compare foods to find out which foods have less fat than others.

The rules for food labels also require honest wording. For example, not long ago, a jar of peanut butter labeled "light" might have only been lighter in color. Now, you can trust terms like "low," "free," and "high." If a product is labeled "high in vitamin A," legally it must provide at least 20 percent of your daily need for that nutrient per serving.

You can also find the daily values for cholesterol, protein, sugar and carbohydrates on the new food labels. However, if the numbers are too tedious, stick to the general guidelines of eating a diet that is low in fat and high in fiber from lots of fruits, vegetables and grain products, as recommended by health authorities like the American Institute for Cancer Research.

For a free brochure explaining the new food labels, send your name and address to AICR, Dept. RL, Washington, DC 20069.

NEWS OF NUTRITION Cholesterol: Unfounded Fears?

Leading nutrition scientists around the world are concerned that the cholesterol scare, along with some of the unfounded health recommendations related to it, have gone too far. They are particularly worried that the backlash may undermine valid concerns regarding the health effects of cholesterol.

Enough question has been raised about some aspects of the anti-cholesterol campaign that Dr. C. Everett Koop, the highly respected, recently retired Surgeon General of the United States, is predicting that "the cholesterol bubble is about to burst." His view is endorsed by the Community Nutrition Institute.

The debunking of the scare, or various aspects of recommendations based on it, is coming from such farflung responsible sources as Cambridge University, in England, and eminent American nutritionists such as Dr. Frederick J. Stare, founder of Harvard University's Department of Nutrition. He has just co-authored with Drs. Robert E. Olson and Elizabeth M. Whelan, the new book, "Balanced Nutrition: Beyond the Cholesterol Scare." They point out, for instance, that the "poisoning of America" allegation against coconut oil and other tropical oils is scientifically unsupported.

All agree, however, that it is prudent to reduce one's fat intake as part of the effort to reduce caloric intake and that fat should be limited to 30 percent of calories in the average diet. Of this 10 percent can be saturated fat no matter what it's source. Lester M. Crawford, Administrator of the U.S. Department of Agriculture's Food Safety and Inspection Service, says "Attempts to label foods good or bad using inadequate nutritional criteria will undermine the public confidence in the science of nutrition."

There goes the tropical oil poison myth. Now you can go back to coconut oil.

Enrich Health With Fruits And Vegetables

Did you know that a cup of strawberries has more vitamin C than an orange? Are you aware that broccoli has at least four cancer-fighting nutrients? Do you get enough of the kind of fiber that only comes from fruits and vegetables—that you can't get from grains?

There's a wealth of health benefits we can get from eating a diet rich in fruits and vegetables. Unfortunately, most Americans eat only half the amount of fruits and vegetables they need each day, missing out on many vitamins, minerals and fiber that are essential to good health. With all the news about rising healthcare costs, it's important to know that a primary source for guarding your health is in the fresh produce section at the grocery store.

Health authorities like the National Cancer Institute and the American Institute for Cancer Research advise us to eat five servings of fruits and vegetables each day. That may sound like a lot, but one serving equals just one whole piece of fruit or a half-cup of chopped or small-sized vegetables (like corn or peas). So fruit on your breakfast cereal, a piece of fruit for a snack, salad-bar veggies for lunch and a cup of vegetables with dinner all stack the odds in your favor for good health.

There are lots of ways to add fruits and vegetables to your daily diet: add them grated, chopped, or pureed to soups, casseroles, and stews; add them as garnish to your entrees; keep a bowl of fresh fruit nearby for snacking; buy bags of frozen chopped vegetables to use in small portions and to save preparation time.

For a free booklet of delicious fruit and vegetable recipes, send a stamped (52 cents postage), self-addressed envelope to AICR, Dept. AP, Washington, DC 20069.

Water: A Vital Role In Total Health

(NAPS)—While the 1980s brought the onset of the "fitness craze," the '90s have brought a deeper consumer concern and interest in attaining total health. Consumers are more aware of what they consume, the type and frequency of exercise they need and how to maintain a healthy state-of-mind. More importantly, they've learned that total health can be achieved through the proper balance of exercise, relaxation and a healthy diet.

A healthy diet includes both low fat and nutritious foods and beverages. Consumers are veering away from foods with unnecessary additives and complex processing methods. The rule of thumb today seems to be the simpler the better.

One of the most simple dietary elements is also one of the most overlooked—water. High-quality water is the true "new age" beverage. With no calories, fat, coloring, sodium or other additives, water is a basic, natural, and vital dietary element.

Few people realize that water is by far the body's most important nutrient, second only to oxygen in maintaining life. Without water we would die within a matter of days, less than five to be exact. Every chemical reaction in the body takes place in water. It transports nutrients and oxygen for proper functioning of the body's tissues, and removes wastes from the body. Through perspiration, water cools the body, and it is essential for the digestion and absorption of nutrients such as vitamins and minerals. It keeps skin from drying out, internal organs from sticking together, and bone joints lubricated.

And, although we are made up of 55 to 70 percent water, our bodies do not store excess water. Its supply must be replenished constantly.

On an average day, the body loses about three quarts of water through breathing, elimination and perspiration. On a hot day or during strenuous exercise, however, as much as three quarts of water an hour or six pounds of body weight can be lost. Such severe water loss can cause muscle cramping, dehydration and heat stroke.

To prevent such symptoms, water replacement is essential. The body normally obtains water in three ways: from liquids, foods and through normal bodily processes. To ensure a good water balance, drink 8 to 10 glasses per day. To supplement this basic intake, consume high water content foods and non-diuretic beverages.

Natural foods, such as fruits and vegetables contain a high water content. For instance, lettuce is 96 percent water, apples are 86 percent and bananas are 76 percent water. Likewise, many beverages contain high amounts of water including milk, fruit and vegetable juices. However, it's advisable to stay away from alcohol and caffeinated beverages, as they are diuretics, which leech water away from the body.

Regardless, drinking high-quality water is one of the most effective ways to replenish your body's fluid needs. It is absorbed by the stomach and moved into the bloodstream faster than any other beverage or food source water. For more information about water's role in total health call the Culligan® WaterWatch™ Information Bureau at 1/800/CULLIGAN.

WHAT ABOUT THAT PAIN IN THE NECK?

We've all heard the expression, "You give me a pain in the neck," meaning that stress can affect us in a painful way, especially if there is weakness in one's neck.

The neck is the most delicate part of the spine and the most easily injured. It is comprised of seven separate bones that are loosely connected together by ligaments and muscles. The structure of the neck allows for great mobility, but also predisposes it to injury. Poor posture, occupation, falling asleep in a chair or on the couch, car accidents, falls, twists and strain take their toll on the neck (cervical spine).

The part of the nervous system housed within the bones of the neck is an extension of the brain. Displacements or misalignments of the neck bones may cause pressure on the adjacent spinal nerves commonly referred to as "pinched nerves."

Some of the symptoms seen most often with pinched nerves in the neck are: headache, sinusitis, dizziness, neck pain, shoulder pain, and pain, numbness, and/or tingling into the arm, hand or fingers.

One should always consult a chiropractor after a motor vehicle accident, fall, or strain even if you do not think you are hurt.

If you have any questions or would like to make an appointment please call Dr. Mark Jaehrig, a lifelong Quincy resident, at Quincy Chiropractic Office, 110 Billings Road, N. Quincy, 773-4800.

WALKING OFF THE EFFECTS OF ARTHRITIS

Osteoarthritis is a painful, degenerative disease that attacks a person's bone and surrounding cartilage. Pain-killers such as aspirin, ibuprofen, and acetaminophen are often prescribed to ease the discomfort of the condition. New research has found, however, that while there is no cure for osteoarthritis, a physician-supervised program of walking can greatly reduce the pain and disability of the disease when it strikes the knee. In one study, patients who took a 30-minute stroll three times a week reduced their pain, required less pain medication, and actually improved the functioning of their knees. Patients who did not participate in the program experienced a decrease in knee function.

P.S. About ten percent of people over 65 suffer from osteoarthritis of the knee.

It's great to think that even moderate aerobic exercise can make such a difference. If you would like to learn more about this topic, or about how you can prevent heart disease, call COMPREHENSIVE CARDIAC CARE at 472-2550. We specialize in the treatment of heart problems, hypertension and cholesterol. We place strong emphasis on caring for the patient, rather than simply treating the disease. Office hours are by appointment, and our comfortable office is located in Crown Colony, 700 Congress St., Suite 2C, in Quincy. I am affiliated with Quincy Hospital and South Shore Hospitals.

First-Time Homebuyers' Workshops At City Hall

Quincy Community Action will hold a series of first time homebuyers' workshops beginning Tuesday, April 5 from 6:30 to 8:30 p.m. in the second floor conference room of City Hall annex.

Other workshops are scheduled for April 12, 19 and 26. Attendance at all four workshops is mandatory in order to qualify for the different mortgage options through the Mass Housing Finance Agency and the City of Quincy.

Quincy Community Action is an approved Mass. Housing Finance Agency.

The agenda will be comprehensive and individualized. The focus will be on different aspects of the homebuying process, including how to locate a property within your budget, how to make an offer and the types of financing best suited to your needs.

Advanced registration is required and space is limited. The fee of $40 for all four sessions covers the cost of the workshop text and all copied materials.

For more information and registration forms, call Alan P. LeBella, Housing Development Specialist at Quincy Community Action Programs, Inc., 1509 Hancock St., Quincy, MA 02169, 479-8181 ext. 119.

9 NQHS Seniors In Washington, D.C. Program

Nine North Quincy High School seniors are visiting Washington, D.C. this week to participate in the Close Up Foundation's government studies program.

They are: Barry Canavan, Jay Evans, Travis Greenwood, Mike Koski, Erin Murphy, Eric Oster, Steven Roberts and Han Thai. The students are being accompanied on the trip by Thomas Bourque, NQHS science teacher.

A total of 165 students from 16 Massachusetts high schools are participating in the program March 6-12. They are joining a number of students from across the country who are taking part in the Close Up trip.

Bourque said shortly before the group left Quincy that the students would be involved in a number of activities during the trip, including monument studies, cultural events and several seminars they were slated to attend.

In addition, the group was scheduled to meet with Sen. Edward Kennedy, Sen. John Kerry and U.S. Rep. Gerry Studds and also planned to catch names of NQHS veterans from the Vietnam War Memorial for a bulletin board display at the high school.

"It's going to be a good trip," Bourque said. "The kids are very excited about it."

Bourque said the cost per person for the trip is $920, but the school managed to knock that down to $300. Most of the trip was paid for by donations from a number of local businesses and community organizations, he said.

He also had strong words of praise for the office of Mayor James Sheets, who Bourque said helped secure "some pretty hefty donations" to help fund the trip and the group's stay at Howard Johnson's in Arlington, Va.

Bourque said there was no special requirement for participation in the program, which was open to all interested seniors. When NQHS participates in the program next year, he said, it will be open to both juniors and seniors.

"Since this was the school's first time in the program, we really wanted our senior class to have a chance at it," he said.

The Close Up Foundation is a non-profit, non-partisan organization in Arlington, Va. that provides first hand opportunities to learn about the democratic process and the role of the individual. Since 1971, nearly 370,000 students and teachers have taken part in the program.

Parker PTO Meeting Tonight

The Francis W. Parker PTO will meet tonight (Thursday) at 7:30 p.m. in the second floor Media Center at the Parker Elementary School, 148 Billing Rd., North Quincy.

Guest speaker will be School Supt. Eugene Creedon. All parents are welcome to attend.

For more information, call 472-2324.

Citywide Parents' Council To Meet March 14

The Citywide Parents' Council will meet Monday, March 14 at 7:30 p.m. at the Quincy Historical Society, 8 Adams St., Quincy Center. The meeting is open to the public.

'Daffodil Days' Deadline March 14

The American Cancer Society has extended the deadline for purchasing daffodils for its "Daffodil Days" drive to March 14.

The Society's effort in Quincy is being led by Dennis and Pauline Sweetney.

Orders for the flowers, at $5 for a bunch of 10 and $250 for a box of 500, are being taken at the office of the Society's South Shore Unit at 341-4210. Specially marked designing vases are also available at $5 apiece.

Orders for five or more bouquets will be delivered March 22 and 23, while smaller orders may be picked up at a number of locations, including 15 CVS stores in the area, beginning March 24.

Proceeds from the drive support the Society's program of research, education and patient services.

Phelan Introduces Waterfowl Ordinance

Ward 5 City Councillor Charles Phelan formally introduced an ordinance at Monday night's council meeting that would ban the feeding of waterfowl at Sailors Home Pond in Wollaston.

Phelan, who had discussed introducing the ordinance at an earlier meeting, has said feeding the ducks and geese has attracted rats, pigeons and sea gulls to the site. He has also said that bird droppings have caused a film of algae on the surface of the pond.

Some area residents have claimed ducks and geese have fouled the shore of the pond with their waste and ruining vegetation.

Phelan said an environmental consultant hired by the city last year for $3,100 has stated that a ban on feeding birds would restore the pond to its former condition within a year.

However, another group of Wollaston residents has banded together with Dorothy Kelly of Plymouth, a former Wollaston resident who said she plans to fight the ban. They have claimed the birds cannot live through the winter without human handouts.

Phelan, however, has indicated that a majority of residents favor the ban.

"There are a lot of people who want this ban," he said.

Drop Opener To Newton N., 53-51

North Quincy Bows Out Of State Tourney

By DAVE SOUTHWICK

The North Quincy boys' basketball team's 1993-94 season came to an unfortunate end last Wednesday in the first round of the Division 1 South Sectional, losing to Newton North by a score of 53-51.

North started out slow spotting the Newton North Tigers a 4-0 lead two minutes into the game, causing coach Ted Stevenson to call a timeout to settle his troops down before a home crowd.

North came back and started to perform up to Raider standards by taking their first lead of the game, 6-4, on a Jerry Fernandez basket with 13:25 left in the half.

The Raiders controlled most of the middle part of the half, taking a 27-16 lead with 4:10 left. This run was led by centerman Jason McLeod who scored eight of his team-high 18 points in a four-minute span. Newton, with the help of several Raider turnovers, raced back with a 10-0 run to cut the lead by one, 27-26 at the half.

The Tigers once again came out flying in the second half taking a 32-30 lead, a lead they would hold for most of the second half.

North Quincy took the lead with 7:30 to go with a Matt Beston three-pointer to make the score 41-39.

North kept a four-point lead until the last minute of play. A Newton steal led to a basket to give the visitors a 52-51 lead with 30 seconds to left.

McLeod missed two free throws with 13 seconds which proved costly for the Raiders as Newton took possession. But as Fernandez gained control of the ball, he was covered by two Newton defenders. Newton received possession.

Newton was then fouled and received a one-in-one at the free throw line. The Tigers hit the first but missed the second to give them a two-point lead. North had one more chance with five seconds left but could not capitalize, thus ending their season on a disappointing note.

"They made some plays and we didn't," said coach Stevenson. "They made a run at us and we didn't answer in the first half but our kids played very hard."

Other scorers for North included Beston with 14 points, Brad Gray with 9, Fernandez with 8, and Adam DeBoer with 2 points. Brian Raftery and Kevin Ross also played well.

North Quincy finished the season with a 14-7 overall record. They finished second in the Old Colony League, their best league finish in many years.

Several Raiders had remarkable seasons. All-Star McLeod was second in the league in scoring with a 19.7 points per game average. Raftery and Beston also made the league All-Star team, Beston the lone sophomore on the squad.

Stevenson was also recognized as the OCL Coach of the Year.

The team's success this season featured many exciting victories, including a quadruple-overtime win versus Silver Lake, a two-game sweep over Quincy and an upset victory over number five-ranked Milton.

Last Wednesday's game also saw the last high school hoop action for other Raider seniors. They include George Wirtz, Mike Koski, Jason Picardi and Mike Santoro.

Despite an early exit from the state tournament, coach Stevenson, his assistants and his players have a lot to be proud of this year.

Chiu Qualifies For Wrestling Championships

Team captain Billy Chiu became only the third wrestler in North Quincy High history to qualify for the New England Championships when he won the State Tourney on Feb. 19.

Chiu (119) beat his nemesis, Mike Cimpher of Stoughton, by points in the finals to capture the title and catapult himself to the New Englands. Chiu and Cimpher have grappled four times this season, with the Red Raider winning every time but the first. North Quincy assistant wrestling coach Richie Ragusa knows the reason why.

"Billy can pick up on an opponents abilities and after the first meet he learned how fight Cimpher. He learned that the key was to keep his hips above his opponent's who is very powerful in the mid-section," said the coach. "Billy picked up on the Stoughton wrestlers technique and was able to counter anything he tried."

Chiu finished the season with an amazing overall individual record of 30-4, but he was not alone as the Red Raiders completed a 15-3 season, one of the most successful in school history.

Tri-captains Fran Bellotti (145) and Chris Hamill (152) finished second and third in the South Sectionals. Hamill's accomplishment was made even more impressive by the fact that he moved up a weight class (to 160) for the Sectionals. He also ended up at #8 in the state.

Also performing well were Jamie Karvelis (130), third in the Sectionals, and Jason Gibson (112) who finished fourth. Also finishing fourth in the sectionals was Robert Ragusa (171).

One of the great individual stories for the Red Raiders was heavyweight wrestler Steve Vukoza. In only his first year as a wrestler Vukoza finished third in the Sectionals, a performance good enough to qualify him for the State Tourney.

The combination of these great individual efforts meant that the team as a whole had some excellent performances. North captured second place in both the Marshfield Holiday Tournament and the Whitman-Hanson Tourney. In the South Sectionals the Red Raiders finished fourth.

Quincy Wins Invitational

The Quincy High School boys' basketball team ended their season on a strong note, winning the Seventh annual ERA Quincy Invitational. It was the Presidents' second tournament win of the season.

Led by senior guard and tourney MVP Harold Mortel, Quincy beat Stoughton, 70-61, for the tournament championship. Mortel scored 25 points in what proved to be Quincy's best shooting day of the season.

Seniors Joe Kelly and Tom Malvesti scored 12 and 10 points, respectively. Jon Gangi, Mike Bartlett and Brian McPartlin, all seniors, made their last high school game one of their finest.

The Presidents harried Stoughton all night with a tough man-to-man defense which led to 14 turnovers. Seniors Sean Perkins, Don Goes and Joe Manton and underclassmen Dave Gunther, Dave Sawan and Jim Lencki all played excellent coming off the bench.

In first round action Quincy topped Marshfield 60-49. The Rams went on to beat Scituate by 12 in the consolation game.

Quincy finished the year with a 10-10 record. Although outsize almost every game, the Presidents played with a gritty tough-as-nails style that was impossible not to enjoy.

Coach John Franceschini was very proud of this group.

"It was a pleasure to coach such a close group of athletes who left their hearts out on the floor every night for their school. I will miss them all greatly, they are a very special team to me," said the coach.

Sullivan, Powers On Boston Junior Bruins

Two Quincy boys, Mike Sullivan and Mike Powers, are members of the 1994 Boston Junior Bruins. The team recently played against the Middlesex Braves in between periods of an NHL Bruins contest.

The lone goal scorer in the game? Quincy's own Mike Sullivan.

The event was made significant for several reasons. First of all, Mike's older brother Thomas, now a hockey player at Thayer Academy in Brantree, pulled off the same feat at the Boston Garden three years ago when he played for the Jr. Bruins.

How many families, outside the Stasny or Sutters, have ever had two brothers score goals in that famous old barn, the Boston Garden? The boys' mother, Donna Sullivan-Mock was so awed at Mike's goal that she hyperventilated and had to be revived by her friend, Eileen Federico, who just happens to be an R.N.

MIKE SULLIVAN

What could top this all off? Well, the rock group

Aerosmith was on hand that evening and they came over to personally congratulate Mrs. Sullivan-Mock for her son's performance.

The players on the Junior Bruins are chosen from a statewide pool and the team travels throughout the U.S. and Canada.

Andy Ross' hat trick was all the scoring Barry's Deli needed as they edged Campbell's Auto, 3-2, in Mite House League play.

Assisting on the Ross goals were Ryan Tobin (2), Steve Price and Ryan McFarland.

Billy Jones and Brian O'Hanley were the goals scorers for Campbell's. Notching assists were Taylor Reinhardt and Tim Watson.

Lydon Russell beat Purdy's Ice Cream by the same score, 3-2.

Corey Piazza, Brian Lynch and Justin Thorley provided the winning margin for the Lydon team. Piazza and Thorley also handed out assists, as did Tim Gleason.

Mite House

Ross, Donovan Hat Tricks Lead Barry's, Granite Rail

Ryan Donahue scored once and assisted on Matt Grazioso's goal for Purdy's. Tim Duggan assisted on the Donahue tally.

Granite Rail Pizza charged past Skatesmith, 10-6, in a Wild West shootout.

Bobby Donovan had the hat trick for Granite Rail, with Mike Donelin and Josh Giordani netting two each. With single goals were Andrew Patten, Steve O'Neill and Bill McKeon. Patten also assisted on three of the Granite Rail scores. Others assisting were Ryan Conley, Brendan Clifford, Brendan Conley, Donelin, O'Neill and McKeon.

The Segalla brother, Steve (four goals, two assists) and John (2,2) were the main weapons for Skatesmith.

Chris Sheehan was the leading playmaker, setting up three goals. Also with assists were Dennis Rugg (2) and Andrew Flores.

Bryan Cooper's two goals were the difference for Paul Harold Club as they beat Samoset Pharmacy, 4-2.

Brendan McDonald and Mike Lohnes notched the other two tallies for Harold Club. McDonald and Cooper also provided assists, as did Sean Moriarty.

Matt Lavery and Mike McGonagle were the Samoset goal scorers. Assisting were Steve Kelley and Billy Ryan.

Squirt House

Granite Auto Cruises, Green, Burgin Also Win

First place Granite Auto ran over Johnson Motor Parts, 5-2, in Squirt House League play.

Joe Thorley drove home two for Granite Auto. Mike Maloney, Derek Whitman and Kevin Patten scored one each to help slam the door on Johnson Motor Parts. Assists by Jon Paquette, Jim Mateu, Scott Cawley, Maloney and Thorley helped Granite Auto cruise to victory.

Frank Curreri was running on all cylinders with two goals for Johnson Motor. Matt Kenney was the spark plug with one assist.

Steve McGonagle scored twice for Green Environmental as they blocked out Quincy Sun, 4-3.

Ryan Graeber and John Tallent recorded one goal each for the Green team. David Kusy and Jordan Virtue dishd out assists.

Dave Germain, Andrew Nestor and Brett Keyes scored for the Sun.

Assisting were Nestor, Joe Fitzpatrick and Colin Maxey.

In the week's other game, Dan Kennedy netted one and delivered three assists as Burgin Platter beat Doran & Horrigan, 6-5.

Five other players, Matt Petit, Paul Zenga, Tom Gaeta, Sean Fennelly and Joe Cunningham, scored for Burgin. Assisting were Scott Markarian (2), Gaeta (2), Petit, Cunningham and Tom Hughes.

Jimmy Cashins and Tom Maloney scored two goals each for Doran. Joe Cox banged home the other goal. Skateless Joe Jackson, Martin McGrath, Ryan Doyle and Maloney were the playmakers.

Squirt House League standings: Granite Auto, 10-6-2; Burgin Platter, 8-7-3; Green, 8-7-3; Doran, 6-8-4; Johnson, 6-8-4; Quincy Sun, 6-8-4.

Squirt B's Bow

The Quincy Youth Hockey Squirt B team advanced to the semi-finals of the Cranberry Tournament before falling to Pembroke 1, 2-1.

Quincy won their first game, against Pembroke 2, 6-1. Scoring for the Squirts were Frank Guest, Shaun Flaherty, Joe Fitzpatrick, Joe Cunningham, Pat Lahar and Rene Lumaghini.

Assisting were Jordan Virtue and Lumaghini with two each. Tom Maloney also had an assist.

In their second outing,

Quincy topped Hobomack, Nova Scotia, 4-3. Shawn Richardson, Kevin Patten, Cunningham and Lumaghini netted the Quincy goals. Assists were handed out by Flaherty and Fitzpatrick.

Flaherty had the lone Quincy goal in the semi-final loss. He was assisted by Patten.

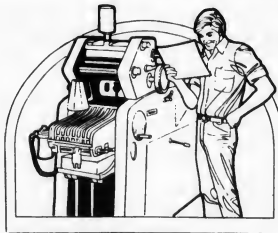

Pat O'Donnell was superb in goal in all three games and Joe Callahan, Martin McGrath, Jill McInnis, Jon Paquette and Dan Sheehan played excellent two-way hockey.

Cashman's Whirlwind Triumphant Olympic Journey Not Over Yet

practicing in Oslo during the days leading up to her event.

"It was really low key in Oslo. All we did was eat, sleep and train. I'd wake up, eat, train, eat, nap, train. That was about all we did."

Until that point Cashman was just happy to be at the Olympics. Things changed in practice when she broke her personal record in the 3,000-meter event and her team smashed the American record in the 3,000-meter relay. The competitive edge set in for Cashman and her teammates, Ziegelmeyer, Cathy Turner and Shana Sundstrom.

That edge would pay off on Tuesday, Feb. 22. Race day.

"I felt unusually calm on race day," she said. "I rested and hung around for a while. I got to the rink about 4:30 p.m. We didn't compete in our first heat until about eight."

Everything since that moment has been dizzying. During the second heat, the medal race, Ziegelmeyer was rounding the ice when she saw a skater from the Chinese team standing in the middle of the ice. Racing around the small oval of ice on sharp metal blades at 30 mph, she was unable to avoid the human barrier. As Ziegelmeyer went sprawling, Cashman sped on to the ice to continue the race for her fallen comrade.

"At the time I was skating around the center of the ice waiting for my turn and watching the other skaters. We practice coverage-you have to watch the other skaters just in case something like that happens," said the quick thinking Cashman.

When Ziegelmeyer fell

the U.S. team was in second place in the four team heat, in position for a silver, even a gold, medal. The spill caused the American women to finish in fourth, but because the Chinese woman failed to follow relay rules by remaining on the race surface after completion of her leg, her team was disqualified. The United States was awarded the bronze.

As Cashman has found out, once you win an Olympic medal things are not the same. How often does someone get a fax from President Clinton? How often is someone greeted by throngs of family members, friends, well-wishers and television cameras at Logan Airport?

All these things have been part of her life since she hung the bronze and granite obelisk around her neck at 10 p.m. that evening. But she has had precious little time to enjoy that medal or show it off to her friends in Quincy. Six days to be exact. That's how long she spent at home before leaving again to practice for the team World Championships to be held in Ontario on March 18 and 19. On March 31 and April 1 and 2 she'll compete in the individual World Championships in in Guilford, England.

One person who is definitely not happy about the short stay at home is Karen's mom, Jane Cashman.

"I don't see her very much because she is away at school or training," said a sad-eyed Mrs. Cashman. "We've been trying to spend as much time together as possible but it has been very hard with all the attention she's been getting."

It will be a long time before Mrs. Cashman or her husband Fred see their daughter again. After the World Championships are over in April, Karen will meet with, ahem, the President at the White House.

After hob-nobbing with Bill and Hillary, Cashman will come back home. The final celebration will be "Karen Cashman Day" which the Mayor's Office is planning for "some time in late April," according to Executive Secretary Tom Koch.

Cashman is currently in the midst of her junior year at Northern Michigan.

There will be plenty more Olympic news from Cashman in the future as she looks forward to competing in the 1998 Winter Games in Japan.

Hockey

North Opens State Tourney Against Billerica

The North Quincy hockey team played their first game in the MIAA Division I State Tourney Tuesday night against Billerica at Boston University.

The Red Raiders enter the tourney with an impressive 10-0-3 unbeaten streak. They have not lost a game since early January. One of the factors that could hurt them, though, is that their 14-3-3 season record gave them a bye in the preliminary round of the tournament. The Red Raiders have not played a game since their 1-1 tie with Somerville on Feb. 19.

North Quincy's opponent Tuesday night was Billerica who advanced by virtue of a 5-3 first round victory over Stoneham last Saturday. The Red Raiders will count heavily on Brendan O'Brien, Jim Sapienza and A.J. Carthas, a line which is among the best in the region. Wings Sapienza and Carthas ended the season as the two leading scorers in the Old Colony League.

North will also depend on a defense which has been nothing less than solid for the entire season. Dave Pacino, Andrew Vermette, Dan Stone and Dennis Pateras provide the Red Raiders with an excellent corps of defenders to keep the puck out of the face of OCL all-star netminder Mike Manganaro.

A win over Billerica will send the Red Raiders to Merrimack College Saturday night to take on the winner of Tuesday's Archbishop Williams-Don Bosco battle. The game will be played at 5:15 p.m.

Pee Wee House

Sullivan's Six Goals Puts Morrissey Club In First

Mike P. Sullivan scored six goals for Mike Morrissey Club as they edged Keohane's, 7-6, and took over sole possession of first place lead in the Pee Wee House League.

The other Morrissey Club goal was scored by John Sullivan, who also added two assists. The games leading playmaker was Betsy Stone who set up three of the seven goals. With single assists were M. Sullivan and Mike Connolly.

Chris Carthas did all he could for Keohane's, notching a hat trick in the losing effort. Also scoring goals were Pat O'Neill, John Katsarikas and Paul Markarian. Carthas, Katsarikas and Markarian all had two assists to add to their point totals.

In another close game,

Colonial Federal nipped Marina Bay Taxi, 8-7, on the strength of three Matt Minicucci tallies.

The other Colonial scores were made by Adam "The Wealth of Goals" Smith (2), Pat Kenney, Ashley Rowerdink and Ryan Krueger. Rowerdink also set up three scores for the winning squad. Other playmakers were Minicucci (2), Billy Connolly and Jarrod Jacobs.

Mark Doyle and Kevin Mason scored two goals each for Marina Bay. Ryan Barrett, Kevin Shaw and Chad Fitzpatrick each registered single goals. Assisting were Barrett (2), Joe Watson (2), Robbie Bell, Tony Fasoli, Mike Gavin, Sean Slattery, Shaw, Fitzpatrick and Mason.

Matt Gibbons was a rock between the pipes for Neponset Valley Survey as they shutout Skinner's Winners, 4-0.

John Grazioso (2), Chris Murphy and Mike Powers scored the Neponset goals. Josh Silverman handed out two assists.

The Pee Wee House League standings are: Morrissey Club, 13-5; Marina Bay, 12-6; Colonial, 9-7-2; Neponset, 8-9-1; Keohane's, 5-12-1; Skinner's, 5-13.

Sports Spotlight

By KERRY BYRNE

Skip Lapworth, former head hockey coach at Milton High, was struck down with an unknown virus a few years ago, causing him to be put in a nursing home. His family was devastated and without their main bread winner.

Friends have put together a charity hockey game to help the Lapworth family. This year's game, the second since the Milton coach was stricken, will be played at the Quincy Youth Arena Saturday night, March 12, at 7 p.m. A reception sponsored by G.J. Coddington's will be held afterwards at the Atrium at Presidents Place from 9 p.m. to 12:30.

The game features Milton alumni versus the current Milton High team. Tickets for the charity event are $10. Children can attend for free.

North Quincy track star Erin Duggan competed at the Eastern States Girls' Track and Field Championships held at Harvard University last Saturday.

Duggan's time of 5 minutes, 34.8 seconds was good enough for fifth place in the Mile at the invitation only event which features athletes from up and down the Eastern seaboard.

The "Quincy Connection" made its present felt at the oldest and biggest Pee Wee hockey tournament in the world.

Mike Powers and Mike Sullivan each netted hat tricks and shared MVP honors for the Junior Bruins in their first game in the 35th Hockey Tournoi International in Quebec City, Canada. The game was and 8-6 victory over the Pittsburgh Penguins.

Another impressive feat was pulled off by Sullivan this past weekend in Pee Wee Hockey League play. His team, Mike Morrissey Club, beat Keohane's, 7-6. Sullivan scored six of his team's seven goals. What would you call six goals in one game, maybe a magic trick? The Keohane's team probably thought it was an illusion.

Olympic bronze medalist Karen Cashman said that she was "flattered" with the thought of a "Karen Cashman Day."

The mayor has appointed a committee to plan the day. Right now they're looking at "sometime in late April" according to Mayor's Office Executive Secretary Tom Koch.

As of Tuesday, committee members included Koch, Eileen Feeney, Ken McPhee and Barry Welch, and others such as Dr. Allan Yacubian are probable members.

Plans for a big Nancy Kerrigan-like celebration, just a week after the Olympics ended, never materialized because the mayor was out of town last week and because Karen spent only six days at home after the games.

By the way, Karen met Nancy while at the Olympics and said that she was "very nice." But for all those who want to use this as justification for their seat on the Kerrigan band wagon, let it be known that Cashman also met Tonya Harding and said that she, too, seemed to be very nice in person.

Cam Neely scored goals 49 and 50 Monday night against the Washington Capitals. Since this was done in just 44 games and since he plays for the Bruins, it makes him the greatest man to inhabit the face of the earth. But what does Neely have in common with Quincy, you say?

Well, nothing really.

At least not on the surface. But delve a little deeper and you'll see that Neely has quite a bit to do with Quincy, a city considered by many insiders to be the hub of hockey knowledge in America. For example:

- Neely drives right through Quincy on his way to the Cape every summer.

- a friend of mine once dated a girl from Quincy who said she had a friend who went out with Neely one night.

- Neely is a rock of a man. Quincy is...you guessed it, the Granite City.

- Cam the Man has a load of weapons in his arsenal which he uses with deadly accuracy. The Quincy shipyard built deadly war vessels and was part of America's "Arsenal of Democracy."

- no goaltender is safe with Neely on the ice. No human is safe in Quincy Bay water, which is actually fine if you don't mind the sludge, soap bubbles or oil slicks.

- Neely makes opposing defensemen do the floppy fish. Quincy is "The Flounder Fishing Capital of the World."

So as you can see, Quincy and Neely are virtually synonymous.

Kelly, Mortel Win Old Colony Honors

Two honors were bestowed upon the Quincy High School boys' basketball program at the Old Colony League season ending meeting.

Senior forward Joe Kelly was selected as an OCL all-star. Kelly had an outstanding season as Quincy's second leading scorer and rebounder. He was also second on the team in minutes played. Kelly has been chosen to try out for the Massachusetts State Basketball Association's "Best 80" game to be held on March 20.

Senior guard Harold Mortel was awarded the OCL Sportsmanship award, given to the individual who exemplifies sportsmanship both on and off the court. Mortel led the Presidents in scoring and assists. In the last six games of the season he averaged 19 points and eight assists per game.

Both Quincy High stars are planning to attend college and further their basketball careers.

Graham, Perry QHS Girls Sports Representatives

Quincy High principal Lloyd Hill announced that Jaime Graham and Danielle Perry represented Quincy High School at the 1994 celebration of the National Girls and Women in Sport Day.

The student-athletes were presented a certificate of recognition for their accomplishments. The keynote speaker at the celebration was Mary Ellen Clark, bronze medal winning 10-meter diver at the 1992 Summer Olympics in Barcelona.

The program was sponsored by the Massachusetts Interscholastic Athletic Association, the Massachusetts Advocates for Women in Sports Leadership and the Massachusetts Association for Health, Physical Education, Recreation and Dance. Also sponsoring the event were Converse and the MIAA.

For information concerning the program contact Sandra Jacques or Patricia Richardson at the MIAA, (508) 478-5641.

Pee Wee B's Capture Tournament

Jeff Glynn scored the final two goals for the Quincy Pee Wee B team as they beat Woburn 4-3 in sudden death overtime to capture the title of the Cranberry Tournament.

The game's final goal came on a breakaway. The Woburn netminder stopped Glynn's initial shot but he picked up his own rebound and slammed it home for the game winner. Also scoring were Matt Gibbons and Sean Lefebvre. Assisting were Mike Welch, Joe Ardagna, Kevin Shaw, Sean Haidul and Didier Alther.

Goaltenders John Sullivan and Jeff Langille allowed only four goals in four games as the Quincy team went undefeated on their way to the final game.

Quincy opened with an 8-1 win over Weymouth. Glynn netted a hat trick for the champs. Lefebvre scored twice and Welch, Haidul and Shaw each scored one. Shaw was also the game's leading playmaker with three assists. Assists also went to Mike Dempsey and Joe Watson.

The notorious Long Island Green Machine was Quincy's next victim, falling 3-1. Alther managed to score twice in what proved to be a rough and tumble affair. Glynn added the other Quincy tally. Assisting were Sean Slattery, Gibbons, Haidul and Shaw.

In their third game the Pee Wees pounded the South Shore Seahawks, 9-1. Hat tricks were dished out by Welch and Lefebvre while Kiva Tupe and Shaw each scored once. Haidul added one goal to go with his game leading four assists. Other assists were made by Shaw (3), Gibbons (3), Lefebvre, Ardagna, Watson and Dempsey.

In the semi-finals Quincy dumped Pembroke, 5-1. Leading the charge were Alther and Gibbons with two goals each. Welch recorded a single goal. Assisting were Welch, Ardagna, Gibbons and Paul Burke with two each. Both Glynn and Dempsey assisted once.

Special salutes go to blueliners Brian Nolan and Chris Griffin who were instrumental parts of Quincy's rock-solid defense throughout the tournament.

The Quincy Pee Wee B team will now go on to state competition.

$15,000 Raised In Benefit Ski-A-Thon

Thirty people participated in a cross-country Ski-A-Thon on Feb. 26 and raised $15,000 for the benefit of the Carroll Center for the Blind in Newton.

The Ski-A-Thon was held in Jackson Village, N.H. The leading pledge recipients were Bob and June Seamans of Merrymount, who raised over $3,000 between the two of them.

Mr. Seamans skied 72 miles during the 12 hour charity event. Mrs. Seamans completed 30 laps of the half-mile cross-country circuit. Participants received pledges based on the number of miles skied.

The event was specifically scheduled on Feb. 26 because the full moon on that date would allow for perfect night skiing.

"This year's event was very successful, the sun was shining and the track was in ideal shape. About 7:15 p.m. the moon came over the mountains and lit up the whole course. It was beautiful, you could even see your shadow in the moonlight," said Mr. Seamans.

The South Boston Savings Bank was a major sponsor of the event.

The Carroll Center for the Blind is a tax exempt, non-profit organization. Contributions are deductible to the extent allowed by law.

St. Moritz Devils Fall To Kings, 4-2

The St. Moritz Devils hockey team fell 4-2 to the first place South Shore Kings in a game played at St. Sebastian's in Needham.

Devils' goalie Kevin Regan did an outstanding job of keeping his team in the game with several great first period saves. The score was 0-0 at the end of the opening period.

Quincy's Steve Segalla opened the scoring in the second with a tally off a pass by Sean Sullivan of South Boston. The goal gave St. Moritz a short-lived 1-0 lead. Defenseman Mark Mulhern of Milton had an great scoring opportunity for the Devils on a breakaway but was denied by the South Shore netminder.

Down 3-1 in the third period, St. Moritz wing Mike Aylward of Milton scored a beautiful goal to cut the deficit to 3-2 and lift the hopes of the Devils' fans. Those hopes were dashed, however, by a late South Shore goal.

The St. Moritz defense continues to do an excellent job. Sullivan aggressively attacked the Kings' forwards. Tim Egan of Braintree made a diving stop of the puck to thwart a South Shore scoring opportunity.

As the season draws to a close the Devils' playoff hopes are very much alive. They will play the BC Eagles at Conte Forum next weekend.

Squirt Minors Shutout Middlesex

The St. Moritz Devils Squirt Minor hockey team shutout the Middlesex Islanders, 5-0, in a home game at UMass-Boston.

The Devils took control early with first period goals by forward Michael Aylward and defenseman Nick Sarno, both of Milton.

In the second Corey Rosenfield of Sharon scored on a pass from Sean Sullivan of South Boston. Tom Hughes of Quincy had an excellent scoring opportunity but was denied when the Middlesex goalie made a great glove save.

St. Moritz scored two more times in the third on goals by John Segalla of Quincy and Kevin Lynch of Milton. John Segalla was assisted by brother Steve. Lynch was assisted by Rosenfield.

One of the best plays of the game was made by Richie Howe of Milton as he carried the puck the entire length of the ice and snapped off a beautiful shot. Unfortunately his shot was stopped by the Middlesex goaltender.

Defenseman Mark Mulhern of Milton, Brett Wood of Newton and Sullivan did superb jobs as they held the Middlesex team scoreless.

Council Delays Vote On Home-Rule Petition For Recreation Complex

A decision on Mayor James Sheets' proposed 50-year lease for a recreation complex at the former landfill site in West Quincy will not be made for another two weeks.

The City Council Land Conveyance Committee Monday night put into committee the home-rule petition that would allow Sheets to enter into the lease agreement with the developer of the project, Quarry Hills Associates. The council agreed to vote on the matter at its March 21 meeting.

The committee decided to delay a vote on the petition because of councillors' concerns regarding the City Council's ability to oversee the work done in the construction recreation complex.

Ward 4 Councillor Thomas Fabrizio, chairman of the Land Conveyance Committee, said delaying the vote on the matter for two weeks would allow councillors time to contact Sheets to discuss issues raised at Monday night's meeting.

"The committee has concerns about the lease," said Fabrizio, whose ward includes the landfill site. "With a two-week continuance, we can consult the mayor."

Fabrizio said the council's concerns were "not about control," but rather "assurances of performance" by the contractors.

Council President Michael Cheney voiced similar sentiments, noting that the proposed recreation complex is a "multi-million dollar project" that will also have an impact on the environment.

As it stands, the City Council cannot make amendments to the actual lease Sheets has proposed. Under the city's Plan A form of government, the mayor has the final say on the lease.

However, Sheets is also required to submit a home-rule petition to the council for any lease that exceeds a five-year period of time. Ward 3 Councillor Lawrence Chretien pointed out that the council can change the language of the petition if it so chooses.

Councillor Timothy Cahill noted that if Sheets decides not to make any changes in his proposed lease, the council would be forced to vote on a petition pertaining to the lease in its current form. If the council decides not to support the petition, the lease with Quarry Hills Associates could fall through.

Cahill said Quincy should be allowed to share in a greater percentage of the profits from the recreation complex. Other councillors expressed concerns about noise from construction and truck traffic as well as how the complex's finances will be audited.

The mayor said Tuesday if the council can work out some sort of compromise in the lease with the developers, he would be willing to support it. He added, however, that he is happy with the lease as it is proposed.

Sheets has proposed a lease that indicates the project will earn considerable revenue for the city in addition to providing a golf course, nature trails and other amenities.

The proposed lease guarantees the city 10 percent, or between $100,000 and $200,000, annually from the profits from the 18-hole course and rental of function facilities. The money be used for the upkeep of other Quincy parks.

The lease also requires Quarry Hills Associates to set aside $1 million as a security fund while the complex is being built. The City Council and state Legislature must both approve the proposed lease between the city and the developer.

Cheney has said in the past that while he is supportive of the lease but wants a provision that would give the city 10 to 20 percent of the profit if the developers should ever sell the lease.

Officials have said the complex would be built and maintained by the developers, who include developer Peter O'Connell and former Mayor Walter Hannon, at no cost to taxpayers. The details of the lease have been worked on for the past three months.

The project will also depend on whether fill can be secured from Boston's Central Artery project to finish covering the landfill. The lease also says that Quarry Hills Associates, who would be paid to accept the fill, would share any profits with Quincy after construction is completed.

While competition for the fill is likely to be strong, officials and developers have said Quincy's proximity to Boston will help its cause.

In addition, the lease calls for an advisory committee of residents and officials to be appointed to review financial operations at the golf course.

Plans for the project calls for a complex of about 250 acres, including the 178-acre landfill as well as about 70 acres of private land to be purchased by Quarry Hills Associates. Officials said the complex will cost an estimated $8 to $10 million and about three years to build.

The developers are also negotiating with the Town of Milton. Officials have said adding land in Milton would allow Quarry Hills to increase the number of golf holes from 18 to 27.

The recreation complex would also include three baseball fields, two softball fields, nature trails and picnic areas. A one-acre artificial lake would be used for skating and the adjacent quarry is available for hiking and rock-climbing.

The complex would also provide residents with direct access to the Blue Hills Reservation.

record this season is an impressive 10-3. One of the big reasons for the Bullets' success has been the play of Mark Smith. Smith was particularly impressive in the tourney wins at Reading.

Quincy plays their home games at the Lincoln-Hancock gymnasium. Their next home game is scheduled for Friday, March 11 at 7 p.m. against Malden.

Cosch Ketchen expects some tough games in the weeks ahead.

Decision On Gun Range Report Expected Today

State Environmental Affairs Secretary Trudy Cox was expected to make a decision today on whether the City of Boston will have to file an Environmental Impact Report on its use of the Moon Island gun range site.

The decision follows a hearing last week at Quincy City Hall where about 50 opponents of Boston's proposed expansion of the shooting range made their case before Richard Foster of the state Executive Office of Environmental Affairs.

Quincy residents and Boston-area environmental activists urged Foster to require a detailed review of the project's impact on the environment. They also said the project has caused excessive noise as well as lead contamination and other irreversible environmental damage to the island and the bay.

In addition, opponents of the project said Boston has not answered to those charges and suggested that the city look at alternatives to the Moon Island site, so that the island may be preserved and used for recreation.

Boston owns Moon Island, but it lies within Quincy city limits. Boston officials said last week that much of the environmental damage cited by opponents came after the Quincy Conservation Commission (QCC) ordered work to stop last September.

Boston officials also charged that if the city had been allowed to finish its expansion, the damage would have been minimal. In the ongoing legal exchange in the case, Boston has sought an override of the stop work order issued by the QCC.

An Environmental Impact Report is a lengthy process that Boston officials are hoping to avoid.

Quincy has won Norfolk Superior Court rulings halting the planned expansion of the gun range, while confining any construction to the area occupied by the old range. Environmental groups from Boston have also joined the cause, saying Moon Island should be protected as a valuable resource for the state.

The Boston Police Department wanted to replace the gun range with three ranges. Police have said the number of officers using the range would not increase dramatically but the gunfire area would expand from one to four acres. Police have also said the range is necessary for the training of 1,600 Boston police officers.

Officials noted that Quincy police officers have also used the range but are currently practicing at the Braintree Gun Club.

Among those siding with the opponents of the project are Mayor James Sheets, Quincy city councillors, all four members of the city's delegation to the state Legislature, U.S. Rep. Gerry Studds, Sen. Edward Kennedy and Sen. John Kerry.

Studds Co-Sponsors Federal Gun Exchange Bill

U.S. Rep. Gerry Studds has co-sponsored a bill that would provide tax incentives to businesses participating in gun exchange programs, which have sprung up on the South Shore and across the nation.

In Brockton, Norfolk-Bristol/Ambulance Systems of America has spearheaded a corporate buyback program in which individuals will be paid $50 for each firearm they turn in, beginning April 4. Hibernia Savings Bank of Quincy has proposed that the bank and other businesses sponsor a similar gun buyback program in Quincy, Weymouth and Braintree.

"Civic-minded businesses should be given every encouragement to participate in programs of this kind," said Studds. "No one would suggest that gun exchange programs can single-handedly stem the epidemic of gun violence afflicting our communities, but they are a very positive step. These programs have not only reduced the number of firearms in circulation but have also reminded us of what we can accomplish when we band together to reclaim our communities."

Studds has been working closely with prosecutors and police officials on the South Shore and Cape Cod to help stem the rise in crime through violence prevention programs and more community policing.

"The message I have received is that no single remedy will 'solve the crime problem,' but efforts like gun exchange programs, more money for community policing and the Brady Law, which went into effect this week, can help," said Studds.

Studds is one of the first co-sponsors of H.R. 3771, the Gun Exchange Incentive Act of 1994, introduced by Rep. Charles Schumer (D-N.Y.) and Sen. Barbara Boxer (D-Calif.). It would amend the Internal Revenue Code to increase the tax deduction available to businesses for items from their inventory that they donate to state and local gun exchange programs.

Under current law, businesses that donate goods to charity can take a deduction worth the cost of the good. The bill would enable businesses that contribute goods to gun exchange programs to deduct their full fair market value. In addition, current law permits businesses to take charitable deductions of only 10 percent of their annual taxable income. The bill would permit businesses to deduct up to 15 percent of their income, as long as the charitable deductions above the standard 10 percent consist solely of donations to gun exchange programs.

The guns-for goods idea was originated last November by a New York businessman who offered certificates for toys to citizens who turned in their guns to local police. The program was a huge success, and since then business in dozens of cities and towns around the country have instituted programs of their own. A recent program in Boston netted 1,300 guns.

To contribute to the Brockton gun buyback program may send checks to "Buy Back Guns" c/o the Brockton Credit Union, P.O. Box 720, 68 Legion Parkway, Brockton, MA 02403.

Quincy Bullets Win Tourney

Defending basketball state champions, the Quincy Bullets, were handed their awards by Boston Celtic Rick Fox after capturing the title of a Special Olympics qualifying tournament at Reading High.

The Bullets opened the tourney with a 41-39 squeaker over Lowell. In the second round, Quincy pulled out another close one, 32-31 over Newton. In the tournament championship Quincy faced Lowell again, this time putting them away 43-34.

After the final game the Bullets got to shake hands with Rick Fox as he presented them their gold medals.

"We were completely tickled to death," said Quincy coach Billy Ketchen.

Fox also conducted a clinic for the players after the games.

"We were really impressed [with Fox]. He was really an inspiration to our players," said Ketchen.

The Bullets are defending champions of last year's Special Olympics. Their overall

SCOTT DEWARE

A THOUGHT FOR THE WEEK

One's attitude - the way we feel about things - both in business and in our personal life - makes us what we are.

It has been said that anything we face is never as important as our attitude toward it. The way you think about your job determines whether or not you enjoy your work, how well you do it and even more, it makes the difference that results in success or failure.

It's a fact that you can't do a poor job if you are interested in what you are doing. It is just as true that if you don't care about your company or its product, you can't do a really good job, no matter what the extent of your education or IQ.

And what part does attitude play in your personal life? Just as in business, your success or failure here is influenced by how you feel about the people. Kindness, understanding and interest are the key words here. If you show these things toward the other fellow, you'll find that he responds with kindness, interest and understanding toward you. It's all in the way you think.

How's your attitude today?

Susan Little will be the Scripture reader. Greeters will be Paul and Linda DelGreco. Ushers will be Gary and Joanne Smith. The Hospitality Hour will be hosted by Helga Strong, Adele Hamilton, Arlene Wickens and Phyllis Hawes.

At 4 p.m., a Lenten program will be held in Susannah Wesley Hall with the showing of Dr. James Fleming's video, "Palm Sunday Crucifixion." A soup and sandwich supper will follow.

Listening.

Treasured times spent on grandma's knee... hearing more than was spoken. Creating the kind of warm memories you pass along to your own children. Listening enriches your life and your family's heritage.

Listening. One of the most important things we do.

City To Benefit From Pilgrim Health Care Move

Pilgrim Health Care's decision to move its headquarters from Norwell to the Crown Colony Office Park in West Quincy will reap economic benefits for the city, officials said Monday.

At press time figures on the total profit for Quincy were unavailable, but Mayor James Sheets and Charles D'Aprix, executive director of Quincy 2000, the city's public-private planning organization, agreed that at the very least the deal will translate into "at least" $100,000 in annual property tax revenues.

The health maintenance organization's move, which follows the closing of a real estate deal worth approximately $24.8 million, will bring over 600 employees to the city. Officials said Quincy 2000 brokered the agreement between Pilgrim Health and Vazza Associates, owner of the Crown Colony park.

Pilgrim Health Care officials formally announced at a press conference in Sheets' office that the HMO agreed last week to purchase a 236,000 square foot building at Crown Colony, where it plans to consolidate operations now scattered among three offices in Norwell and one in Rhode Island.

Thomas Brophy, vice president and chief financial officer for Pilgrim Health Care, said the HMO's transfer from Norwell to Quincy should begin this fall and be completed by the summer of 1995.

Commercial real estate brokers familiar with the deal have estimated the sale price at $24.8 million.

Sheets said he was pleased with Pilgrim's decision to come to Quincy.

"The city is on the cutting edge of change, and thanks to Quincy 2000, which acts as a full-time marketing arm, we have been able to reach out to corporations like Pilgrim," he said. "I am impressed with Pilgrim's quality of services and its sensitivity toward the people of the city."

D'Aprix agreed. "It's (Pilgrim) a quality organization, there's no doubt," he said. "It's progressive and well-managed."

City Councillor Joseph LaRaia, chairman of the City Council Downtown and Economic Development Committee, called the HMO's move a "shot in the arm" for the city.

"It's a tremendous boost for Quincy," said LaRaia. "It appears that the breakthrough in the economy nationally is also happening locally. I hope it's contagious and spreads to other parts of the city."

D'Aprix said he has proposed operating a shuttle bus to take workers from Crown Colony to Quincy Center in order to capitalize of the economic benefits of attracting the new workers to the city. However, that proposal is still in its "embryonic stages," he added.

D'Aprix noted that Quincy 2000 entered the negotiations in January, when talks between Pilgrim and Vazza began to stall. He said Quincy 2000 acted as a mediator to bring both parties back to the bargaining table and also used its business contacts to apply subtle pressure on both sides to resume negotiations.

The move to Crown Colony will provide needed space for Pilgrim Health, which had outgrown its Norwell headquarters but wanted to remain on the South Shore, its primary market. In addition, the HMO will now have better access to the North Shore, where it hopes to attract new subscribers, and to central Massachusetts, where it recently began bidding for members.

Officials said the HMO's membership grew to 281,099 last year, up 12 percent from the 250,655 members it had at the end of 1992.

Pilgrim agreed to acquire the Crown Colony office building currently occupied by Aetna Life and Casualty. It also has an option to acquire adjacent property to build a parking garage.

A spokesperson for Aetna said the insurance company will relocate about 200 of its employees to 300 Crown Colony Drive on June 1.

Pilgrim Health Care currently has 648 employees.

THE DIAGNOSTIC CHECKUP

Prior to the 1980's, most car owners were conditioned to ask for tune-ups as a means of dealing with cars that did not run well. However, the introduction of computerized fuel and ignition systems has rendered the old-fashioned tune-up obsolete as a solution to engine performance problems. Today, what is known as a maintenance tune-up is performed according to the dictates of the owner's manual. If a car is not operating properly between maintenance intervals, it is best to ask the auto technician to perform a diagnostic checkup. Not only will this save on the cost of a needless tune-up, but it will encourage the diagnostician to get to the heart of the problem more quickly.

HINT: A maintenance tune-up may be prompted by a loss of fuel economy, a rotten egg smell from the exhaust pipe, a rough idle, or stalling.

Our technicians at LEO & WALT'S SUNOCO take a personal interest in our customers and in their auto care problems. Make us your first stop and chances are you will never choose to go elsewhere. Service is our policy. Whether you are having a major problem with your vehicle or simply want us to check it for you, rely on us. If you are not yet familiar with us, stop by 258 Quincy Ave., E. Maritime, Museum Flags Raised On Southern Cross

MAYOR JAMES SHEETS speaks to 50 invited guests aboard the USNS Southern Cross during a recent flag raising ceremony. Looking on are Bill MacMullen, executive director of the United States Naval & Shipbuilding Museum, and Capt. Joseph Murphy of the Massachusetts Maritime Academy. The 465-foot Southern Cross will be used for training by Mass Maritime for the next year or two. It is considered part of the educational component of the museum planned at the Fore River shipyard.

THE FLAGS of the Massachusetts Maritime Academy (top) and the U.S. Naval & Shipbuilding Museum were raised during a recent ceremony attended by 50 invited guests aboard the USNS Southern Cross, now berthed at the planned museum on the Fore River in Quincy Point. Among those attending the ceremony were Mayor James Sheets, and officials from Mass. Maritime, the MWRA and AMSEA. Betty DeCristofaro and Jim DeCristofaro, wife and brother of Ward 2 Councillor Ted DeCristofaro, represented the councillor who has been hospitalized following a recent heart attack. DeCristofaro is a member of the Museum Board of Directors.

Cheney Proposes Plan For Aggressive Back Taxes Collection

City Council President Michael Cheney has proposed that the city implement an aggressive program to collect back property taxes.

Cheney said the city is currently owed $5 million as a result of non-payment of the taxes.

"Some people are having difficulty paying their taxes due to the slow economy and loss of jobs, and that we can understand and work with," said Cheney. "However, there are others who are delinquent without sufficient cause and those are the individuals we should target."

Under Cheney's plan, the city would seek legislation to take all properties being held in

Revised Calendar Awaits School Committee Action

School Would End June 27, June 30 Under Creedon Plan

By ROBERT BOSWORTH

Because of the high number of school days cancelled by stormy winter weather, School Supt. Eugene Creedon has recommended pushing the last day of school to June 30 for elementary children and June 27 for secondary students.

Creedon was expected to announce the revised school calendar at Wednesday's school committee meeting. In addition, Creedon planned to recommend how additional days would be made up in the event school is cancelled again before classes end this academic year.

Creedon told the Sun that he would recommend further postponements be made up by using Memorial Day and Good Friday as school days first, then taking days during the April school vacation week. Going to school on Saturdays, the superintendent said, is his last and least favorable option.

"Saturday is primarily used for CCD classes and other religious and community youth activities. Many spring sports for youths are scheduled on Saturdays," Creedon said.

As it presently stands, Quincy public schools can fulfill the state Board of Education's regulation of 180 school days by extending the school calendar to June 30 for elementary schools and June 27 for high schools and middle schools. Taking Memorial Day, Good Friday, and days in the April vacation week would be needed only if weather or other circumstances cancel school again this year.

The School Committee was expected to accept Creedon's contingency plan for making up additional school days

Wednesday or come up with its own plan. One option that cannot be considered, Creedon said, is making up days by applying hours to Tuesday which is now a half-day.

"The commissioner (of education) has made it very clear that we're obligated to have a school calendar with at least 180 school days and dates. We can't use Tuesday because it is the same day," Creedon said.

Last year, the school department applied and received a waiver allowing Quincy to make up days by applying hours to Tuesday. However, Creedon said the state education commissioner has indicated no waivers will be granted this year.

Respond To Mayor's Recent Comments Councillors: College Will Not Leave City

By MICHAEL WHALEN

The chances of Quincy College leaving the city range from slim to none, according to several City Council members.

Councillors made their comments in response to Mayor James' Sheets recent statement that the deletion of a passage in his home-rule petition to establish an independent board of trustees as the new governing body over the college could ultimately result in the college being forced to move to another location.

The council chose last week in a 6-2 vote to delete a passage from the legislation that would have allowed the school department to establish a special account for accepting rent payments from the college for use of three of its properties.

Those include Coddington Hall and two houses at 50 and 58 Saville Ave.

Council President Michael Cheney, Councillor Timothy Cahill, Councillor Joseph LaRaia, Ward 4 Councillor Thomas Fabrizio, Ward 5 Councillor Charles Phelan and Ward 6 Councillor Bruce Ayers voted to take the passage out of the home-rule petition. Ward 1 Councillor Peter Kolson and Ward 3 Councillor Lawrence Chretien voted against the deletion.

Ward 2 Councillor Ted DeCristofaro, who is being hospitalized after recently suffering a heart attack and stroke, did not attend last week's meeting.

Sheets said last week that if a special account had been established, the $217,000 a year in rent money could have been used by the school department for curriculum such as computer education, foreign language programs and middle school athletics. However, because a majority of councillors chose to make the school department go through the regular appropriation process for obtaining funding for its programs—in other words, through the City Council—Sheets said the rent money can now only be used for maintenance purposes at the college.

The mayor also said that without the rent money, the school department now has less incentive to use the properties for college purposes and may eventually decide to use it for Grades K-12, which would force the college to move.

License For Proposed School St. Cafe Withdrawn

By LISA CONNELL
Gregg Rennie of West Quincy, manager of the proposed coffee house International Cafe, withdrew his application for a common victualler/all alcoholic beverage license for the vacant 3 School St. site before the Licensing Board Tuesday.

He stated to the board that he will continue looking for other potential cafe locations in the area and will re-apply for an operating license at a later date.

Licensing Board Chair and City Clerk Joseph Shea said later problems with the School St. site, including lack of adequate parking and an unfavorable attitude from property abutters, influenced Rennie's decision to withdraw his application.

Property abutters Angus MacDonald, manager of Firestone Tire, and Senior Warden Edward Corey of Christ Church, Episcopal, spoke in opposition to Rennie's plans at a March 1 board hearing.

Corey stated at that time that state mandates require that licensing boards give special consideration to objections raised by officials of churches and other religious properties when holy buildings are located in proximity to new license addresses.

Shea said, however, that location had been a tavern for many years, going back to the 1940's. Previously the location of The Corner Tavern, the site at 3 School St. was most recently known as Stoooges Cafe and Bar. Stoooges moved to a larger location on Hancock St. some time ago.

From Furnace Brook Pkwy. To Freeport St. High Occupancy Vehicle Lane Planned Along Southeast Expressway

By ROBERT BOSWORTH

The Massachusetts Highway Department plans to implement a six-mile high occupancy vehicle (HOV) lane on the Southeast Expressway between Furnace Brook Parkway and Freeport St. to help ease traffic during peak commuting hours beginning in October.

The lane, which would be the first in Massachusetts and only the second in the nation, will be created by borrowing an off-peak direction lane and converting it to a peak-direction lane.

Currently, the targeted six-mile stretch of expressway has four lanes of traffic in the southbound and northbound directions. A removable barrier system would be placed between the southbound and northbound lanes.

During the morning rush hour, the removable barrier would move out and take an additional lane from the southbound side of the expressway, thereby providing five lanes for northbound traffic.

For the afternoon or evening commute, the opposite would occur. The removable barrier system would assume a lane in the northbound direction and provide another lane for southbound traffic.

The removable barrier system uses Jersey barriers which are attached to one another. The barrier is moved by a machine resembling a Zamboni. The machine drives over the barriers and moves them.

"The barrier sort of snakes out to the other side of the machine," said Mass Highway spokesperson Chrissy Meyers. She said it would take about a half hour for the barrier to be moved each time the lanes change.

The lane would be reserved solely for the use of buses, van pools and car pools with three or more people. Lane use will be enforced by state police. Fines for drivers who violate the lane have not been determined yet.

Meyers said there are three objectives for implementing the HOV lane. Ideally, she said the lane will help to ease traffic, persuade drivers to use the car pool commuting system, and improve air quality.

Meyers said the system will probably be used between 5:30 and 8 a.m. during the morning commute and from 4:30 to 6:30 p.m. in the afternoon commute.

"Those using the lanes can generally save about 15 minutes a day (driving)," she said.

Construction of the barrier system is expected to begin in May. If all goes according to plan, the system will start in October, Meyers said.

The removable barrier system has been used in Texas for about two years. Meyers said if the Southeast Expressway barrier system works out, other systems may be implemented. Two areas mentioned are along Route 128 and on Route 3 past the Braintree split.

A public hearing on the proposed system was held Monday. Anyone wishing to be recorded in support or opposition of the proposed plan may send written testimony to the Commissioner's Office, Mass Highway Department, 10 Park Plaza, Boston, MA 02116, attention Louisa Paiewonsky.

License Board Briefs

The Licensing Board took the following action at its meeting on Tuesday:

- Granted a request from Harbor Engine Co. (Robert Gagnon) for an auto repair shop license and a permit to store fuel at the property located at 153 Brook Rd., which will include the storage of 500 gallons of antifreeze and gasoline for motor vehicles.

- Along with the granting of this request, the board stipulated that Gagnon operate his business from one location only, clean up the area at the corner of Liberty and Brook Sts., fence in his business property and not allow any on-street business vehicle parking.

Served City 22 Years Childhood Center Name Pleases Late Mayor's Friends, Family

By MICHAEL WHALEN

Family members, friends and colleagues of the late Amelio Della Chiesa expressed joy and satisfaction this week over the School Committee's decision to name the new Early Childhood Center in South Quincy after the former Quincy mayor.

Della Chiesa, a native of South Quincy, served the city as mayor, city councillor and state representative for 22 years. His 12 years as mayor from 1954 to 1965 is the longest in the city's history.

The School Committee unanimously voted last week to choose Della Chiesa's name over that of former First Lady Abigail Adams, wife of second U.S. President John Adams and mother of sixth U.S. President John Quincy Adams. Mrs. Adams was also an early proponent and activist for women's rights.

Those who knew Della Chiesa said he was more than worthy of the honor. Ron Della Chiesa, his nephew, said his uncle had received accolades for his contributions to the city in the past but nothing as important as this latest tribute.

"It's the biggest honor to be bestowed upon my uncle," he said. "When your name's on a school, it really shows the respect a city and its people have for you."

Della Chiesa added that his uncle was a hard-working man who "represented the exact opposite" of the characterization of Italian-Americans as "gangsters," adding that the honor was particularly fitting since the late mayor "had a great concern for education and for young people. He felt everyone should get a good education."

AMELIO DELLA CHIESA

Florence Della Chiesa, the late mayor's sister-in-law, also said he was a man to be admired.

"Naturally, I'm very happy about it," said Mrs. Della Chiesa, wife of the late Aldo Della Chiesa who served as city councillor in Quincy's Ward 3 from 1936 to 1941.

"He (Amelio) left a lot of trust funds to the YMCA, Salvation Army, and other organizations. He did a great deal for the city and his door was always open."

"He was probably the best mayor ever in the city. And I've heard him called that."

Former Mayor Francis McCauley, a freshman Ward 1 city councillor in 1964-65, jokingly said that Della Chiesa was actually "the second best mayor this city ever had (after McCauley)."

"I was delighted (the school was named after Della Chiesa)," said McCauley, who served as mayor from 1982 to 1989. "The Adams family is pretty well-recognized (already) here in the city, and he was a native son who went to the top rung of the ladder."

McCauley added that "it was a great experience for a young person to learn from him," noting that three city councillors who served during the Della Chiesa administration—himself, Walter Hannon and present-day Councillor Joseph LaRaia—went on to serve as mayor of the city.

LaRaia, who served as Ward 2 Councillor from 1960 to 1965, said Della Chiesa achieved a number of notable accomplishments during his administration, including the privatization of the city's rubbish collection services, groundbreaking for the construction of the former Quincy Vocational-Technical High School, and the addition of a wing at Quincy City Hospital (now Quincy Hospital).

"He had a tremendous affiliation with the Police Seize Car In Hit-And-Run Case

Quincy Police have seized a car they believe may be involved in the hit-and-run death of a Sea Street resident last week.

Police Chief Francis Mullen said Tuesday the car was taken from Houghs Neck, where William E. Barry was run down.

Barry, 48, of 1227 Sea St. died the evening of March 9 at Quincy Hospital shortly after he was found lying in the street near the American Legion Post on Sea Street.

No arrests have been made, but sources said hair and tissue samples taken from Barry's body were compared to those found on the car. Mullen would say only that the state police forensics team is current processing its findings.

The chief added that the Quincy Police Department is working in conjunction with Norfolk County District Attorney's office for the investigation because the D.A.'s office has jurisdiction over such fatalities.

Offers Received For Morrisette Post Purchase

The Cyril P. Morrisette Legion Post has received at least two offers to purchase its property on Miller Street in West Quincy directly off the Southeast Expressway.

According to reports, the Post has received an offer from a fast-food chain and another from an automotive dealership. Sources have described both offers as "attractive."

Atty. Paul Hunt, judge advocate and a past commander of the Post, confirmed Tuesday that there have been recent offers to purchase the property but declined further comment.

Citywide Parents' School Council Sets 1994-95 Goals

By LISA CONNELL

While school officials decide how the city's public school students will make up for school days lost due to one of the snowiest winters on record, the Citywide Parents' Council met Monday night to set goals for the 1994-95 academic year.

These goals include safety issues, computer literacy, class size and spacing and the council's desire to enhance their role as an information clearing house.

Ed Fitzgerald, President of the Citywide Parents' Council, said that this group, comprised of parent representatives from every Quincy public school, "goes back to the 1950's. It has ebbed and flowed but [was] reformulated in the mid to late 80's, but was viable before that; it's been around for a good long time."

The council serves as a forum for parents discussing issues related to Quincy public education.

Representatives are not formally elected or under the jurisdiction of any city government branch but are appointed by a particular school's parent / teacher organization.

Two representatives plus an alternate share information and concerns with other council members from every elementary and middle school, while four parents represent each high school.

Fitzgerald explained the difference between school PTO's, school councils and the citywide council.

"The PTO and separate school councils discuss issues relative to a specific school. The Citywide council articulates viewpoints that apply to the school system across the board," said Fitzgerald.

"We serve as an educational conduit and forum for discussion for the concerns of all schools," Fitzgerald said.

Before formulating system-wide school goals, council members broke up into four different school groups to list specific objectives they plan to address next school year.

Bus and lunch matron training, a full-time nurse at each location, curriculum equity and computer specialists were the key concerns elementary citywide representatives have for the 1994-95 school year.

Middle school representatives set a foreign language program for students, computer literacy and teacher CPR and first aid training as their key goals for next year, while high school council members would like to see required summer reading for incoming students in grades nine through 12.

Building accessibility was the chief focus for council members representing special needs students.

would be subject to a $50 fine.

QCA President Arthur Chandler said there is "no dire need" in Quincy to impose a no-feeding ban and the ordinance should be rejected by the council.

"Ponds and our waterfronts are spots where people can come close to wild birds and are important windows on the natural world, and Quincy

On the local political front, this year's state election may have all the excitement of a Sunday afternoon croquet match with your Aunt Suzy.

Nomination papers for local state and county offices, have been available since Feb. 15. But there's been no rush to City Hall to pick them up.

City Clerk Joseph Shea reports only one candidate has stopped by for them. That's state Senator Michael Morrissey who will be seeking his second term.

Others due up for re-election this year are:

State Reps. Michael Bellotti, Ron Mariano and Steve Tobin, Dist. Atty. William Delahunt, Register of Deeds Barry Hannon, Clerk of Courts Nicholas Barbadoro and Governor's Council Richard Iannella.

Also due up for re-election is County Commissioner Barry Olson of Stoughton, but there won't be any Quincy candidates. John Gillis, former City Clerk, is now commissioner and only one resident at a time can serve in that post.

However, there could be a Quincy connection. City Building inspector Matt Mulvey, who lives in Weymouth and is a Democrat, is still thinking of running against Olson, a Republican.

Filing deadline for nomination papers is May 3.

The primary election is Sept. 20 and the final election is Nov. 8.

And, as far as election campaigns go—especially for a challenger—it's already later than you think.

YOU CAN ADD one name and apparently subtract one name as candidates for the five-year appointment to the Quincy Housing Authority, soon to be made by Gov. William Weld.

GALLAGHER

Sharkey and subtract Susan Gallagher. Sharkey, who lives on Forest Ave., and is a member of the Ward 4 Republican City Committee, was active in the campaigns of Weld and Lt. Gov. Paul Cellucci. She is a cousin of former State Senator Paul Harold (The family comes with both Republicans and Democrats).

Gallagher, who is chairman of the Republican City Committee, will soon be moving to Milton where she has purchased a home. This will eliminate her from consideration for the QHA post because Quincy residency is a requirement.

It will also mean she will be stepping down as GOP Committee chairman.

Still in the running are Rosemary Wahlberg, whose term is the one expiring, Christine Cedrone, who was edged out by Sean Barry for a School Committee seat and Michael Cronin, former Republican member of the should encourage residents and visitors to enjoy all our unique amenities," said Chandler.

Phelan, a number of residents who live near the pond, and an environmental consultant hired by the City Council last year have listed several reasons why the ban should go into effect. Among their findings are that food thrown into the pond attracts rats and other vermin, the waterfowl leave behind droppings that pollute the water and cause damage to nearby plant life, and that the birds' digestive systems are not designed to consume human food.

SOME GOOD SIGNS as Ward 2 Councillor Ted DeCristofaro recovers from a heart attack and stroke suffered two weeks ago. His wife, Betty, reports his "spirits are wonderful" and he will probably remain at South Shore Hospital another week before going to Braintree Rehabilitation Hospital. He has been DeCristofaro moved from the intensive care unit to the progressive care unit.

The other day, Ted called Rosemary Nolan, the City Council secretary, to see what was going on and whether there were any phone calls or mail for him.

On Friday, Rosemary and Jeanne Reardon, clerk of City Council Committees, visited him and found him "upbeat."

If you'd like to drop him a card, send it to him at: South Shore Hospital, Room 520, 55 Fogg Rd., South Weymouth, 02190.

Ted, here's wishing you a full, speedy recovery. And I promise I won't try to move the ball until you're all better. Thinking of you and when we were kids together at the Point.

FORMER SENATOR Paul Harold is back from a month-long overseas lecture tour for the U.S. Information Agency.

At the end of the trip, he stopped off in Rome and had dinner with Ambassador Ray Flynn and his wife, Kathy, at the Ambassador's residence. (In the Nancy Reagan Room).

Harold found Flynn still undecided about running for governor and weighing the decision from both a "personal and political standpoint."

Harold visited Finland, Russia, Lithuania, Austria, Denmark and Cyprus.

When he arrived in Cyprus, the temperature was 85 degrees and the cab driver apologized to him for the unseasonal "cold weather."

"And, it's really a small world," Harold says.

He was giving a lecture at the American Center in Cyprus and in the audience was Leonard Tagg of Weymouth, who is teaching there, and a Winthrop resident.

CITY COUNCILLORS Joseph LaRaia and Bruce Ayers are in Washington, D.C. attending the National League of Cities Conference.

JUDY KOLSON, wife of Ward 1 Councillor Peter Kolson, is recuperating at home following surgery for the removal of cervical disc at Newton-Wellesley Hospital last week. This was the third back surgery for her since being struck by a hit-run car 25 years ago crossing Sea St.

SIGN OF SPRING: State Rep. Steve Tobin and his wife, Francine, hosted their fifth annual "Salute To St. Patrick" last night (Wednesday) at Pat Flanagan's Pub, Parkingway, Quincy Center. Impact Quincy To Host Asian-Pacific Workshop

Impact Quincy has been selected from over 250 community coalitions across the country to host a national demonstration of a new workshop that focuses on concerns relating to Asian and Pacific Islanders.

The workshop, which will be known as the Asian and Pacific Institute (API), will be held April 13-16. It is being co-sponsored locally by Bay State Community Services, Quincy Savings Bank, The Quincy Sun, South Shore Mental Health and WJDA.

The two goals of the workshop are to increase the participation of Quincy's Asian and Pacific Island residents in the life of the community in general, and to increase the effectiveness of the community in addressing the prevention needs of those residents.

The workshop will include activities and discussions that will focus on specific themes tailored especially to the needs of Quincy. Its curriculum was developed by a national team of trainers and facilitators from the U.S. Center for Substance Abuse Prevention (CSAP).

Four local facilitators will join a team of 10 nationally certified trainers in leading the workshop.

Each of the first three days, April 13-15, will begin with a luncheon sponsored by a local restaurant at 11:30 a.m. and will break at 2:30 p.m. to allow parents to pick up children from school. The workshop will resume at 3:45 p.m. and conclude at 6:30 p.m.

On the final day, Saturday, April 16, the workshop will run from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. and will include a celebration luncheon.

There is no charge for participants, but pre-registration is required and space is limited to 60 persons. Four small scholarships will be available for persons with financial need. Deadline for registration is March 30.

For more information or registration forms, visit the Impact Quincy office at 15 Cottage Ave., Quincy Center or call 472-6027.

Taxpayers' Head Calls For Merger Of City Depts.

William M. Edmonston, executive secretary of the Quincy Taxpayers Association, called for consolidation of several city departments, notably those of tax rate at $30.

Edmonston also attacked what he called plans for "wholesale salary increases" among the city's clerical employees and he suggested that $2,250 could be saved by eliminating the post of manager of parks and playgrounds, currently held by Edward G. Spargo.

Edmonston spoke before the City Council's Finance Committee, which was considering Mayor Thomas S. Burgin's budget.

"We pay $2,250 to the manager of parks and playgrounds and $2,340 to a foreman in this same department," he said. "These two posts ought to be consolidated."

The QTA proposed a new salary scale for clerical workers ranging from $850 to $1,100 a year for clerks and typists, $900 to $1,150 a year for stenographers and bookkeepers, and $1,500 to $1,800 for supervisory clerks.

SKEET, TROUT CLUB

Lawrence H. Abbott agreed to make available 100 acres of land near the intersection of Quincy Ave. and East Howard St., containing three ponds, for the formation of a skeet and trout fishing club, if the club would pay the $150 a year in taxes.

SCHOOL WALL BULGES

A new bulge, believed to have been caused by water freezing behind the bricks, was discovered in the wall of Central Junior High School, which was currently under repair following the collapse of a section of wall near the roof.

School Committeeman John I. Taylor, chairman of the maintenance committee, estimated the bulge could be fixed for $200.

Meteorologist Rob Gilman

Forecasting Our Tricky N.E. Weather

This is a new feature of The Quincy Sun. Each week, we will focus on a well-known Quincy personality to provide a little insight about him/her to the general public. Because of the particularly stormy weather the city has experienced this winter, we thought a good person to start with would be local meteorologist Rob Gilman.

By MICHAEL WHALEN
Quincy Sun Staff

Q. What drew you to this line of work?

A. This is an unusual line of work; there aren't many private weather forecasting companies, and I've been fortunate to develop this business, but I've always been interested in weather.

Q. And what is it exactly that you find so interesting about the weather?

A. The changes associated with weather: we really have so many types of weather here in eastern New England especially, and it seems to be something that's always of interest.

Q. Have you always worked out of your home?

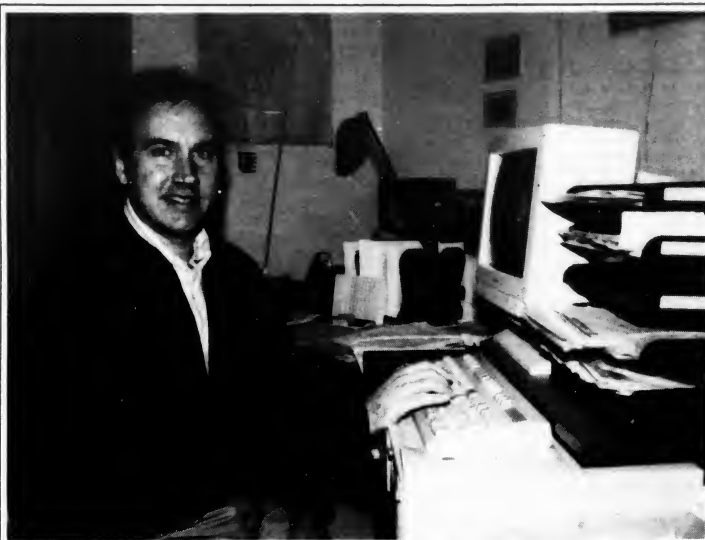

A. This was the first, well, the second office that we set up, and it's something again that not only am I interested in meteorology and I like serving clients, specifically with what they need in terms of weather information, but I also like to be available, and there's no better way to be available than to work out of your home, so it sort of goes along with not having to sit in lines of traffic to get back and forth to an office and to be available when my clients need to know about weather, and that's the way I've always worked, yeah.

Q. It must be very convenient.

A. It is, in terms of getting here (laughs).

Q. What would you say is the best part about doing your job?

A. Well, again, this is something I've always been interested in, so as far as the best part, it's my hobby, it's something I would be doing even if I wasn't being paid for it. I've always been interested in the weather, and talking about storms, and watching how storms develop, and to be able to do this and make a career out of it is wonderful.

LOCAL METEOROLOGIST Rob Gilman, in his Wollaston Hill home weather office, has charted and tracked area weather for residents and businesses for 15 years. (Quincy Sun photo by Robert Bosworth)

Q. And the worst part?

A. And the worst part is getting up early (smiles). That's when people want to know about weather, four and five (o'clock) in the morning. You can't do this by keeping bankers' hours, or even normal hours. It's a long day, and a very early start.

Q. Maybe you can put this winter in perspective. Isn't this the worst winter since 1947-48 in Quincy?

A. That's absolutely right. It's the snowiest and the coldest; for snow plow operators, I don't think they'd agreed it's the worst (laughs). For people who provide shovels and snow blowers, it has a major effect on our economy, no doubt, and this following last March, which was the snowiest (March) since the big Greek ship, the Etrusca, washed ashore off of Scituate in March of '56. It's rather phenomenal, in terms of what we've been used to around here the last several years and the last few decades, really.

Q. How many inches of snow have we gotten this winter in Quincy?

A. Precisely around here, we've gotten just about 86 inches. Again, it depends on exactly where you measure it; I talk to Leo Keenan in Squantum who's an ex-

FULL NAME: Robert Alan Gilman

AGE: 41

ADDRESS: Wollaston Hill

OCCUPATION: principal meteorologist (among five) at New England Weather Science, which he founded in 1979. NEWS, which is operated out of Gilman's home, services about 65 local radio stations.

EDUCATION: Boston Latin High School graduate, 1972; attended Northeastern University; received B.S. in meteorology from Penn State in 1979.

FAMILY: married to the former Betsy Cotton. They have three children: Steven, 12; Sharon, 7 and Michelle, 3.

cellent weather watcher, he calls in a couple of times a day with his measurements. He's had just about 87 inches so far this year. Bob Skilling makes measurements in Hingham nearby, and he's had his second snowiest winter in 43 years, with 87 1/2 inches, while a few spots have had even more than that. Towns like Norwell have had a little more.

Q. And in '47-'48, wasn't it something like 115 inches here in Quincy?

A. It was on that order, that's right. That was another extraordinary year for snow removal. Of course it wasn't as big a part of our life then; we didn't all have two and three cars per household and the amount of snow, I think, wasn't as newsworthy then as it is now, because it has such a severe effect on our schedules now, with schools opening and closing irregularly. But that year, '47-'48, brought the most snow of this century before this season. It was on that order of 100 inches or more.

Q. I've heard that you can actually measure these storms by the number of snowflakes.

A. That's an interesting way to look at it. I think there was a reporter that did just that kind of a study and wrote a story about it. You can certainly calculate it if you're into that kind of thing.

Q. But you don't generally do it?

A. Never. That's the last thing I would do (laughs); we're more concerned with the effects of the snow, and I don't think most people think about how many snowflakes fall in any given storm.

Q. Do you monitor your competition, i.e. other forecasters, to see if what they're predicting agrees with what you're predicting?

A. That's a real good question; it's really kind of a double-edged question. They're not competition. They support competition, in the sense that our forecasts, for instance, are heard on WEEI, WBMX, WMJX and a number of other stations. We provide their announcements with the meteorology. So I don't consider myself in competition with other forecast sources—such as where I went to school at Penn State, there's the largest weather service in the country there, Accu-Weather. I don't consider myself in competition with Accu-Weather because they're providing WBZ with a forecast while I'm providing WEEI or another radio station with a forecast.

For instance, we're the exclusive source of weather information on the South Shore with WATD, and WATD's listeners know that they'll listen to my forecasts for the South Shore when they tune in 95.9. So I don't think of it in terms of competing.

The other part of that question is, do I listen to other forecasts? Well, of course. As a matter of fact, my professor in meteorology was Joel Myers, who started Accu-Weather, and I'm very interested in hearing how they interpret these large storm systems, especially. There are some excellent meteorologists in the Boston area... However, that has little to do with the forecasts we develop, because I'm developing forecasts with my associates, and we're looking at our own information to develop our forecasts.

Q. If you gave yourself a batting average, or percentage of the times you're accurate, what would you say it is?

A. It's 92 percent.

Q. How do you know that?

A. Based on all of the forecasts we did over a reasonable sample, our accuracy is 92 percent.

Q. From a meteorological point of view, what is the most impressive storm you've ever seen?

A. That's a good question. The Blizzard of '78 was not something I really experienced very directly, because that was the one or two years I was out of the area (attending school) in central Pennsylvania, though I certainly got a good sense of it from being at Accu-Weather at the time, so in a lot of ways, that would be it.

Q. What are some of the things you like to do in your off time?

A. With this winter, I've literally had very little time when I haven't been working for the last few months. We're going to take a Caribbean vacation that I'm looking forward to. What I really like to do is bike ride; I like to get outdoors, I like being outdoors... (and) of course, spending time with the kids.

Q. Do you have a philosophy of life, or a "Weatherman's Creed" that you go by?

A. Oh, yeah. "Trend is not destiny."

Q. Finish this sentence for me. "If I were not a meteorologist, I would be..."

A. Working at something that I really don't like (laughs), because I like meteorology.

City Wins Round In Gun Range Fight

The city has won a major victory in its campaign to restrict the rebuilding of Boston's police gun range on Moon Island.

Environmental Affairs Secretary Trudy Coxé ruled last Friday that Boston must prepare an Environmental Impact Report (EIR) and examine alternative sites.

Coxé also said Boston must move quickly to correct island erosion created by the deforestation and grading of a four-acre hillside last fall.

Mayor James Sheets called the decision "a major legal victory" which came with help from the Seaside Environmental Alliance and other Squantum residents.

Coxé, in her three-page decision, told Boston the EIR must also detail a strategy to control island drainage and prevent sediment from washing into Quincy Bay, discuss methods to minimize noise from gunfire, and analyze the effect of the range on public access to Moon and Long Islands and public use of adjacent waters.

The Coxé decision also states that Boston's review of public access to the islands and surrounding waters "should consider, at a minimum, the issues of stray bullets, noise and public safety."

Mary Nee, director of Boston's public facilities department, defended the site work done in the fall by the Army National Guard. She said court orders obtained by Quincy officials halted work before plantings to prevent erosion, and therefore allowed winter storms and heavy runs to subsequently take their toll.

However, Nee—who has been negotiating with Quincy Administrative Assistant Bernice Mader regarding the use of the site—said Boston is ready to begin corrective actions as soon as weather permits. She added that she will speak with Boston

Mayor Thomas Menino and Police Commissioner Paul Evans about ways to reduce noise at the site and make it more agreeable to Squantum residents.

Ward 6 City Councillor Bruce Ayers and Council President Michael Cheney both said they plan to keep the pressure on Boston. Cheney also said he would continue to push for creation of a citizens' advisory committee, a request Boston has ignored.

Moon Island is owned by Boston but lies within Quincy city limits. The debate over the proper use of the gun range site there has been ongoing since September.

(NAPS)—Maintaining a healthy smile calls for more than daily brushing and flossing. Experts agree we need to keep our entire bodies healthy to keep our smiles healthy.

As preventive oral healthcare specialists, dental hygienists are educated to answer questions about a lot of matters that affect your oral health. Questions such as:

Q: Do my medications affect my oral health?

A: They could. The side effects of some medications can cause harmful conditions in your mouth, such as increased sensitivity of teeth and gums or decreased saliva flow. Your medications also affect decisions about your oral healthcare, ranging from the best ways to pre-medicate before an oral health procedure to identifying causes of oral health problems. So along with a complete medical history, your oral healthcare provider should have a detailed list—with names and dosages—of all the prescription and over-the-counter medications you're using.

Dental hygienists play an important role in your oral health.

Q: What about diet?

A: What you eat is much more important for good oral health than many realize. Your entire mouth responds just like the rest of your body to foods that stimulate healthy blood, bone and tissue. Your dental hygienist can recommend diet changes to keep your teeth and gums healthy.

Q: What about smoking?

A: Cigarettes and smokeless tobacco affect the mouth, oral cavity, and the head and neck area in multiple ways. In fact, many carefully controlled scientific studies link smoking to gum disease. So your dental hygienist can suggest smoking-cessation techniques as a natural extension of other routinely delivered preventive and oral treatment procedures.

HEART ATTACK SIGNS YOU MIGHT MISS

Chances are if you felt a crushing chest pain, you'd suspect a heart attack and get immediate help. What if you had a dull stomachache with feelings of nausea and bloatedness? How about if you felt suddenly swept by fatigue and had trouble catching your breath? In either of these situations, you could also be experiencing a heart attack. While the severe pain in the center of the chest is the most common signal, other lesser-known signs can indicate a heart attack as well. In addition to stomachache and shortness of breath, these signs include pain in the lower jaw and neck, pain and heaviness in the arm or shoulder (left or right side), and the sensation that something just doesn't feel right.

P.S. If you have any of the above symptoms, pay attention to them. If they persist for more than 15 minutes or so, get help.

If you or a companion is experiencing any of these symptoms, it is important that you seek medical attention immediately. If you'd like more information on this or any other column topic, feel free to call any of the doctors—myself, Dr. Lisa Antonelli, or Dr. Ronald Dunlap, at COMPREHENSIVE CARDIAC CARE at 472-2550. If necessary, we will refer you to another medical professional. Office hours are by appointment. We have ample parking at our office, located in Crown Colony, 700 Congress St., Suite 2C, in Quincy. Neponset River Drowning Accident Under Probe

Police are conducting an investigation to determine what caused a 73-year-old Hyde Park man's car to plunge into the Neponset River in Quincy last Saturday.

The accident occurred around 9:45 a.m. when William Byrnes dropped off his wife, Antoinette, 71, at the Neponset Flea Market on Hancock Street. She then watched helplessly as his 1990 Mercury Marquis crashed through a chain-link fence and into the river.

Byrnes was underwater for two hours before divers could locate his car in the murky water. He was taken to Boston City Hospital by helicopters, where he was pronounced dead.

His wife told police that the couple had been having problems with the car, which reportedly accelerated on its own several times before the accident occurred.

Police Chief Francis Mullen said at press time that it was unknown if the accident was the result of a malfunction by the car, but added, "we're looking into that possibility."

Other family members said Byrnes had complained about acceleration problems with his car to the dealer that sold him the car. But the owner of the dealership, Owen Motors of Dedham, said he reviewed work and repair orders on the 1990 car, questioned his service supervisors about it and found no mention of such a problem.

A spokesperson for the private Center for Auto Safety in Washington said the Marquis was one of several makes and models that have experienced sudden-acceleration problems. However, a spokesperson for Ford Motor Co., which makes the Mercury, said any sudden-acceleration problem has nothing to do with the car, adding that studies have shown that sudden-acceleration accidents result from driver error.

QUINCY RESIDENTS and Don Bosco Technical High School students Patrick J. Connolly, top, Sean P. Scanlan, lower, and Stephen A. Tangney, fastened shingles on a one-story ranch house constructed by students of the school's construction technology program. In constructing the house, students started from scratch, levelled the sills, installed floor joists and the subfloor, framed walls and stairs, sheathed walls and framed and sheathed the roof.

Central Student Senate Hosts Appreciation Luncheon

Central Middle School's Student Senate recently hosted an appreciation luncheon for the staff of teachers.

The theme, "Awesome Accomplishments," was highlighted this past month during which students and members of the staff were recognized for special and outstanding service to the school. Patricia Drew received a bouquet and a tribute for her work organizing and fostering the continuation of the "Care and Share" program. During the pre-holiday season students work to raise funds to clothe several adopted families. This past December they clothed 30 people.

Kenneth Panaro was recognized for his work to generate a dinner-graduation ceremony for the last year's departing Grade 8 and his work organizing an up-coming trip to Washington, D.C.

James Piccini has worked with the Student Senate the past three years for a skip trip to New Hampshire.

All staff members received a favor which contained candy. A bulletin board in the corridor announces other "Awesome Accomplishments" of students and former Centralite and Bronze Medalist Karen Cashman.

Serving the teachers were "Mayor" Marybeth Feeney, "Deputy Mayor" Sean Ciavarro, "Secretary" Katie Sweetser, "Treasurer" Andrew Bisconte, and "Senate Representatives" John Darling, Dominique Good and Leela Shankar.

Tributes to each of the three staff members were made by the Senate officers.

Mullen, Police Dept. Receive Award From School Committee

Police Chief Francis Mullen and the Quincy Police Department were recently presented a Distinguished Service Award by the School Committee.

Mullen and his department were recognized for their service to the school system and community and, in the School Committee's words, "for their continuing commitment to ensuring a safe and healthy environment for our young people."

The chief said he was very pleased to receive the award.

"We're very honored to receive the Distinguished Service Award from the Quincy Public Schools," said Mullen. "We have a good relationship with the school system and the same goals for the students."

The award, signed by Mayor James Sheets, who serves as chairman of the School Committee, Committee Vice Chairman

Daniel Raymondi and School Supt. Eugene Creedon, reads in part:

"Be it known that the Committee honors the Department for ensuring the safety of our students while crossing streets, siding on bicycles, interacting with strangers, preventing violence, and helping to maintain a safe and orderly school environment."

"Be it further known that the Committee honors the Department for dedicated service and leadership in Drug Abuse Resistance Education (DARE) which positively impacts an increasing number of students and prepares them to handle difficult choices in their lives.

"On this occasion the Committee officially commends the Chief and the Department for their cooperation and achievements and honors them for exemplifying the highest ideals and values of their profession."

Heavy Snowfall May Delay Spring Sports

By KERRY BYRNE

Even with all but the most stubborn snow piles melted away, this year's nasty winter could lead to a one or two week delay in the start of the local sports schedule.

Ball fields cannot be worked on until they completely thaw out. Usually this occurs around the end of March. The 86 inches of snow that landed on Quincy this year, coupled with the extended periods of extreme cold, means that the thawing out process could take longer than usual.

"Right now it's hard to determine when we're going to be able to work on the fields," said Park Director Ray Cattaneo. "We have to get the frost completely out of the fields before we work on them. If they're not defrosted and we work on them, they'll just get muddy again. It all depends on the weather. If it is warm like it is today (Tuesday) then we'll be all set. If not there could be a one or two week delay in the spring sports schedule."

According to Cattaneo, there are several parks and fields that are of primary concern: Adams, Upper Merrymount, Mitchell, McCoy, Atlantic, Fore River, Kincaide, O'Rourke and Bishop-Montclair. These fields are the first to be upgraded once the ground thaws. Home to both high school baseball teams, Adams Field is the first to be done.

It takes about two days per field for a crew to complete the yearly upgrade process. Base paths must be raked up and the soil allowed to dry. Additional soil, and sometimes a soil and clay mixture, are added to the paths. Outfields and grassy areas must be fertilized and limed. After this initial process is complete each field must be lined and cut regularly, and watered when possible.

After these primary fields are taken care of, secondary fields, such as Pageant and Faxon 1 & 2, are prepared. The order in which fields are taken care of is based on proximity of use. Fields used by the high schools are fixed before little league fields because the high school season begins earlier.

Flo Buhl at the Quincy Athletic Department echoed Cattaneo's concern.

"Depending on what the fields are like some high school events could be delayed or cancelled. But it all depends on the weather," said Buhl.

High school baseball and softball seasons generally start around the second week in April. Buhl said that Janice Francis, schedule maker at the Athletic Department, expects some headaches before the season gets underway.

Squirt B's Topple Triboro

The Quincy Youth Hockey Squirt B team beat Triboro, 5-4, in a Greater Boston League regular season game.

Two goals were scored by both Jon Paquette and Jordan Virtue, with Shawn Richardson netting one. Each goal scorer registered one assist.

Also handing out assists were Pat Lahar and Tom Maloney.

Pat O'Donnell had an excellent game between the pipes and made several key stops down the stretch to preserve the one-point victory.

Joe Callahan, Martin McGrath and Jill McInnis played excellent two-way hockey.

O'Donnell and Virtue were named co-players of the game.

19 Quincy Teams To Play In Benefit Volleyball Games

Nineteen Quincy teams will play volleyball in the Century 21/Easter Seal Volleyball Games on March 12, 13 and 19 at North Quincy High School. Play starts at 9 a.m. Games are co-sponsored by WLTV-TV 56.

Teams signed up for the games include Arbella Mutual Insurance, Elder Action Group-Beechwood Center, Clean Harbors, Charlesgate Construction Company, Crown OB, Dependable Cleaners, Eastern Engineering and Sales, GMAC, Herbert V. Schuster Inc., Hofbrau, J.M. Cashman Inc., Quincy Hospital, Quincy Savings Bank, State Street Bank, Thomson and Thomson, Work Inc., and teams organized by Nancy Kelly and Gina Scanlon.

All teams receive trophies and a chance to win a host of prizes from Red Sox tickets to Converse athletic shoes. Proceeds from the games fund Easter Seal services for people with disabilities.

Team registrations will be accepted until games day at the Easter Seal office, 482-3375.

Plays Barnstable Tonight At Merrimack North Quincy Advances To State Semi-Finals

By DAVE SOUTHWICK

The best way to win hockey games is to score as quickly as possible.

That's what North Quincy did on Saturday in the Division 1 quarterfinals against Don Bosco, scoring a goal in the first minute of each period en route to a 4-1 victory.

The win improves North's record to 16-3-3, increases their unbeaten streak to 16 (13-0-3), and puts them in the semifinals tonight (Thursday) against Old Colony League rival Barnstable, which upset No. 1 seed Newton North, 4-2. The game will be played at Merrimack College in North Andover with face-off at 6 p.m.

North Quincy and Barnstable split their two regular season games.

If North wins, the Raiders will advance to the finals at the Boston Garden Sunday and play the winner of the Boston College High School-Woburn semi-final.

Against Don Bosco, North took a 1-0 lead 45 seconds into the first period when Lee Hughes put the puck in on a shot originally taken by Joe Carinci that was kicked out by Don Bosco goalie Joe Glynn onto Hughes' stick. Andy Vermette assisted on the score.

Junior A.J. Carthas scored North's second goal just 15 seconds into the second period on a pass from Brendan O'Brien. The Carthas goal was a beauty. After a well executed give-and-go with O'Brien he fired a high, hard wristshot that flew over Glynn's glove-side shoulder.

North goalie Mike Manganaro played an outstanding second period, facing and stopping 16 Bear shots to keep Don Bosco scoreless. His most spectacular stop of the game came at the 1:59 mark when he absolutely robbed Bear forward Paul Myers of a goal from right in front with a sliding pad save. After fending off Bosco's only heavy pressure of the game Manganaro made another amazing save, slamming the door on what seemed like a sure goal by Mark Mansfield. The North netminder finished the game with 29 saves.

The Raiders struck early again in the third period when Jim Sapienza scored North's third goal just 27 seconds into the final stanza. The goal was set up by Carthas who carried the puck into the right slot, then waited, waited, waited for Sapienza to break loose from the Bosco defense before feeding the left-wing. Sapienza then slammed a low shot past Glynn's stick-side from just two feet away.

Bosco got on the board with their first and only goal at 1:42 but Carthas' second goal of the game at 13:04 sent the Bears home with the 4-1 defeat.

In opening round action last Wednesday, North Quincy eliminated Billerica by a 6-2 score.

After a scoreless first period, North broke it open in the second. Goals by Carthas, Vermette, O'Brien, Jim Kelly and Dave Pacino gave North a comfortable 5-2 lead after two.

Vermette scored again to cushion the lead and give North the 6-2 win.

Pee Wee C's Win State Tournament

The Quincy Pee Wee C squad won five straight games in the Massachusetts State Tournament to capture the state championship.

Quincy poured in three late goals to open up a 5-2 win over Canton in the title game.

Two goals each by Josh Silverman and Mike Hastings provided the margin of victory for the champs. Dave Noonan also scored for Quincy. The game's top playmaker was Shaun Cheney with three assists. Also assisting were Silverman, Noonan, Joe Vallatini and Chris Lumaghini.

Quincy opened their championship run with a 13-1 pasting of South Boston.

Two goals were scored by Vallatini, Noonan, Hastings, T.J. Wilson and Mike C. Sullivan. With single tallies were Chris Lumaghini, Mike Carloni and Mike D. Sullivan.

Vallatini's five assists gave him an amazing seven points in the contest. Two assists were dished out by Cheney and John Bertucci. Silverman, Carloni, Sean Fitzgerald and Mike C. Sullivan made single assists.

The competition stiffened in the next game as Quincy topped Waltham, 7-5, in a seesaw battle.

Vallatini was the top gun, netting four goals. Silverman scored twice and Noonan scored once. Ryan Murray set up three goals for the state champs.

With two assists were Noonan and Fitzgerald. Single assists were made by Mike C. Sullivan, Carloni and Silverman.

The Quincy boys battled a rough Framingham team in the third round and came away with a 4-1 win due to their superior hockey skills.

Vallatini, Bertucci, Silverman and Hastings were the Quincy goal scorers. Vallatini also assisted once, as did Mike C. Sullivan and Lumaghini.

In the semi-final game Quincy faced off against the venerated Medford squad, last year's state champions. The Medford crew proved to be no match as they lost 5-1.

Anchoring the Quincy victory were defensemen Jamie Parisi and Chris Cullen and netminder Nick Pizziferra.

Mike C. Sullivan, single-handedly outscored the defending champs with two goals. Also scoring were Vallatini, Silverman and Murray. Assists were handed out by Bertucci, Vallatini and Silverman.

Final tournament point totals for the state champs: Vallatini, eight goals, eight assists, 16 points; Silverman, 6-4-10; Noonan, 4-3-7; Mike C. Sullivan, 4-3-7; Hastings, 5-0-5; Cheney, 0-5-5; Bertucci, 1-3-4; Murray, 1-3-4; Carloni, 1-2-3; Lumaghini, 1-2-3; Fitzgerald, 0-3-3; Wilson, 2-0-2; Mike D. Sullivan, 1-0-1.

Sacred Heart Boys' Basketball To Compete In N.Y. Tourney

The Sacred Heart/North Quincy fourth-grade boys' basketball team will compete in a New York tournament featuring some of the top teams from the Big Apple.

The tournament is being held this Saturday and Sunday, March 19 and 20, at St. Matthew's Parish in Hastings-on-the-Hudson, a suburb north of New York City.

Sacred Heart is scheduled to open up against the Bronx area fourth grade champion on Saturday at 1 p.m. Their second game is Saturday at 3:30 against host St. Matthew's. Sacred Heart's final game is Sunday at 2 p.m. against the Rochester County fourth grade champs.

The Sacred Heart/North Quincy team has compiled an excellent record while playing against teams from all over Eastern Mass.

"We are not the tallest team around," said head coach Mark Jaehnig, "but we have been able to compensate for our lack of height with an aggressive team style defense and a fastbreak offense."

The members of the team are Tommy Buckley, Billy Croke, Matt Donovan, John Fidalgo, Chris Ham, David Jaehnig, Patrick Jaehnig, Jackie Luzzo, Mark Maher, Phil McGillicuddy and Dennis Thomson.

Assistant coaches are Bob Croke and Jim Donovan. Matt Jaehnig is the team ballboy.

Barbara Quinn On State Junior Golf Committee

Barbara Quinn of North Quincy was recently named to the Women's Golf Association of Massachusetts (WGAM) Junior Golf Committee for a one-year term.

Quinn, a nine-handicap golfer out of Wollaston Golf Club in Milton, serves as training manager for Automatic Data Processing (ADP) in Waltham.

The WGAM Junior Committee runs the Association's Junior Girls' state-wide events.

Tournaments include the state junior and junior-junior championships, and Registration is now underway for the 1994 "SEASON-2-SEASON" HOCKEY CAMP to be held at QUINCY YOUTH ARENA from April 17-August 28 for players age 10-14. Applications can be obtained at QYA or call Bill Connolly 479-1792 (evenings) for details.

NANCY GLENNON

Nancy Glennon, Noreen McBride On Suffolk Basketball Team

Two Quincy residents, Nancy Glennon and Noreen McBride, are members of the Suffolk University women's basketball team.

Glennon is in her second season as a member of the team. Coach Joe Walsh said that the 5'7" sophomore has been a big asset coming off the bench.

Glennon is a graduate of Sacred Heart High School in Weymouth and is majoring in biochemistry.

McBride is a transfer from Quincy College and the 1993-94 season is her first with Suffolk. The 5'8" junior power forward is averaging 12 points and 9.5 rebounds per game. According to Coach Walsh she has been one of the team's brightest performers.

McBride is a graduate of Fountbonne Academy and is majoring in accounting.

Youth Hockey

Squirt House

Hat Trick Trifecta Leads Doran & Horrigan

Three players hammered home hat tricks as Doran & Horrigan outgunned Granite Auto Electric, 13-2.

Mark Fitzpatrick, Tom Maloney and Jim Cashins were the three three-goal scorers for Doran. Also adding goals were Brian Stock (2), Martin McGrath and Kyle Piazza.

Conrad Leger and Jill McInnis did their best Gretzky imitations, handing out three assists each. Also assisting were Cashins (2), Piazza, Stock, Fitzpatrick and Ryan Doyle.

Derek Whitman and Jon Paquette netted the Granite goals. Scott Cawley had one assist.

Frank Currier scored two goals to lead Johnson Motor Parts past Green Environmental, 3-2.

Mark Giese's single goal was enough to provide the winning margin. Both Currier and Giese made assists as well. Frank Sorrento also notched an assist.

Jon Tallent did all he could for Green Environmental, scoring two unassisted goals.

Dan Kennedy, Terrence Doherty, Matt Reggiani and Scott Markarian tallied two times apiece to lead Burgin Platter to a 10-5 win over Quincy Sun.

Matt Petit and Tom Gaeta netted the other two goals for Burgin. It seems like everyone got involved in setting up the 10 goals as Reggiani (2), Doherty (2), Petit, Kennedy, Gaeta, Markarian, Jim Devlin, Matt Glynn and Joe Cunningham all had assists.

Matt Conso led the Sun with two goals. Dom Papile, Andrew Nestor and Shawn Richardson scored one each. Dave Germain was the game's leading playmaker with three assists. Also assisting were Richardson (2), Papile and Mike Campanale.

Squirt House League standings are: Granite Auto, 10-7-2; Burgin, 9-7-3; Green, 8-8-3; Doran, 7-8-4; Johnson, 7-8-4; Quincy Sun, 6-9-4.

Mite House

Delahoyde's 4 Goals Power Barry's, 10-8

The Quincy Mite B team, sponsored by the Quincy Firefighters, tied Pembroke, 3-3, in Greater Boston League play.

Pembroke scored their goals early and took a three goal lead into the third period despite the solid goaltending of Pat Caspar and the strong defensive efforts of Matt Alleva, Joe Norris, Timmy McMahon, Bob Donovan and Danny Durocher.

Quincy struck for three lightning-quick goals in four minutes to tie the game. Ryan Tobin, Chris Sheehan and Brendan Craig scored with Andrew McDonough, Lindsey Langille, Sheehan and Craig setting up the comeback tallies.

Regular season goalie Andrew Patten turned in a fine offensive performance skating as a winger.

Robert Mooney, Stephen Price and Patrick Maloney gave solid two-way efforts.

Quincy had a chance to cap their furious comeback with a fourth goal with just 1:43 left to play. A Pembroke defenseman covered the puck in the crease with his hand and Quincy was awarded a penalty shot. Richard Stone was the shooter. Stone faked to his backhand but the Pembroke goalie quickly slid across the crease to make a spectacular stop and preserve the tie.

The Quincy Mite B team's next game will be against Wellesley at Fessenden school.

Mike Delahoyde's four goals and one assist proved to be the difference for Barry's Deli as they beat Lydon Russell, 10-8.

Adding to the Barry's Deli total were Jarrod Swierk, Mike Lind, Andy Ross, Dan Sullivan, Ryan Tobin and Jeff Hunt. Assisting on the goals were Ryan McFarland (2), Richard Ayer, Tobin and Hunt.

John Chevalier led Lydon Russell with a hat trick while Miab Hasson and Brian Lynch followed with two tallies each. Corey Piazza also netted a goal. Hasson added three assists to end the game with a five-point total. Mike Cox (2), Rob Mooney and Justin Thorley also dished out assists.

Billy McKeon was also a four goal scorer as he powered Granite Rail Pizza to an 11-5 victory over Paul Harold Club.

Ryan Conley netted three for the winning squad while Josh Giordani and Bruce Maggio slammed home two apiece. Racking up assists were R. Conley (2), Bob Donovan (2), Brendan Conley, Mike Ogilvie, Maggio and McKeon.

Liam Powers' hat trick was not enough for the Harold Club. The other two goals were scored by Andrew Pitts and Bryan Cooper. Cooper also had an assist. Other assists were made by Mike Lohnes and Anthony Connolly.

Brian "the Flying Irishman" O'Hanley banged in three goals and assisted on another as his Campbell's Auto Service squad edged Purdy's Ice Cream, 6-4.

Tim Watson, Steve

Crispo and Brendan Craig scored the other three Campbell's goals. Assists were made by Matt Alleva, Billy Jones and Craig.

Jon O'Connor, Pat Caspar, Kenny Young and Tim Duggan were the Purdy's goal scorers. Paul McLean and Pat Clifford had assists.

Seven different players scored goals, including four by John Segalla, as Skatesmith overpowered Samoset Pharmacy, 12-1.

Jimmy Kennedy and Steve Segalla netted two each for the Skatesmith crew. With single tallies were Joshua Sawtelle, C.J. Stivaletta, George Snowling and David Toner. Toner added two assists for a total of three points in the game. Other players with assists were Billy Barter, S. Segalla, J. Segalla and Kennedy.

The Samoset goal was an unassisted effort by Billy Ryan.

Sports Spotlight

By KERRY BYRNE

Matt Moran, Mike Yanovitch, Jamie Small, Garvin McHale.

If you see these Don Bosco hockey players, these victims if you will, heap pity upon them. Feel bad for their mothers, the ones who had to witness the punishment that these boys received. Ask them if they know where they are, or who they are. Hold up a couple of fingers. See if they can count to two.

In Saturday's 4-1 Division I quarterfinal playoff loss to North Quincy, these four young men were flattened by a steamroller named Jim Sapienza.

Sapienza is much more than a loose cannon. As the Old Colony League's regular season scoring leader he certainly has the moves it takes to put the puck in the net, but if he can't go around you he won't think twice about running over you. Unfortunately for Moran, Yanovitch, Small and McHale, they found out the hard way.

Small, a junior defenseman, had more than one memorable run-in with the bulldozer on blades. In the second period he was buckled behind his own net as the tried to get the puck out of the zone. In the third, Sapienza hammered the defenseman in the open ice, hitting him so hard that Small's helmet came off.

With his season over, Small has plenty of time to think about taking up another sport.

I hear good things about the Don Bosco chess team.

The Red Raiders play OCL rival Barnstable in the semi-finals Thursday night (St. Patrick's Day) at 6 p.m. at Merrimack College in North Andover.

If you want to go, it is very easy to get there. Just hop on 93 North, and get off at route 125. Follow 125 east, and Merrimack College is just a few miles down the road on your left.

With a win Thursday night, the Red Raiders will play Sunday at 5:30 p.m., at the Boston Garden, in the Division I championship game. They will play the winner of Thursday's Woburn-BC High game.

According to coach Joe Walsh, the Suffolk University women's basketball team will be building their 1994-95 team around the talents of Quincy's Norreen McBride. This past season the 5'8" junior was second on the team in scoring with 13.2 ppg, and grabbed 23.2 rebounds.

Michael Lee was a competitor in the 1994 Boston International Karate Tournament held in Saugus on Feb. 26.

The Sterling Middle School sixth grader finished in first place in the Forms category of his division. Has been competing in tournament for two years and in the 1993 season he finished in the top ten in Forms and Fighting. He was also recognized by KRANE, the Karate Referees Association of New England.

Lee has been studying martial arts for four years at the Payton Professional Karate Center in Quincy.

We went searching through the Quincy Sun Sport Archives to find some bonecrushing hits to which we could compare the hits of Jimmy Sapienza. We could only come up with these:

#5-Cam Neely burying Ulfie upon returning to play the Penguins for the first time since his knee injury.

#4-Pete Rose barreling over, and ending the career of, catcher Ray Fosse in the 1970 All-Star game.

#3-Stan Jonathan's fists and someone's skull.

#2-Terry O'Reilly, and friends, clubbing fans over the head during a 1979 game against the Rangers at Madison Square Garden. It seems this fight started when a man lost his shoe and Peter McNab gently tried to give it back to him.

#1-The earth-shattering block Kerry Byrne delivered against Newton North in 1965. His massive blow wiped out their defensive line and sent three of the pathetic cupcakes off the field on stretchers, just because they had a few broken bones. People talk about it all the time!

Or maybe it's just me, over...and over.

The first running of the Kentucky Derby was held at Churchill Downs on May 17, 1875.

St. Moritz Devils Bury BC Squirts

The St. Moritz Devils Squirt Minor hockey team buried the BC Eagles Squirt team, 5-2, in a game played Friday night at Conte Forum.

The two squads battled to a scoreless tie in the first period. The Devils were led by goaltender Kevin Regan, who fought off a ferocious Eagle attack in the opening period.

Mike Aylward of Milton opened the scoring for St. Moritz in the second. He was assisted by Quincy's Tom Hughes. The Eagles tied it up before Corey Rosenfield of Sharon gave the Devils the lead for good. Rosenfield was assisted by Pat Balaconis of South Boston.

Quincy's John Segalla gave St. Moritz a 3-1 lead when he scored off a pass from Bobby Cellucci of Marshfield. Cellucci followed with a goal of his own. He was assisted by Balaconis and Segalla. Rosenfield scored the fifth goal for St. Moritz.

Excellent games were played by wing Kevin Lynch of Milton and center Joe Carr of South Boston. South Boston defenseman Sean Sullivan was one of the key reasons why the Eagles were unable to score more than two goals.

On Saturday St. Moritz played on their home ice at UMass against the Lowell Chiefs. The game ended in a 3-3 tie.

Rosenfield connected with Aylward who put the puck in the net just seconds into the contest. The Devils opened up a 3-1 lead with a second period breakaway goal by Aylward and a third period tally by Segalla. Two late Chief goals tied the game.

Mike Carr of Hyde Park had a great game with several scoring opportunities but the puck just wouldn't bounce his way. Cellucci also played a good game. He did an exceptional job of penalty killing when Lowell had a man advantage.

Squirt A's Win

The Quincy Squirt A's, sponsored by South Boston Savings Bank, defeated Canton, 5-3, in a Greater Boston League game played last Saturday.

Ryan Doyle powered Quincy with two goals. Dan Kennedy led the team in points with one goal and two assists. The other goals were scored by Frank Curreri and Jim Cashins. Curreri also notched an assist.

On Sunday Quincy beat Waltham, 4-2.

Doyle, who has been playing very good hockey, chalked up another two goals. Both Mark Giese and Brian Stock tallied once.

Kennedy again led Quincy with two assists. He was followed by Giese and Mark Gibbons with one each.

Goalie Matt Gregory has been very strong in net for Quincy.

The Squirt A's will be in Martha's Vineyard this weekend to compete in the State Championships.

Snaith Leads Fowler

Glen Snaith notched a hat trick for Fowler House as they beat Flibotte's Auto Sales, 5-3, in Executive League play Monday night at the Quincy Youth Arena.

Dave Mullen and Paul Connolly added single goals for Fowler House. Assists were made by John Ryan (2), John Farren (2), Paul Connolly, Mike Owens and Jim Connolly.

Flibotte's goals were netted by Mark Paolucci and Steve Lewis.

Five different players scored for Green Environmental as they topped Grumpy's Pub, 5-2.

Paul O'Brien, Ralph Gibbs, Chip Lindscott, Don Fawcett and John

McInnis were the goal scorers for Green. Assisting were O'Brien, McInnis and Greg McNulty.

Greg Viles scored for Grumpy's, with Pat Clifford and Rick Joyce assisting. Paul Veneziano added the second goal on a feed from Jim Colby.

Beacon Sports defeated South Shore Bearing, 4-2. Skip Manganaro, Art Boyle, Sr., Mark Jago and Bob Doyle scored for the winning squad. Dishing out assists were Jack Valle (2), Rick Boyle, Jack Duffy and Manganaro.

Tom Cahill scored both South Shore goals. The first was assisted by Frankie Guest.

Pee Wee House

Sullivan, Vallatini Power Marina Bay

In a battle for first place, Mike D. Sullivan and Joe Vallatini scored three goals each to power Marina Bay Taxi to a 7-5 victory over Mike Morrissey Club. The Marina Bay win leaves the two teams tied atop the Pee Wee House League standings.

Kevin Mason netted one goal and assisted on another for Marina Bay. Also assisting were Vallatini (2), Matt Struzik, Jeff Brophy and Ryan Barrett.

Shaun Cheney and Mike P. Sullivan scored two each for Morrissey Club. Mike Viles recorded one goal. Sullivan (2), Betsy Stone and John Alves were the playmakers.

Chris Carthas posted a hat trick for Keohane's as they topped Neponset Valley Survey, 8-6, in a shootout.

John Katsarikas, Paul Markarian, Mike Hastings, Tom Gouthro and Didier Alther banged in one goal apiece for Keohane's. Markarian set up four goals while Hastings added three assists and Katsarikas handed out two. Carthas and Pat O'Neill also had assists.

Mike Powers (2), Kevin Lynch, Mike C. Sullivan, Nick Pizziferri and Mike O'Connell scored for Neponset. Assisting twice were John Grazioso, Chris Murphy, Steve Ford and Bill Griffin. Powers had one assist.

Skinner's Winners were awarded a 1-0 forfeit victory over Colonial Federal.

Pee Wee House League Standings: Marina Bay, 13-6; Morrissey Club, 13-6; Colonial Federal, 9-8-2; Neponset, 8-10-1; Keohane's, 6-12-1; Skinner's, 6-13.

Mite A Travel Team Posts Two Victories

The Quincy Youth Hockey Mite A travel team skated to two impressive victories this week, crushing Pembroke 13-0, and manhandling Belmont, 10-2.

In the Pembroke slaughter, Tim Duggan, Brian O'Hanley, Matthew Lavery, Andy Ross and Jeremiah Hasson each netted two goals. Single tallies were notched by Ryan Donahue, Matt Germain and Billy McKeon.

Big playmakers for the Quincy Mite A's were Hasson and Billy Ryan with three assists each. Also collecting assists were McKeon (2), Jamie Chiochio (2), Jon Chevalier, Bryan Cooper, Donahue, Lavery.

O'Hanley and Ross.

Sean Moriarty and Stephen Kelley played tough two-way hockey and Kevin Richardson sparked in goal as he recorded his second shutout of the season.

Two goals apiece were scored by O'Hanley, Lavery and Donahue in the Belmont game. Single goals were recorded by Chiochio, Duggan, McKeon and Ryan. Assisting were Ryan (2), Donahue, Hasson, Lavery and McKeon.

McKeon, the team scoring leader, has shattered the fifty goal plateau this season. In 36 games he has scored 58 goals and 27 assists for 85 points.

School Would End June 27, June 30 Under Creedon Plan

(Cont'd from Page 1)

"This year, the state board of education has told us that we must have at least 180 school days. I have to show that this school system went to school for a guaranteed 180 days. There's no switching to hours."

"You can't make up days by adding hours," he added.

Originally, the calendar for Quincy public schools showed 185 school days and an end-of-school date of June 24. That would allow five snow days and still end school June 24 because five cancellations would equal 180 school days.

However, because bad weather forced nine elementary school cancellations and six middle school and high school cancellations, the last day of school had to be pushed back, Creedon said.

As a result, to meet the required 180 school days, another four school days had to be added to the elementary calendar and another day had to be added to the secondary calendar.

Creedon's recommendations were devised with the help of a four-member task force comprised of Arthur Woodward, director of information service for Quincy public schools; Tom Walsh, the president of the Quincy Education Association; a teacher, a parent and a principal.

Some school committee members did express some concern about the possibility of going to school on Memorial Day and Good Friday, two holidays steeped in tradition and meaning.

"I'm inclined not to support (Creedon's recommendation)," Steve Durkin said referring to Memorial Day. "It's a family day, an important national holiday, and we should keep it (as a day off) if we can."

Regarding Good Friday, Durkin said, "I'd have to give it some thought—it's really not a holiday, but it is a day of observance."

"I would be more inclined to cut into April vacation."

Linda Stice said she has no problems earmarking Memorial Day, Good Friday or April vacation as potential school days.

"It seems logical. It's probably the best solution," Stice said.

Although she had some initial reservations about Good Friday, Stice, like Creedon, noted most Good Friday services are held later in the day after school is out.

Vice Chairman Dan Raymond, and committee members JoAnn Bragg and Ron Mariano said they preferred using Tuesdays which Creedon said is not an option.

Of course, if school is not cancelled again this year, Creedon's contingency plan would not be used. However, New England has been known to get substantial snow falls in April or May which the superintendent said warrants such a plan.

Some members also expressed reluctance to go to school until the end of June. They noted June can be a very warm month and that environment is not conducive to learning.

However, the only way to end school before the last week of June is to schedule classes on the remaining holidays, and for the elementary students, during April vacation.

Councillors: College Will Not Leave City

Cheney was among those who disagreed.

"As far as the college moving is concerned, I don't agree," said Cheney. "Everybody is committed to the college, and it wouldn't make any difference if we had a revolving (special) account or not."

Cheney said he has dealt with such accounts before and there is no way of holding anyone accountable for them.

"There's no budgeting process for them, and it's scary," he said. "And that's not how government works. Appropriations of funds should be scrutinized by public officials through the budgetary process."

He added that he has heard from concerned parents who fear the computer, foreign language and athletics programs will suffer because the council deleted the pertinent section from the home-rule petition. Cheney termed the parents' criticism of the council "unjust," and said there is a safer way of providing funding for those programs.

"The maintenance fund could be cut, and some of the accounts receivable could be applied toward something else (such as school programs)," he said. "It can be done; the money just has to be moved around."

Cahill, who made the motion at last week's council meeting to have the special account section stricken from the home-rule petition, agreed that the college will remain in Quincy.

"The home-rule petition will make the college stronger than ever, and its (Quincy College's) home base will always be Quincy," said Cahill. "Deleting that section will in no way harm the college or the city's other students (in Grades K-12). That's why we passed the petition, to allow the School Committee to concentrate on the rest of the school system."

Cahill termed the mayor's comments about the college possibly having to move "misleading" and added, "it certainly doesn't help us in our quest to separate the college from the School Committee. We still want to get this (home-rule petition) passed by the state Legislature."

He also said the special account has "nothing to do with the home-rule petition," and noted that the School Committee is always welcome to approach the City Council if money is needed for school programs.

"In order to keep the city fiscally responsible, we have to go through the proper (appropriation) channels," said Cahill. "I don't believe in revolving accounts or slush funds, no matter how good the cause."

Chretien said given the opportunity, he would support the establishment of a special account again. He said the issue is less a matter of the college's accountability than a philosophical question of how the school department should be allowed to obtain funding for its programs.

Chretien added, however, that he did not think the late addition of the special account section, the language of which was taken from an earlier college governance proposal by School Committee Vice Chairman Daniel Raymond, to the home-rule petition was a wise move on the part of the Sheets administration. He said the section was added to the final draft of the petition as the last minute, which probably made some councillors feel as though they were being "tricked" into voting for the section.

"Basically, they (Sheets' administration) blew it," he said.

Kolson voiced similar sentiments, saying he was "disappointed" that no one had explained the inclusion of the special account section to the City Council before it was added to the petition's final draft.

He added that although he, too, would support the establishment of a special account again—noting that he felt it would make the transfer of funds to the school programs easier—he does not think it will cause Quincy College to make a move of any kind.

"At best, it's highly improbable," said Kolson. "First of all, where are they going to go? And it's just not that easy to pack up and move a college—it's not the size of a breadbox."

City Auditor Robert Foy said he agreed with the decision to delete the section, saying the City Council should have the last word in the appropriation process.

"I think the council should have the final say," said Foy. "That's what they're elected for. That's their job."

Sheets is out of town this week attending an international conference of mayors in Jerusalem and was unavailable for comment.

Sheets' home-rule petition mirrored that of a mayoral task force led by School Committee member Linda Stice, which called for the establishment of a 13-member independent board of trustees to run the college. The final draft also incorporated some language from Raymond's proposal and also, according to the mayor, spelled out in detail the fact that college employees' rights and benefits would not be affected by a governance change.

The governance change was deemed necessary by city officials because the New England Association of Schools and Colleges had ruled that Quincy College, which is currently run by the School Committee, must change its governance system or risk being put on probation and losing its accreditation.

Dr. Donald Young, president of the college, recently asked the NEASC for a deferral of the probation process so the school has an opportunity to begin implementation of the new governance process. Young said Tuesday NEASC officials have agreed to defer a ruling on probation until hospital," said LaRaia, who served as mayor for one term, 1976-77. "He had an almost daily routine during which he would walk through the hospital with the hospital director and talk to patients."

LaRaia added that "probably the most noble thing" Della Chiesa ever did was his work in "enhancing the city's public (downtown) area" in an effort to bring people to Quincy.

"His was a full day, and he was constantly involved in the affairs of the city," he said. "He had a tremendous rapport with the public. He's certainly worthy of the school being named after him) because of his personal qualities alone."

Grace Gianchiglia, secretary to Mayor James Sheets, served in the same capacity under Della Chiesa. She also expressed support of the School Committee's decision.

"I'm very pleased," she said. "I think it's a well-deserved honor. He was a man for the people, and I enjoyed working for him."

"I believe that the Della Chiesa name should be honored for the good he did for the city, and I'm proud to have worked under two very fine mayors."

Atty. Doug Randall, city solicitor during the Della Chiesa administration, said he, too, was happy to hear the news.

"I'm delighted that he's honored by the neighborhood in which he grew up and spent the greater portion of his life," said Randall. "He put in 18-hour days (at work) and he always spoke the truth, and people were always very confident that things would be done correctly when he was mayor."

"And part of the reason he was so successful was that he had a lifelong habit of giving everyone else credit for the successes in government. He was a humanistic person and a beloved citizen. Of all the politicians I've ever known, he was the only one to wear a halo."

Ward 4 Councillor Thomas Fabrizio never met Della Chiesa but said that there could have been no other name for the childhood center.

"I'm very pleased with the School Committee's decision," said Fabrizio. "I think that it reflects a great deal of the city's history. He represents the sons of immigrants, and there are many people in the city whose ancestors were immigrants from a number of ethnic backgrounds."

Fabrizio added that Della Chiesa was a "long-term political figure who had a connection to the area" and attended the former Lincoln-Hancock Elementary School, which was razed to make way for the construction of the new center.

The controversy over the naming of the new school began about three months ago when Fabrizio proposed that the center be named after Della Chiesa and School Superintendent Eugene Creedon suggested that the honor go to Abigail Adams. Supporters of both names aired their views at a public hearing on the issue, and some argued that despite Della Chiesa's accomplishments, the center should be named after Adams since Quincy has never named a school building after a woman.

Initially at last week's meeting, the Della Chiesa name had the support of Mayor James Sheets, who serves as chairman of the School Committee. Vice Chairman Daniel Raymond and committee members Sean Barry, Stephen Durkin and Ronald Mariano. Committee members JoAnn Bragg and Linda Stice had at first indicated they would vote for the Adams name.

However, at the time of the final roll call, Bragg and Stice changed their votes so the final decision would be a unanimous one.

Fabrizio said when he proposed the Della Chiesa name for the school, he never intended for the matter to become a "man/woman issue." He added, however, that the city should consider honoring a woman who was part of Quincy's contemporary history.

"Certainly, I think it would be proper to honor women in Quincy's history," said Fabrizio. "But I don't think we have to go back as far as colonial times to find a woman who made a significant contribution to the city."

The $2.2 million Early Childhood Center on Brooks Avenue was built to relieve overcrowding at the Lincoln-Hancock Elementary School, which has about 660 students. The center opened earlier this month, when about 120 preschoolers and kindergartners moved in.

About 100 first graders are scheduled to begin attending the school in September.

A number of Quincy mayors, starting with William T. Shea who was first elected in 1907, have had major roadways or facilities named after them. The Shea Ice Skating Rink is named in Shea's honor.

Subsequent mayors who have been similarly honored include: Thomas J. McGrath (McGrath Highway), Charles A. Ross (Ross Parkway), Thomas S. Burgin (Burgin Parkway), David S. McIntosh (Department of Public Works building), James R. McIntyre (James R. McIntyre Government Center, a.k.a. Old City Hall), Arthur Tobin (Tobin Towers) and McCauley (the McCauley Building at Quincy Hospital).

Tax Title as a result of non-payment and package and sell them as a collectible lien, a process used regularly in the private sector. The collectible debt is packaged and sold off to a corporation for a sum that is equal to the debt.

The corporation would then collect the debt and any interest due. It allows the city to receive cash for the back taxes up front, Cheney said.

"Jersey City, New Jersey has had great success with this concept," he noted.

Cheney said he has distributed information packages on the program this week to City Auditor Robert Foy, City Treasurer Dana Childs and Marion Fantucchio, chairperson of the Board of Assessors. He added that he has requested their input as it relates to Quincy on the program and will put together a presentation for Mayor James Sheets upon his return from an international conference of mayors in Jerusalem.

Funds collected in New Jersey were used to offset the property tax rate and the rate dropped by $6 per $1,000, according to Cheney. He said it is not yet clear what effect this program would have on the Quincy tax rate, but added that would be something the city would look into once they have seen how the program would impact Quincy.

Cheney said the difference between the private sector and the city collecting back taxes is that the private sector can be more aggressive and persistent and the foreclosure process is shortened, which allows corporations to receive money more quickly than a municipality.

He also said those involved are being careful to make sure that provisions will be made in the program to protect the small home owner who has temporarily fallen on difficult times and is struggling to meet his or her obligations, as opposed to a company, trust or individual who has blatantly just not paid taxes over a period of time.

"My objective is to aggressively go after some of the larger amounts owed to the city by allowing the private sector to bid on the tax lien package," said Cheney. "This would eliminate the need to spend approximately $50,000 in legal fees and other costs associated with collection procedures."

Cheney added that there are other municipalities looking into similar programs.

Jennifer Blaney On High Honor Roll At Quincy High

A THOUGHT FOR THE WEEK

Did you know that there is a master plan of the ages which gives much detail and data to help you about tomorrow? Did you know that there is a collection of 66 books that are combined into a single volume that has been handed down from generation to generation. It is so precious, men have died for it and so provoking that nations have fruitlessly attempted to destroy it. This book was written over a period of 1,600 years by 40 authors of very diverse backgrounds, cultures, and even languages and dialects. This book is the Holy Bible. It contains 773,802 words which was broken down into 31,173 verses by the year 1561 and in 1560 (The Geneva Bible), the first edition of the entire Bible divided into chapter and verse was printed. Chapter division itself occurred in the year 1228. The first English Bible was not printed until 1380 (Wycliffe).

George Washington said, "It is impossible to govern the world without God and the Bible." Quincy Quincy Adams added, "The first and almost the only book deserving of universal attention."

Martha Reardon Director Of Managed Care At Quincy Hospital

Martha Reardon was recently named director of managed care at Quincy Hospital.

Reardon is responsible for coordinating and implementing the hospital's managed care strategic plan, administering existing managed care contracts and pursuing additional HMO and health insurance contracts. She said one of her top priorities will be maintaining ongoing communication with both the hospital staff and managed care providers.

Reardon will also work with hospital physicians and the Utilization Review Department to ensure that the health care services provided by Quincy Hospital demonstrate the highest level in quality of care.

Previously, Reardon was a supervisor in the provider relations department at PruCare of Massachusetts, the managed care division of Prudential Insurance. Prior to that, she interned with the vice chair of the Health Committee of the Massachusetts State Legislature and with the assistant secretary for Health in the US Surgeon General's Office in Washington, D.C.

A Belmont resident, Reardon has a BS in health care administration from Stonehill College and an MBA from Bentley College.

Sheets Attends Jerusalem Conference Of Mayors

Mayor James Sheets is in Jerusalem attending a week-long international conference of mayors.

Sheets is one of only 10 U.S. mayors invited to attend the 14th annual conference. The mayors of Buenos Aires, Cracow, La Paz, Katmandu, Kiev, La Paz, Moscow, Prague, Quito and Rome will be among those in attendance. The conference will include 45 mayors from 30 nations.

The mayor, who called the chance to attend the conference an "honor" shortly before he left last Saturday, said it was only the second time he has left the United States and his first trip overseas. While attending a national mayor's conference in California a couple of years ago, Sheets said he took a bus trip from San Diego to Tijuana, Mexico.

The international conference is held annually in Jerusalem and hosted by the city's mayor. It is co-sponsored by the U.S. Conference of Mayors and the American Jewish Congress.

A spokesperson for the U.S. Conference of Mayors said Sheets received the invitation at the last minute because another mayor scheduled to attend had to back out of the trip.

The mayors said he expects security to be tight at conference events in the wake of last month's massacre of Muslim worshippers in a Hebron mosque, but added that he is not concerned about his own safety.

Sheets and the other mayors will have an opportunity to meet with some of Israel's top national leaders, as well as Jewish and Arab mayors. The mayors will be briefed by Israeli Foreign Minister Shimon Peres and President Ezer Weizman.

Sheets said he hopes to get ideas from other mayors about boosting Quincy tourism and seeking international financing for city projects. He also hopes to learn more about the possibilities of trading with Israeli cities and about how other cities around the world are dealing with crime.

Donations Sought For Campbell Scholarship Fund

Donations are sought for the first annual Eileen M. Campbell Scholarship Fund Dance which will be held Friday, April 8 at Florian Hall in Dorchester.

Miss Campbell, a 1988 graduate of North Quincy High School, was killed last year in an accident on Quincy Shore Drive two months before she was scheduled to graduate, with honors, from the University of Massachusetts at Boston.

Her family intends to honor her memory by establishing a scholarship for a NQHS student who plans to pursue a college degree from the University of Massachusetts. Items to be raffled at the dance are needed and donations are requested from local merchants.

All contributors' names will be displayed at the event, which is expected to be attended by approximately 500 people.

For more information, call Colleen Campbell at 376-0600.

WHAT'S THE DIFFERENTIAL?

Rear-wheel drive and front-wheel drive cars deliver power from the engine to the wheels in decidedly different ways. In the case of rear-wheel drive automobiles, a rotating metal tube known as a "driveshaft" transmits energy from the transmission to the "differential." Connected to the rear axle, the differential carries energy to the rear wheels. On the other hand, a front-wheel drive car incorporates the differential into the transmission to produce a component known as a "transaxle." Power goes directly from the transmission to the differential, which splits it between the front "drive" wheels. The more familiar car owners are with automobile terminology and systems, the better able they are to understand repairs and maintenance procedures.

HINT: A transmission is a system of gears that transfers engine power to the drive wheels.

For Outstanding Community Service

Mary Vallier Honored

As Sun Citizen Of The Year

Mary Vallier of Quincy, a 79-year-old great-grandmother who has devoted the past 15 years to aiding battered women and abused children, and helping others in need, was honored Sunday as the 1993 Quincy Sun "Citizen of the Year."

The ninth annual award was presented at a reception at the Quincy Sons of Italy Social Center attended by more than 100 family members, friends, city officials and invited guests.

Established in 1985, the award recognizes an individual for outstanding community service or a special achievement.

Sun Publisher Henry Bosworth presented Mrs. Vallier, a co-founder of DOVE (Domestic Violence Ended) and co-establisher of a Quincy shelter for battered women and children, with a clock plaque in recognition of her outstanding community service and dedication to DOVE and all those in need.

"The clock is symbolic," Bosworth told Mrs. Vallier. "It symbolizes all the time you have given to those in need and to your community—and which you are still giving."

Accepting the award, Mrs. Vallier said she was deeply appreciative. "I am honored and privileged to be here among previous Citizens of the Year, city and state officials, co-workers, family, friends, representatives of organizations with which I'm involved; the judging committee and the Quincy Sun staff."

Mrs. Vallier also thanked Bernice Ledbetter, who nominated her for the award, (Cont'd on Page 12)

Sheets: Wal-Mart Not Wanted Here

Mayor James Sheets said Tuesday he will not support the arrival of any new "box retailers" or "superstores" anywhere in Quincy because they could harm small businesses in the city's downtown section.

The mayor made his comments in response to a South Shore developer's proposal last week for a $20 million shopping mall, the main tenant of which could be Wal-Mart, at a site in Quincy Point near the depressed downtown business district. Developer Donald J. MacKinnon of Hingham, the man behind the proposal, has built Wal-Mart stores in several communities, including Avon. However, he could not confirm that the nation's largest retailer would serve as the anchor store at the mall.

Sources at Quincy City Hall, however, said they have been told Wal-Mart will definitely serve as the principal tenant. They also admitted that they expect opposition from those who believe Wal-Mart is a threat to small businesses.

Sheets, who was out of town last week, said Tuesday he also thinks superstores such as Wal-Mart or B.J.'s Wholesale Club would harm Quincy Center merchants and said he could not support such an enterprise coming to Quincy.

"I won't comment on what stores may be involved with this proposal, but we are not promoting (Cont'd on Page 24)

New Child World Tenant May Arrive Next Month

The city may have a new tenant for the site of the former Child World in Quincy Center by next month, Mayor James Sheets said Tuesday.

The mayor said Quincy 2000, the city's public-planning organization, is in the "advanced stages" of negotiating a lease between DeCelle's, a division of Burlington Cost Factory; and Walcott Corp., the owner of the site.

DeCelle's sells women's and children's clothing, Sheets said. He added that if the lease is signed, DeCelle's would acquire about 35,000 square feet, including the basements and upper floors of both Child World and the former Cummings store next door.

"If the lease is signed, it will be the first return of a retailer of this major size to Hancock Street in 25 years," said Sheets.

The mayor said he could not go into any further details about the negotiations at this time.

Project Officials Meet With QCBPA Support, Concern For Proposed Center Connector

By ROBERT BOSWORTH

Downtown merchants, retailers and other business professionals expressed support and concern to city leaders Tuesday regarding a two-phased proposal to construct a multi-million dollar roadway in Quincy Center.

Some members of the Quincy Center Business and Professional Association told Mayor James Sheets and other officials connected with the Quincy Center Concourse project that they support the first phase of the project which calls for an east-west, four-lane roadway connecting Burgin Parkway to Hancock St.

However, other QCBPA members said they have reservations and concerns about the second phase of the project which would link Hancock St. with McGrath Highway and Southern Artery.

The second phase has several options, one of which calls for a concourse extension from Hancock St. to Revere Rd. That could raze businesses on the eastern side of Hancock St. from Bernie's Modern Formal Shop up to, but not including, the soon-to-open Blockbuster Video on the site of the former Colman's Sporting Goods.

Sheets said it is still unclear what direction the second phase of the project would take, and mentioned that this phase may never happen.

"I think we have to crawl before we can walk and walk before we can run. We don't want to do anything that would negatively impact retail business on Hancock St.," the mayor said.

The project would cost an estimated $6 million in state and federal money. That price tag would include constructing the first phase from Burgin Parkway across from the Star Supermarket to Hancock St. but not any landtakings.

About 55 percent of the $6 million would be used to build a bridge over the MBTA tracks, officials said.

The second phase would cost additional federal and state money.

Will Draft Home-Rule Petition Conference Committee To Address School Needs

By MICHAEL WHALEN

City Council President Michael Cheney is planning to establish a Conference Committee for the purpose of drafting a home-rule petition regarding the funding of school programs in the city.

Cheney said at Monday night's City Council meeting that the committee would consist of two School Committee members, himself, and Ward 5 Councilor Charles Phelan, chairman of the council's Education Committee. Cheney said School Committee Vice Chairman Daniel Raymondi would be part of the new committee, but he could not say who the fourth member would be.

Cheney said he hopes to contact Raymondi by today to "immediately" set up a series of meetings of the new committee. He said he hopes the group can come up with a home-rule petition that is agreeable to the City Council, School Committee, Citywide Parents Council and the parents of all the city's school children.

Raymondi said Tuesday he "applauds" the decision to form the new committee, adding that he is hopeful the two sides can work out some kind of agreement.

Cheney Wants Seal On Vehicles

City Council President Michael Cheney introduced an ordinance Monday night that would require all city vehicles, excepting undercover police cars, to bear Quincy's city seal on their sides. Cheney said vehicles driven by the building, health and other departments should bear the seal so that when they pull up in front of residents' homes, "people will know who is walking up to their doors." Mayor James Sheets said he "has no problem" with the proposal, providing that the implementation of the ordinance is not too costly.

Quincy Elks Wrap Up Details For New W. Quincy Site

By LISA CONNELL
Capping a process that's been in the works for almost 10 years as the Quincy Elks Club prepares to move into their new building and location at 256 Quarry St., city Licensing Board officials approved a transfer of the club's all-alcoholic license at their meeting Tuesday.

The vote to approve the license transfer from the group's old site at 440 East Squantum to its new West Quincy location was unanimous.

City clerk and Licensing Board Chair Joseph Shea, an Elks member, did not vote on this issue and sat in the audience until the hearing was over.

Building Inspector and Licensing Board Vice-Chair Mathias Mulvey presided over the hearing.

Representing the Quincy Police was Captain Frederick Larcy, substituting for board member and Police Chief Francis Mullen.

No one from the audience spoke in opposition to the license transfer.

Elks member Gerard Horan and Robert Walsh, general contractor for the project, appeared before the board.

Designed by local architectural firm M.G. Ross Associates of North Quincy, the new building's estimated cost of construction was $630,000, according to Mulvey.

A two level building, the size of the new site is 9800 square feet, Mulvey said.

Their old club location was in an old building, a school," said Mulvey.

The new building is approximately 5,000 square feet larger than the former structure, according to Mulvey. Once the license is in the process of being transferred, the Elks organization cannot serve alcohol at their old site if the new site isn't ready.

The board prohibits operating two places at once using the same liquor license.

Walsh hopes to be in the new building before mid-May, but acknowledged that this might not be possible.

"We're trying for a 5-12 [May 12] function; whether that's possible remains to be seen—this will be very close," said Walsh.

While plans for the new building have been in the developmental stage for close to a decade, the last four years have seen the most vigorous planning activity, said Mulvey. Actual groundbreaking for the project occurred in April of '93, Mulvey said.

License Board Briefs

The Licensing Board took the following action at its meeting on Tuesday:

- Granted a request from The What Not

Shope, 414-416 Hancock St. (Michael Greene) for a second-hand license.

- Voted to postpone indefinitely a request from

The Pastry Shop, 263 Copeland St. (Ed. and Karen Montes), for a common victualler license.

- Granted a request from Daniel J. Quirk, Inc., 196 Ricciotti Dr. (Daniel Quirk), for a permit to store 1,500 gallons of gasoline in tanks of motor vehicles and 750 gallons of oil stored in above ground tanks.

- Set an April 5 hearing date for Murphy's Liquors, 385 Hancock St., to answer charges brought to the board's attention by the Quincy Police Department and Liquor Inspector Det. Sgt. Richard Larcy regarding the sale of alcohol to an underage person.

Council Passes Petition For West Quincy Golf Course, Rec. Complex

The City Council unanimously voted Monday night to support a home-rule petition allowing Mayor James Sheets to enter into a lease agreement for a proposed golf course and recreation complex at the former landfill site in West Quincy.

The petition would allow Sheets to enter into the agreement with the developer of the 250-acre project, Quarry Hills Associates.

Sheets said Tuesday that he is hopeful the petition will be passed by the state Legislature in 30 to 45 days. After that, Quarry Hill Associates would have to secure fill from Boston's Central Artery Project to finish covering the landfill.

The mayor added that once the fill is obtained, the developers will have to submit a design plan to the state Department of Environmental Protection (DEP), which must approve all facets of the plan and issue a permit before the lease can be approved in its final form.

Sheets said it could take as long as a year or two for final DEP approval. Once the DEP—which has the authority to make changes to the proposed lease if it so chooses—issues a permit, it will also send what it feels should be the last draft of the petition to the mayor for final approval.

An attorney for a butter of the proposed project site, Daniel Joyce of Quincy, sent Sheets a letter dated last Friday expressing concerns about the environmental impact of the project and other factors that could impact Joyce's property. Sheets responded by saying that the DEP will not approve any project that does not meet all environmental concerns, adding that he personally will not endorse a lease with any such problems.

"I will not sign the lease until I am convinced there are no environmental problems," he said. "It's fully our intention to protect the interests of all abutters."

Councillors had previously expressed concerns about their authority in
